VER. 10. Idols. He looks upon the true God as no better than any idols, (4 K. xviii. 32.) and falsely supposes that the latter were adored at Jerusalem. C.

VER. 12. Works. Humbling and terrifying Ezechias and his subjects, who were reduced to great distress, in order to avert the impending war. H.—Eyes. The Assyrians were punished in their turn.

VER. 14. Nest. Some put these words in the mouth of God. Tert. Abdias 4.—But they shew the insolence of Sennacherib.

VER. 16. Axe. The Assyrian has no right to boast. What can man do without God's assistance? C.—Gratias tunc deipito et quancunque non feci mala. S. Aug. Conf. ii. 7.—Sennacherib persecuted the Jews of his own free will, though he was God's instrument. W.

VER. 16. Fire. The Jews assert, that 185,000 perished by an inward burning, so that only ten men were left. v. 19. S. Jer.

VER. 17. Light. God. H.—Thorns. Private soldiers. C.

VER. 18. Glory. Officers.—Flesh. Or body. All shall perish. H.—Fear. Sennacherib escaped alone, and fell by the sword of his own sons.

VER. 20. Israel now submitted to Ezechias, as their kingdom was overturned in the sixth year of his reign, eight years before Sennacherib's arrival. Isaias speaks of this time, and therefore makes no distinction of the kingdoms. Striketh the Assyrian.

VER. 22. Converted. This was partly verified in the children of Israel who (1918) remained after the devastations of the Assyrians, in the time of king Ezechias: and partly in the conversion of a remnant of the Jews to the faith of Christ Ch.—4 K. xviii. 3. Rom. ix. 27. The apostle follows the Sept. (C.) "and if the people of Israel be."—Converted. Sept. "saved, for perfecting the word and abridging in justice. Because God, the Lord of hosts, will make an abridged word in the universe." H.—As the apostle has explained this passage, "every other interpretation must cease." S. Jer.—The few who were converted under Ezechias were a figure of those who should embrace the faith of Christ. C.—Consumption. That is, the number of them cut short, and reduced to few, shall flourish in the abundance of justice. Ch.—Heb. "the desolation is decreed, justice shall overflow." God will treat all with rigour. Nah. i. 8. The incredulous Jews shall be rejected. v. 23. Rom. ix.

VER. 24. Egypt. He sent Rabsaces from Lachia, when he set out to meet Tharaca. 4 K. xix.

VER. 25. Little. Twenty-eight years, (Pa. lxxxix. 4.) or he alludes to the destruction which took place in a single night, (C.) or in a moment. v. 16. H.

VER. 26. Oreb. Judg. vii. 25.—And his. Moses thus let loose the waters of the Red Sea on the Egyptians, by stretching forth his rod. C.

VER. 27. Oil. That is, by the sweet unction of divine mercy. Ch.—Chal. "before the anointed," in consideration of Ezechias and Isaias. In a higher sense, it denotes the victory of Christ over the devil. C.

VER. 28. Into Aiath, &c. Here the prophet describes the march of the Assyrians under Sennacherib; and the terror they should carry with them; and how they should suddenly be destroyed. Ch.

VER. 29. Lodging. Here, say the Assyrians, we will encamp.

VER. 31. Take. Prot. "gather themselves to flee." H.

VER. 32. Nobe. He may arrive thither shortly, in the environs of Jerusalem. C.—Sept. "exhort to-day, that they may continue on the road. Comfort with 32 It is yet day enough, to remain in Nobe: he shall shake his hand against the mountain of the daughter of Sion, the hill of Jerusalem.

33 Behold the sovereign Lord of hosts shall break the earthen vessel with terror, and the tall of stature shall be cut down, and the lofty shall be humbled.

34 And the thickets of the forest shall be cut down with iron, and Libanus, with its high ones, shall fall.

CHAP. XI.

Of the spiritual kingdom of Christ, to which all nations shall repair.

AND there shall come forth a rod out of the root of Jesse, and a flower shall rise up out of his root.

2 And the Spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him: the spirit of wisdom, and of understanding, the spirit of counsel, and of fortitude, the spirit of knowledge, and of godliness,

3 And he shall be filled with the spirit of the fear of the Lord. He shall not judge according to the sight of the eyes, nor reprove according to the hearing of the ears.

4 But he shall judge the poor with justice, and shall reprove with equity, for the meek of the earth: and he shall strike the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips he shall slay the wicked.

5 And justice shall be the girdle of his loins: and faith the girdle of his reins.

6 The wolf shall dwell with the lamb: and the leopard shall lie down with the kid: the calf, and the lion, and the sheep, shall abide together, and a little child shall lead them.

7 The calf, and the bear shall feed: their young ones shall rest together: and the lion shall eat straw like the ox.

8 And the sucking child shall play on the hole of the asp: and the weaned child shall thrust his hand into the den of the basilisk.

9 They shall not hurt, nor shall they kill in all my the hand the daughter of Sion, thou rock and hills within Jerusalem." H.—Hand. As Nicanor did against the temple. 2 Mac. xv. 32. C.

VER. 33. Vessel. Like Gideon, when he attacked Madian. v. 26. Judg. vii. 19. Sept. "the nobles." H.—Heb. "their beauty." The empire of Assyria shall presently fall. C.

CHAP. XI. VER. 1. Root. Juda shall not be exterminated, like the Assyrians. C.—Christ shall spring from the blessed Virgin, (W.) for the salvation of mankind. The Jews agree, that this prediction regards the Messias; though some, with Grotius, would explain it literally of Ezechias. They do not reflect that he was now ten years old, and that the prophet speaks of an event which should still take place after he had been a long while upon the throne. If we were to look for any figure of the Messias, to whom this might be applicable, it would be Zorobabel. Zac. iii. 8. But how disproportionate would be the promises to the execution! Some passages may indeed relate to the return of the captives, (v. 11.) as the people must have a more immediate object, to insure the accomplishment of the more elevated predictions concerning the Messias: but these also refer ultimately to the propagation of the gospel, which the prophet had also in view. C.

VER. 2. Him. In the form of a dove. Jo. i. 32. H.—"The whole fountain of the Holy Ghost descending." Ev. Nazar. S. Jer.—Christ was filled with his seven gifts, and of his fulness his servants receive. W.—Yet all virtues are the gifts of the Holy Spirit, and the number seven is not specified in Heb. as the same word (C.) yirath, is rendered godliness, which (v. 3.) means, the fear of the Lord. H.—God enables us to penetrate the difficulties of Scripture, and to act with prudence, &c. M.

VER. 3. Filled. Heb. "breath or smell." So S. Paul says, (2 Cor. ii. 15.) we are the good odour of Christ. C.—Prot. "he shall make him of quick understanding (marg. smell) in the fear," &c. H.—Ears. Which are often deceived. M.

VER. 4. Wicked. Antichrist, (2 Thes. ii. 8.) and all impiety, by means of the apostles.

VER. 5. Reins. He shall possess these virtues, performing his promises with the strictest fidelity. C.

VER. 6. Wolf. Some explain this of the Millennium. ap. S. Jer. Lact. vii. 24.

holy mountain, for the earth is filled with the knowledge of the Lord, as the covering waters of the sea.

10 In that day the root of Jesse, who standeth for an ensign of people, him the Gentiles shall beseech, and his sepulchre shall be glorious.

11 And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord shall set his hand the second time to possess the remnant of his people, which shall be left from the Assyrians, and from Egypt, and from Phetros, and from Ethiopia, and from Elam, and from Sennaar, and from Emath, and from the islands of the sea.

12 And he shall set up a standard unto the nations, and shall assemble the fugitives of Israel, and shall gather together the dispersed of Juda from the four quarters of the earth.

13 And the envy of Ephraim shall be taken away, and the enemies of Juda shall perish: Ephraim shall not envy Juda, and Juda shall not fight against Ephraim.

14 But they shall fly upon the shoulders of the Philistines by the sea, they together shall spoil the children of the east: Edom, and Moab, shall be under the rule of their hand, and the children of Ammon shall be obedient.

15 And the Lord shall lay waste the tongue of the sea of Egypt, and shall lift up his hand over the river in the strength of his spirit: and he shall strike it in the seven streams, so that men may pass through it in their shoes.

16 And there shall be a highway for the remnant of my people, which shall be left from the Assyrians: as there was for Israel in the day that he came up out of the land of Egypt.

—But the more intelligent understand, that the fiercest nations shall embrace the gospel, and kings obey the pastors of the Church. C.—Lead. Or "drive," as the word is used by Festus. H.

VER. 8. Basilisk. Ps. ix. 13. The apostles subdued kings and philosophers, without any human advantages.

VER. 9. Kill. The most inveterate pagans, being once converted, entirely alter their manners. Ose. ii. 18.

VER. 10. Ensign. The cross is the standard of Christians.—Sepulchre. Heb. Sept. &c. "rest." S. Jerom gives the true sense. The holy places have been greatly revered, and Christian princes strove for a long time to recover them. C.—They are respected even by the Turks. Christ's death was ignominious, but his monument was full of glory. Thus the saints begin to shine, where the glory of the wicked ends. W.

VER. 11. Time. After the deliverance from Sennacherib, they shall return from captivity. Ezechias recalled some few. 2 Par. xxix. 9.—Remnant. Some embraced the gospel. Rom. ii. 2. Acts ii. 41. &c.—Phetros, in Egypt.—Of the Mediterranean sea, and all places to which the Jews went by water.

VER. 12. Away. Under Ezechias the Israelites began to join with Juda. But they did it more cordially after their return from Babylon.

VER. 14. Shoulders. Or confines. Eze. xxv. 9. Ezechias and the Machabees attacked the Philistines. C.—Sept. "and they shall fly on the ships of the strangers; they shall plunder the sea together, and those on the east, and Idumea." H.—East. Ammonites, &c. often defeated by the Machabees, and probably by Ezechias.

VER. 15. Tongue. Gulf of the Mediterranean, near Pelusium, or the seven mouths of the river Nile. The country was ravaged by Sennacherib, Cambysea, Alex. and Epiphanes. C. xix. 4. &c. The Jewish captives shall return thence. C. l. 3. Zac. x. 10.

VER. 16. Assyrians. They shall march without impediment. C.

CHAP. XII. VER. 1. Thanks. Lit. "confess." The Jews thank God for their return, as the Church does for her deliverance from sin. W.—Canticles were composed on such occasions. Ex. xv.—Angry. They do not thank God on this account; but because he had averted his indignation. C.

2 Behold, God is my Saviour, I will deal confidently, and will not fear: *because the Lord is my strength, and my praise, and he is become my salvation.

3 You shall draw waters with joy out of the Saviour's fountains:

4 And you shall say in that day: Praise ye the Lord, and call upon his name: make his works known among the people: remember that his name is high.

5 Sing ye to the Lord, for he hath done great things: shew this forth in all the earth.

6 Rejoice, and praise, O thou habitation of Sion: for great is he that is in the midst of thee, the holy one of Israel.

CHAP. XIII.

The desolation of Babylon.

THE burden of Babylon, which Isaiah, the son of Amos, saw.

2 Upon the dark mountain lift ye up a banner, exalt the voice, lift up the hand, and let the rulers go into the gates.

3 I have commanded my sanctioned ones, and have called my strong ones in my wrath, them that rejoice in my glory.

4 The noise of a multitude in the mountains, as it were of many people, the noise of the sound of kings, of nations gathered together: the Lord of hosts hath given charge to the troops of war,

5 To them that come from a country afar off, from the end of heaven: the Lord, and the instruments of his wrath, to destroy the whole land.

6 Howl ye, for the day of the Lord is near: it shall come as a destruction from the Lord.

7 Therefore shall all hands be faint, and every heart of man shall melt,

8 And shall be broken. Gripings and pains shall take hold of them, they shall be in pain as a woman in labour. Every one shall be amazed at his neighbour, their countenance shall be as faces burnt.

9 Behold, the day of the Lord shall come, a cruel day, and full of indignation, and of wrath, and fury, to lay the land desolate, and to destroy the sinners thereof out of it.

10 *For the stars of heaven, and their brightness, shall not display their light: the sun shall be darkened in his rising, and the moon shall not shine with her light.

11 And I will visit the evils of the world, and against the wicked for their iniquity, and I will make the pride of infidels to cease, and will bring down the arrogancy of the mighty.

12 A man shall be more precious than gold; yea, a man than the finest of gold.

13 For this I will trouble the heaven: and the earth shall be moved out of her place, for the indignation of the Lord of hosts, and for the day of his fierce wrath.

14 And they shall be as a doe fleeing away, and as a sheep: and there shall be none to gather them together: every man shall turn to his own people, and every one shall flee to his own land.

15 Every one that shall be found, shall be slain: and every one that shall come to their aid, shall fall by the sword.

16 *Their infants shall be dashed in pieces before their eyes: their houses shall be pillaged, and their wives shall be ravished.

17 Behold! I will stir up the Medes against them, who shall not seek silver, nor desire gold:

18 But with their arrows they shall kill the children, and shall have no pity upon the sucklings of the womb, and their eye shall not spare their sons.

19 And that Babylon, glorious among kingdoms, the famous pride of the Chaldeans, *shall be even as the Lord destroyed Sodom and Gomorrha.

20 It shall no more be inhabited for ever, and it shall not be founded unto generation and generation: neither shall the Arabian pitch his tents there, nor shall shepherds rest there.

21 But wild beasts shall rest there, and their houses shall be filled with serpents, and ostriches shall dwell there, and the hairy ones shall dance there:

22 And owls shall answer one another there, in the houses thereof, and sirens in the temples of pleasure.

them rest upon their own ground: and the stranger shall be joined with them, and shall adhere to the house of Jacob.

2 And the people shall take them, and bring them into their place: and the house of Israel shall possess them in the land of the Lord for servants and handmaids: and they shall make them captives that had taken them, and shall subdue their oppressors.

3 And it shall come to pass in that day, that when God shall give thee rest from thy labour, and from thy vexation, and from the hard bondage wherewith thou didst serve before,

4 Thou shalt take up this parable against the king of Babylon, and shalt say: How is the oppressor come to nothing, the tribute hath ceased?

5 The Lord hath broken the staff of the wicked, the rod of the rulers,

6 That struck the people in wrath with an incurable wound, that brought nations under in fury, that persecuted in a cruel manner.

7 The whole earth is quiet and still; it is glad, and hath rejoiced.

8 The fir-trees also have rejoiced over thee, and the cedars of Libanus, saying: Since thou hast slept, there hath none come up to cut us down.

9 Hell below was in an uproar to meet thee at thy coming, it stirred up the giants for thee. All the princes of the earth are risen up from their thrones, all the princes of nations.

10 All shall answer, and say to thee: Thou also art wounded, as well as we, thou art become like unto us.

11 Thy pride is brought down to hell, thy carcass is fallen down: under thee shall the moth be strewed, and worms shall be thy covering.

12 How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, who didst rise in the morning? how art thou fallen to the earth, that didst wound the nations?

13 And thou saidst in thy heart: I will ascend into heaven, I will exalt my throne above the stars of God, I will sit in the mountain of the covenant, in the sides of the north.

14 I will ascend above the height of the clouds, I will be like the Most High.

CHAP. XIV. VER. 1. Prolonged. Babylon was taken one hundred and seventy-two years after. C.—Yet this time is counted short, compared with the monarchy, which had lasted a thousand years. W.—Ground. Cyrus restored the Jews; yet all did not return at that time—Stranger. Convera. Est. viii. 17. All Idumea received circumcision under Hyrcan.

VER. 2. Place. Cyrus probably granted an escort, as Artaxerxes did. 2 Esd. ii. 7.—Servants. They had purchased many slaves, (1 Esd. ii. 65.) as some were very rich in captivity, and were treated like other subjects.—Oppressors. Stragglers of the army of Cambyses, &c. though this was chiefly verified under the Machabees. Jer. xxv. 14. and xxx. 16. C.

VER. 4. Parable. Sept. ἔπος, "Lamentation." H.—Or mournful canticle.

VER. 6. Persecuted. The Jews read incorrectly, "is persecuted."

VER. 7. Earth. Subject to, or bordering upon the Assyrian empire. Under Darius the Mede, (the Cyaxares of Xenophon) and Cyrus, the people were little molested. C.—The neighbouring princes (fir-trees, &c. v. 8.) were also at rest. H.

VER. 9. Hell is personified, deriding the Chaldean monarch, Baltassar, who perished the very night after he had profaned the sacred vessels. Dan. v. 3. He probably received only the burial of an ass. v. 11. 19. C.

VER. 12. O Lucifer. O day-star. All this, according to the letter, is spoken of the king of Babylon. It may also be applied, in a spiritual sense, to Lucifer, the prince of devils, who was created a bright angel, but fell by pride and rebellion against God. Ch. Lu. x. 18. C.—He fell by pride, as Nabuchodonosor did. W.—Homer (Iliad xix.) represents the demon of discord hurled down by Jupiter to the miserable region of mortals.

15 But yet thou shalt be brought down to hell, into the depth of the pit.

16 They that shall see thee, shall turn toward thee, and behold thee: Is this the man that troubled the earth, that shook kingdoms,

17 That made the world a wilderness, and destroyed the cities thereof, that opened not the prison to his prisoners?

18 All the kings of the nations have all of them slept in glory, every one in his own house.

19 But thou art cast out of thy grave, as an unprofitable branch defiled, and wrapped up among them that were slain by the sword, and are gone down to the bottom of the pit as a rotten carcass.

20 Thou shalt not keep company with them, even in burial: for thou hast destroyed thy land, thou hast slain thy people: the seed of the wicked shall not be named for ever.

21 Prepare his children for slaughter, for the iniquity of their fathers: they shall not rise up, nor inherit the land, nor fill the face of the world with cities.

22 And I will rise up against them, saith the Lord of hosts: and I will destroy the name of Babylon, and the remains, and the bud, and the offspring, saith the Lord.

23 And I will make it a possession for the ericium and pools of waters, and I will sweep it, and wear it out with a besom, saith the Lord of hosts.

24 The Lord of hosts hath sworn, saying: Surely as I have thought, so shall it be: and as I have purposed, 25 So shall it fall out: That I will destroy the Assyrian in my land, and upon my mountains tread him under foot: and his yoke shall be taken away from them, and his burden shall be taken off their shoulder.

26 This is the counsel, that I have purposed upon all the earth, and this is the hand that is stretched out upon all nations.

27 For the Lord of hosts hath decreed, and who can disannul it? and his hand is stretched out: and who shall turn it away?

30 And the first-born of the poor shall be fed, and the poor shall rest with confidence: and I will make thy root perish with famine, and I will kill thy remnant.

31 Howl, O gate, cry, O city: all Philistia is thrown down: for a smoke shall come from the north, and there is none that shall escape his troop.

32 And what shall be answered to the messengers of the nations? That the Lord hath founded Sion, and the poor of his people shall hope in him.

CHAP. XV.

A prophecy of the desolation of the Moabites.

THE burden of Moab. Because in the night Ar of Moab is laid waste it is silent: because the wall of Moab is destroyed in the night, it is silent.

2 The house is gone up, and Dibon to the high places, to mourn over Nabo, and over Medaba, Moab hath howled: "on all their heads shall be baldness, and every beard shall be shaven.

3 In their streets they are girded with sackcloth: on the tops of their houses, and in their streets all shall howl, and come down weeping.

4 Hesebon shall cry, and Eleale, their voice is heard even to Jasa. For this shall the well appointed men of Moab howl: his soul shall howl to itself.

5 My heart shall cry to Moab, the bars thereof shall flee unto Segor, a heifer of three years old: for by the ascent of Luith they shall go up weeping: and in the way of Oronaim they shall lift up a cry of destruction.

6 For the waters of Nemrim shall be desolate, for the grass is withered away, the spring is faded, all the greenness is perished.

7 According to the greatness of their work, is their visitation also: they shall lead them to the torrent of the willows.

8 For the cry is gone round about the border of Moab: the howling thereof unto Gallim, and unto the well of Elim the cry thereof.

9 For the waters of Dibon are filled with blood: for

VER. 2. House. Prot. "he is come up to Baith," (H.) or the royal family is gone to the temple of their idol, Chamos, to lament. S. Jer. M. C.—Shaven. As in mourning. Jer. xlviii. 37.

VER. 4. Itself. Every one shall deplore his own distress.

VER. 5. My. A charitable heart will grieve for the misfortune of an enemy. W.—I shall join in the general lamentations, though Moab has always been so great an enemy to Israel. C.—Sept. "the heart of Moab cries in itself to Segor." H.—We will retire thither. Chal.—Bars. Princes. Prot. "his fugitives shall," &c.—Heifer. Strong and ungovernable. Heb. "to Heglath and to Shelishia for," &c. though we may as well adhere to the Vulg. Sept. &c.

VER. 6. Nemrim. Or Nemra, (Num. xxxii. 8.) to the north of Segor. C.—The country around hence became barren. S. Jer.

VER. 7. Willows. That is, as some say, the waters of Babylon; others render it a valley of the Arabians, (Ch.) or "of crows," to which their bodies will be exposed. C. lvii. 6.

I will bring more upon Dibon: the lion upon them that shall flee of Moab, and upon the remnant of the land.

CHAP. XVI.

The prophet prayeth for Christ's coming. The affliction of the Moabites for their pride.

SEND forth, O Lord, the lamb, the ruler of the earth, from Petra of the desert, to the mount of the daughter of Sion.

2 And it shall come to pass, that as a bird fleeing away, and as young ones flying out of the nest, so shall the daughters of Moab be in the passage of Arnon.

3 Take counsel, gather a council: make thy shadow as the night in the mid-day: hide them that flee, and betray not them that wander about.

4 My fugitives shall dwell with thee: O Moab, be thou a covert to them from the face of the destroyer: for the dust is at an end, the wretch is consumed: he hath failed, that trod the earth under foot.

5 And a throne shall be prepared in mercy, and one shall sit upon it in truth in the tabernacle of David, judging and seeking judgment, and quickly rendering that which is just.

6 We have heard of the pride of Moab, he is exceedingly proud: his pride and his arrogancy, and his indignation, is more than his strength.

7 Therefore shall Moab howl to Moab, every one shall howl: to them that rejoice upon the brick walls, tell ye their stripes.

8 For the suburbs of Hesebon are desolate, and the lords of the nations have destroyed the vineyard of Sabama: the branches thereof have reached even to Jazer: they have wandered in the wilderness, the branches thereof are left, they are gone over the sea.

9 Therefore, I will lament with the weeping of Jazer, the vineyard of Sabama: I will water thee with my tears, O Hesebon, and Eleale: for the voice of the treaders hath rushed in upon thy vintage, and upon thy harvest.

10 And gladness and joy shall be taken away from Carmel, and there shall be no rejoicing nor shouting in b Jer. xlviii. 29.

VER. 8. Cry. Of iniquity, or rather of grief.

VER. 9. Dibon. Sept. &c. read, "Dimon," which signifies "blood." I will give it a better claim to this appellation.—Lion. Nabuchodonosor. C.—Sept. "I will bring the Arabs up on Dimon, and will take away the seed of Moab, and Ariel, and the remnant Adama." H.

CHAP. XVI. VER. 1. Petra. Heb. selah, "the rock." H.—Our Saviour sprung from Ruth, the Moabitess. M.—The original may insinuate, that the king of the country had neglected to pay the usual tribute to Juda. 4 K. iii. 4. C.—"Send the lamb to the ruler," &c. Tournemine. Amid scenes of distress, the prophet perceives that the Saviour will proceed from one of this nation. W.

VER. 2. Arnon. They shall not be able to fly over, or to escape the conqueror.

VER. 3. Night. Seek a retreat in the darkest places; or protect Israel when they shall flee before the Assyrians. Their cruelty is thus insinuated. Amos i.

VER. 4. Dust. Theglathphalassar. I need not exhort you to receive my people, as I know your dispositions, and they are out of danger. C.

VER. 5. Just. This regards Christ, (S. Jer.) prefigured by (H.) Ezechias. C.

VER. 7. Walls. Heb. "Kir-hareseth." C. xv. 1. H.

VER. 8. Lords. Princes of Jerusalem, (Lam. i. 1.) or of Assyria. C.—Soc. Of Sodom, even as far as Jazer, (H.) in the tribe of Ruben. C.

VER. 9. My tears. C. xv. 5. H.—I announce a different sort of music from that which is customary in times of harvest, and of vintage. The liquor shall be tears. C. lxiii. 2. Jer. xlviii. 32. 33. C.

VER. 10. Carmel. This name is often taken to signify a fair and fruitful hill or field, such as Mount Carmel is. Ch.—It means, "the vine of God." C.

the vineyards. He shall not tread out wine in the press that was wont to tread it out: the voice of the treaders I have taken away.

11 Wherefore my bowels shall sound like a harp for Moab, and my inward parts for the brick wall.

12 And it shall come to pass, when it is seen that Moab is wearied on his high places, that he shall go into his sanctuaries to pray, and shall not prevail.

13 This is the word, that the Lord spoke to Moab from that time:

14 And now the Lord hath spoken, saying: In three years, as the years of a hireling, the glory of Moab shall be taken away for all the multitude of the people, and it shall be left small and feeble, not many.

CHAP. XVII.

Judgments upon Damascus and Samaria. The overthrow of the Assyrians.

THE burden of Damascus. Behold Damascus shall cease to be a city, and shall be as a ruinous heap of stones.

2 The cities of Aroer shall be left for flocks, and they shall rest there, and there shall be none to make them afraid.

3 And aid shall cease from Ephraim, and the kingdom from Damascus: and the remnant of Syria shall be as the glory of the children of Israel: saith the Lord of hosts.

4 And it shall come to pass in that day, that the glory of Jacob shall be made thin, and the fatness of his flesh shall grow lean.

5 And it shall be as when one gathereth in the harvest that which remaineth, and his arm shall gather the ears of corn: and it shall be as he that seeketh ears in the vale of Raphaim.

6 And the fruit thereof, that shall be left upon it, shall be as one cluster of grapes, and as the shaking of the olive-tree, two or three berries in the top of a bough, or four or five upon the top of the tree, saith the Lord, the God of Israel.

7 In that day man shall bow down himself to his Maker, and his eyes shall look to the holy One of Israel.

8 And he shall not look to the altars which his hands made: and he shall not have respect to the things that his fingers wrought, such as groves and temples.

9 In that day his strong cities shall be forsaken, as the ploughs and the corn that were left before the face of the children of Israel, and thou shalt be desolate.

10 Because thou hast forgotten God, thy Saviour, and hast not remembered thy strong helper: therefore shalt thou plant good plants, and shalt sow strange seed.

11 In the day of thy planting shall be the wild grape, and in the morning thy seed shall flourish: the harvest is taken away in the day of inheritance, and shall grieve thee much.

12 Woe to the multitude of many people, like the multitude of the roaring sea: and the tumult of crowds, like the noise of many waters.

13 Nations shall make a noise like the noise of waters overflowing, but he shall rebuke them, and they shall flee afar off: and they shall be carried away as the dust of the mountains before the wind, and as a whirlwind before a tempest.

14 In the time of the evening, behold there shall be trouble: the morning shall come, and he shall not be: this is the portion of them that have wasted us, and the lot of them that spoiled us.

CHAP. XVIII.

A woe to the Ethiopians, who fed Israel with vain hopes: their future conversion.

WOE to the land, the winged cymbal, which is beyond the rivers of Ethiopia.

2 That sendeth ambassadors by the sea, and in vessels of bulrushes upon the waters. Go, ye swift angels, to a nation rent and torn in pieces: to a terrible people, after which there is no other: to a nation expecting and trodden under foot, whose land the rivers have spoiled.

3 All ye inhabitants of the world, who dwell on the earth, when the sign shall be lifted up on the mountains, you shall see, and you shall hear the sound of the trumpet:

4 For thus saith the Lord to me: I will take my rest, and consider in my place, as the noon light is clear, and as a cloud of dew in the day of harvest.

VER. 11. Wall. Air-hareseth. v. 7. I am grieved at your misfortunes. C.

VER. 12. Prevail. Chamos shall not be able to help them.

VER. 13. That time. A long while ago. Ps. xcii. 2.

VER. 14. Not many. It was laid waste in the third year of Ezechias. But its final destruction took place only five years after that of Jerusalem. C.—The wars against Moab continued three years, after which it was reduced to servitude. W.

CHAP. XVII. VER. 1. Damascus. When it was taken by Theglathphalassar, or rather by Sennacherib. C. x. 8. It was again ruined by Nabuchodonosor. Jer. xlix. 24. But after the first taking, it never regained its power. Magni nominis umbra. C.

VER. 2. Aroer. Chal. "abandoned, shall be folds for sheep." Sept. "left for ever a resting place for flocks and herds, and none shall pursue." The tribes on the east of the Jordan shall be led captive, as well as those on the west, Ephraim, &c. H.

VER. 3. Damascus. Their too great union proved their ruin. Sennacherib took Damascus, as Salmanassar had done Samaria.

VER. 4. Learn. All the power of the kingdom shall fail, as in a mortal illness.

VER. 5. Raphaim. Near Jerusalem. 3 K. xxiii. 13. Sept. "of stones." C.—It will be equally difficult to find any men left in the kingdom of Israel. H.

VER. 7. Israel. They obeyed the summons of Ezechias and of Josias, (2 Par. xxx. 1. and xxxiv. 6.) and ever after followed the same worship as Juda. C.

VER. 9. Left. By the Chanaanites, when the children of Israel came into their land. Ch.—Their consternation was become proverbial. Jos. ii. 9. and v. 11.

VER. 10. Good. Sept. "faithless." Israel had abandoned the Lord; and could expect nothing but the fruits of death. C.

VER. 11. Much. Thou hast laboured earnestly, but reaped no benefit. H.

VER. 12. Multitude, &c. This and all that follows to the end of the chapter, relates to the Assyrian army under Sennacherib, (Ch.) or rather to that of Israel and its allies. C.—After the Assyrians had afflicted Israel, they were also punished. W.

VER. 14. Not be. Phacee and Rasin were presently exterminated.—Spoiled us. The kingdom of Achaz. 4 K. xvii. 5.

CHAP. XVIII. VER. 1. Cymbal. Or sistrum, commonly used in Egypt. Sept. "ship sails."—Ethiopia, or Chus, lying between the Nile (the branches of which are styled rivers) and the Red Sea. He alludes to the kingdom of Tharaca. 4 K. xix. 8. C.

VER. 2. Ambassadors. Heb. "Images," (Bochart) in honour of Adonis; (S. Cyr.) or rather Ezechias, or Tharaca send to demand troops. C.—Bulrushes. Lit. "paper." H.—Formed of rushes which grow on the banks of the Nile. Pliny vii. 56. and xiii. 11.—Angels. Or messengers.—Pieces. With factions after the death of Sabacon, or by the inroads of Sennacherib.—Other. He derides the vanity of the Egyptians. C.—Expecting the overflowing of the Nile. H.—Heb. "of line," (C.) with which they marked out each person's property, after the waters had subsided. Strabo 17.—Foot. They worked their dough with their feet, and sent swine to trample on the seed, which required no more cultivation. Herod. ii. 14. and 36.—Spoiled. The Nile made considerable alterations.

VER. 4. Place. God rules all with ease.—Harvest. The allies shall comfort my people, (C.) or Sennacherib shall threaten ruin. H.—But I will frustrate his evil designs. His army shall perish unexpectedly. v. 5. C.—The Egyptians had sent messengers to assure the Israelites that they would come to assist them, but the prophet informs them of their own ruin. W.

5 For before the harvest, it was all flourishing, and it shall bud without perfect ripeness, and the sprigs thereof shall be cut off with pruning-hooks: and what is left, shall be cut away, and shaken out.

6 And they shall be left together to the birds of the mountains, and the beasts of the earth: and the fowls shall be upon them all the summer, and all the beasts of the earth shall winter upon them.

7 At that time shall a present be brought to the Lord of hosts, from a people rent and torn in pieces: from a terrible people, after which there hath been no other; from a nation expecting, expecting and trodden under foot, whose land the rivers have spoiled, to the place of the name of the Lord of hosts, to Mount Zion.

CHAP. XIX.

The punishment of Egypt: their call to the Church.

THE burden of Egypt. Behold the Lord will ascend upon a swift cloud, and will enter into Egypt, and the idols of Egypt shall be moved at his presence, and the heart of Egypt shall melt in the midst thereof.

2 And I will set the Egyptians to fight against the Egyptians: and they shall fight brother against brother, and friend against friend, city against city, kingdom against kingdom.

3 And the spirit of Egypt shall be broken in the bowels thereof; and I will cast down their counsel: and they shall consult their idols, and their diviners, and their wizards and soothsayers.

4 And I will deliver Egypt into the hand of cruel masters, and a strong king shall rule over them, saith the Lord, the God of hosts.

5 And the water of the sea shall be dried up, and the rivers shall be wasted and dry.

6 And the rivers shall fail: the streams of the banks shall be diminished, and be dried up. The reed and the bulrush shall wither away.

7 The channel of the river shall be laid bare from its fountain; and every thing sown by the water shall be dried up; it shall wither away, and shall be no more.

8 The fishers also shall mourn: and all that cast a hook into the river shall lament; and they that spread nets upon the waters shall languish away.

9 They shall be confounded that wrought in flax, combing and weaving fine linen.

10 And its watery places shall be dry; all they shall mourn that made pools to take fishes.

11 The princes of Tanis are become fools; the wise counsellors of Pharaoh have given foolish counsel: how will you say to Pharaoh, I am the son of the wise, the son of ancient kings?

12 Where are now thy wise men? let them tell thee, and shew what the Lord of hosts hath purposed upon Egypt.

13 The princes of Tanis are become fools; the princes of Memphis are gone astray; they have deceived Egypt, the stay of the people thereof.

14 The Lord hath mingled in the midst thereof the spirit of giddiness: and they have caused Egypt to err in all his works, as a drunken man staggereth and vomiteth.

15 And there shall be no work for Egypt, to make head or tail, him that bendeth down, or that holdeth back.

16 In that day Egypt shall be like unto women, and they shall be amazed, and afraid, because of the moving of the hand of the Lord of hosts, which he shall move over it.

17 And the land of Juda shall be a terror to Egypt: every one that shall remember it shall tremble, because of the counsel of the Lord of hosts, which he hath determined concerning it.

18 *In that day there shall be five cities in the land of Egypt, speaking the language of Chanaan, and swearing by the Lord of hosts: one shall be called the city of the sun.

19 In that day there shall be an altar of the Lord in the midst of the land of Egypt, and a monument of the Lord at the borders thereof:

20 It shall be for a sign, and for a testimony to the Lord of hosts in the land of Egypt. For they shall

* Ezech. cap. xxx.

VER. 6. Them. Their bodies shall lie unburied.
VER. 7. Sion. Egypt shall send presents to the Lord. 2 Par. xxxii. 23. C.
CHAP. XIX. VER. 1. Egypt. Many refer this to the coming of Christ, (C.) at whose presence the idols fell down, and many saints adorned the country. W.—But the prophet may also literally refer to the wars of the Assyrians against Egypt. Sabaoen having retired, after reigning fifty years, Anysis, and afterwards the priest of Sethon, succeeded to the throne. The latter was attacked by Sennacherib. After his death, twelve kingdoms were formed, but Psammitichus reunited them, and had Nechao for his successor. Herod. ii. 141. 158.—Behold. The prophet speaks fourteen years before the attack of Sennacherib.—Cloud. Ps. xvii. 11. Some Fathers explain it of the blessed Virgin. C.—Moved. Plundered by the Assyrians. M.

VER. 2. Kingdom. Under the twelve kings. C.
VER. 3. Egypt. Sept. "of the Egyptians shall be troubled within them." H.
—Soothsayers. Feeble but too common resource of superstitious people!
VER. 4. Masters. Twelve kings. Psammitichus, one of them, shall gain the ascendancy.

VER. 5. Dry. The lakes and the Nile shall not afford sufficient moisture. C.—If the Nile rose less than twelve or more than sixteen cubits famine ensued. Pliny xviii. 18.

VER. 7. Fountain. The Nile rises in Ethiopia. But the canals alone were left dry. C.—Sept. "the achi, every green herb along the river, and every," &c. H.

VER. 8. Fishers. The lake Moeris produced a talent every day for the revenue, and so great was the abundance of fish, that they could hardly be salted. The Nile was also well supplied with fish.

VER. 9. Linen. Gr. silk. Ezech. xvi. 10. C.

VER. 10. All they. Sept. "and all who make strong drink (secer) shall be in sorrow, and shall afflict their souls." H.—This version is perhaps the best, as the Egyptians used much ale or wine distilled from barley. C.

VER. 11. Tanis. Or of the twelve kings. v. 1. They are disconcerted at the approach of Psammitichus, (C.) or at the want of water. H.

VER. 13. Memphis. The seat of many kings, and a very ancient city. Heb "Noph."—Stay. Lit. "angle," denoting the chiefs, or all the land. Judg. xx. 2.

VER. 15. Back. King and subject are equally confused. C. ix. 14. C.

VER. 17. Terror. Heb. also "a rejoicing," (S. Jer.) on account of Sennacherib's defeat there. C. xviii. 7.

VER. 18. Chanaan. Hebrew. The Israelites had a connection with Egypt, which the prophets often blame. C. xxx. 2. Ezechias trusted in their aid, when he refused to pay tribute to the Assyrians. Many at that time, or afterwards, retired thither, and served God unmolested. C. xi. 2. Jer. xlii. More established themselves in the country under Alexander, and the Ptolemies. 3 Mac. viii. But this prediction was more fully accomplished by the propagation of the Christian religion. Grace no where shone forth more brightly than in this country, once the seat of superstition.—Sun. Heb. "of desolation." But the copies have varied. It is supposed to denote the city On. Gen. xli. 45. C.—Prideaux (p. 2. b. 4.) accuses the Jews of wilfully corrupting this text in the Sept. Kennicott.

VER. 19. Altar. If the Jews were forbidden to have any other than the one at Jerusalem, how can the prophet announce this as a blessing? Onias being excluded from the high priesthood, retired into Egypt, and obtained leave to build the temple Onion, in the Nome, though not in the city of Heliopolis, above Bubaste, on the Nile, alleging that Isaias had foretold this event, and that one was already built at Leontopolis. Joa. Ant. xii. 15. and xiii. 6.—But we must allow with the fathers and Jews in the days of S. Jerom, that this prediction regarded the Messias, when altars might be lawfully erected in every nation. See Misna, tr. Moneuth, xiii. 10.—Monument. The cross is set up wherever Christ is adored. C.—The Egyptians shall embrace Christianity, and Anthony, &c. shall live a holy (W.) and austere life. H.

VER. 20. Them. The Jews were miraculously rescued from the hands of Philopator, (e. Ap. ii.) or rather Christians are delivered from sin and Satan.

cry to the Lord, because of the oppressor, and he shall send them a Saviour and a defender to deliver them.

21 And the Lord shall be known by Egypt, and the Egyptians shall know the Lord in that day, and shall worship him with sacrifices and offerings: and they shall make vows to the Lord, and perform them.

22 And the Lord shall strike Egypt with a scourge, and shall heal it, and they shall return to the Lord, and he shall be pacified towards them, and heal them.

23 In that day there shall be a way from Egypt to the Assyrians; and the Assyrian shall enter into Egypt; and the Egyptian to the Assyrians; and the Egyptians shall serve the Assyrian.

24 In that day shall Israel be the third to the Egyptian and the Assyrian: a blessing in the midst of the land,

25 Which the Lord of hosts hath blessed, saying: Blessed be my people of Egypt, and the work of my hands to the Assyrian: but Israel is my inheritance.

CHAP. XX.

The ignominious captivity of the Egyptians, and the Ethiopians.

IN the year that Tharthan entered into Azotus, when Sargon, the king of the Assyrians, had sent him, and he had fought against Azotus, and had taken it:

2 At that same time the Lord spoke by the hand of Isaias, the son of Amos, saying: ^bGo, and loose the sackcloth from off thy loins, and take off thy shoes from thy feet. And he did so, and went naked, and barefoot.

3 And the Lord said: As my servant, Isaias, hath walked naked and barefoot, it shall be a sign and a wonder of three years upon Egypt, and upon Ethiopia,

4 So shall the king of the Assyrians lead away the prisoners of Egypt, and the captivity of Ethiopia, young and old, naked and barefoot, with their buttocks uncovered, to the shame of Egypt.

5 And they shall be afraid and ashamed of Ethiopia, their hope, and of Egypt, their glory.

* A. M. 3291. A. C. 713.—Zach. xiii. 4. Matt. iii. 4.

VER. 21. Egypt. The kings often caused sacrifices to be offered for them; but they were not acceptable, as long as they continued idolaters. The country was converted to Christianity, (C.) and the Anchores performed their vows and penitential exercises, to the admiration of all. H.

VER. 22. Scourge. By means of Sennacherib, Cambyses, and Ochus. Afterwards the country was quietly subject to the kings of Persia, Alex. the Ptolemies, and the Romans. C.

VER. 24. Land. The apostles, who were true Israelites, (H.) procured the blessing of faith for these nations, (C.) to serve God with concord. H.

CHAP. XX. VER. 1. Year. Eighteen after the preceding predictions. C. —Sargon. Sennacherib, (S. Jer.) Salmanasar, (Sanct.) or Assaradon, who intended to revenge Sennacherib, and sent his "collector of taxes" to take Azotus from Ezechias, and then to proceed farther. C.—Psammitichus having obtained the sole dominion of Egypt, besieged Azotus for 29 years. Herod. ii. 157. Amos i. 8.

VER. 2. Sackcloth. The prophets lived in poverty. Zac. xiii. 4. Their persons were prophetic. It is not agreed whether Isaias went quite naked, or only without his upper garment. The former supposition would represent better the condition of slaves, (v. 4.) and is adopted by S. Jerom, &c. C.—People are said to be naked when they are almost so. 2 K. vi. Jo. xxi. H.—Yet "nothing is more honest than to obey God." S. Jer. W.

VER. 3. Years. Isaias went so long, or perhaps only three days undressed. Num. xiv. 34. Eze. iv. 6. Egypt and the Arabian Ethiopia were to be abandoned to the Assyrians, in or during three years.

VER. 4. Shame. Thus captives were generally exposed to sale. C. xlvii. 2. Nah. iii. 5.

VER. 5. Glory. The alliance of these nations shall not avail the Jews, who are said to inhabit an island, because they neglected God's service no less than the most distant and abandoned nations. C.—The changes in empires must convince us to depend only on God, since Damascus and Egypt could not save the Hebrews, nor even themselves. W.

6 And the inhabitants of this isle shall say in that day: Lo, this was our hope, to whom we fled for help, to deliver us from the face of the king of the Assyrians: and how shall we be able to escape?

CHAP. XXI.

The destruction of Babylon by the Medes and Persians: a prophecy against the Edomites and the Arabians.

THE burden of the desert of the sea. As whirlwinds come from the south, it cometh from the desert, from a terrible land.

2 A grievous vision is told me: he that is unfaithful dealeth unfaithfully: and he that is a spoiler, spoileth. Go up, O Elam, besiege, O Mede: I have made all the mourning thereof to cease.

3 Therefore are my loins filled with pain; anguish hath taken hold of me; as the anguish of a woman in labour: I fell down at the hearing of it: I was troubled at the seeing of it.

4 My heart failed; darkness amazed me: Babylon, my beloved, is become a wonder to me.

5 Prepare the table; behold in the watch-tower them that eat and drink: arise, ye princes, take up the shield.

6 For thus hath the Lord said to me: Go, and set a watchman; and whatsoever he shall see, let him tell.

7 And he saw a chariot, with two horsemen, a rider upon an ass, and a rider upon a camel: and he beheld them diligently with much heed.

8 And a lion cried out, I am upon the watch-tower of the Lord, standing continually by day; *and I am upon my ward, standing whole nights.

9 Behold this man cometh; the rider upon the chariot, with two horsemen, and he answered, and said: ^dBabylon is fallen, she is fallen, and all the graven gods thereof are broken unto the ground.

10 O my threshing, and the children of my floor, that which I have heard of the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, I have declared unto you.

11 The burden of Duma calleth to me out of Seir.

* Habac. ii. 1.—Jer. li. 8. Apoc. xiv. 8.

CHAP. XXI. VER. 1. The desert of the sea. So Babylon is here called, because from a city as full of people as the sea is with water, it was become a desert. Ch.—After its fall, it was mostly inundated. C. xiii. 20.—Land. Media and Persia, which lay to the south, and were not so beautiful as the environs of Babylon.

VER. 2. Spoileth. Baltassar is incorrigible, or his opponents must proceed. C.—Elam; that is, O Persia: (Ch.) Cyrus, and Darius, the Mede. C.—The former nation was weak, and the latter strong. W.—Cease. The enemy will shew no pity; nor shall I; as Babylon did not heretofore. H.

VER. 3. Pain. He bewails the crimes and the fall of Babylon, which at this time was in amity with Ezechias. v. 10. C.

VER. 4. Babylon. Prob. "the night of my pleasure hath he turned into fear unto me." Sept. "My soul is turned into fear." H.

VER. 5. Drink. Persians refresh yourselves.—Take up. Heb. "anoint." He may also allude to the Babylonians, who were feasting.

VER. 7. Camel. These two riders are the kings of the Persians and Medes. Ch.—The sentinel, placed by Isaias, in spirit, or rather by the king of Babylon, brings these tidings. C.

VER. 8. Out. Lit. "He cried, a lion." H.—Cyrus appears like one. Sept. "And call Urias to the watch-tower," &c. C. viii. 2.

VER. 9. Horsemen, drawn by the ass and camel. v. 7. This was verified long after.

VER. 10. Floor: you who must shortly be reduced to the utmost distress. Baladan was friendly to Ezechias. But Assaradon having seized Babylon, took Manasses prisoner; and the city thenceforward continued to fill up the measure of its sins. C.

VER. 11. Duma. That is, Idumea, or Edom. Ch.—It was a city of that country, twenty miles from Eleutheropolis. S. Jer.—Assaradon desolated Idumea the year following. v. 16. The Jews absurdly apply to Rome what is said of Edom. S. Jer. C.

VER. 12. Night. Instead of joy, I must announce dreadful things. H.

Watchman, what of the night? watchman, what of the night?

12 The watchman said: The morning cometh, also the night: if you seek, seek: return, come.

13 The burden in Arabia. In the forest at evening you shall sleep, in the paths of Dedanim.

14 Meeting the thirsty, bring him water, you that inhabit the land of the south; meet with bread him that fleeth.

15 For they are fled from before the swords, from the sword that hung over them, from the bent bow, from the face of a grievous battle.

16 For thus saith the Lord to me: Within a year, according to the years of a hireling, all the glory of Cedar shall be taken away.

17 And the residue of the number of strong archers of the children of Cedar shall be diminished: for the Lord, the God of Israel, hath spoken it.

CHAP. XXII.

The prophet laments the devastation of Juda. He foretells the deprivation of Sobna, and substitution of Eliacim, a figure of Christ.

THE burden of the valley of vision. What aileth thee also, that thou too art wholly gone up to the house tops?

2 Full of clamour, a populous city, a joyous city: thy slain are not slain by the sword, nor dead in battle.

3 All thy princes are fled together, and are bound hard: all that were found, are bound together, they are fled far off.

4 Therefore have I said: Depart from me, I will weep bitterly: labour not to comfort me, for the devastation of the daughter of my people.

5 For it is a day of slaughter, and of treading down, and of weeping to the Lord, the God of hosts, in the valley of vision, searching the wall, and magnificent upon the mountain.

6 And Elam took the quiver, the chariot of the horse-man, and the shield was taken down from the wall.

7 And thy choice valleys shall be full of chariots, and the horsemen shall place themselves in the gate.

8 And the covering of Juda shall be discovered, and thou shalt see in that day the armoury of the house of the forest.

VER. 13. Arabia. This sentence is not in the Rom. (C.) or Alex. Sept. (H.) and Dedan is a city of Idumea. C.—The Ismaelites are threatened. W.

VER. 14. Water. To neglect this was to be accessory to another's death, in those dreary regions. C. xvi. 3. Deut. xxiii. 2.

VER. 16. Hireling; counting precisely. C. xvi. 14. C.—Cedar: Arabia, (Ch.) near to Edom. C.

CHAP. XXII. VER. 1. The valley of vision: Jerusalem. The temple of Jerusalem was built upon Mount Moria, or the mountain of vision. But the city is here called, the valley of vision, either because it was lower than the temple, or because of the low condition to which it was to be reduced, (Ch.) during the captivity. W.—Vision. Sept. "Sion." H.—This prophecy regards the devastation caused by Sennacherib, (S. Jer.) Nabuchodonosor, (Sanct.) the Romans, (Eus.) or by Assaradon, when he took Manasses. 2 Par. xxxiii. 11. and 4 K. xxi. 10.—Tops, to weep.

VER. 2. Battle. He taxes the king with cowardice.

VER. 4. People. He saw this in spirit, though he might not live to witness it. C.

VER. 5. Searching. That day beheld the Assyrians (H.) undermining the wall, and behaving with haughtiness (C.) on Mount Sion. H.

VER. 6. Wall. Arms were frequently hung thereon. Cant. ix. 4. C.

VER. 8. Covering. Heb. masac, (H.) "shade," for the convenience of the people. 4 K. xvi. 18.—Forest, built by Solomon. Ezechias has also procured store of arms, which were now delivered out to the citizens.

9 And you shall see the breaches of the city of David, that they are many: and you have gathered together the waters of the lower pool.

10 And have numbered the houses of Jerusalem, and broken down houses to fortify the wall.

11 *And you made a ditch between the two walls for the water of the old pool: and you have not looked up to the maker thereof, nor regarded him even at a distance, that wrought it long ago.

12 And the Lord, the God of hosts, in that day shall call to weeping, and to mourning, to baldness, and to girding with sackcloth:

13 And behold joy and gladness, killing calves, and slaying rams, eating flesh, and drinking wine: ^bLet us eat, and drink; for to-morrow we shall die.

14 And the voice of the Lord of hosts was revealed in my ears: Surely this iniquity shall not be forgiven you till you die, saith the Lord God of hosts.

15 Thus saith the Lord God of hosts: Go, get thee in to him that dwelleth in the tabernacle, to Sobna, who is over the temple: and thou shalt say to him:

16 What dost thou here, or as if thou wert somebody here? for thou hast hewed thee out a sepulchre here, thou hast hewed out a monument carefully in a high place, a dwelling for thyself in a rock.

17 Behold the Lord will cause thee to be carried away, as a cock is carried away, and he will lift thee up as a garment.

18 He will crown thee with a crown of tribulation; he will toss thee like a ball into a large and spacious country: there shalt thou die, and there shall the chariot of thy glory be, the shame of the house of thy Lord.

19 And I will drive thee out from thy station, and depose thee from thy ministry.

20 And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will call my servant Eliacim the son of Helcias.

21 And I will clothe him with thy robe, and will strengthen him with thy girdle, and will give thy power into his hand: and he shall be as a father to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and to the house of Juda.

22 *And I will lay the key of the house of David upon his shoulder: and he shall open, and none shall shut: and he shall shut, and none shall open.

VER. 21. Girdle, the badge of power. Job xii. 18.

23 And I will fasten him as a peg in a sure place, and he shall be for a throne of glory to the house of his father.

24 And they shall hang upon him all the glory of his father's house, divers kinds of vessels, every little vessel, from the vessels of cups, even to every instrument of music.

25 In that day, saith the Lord of hosts, shall the peg be removed, that was fastened in the sure place: and it shall be broken and shall fall: and that which hung thereon, shall perish, because the Lord hath spoken it.

CHAP. XXIII.

The destruction of Tyre. It shall be repaired again after seventy years.

THE burden of Tyre. Howl, ye ships of the sea, for the house is destroyed, from whence they were wont to come: from the land of Cethim it is revealed to them.

2 Be silent, you that dwell in the island: the merchants of Sidon passing over the sea, have filled thee.

3 The seed of the Nile, in many waters, the harvest of the river, is her revenue: and she is become the mart of the nations.

4 Be thou ashamed, O Sidon: for the sea speaketh, even the strength of the sea, saying: I have not been in labour, nor have I brought forth, nor have I nourished up young men, nor brought up virgins.

5 When it shall be heard in Egypt, they will be sorry when they shall hear of Tyre:

6 Pass over the seas, howl, ye inhabitants of the island.

7 Is not this your city, which gloried from of old in her antiquity? her feet shall carry her afar off to sojourn.

8 Who hath taken this counsel against Tyre, that was formerly crowned, whose merchants were princes, and her traders the nobles of the earth?

9 The Lord of hosts hath designed it to pull down the pride of all glory, and bring to disgrace all the glorious ones of the earth.

10 Pass thy land as a river, O daughter of the sea, thou hast a girdle no more.

11 He stretched out his hand over the sea: he trou-

VER. 24. House. He shall be the ornament of the priesthood.—Music. All affairs in church and state shall be at his disposal.

VER. 25. Full. Sobna shall lose all his employments, and ruin others. C.

CHAP. XXIII. VER. 1. Tyre was destroyed, in part, by Nabuchodonosor. Cyrus permitted all the captives of this, as well as of other countries, to return.

—Cethim; Cyrus, or rather Macedonia. Merchants come thence no longer.

VER. 2. Island. Tyre was originally surrounded with water. A communication with the land was made afterwards. Jos. xix. 29. C. Eze. xxvii. W.

VER. 3. Nile. Heb. Shichor, or "muddy water," designates that river. Jos. xiii. 8.—River. The overflowing of the Nile gave fertility to Egypt, inasmuch that Tyre and other nations were supplied by it with corn.

VER. 4. Strength: people who sail. Sept. "but the strength... replied: I," &c. Sidon will not be concerned for the fall of her rival. She alleges that she has nothing to do with Tyre. That city would not allow that it was a colony of Sidon. v. 12. C.

VER. 6. Seas. The rich Tyrians did so. S. Jer.—Sept. "to Carthage." Heb. Tharsia, in Cilicia. C.—Hence Nabuchodonosor did not find a sufficient reward. Eze. xxix. 18.

VER. 7. Sojourn. Many fled, others were made captives.

VER. 8. Earth. The merchants were as rich as kings, or the latter sent their merchandise to Tyre. Eze. xxvii. 33.

VER. 10. Girdle, fortress; or rather, thou art naked, like a slave. C. xx. 4.

bled kingdoms: the Lord hath given a charge against Chanaan, to destroy the strong ones thereof, 12 And he said: Thou shalt glory no more, O virgin, daughter of Sidon, who art oppressed: arise and sail over to Cethim, there also thou shalt have no rest.

13 Behold the land of the Chaldeans, there was not such a people, the Assyrian founded it: they have led away the strong ones thereof into captivity; they have destroyed the houses thereof; they have brought it to ruin.

14 Howl, O ye ships of the sea, for your strength is laid waste.

15 And it shall come to pass in that day, that thou, O Tyre, shalt be forgotten, seventy years, according to the days of one king: but after seventy years, there shall be unto Tyre as the song of a harlot.

16 Take a harp, go about the city, thou harlot, that hast been forgotten: sing well, sing many a song, that thou mayst be remembered.

17 And it shall come to pass after seventy years, that the Lord will visit Tyre, and will bring her back again to her traffic: and she shall commit fornication again with all the kingdoms of the world upon the face of the earth.

18 And her merchandise and her hire shall be sanctified to the Lord: they shall not be kept in store, nor laid up: for her merchandise shall be for them that shall dwell before the Lord, that they may eat unto fulness, and be clothed for a continuance.

CHAP. XXIV.

The judgments of God upon all the sinners of the world. A remnant shall joyfully praise him.

BEHOOLD, the Lord shall lay waste the earth, and shall strip it, and shall afflict the face thereof, and scatter abroad the inhabitants thereof.

2 "And it shall be as with the people, so with the priest: and as with the servant, so with his master: as with the handmaid, so with her mistress: as with the buyer, so with the seller: as with the lender, so with the borrower: as with him that calleth for his money, so with him that oweth.

3 With desolation shall the earth be laid waste, and

VER. 13. R. Heb. adds, "for fishermen." It was formerly covered with water. Euseb. præp. ix.—Ruin. The fall of Babylon has been denounced. C. xiii.

VER. 15. King Nabuchodonosor, whose two sons reigned but a short time. The captivity of the people of God began also A. 3398, and ended A. 3468, the first of Cyrus.—Harlot. She shall be re-established, (C.) and shall invite people to her markets. Sanchez.—Before Cyrus, she had kings, but they were of small power. The city was become very rich, and well fortified, when Alexander was stopped by it for seven months. See Eze. xxvi. 14. C.—Tyre had rejoiced at the misfortunes of the Hebrews, and was punished by the like captivity. W.

VER. 17. Commit. Sept. "be the emporium for all." Great injustice prevailed formerly among merchants, so that it is represented as a dishonest calling. H.

VER. 18. Sanctified to the Lord. This alludes to the conversion of the Gentiles. Ch.—Before, the Tyrians were great enemies to the Jews. 2 Esd. xiii. 16. and 1 Mac. v. 15. CHAP. XXIV. VER. 1. Earth. After the ten preceding threats, the prophet denounces destruction to the whole world, (W.) at the day of judgment; though he may also allude to the desolation of the promised land, as our Saviour joins both in the same prediction. Mat. xxiv. C.

VER. 2. Priest. All distinctions shall be disregarded. W.—When Jerusalem was taken, all became captives.

VER. 4. Weakened: Joakim, &c. are made prisoners. The greatest monarchs must come before God's tribunal.

VER. 6. Sin. Towards the end of the world iniquity will abound, and men it shall be utterly spoiled: for the Lord hath spoken this word.

4 The earth mourned, and faded away, and is weakened: the world faded away, the height of the people of the earth is weakened.

5 And the earth is infected by the inhabitants thereof: because they have transgressed the laws, they have changed the ordinance, they have broken the everlasting covenant.

6 Therefore shall a curse devour the earth, and the inhabitants thereof shall sin: and therefore they that dwell therein shall be mad, and few men shall be left.

7 The vintage hath mourned; the vine hath languished away; all the merry hearted have sighed.

8 The mirth of timbrels hath ceased; the noise of them that rejoice is ended; the melody of the harp is silent.

9 They shall not drink wine with a song: the drink shall be bitter to them that drink it.

10 The city of vanity is broken down; every house is shut up, no man cometh in.

11 There shall be a crying for wine in the streets: all mirth is forsaken: the joy of the earth is gone away.

12 Desolation is left in the city, and calamity shall oppress the gates.

13 For it shall be thus in the midst of the earth, in the midst of the people, as if a few olives, that remain, should be shaken out of the olive-tree: or grapes, when the vintage is ended.

14 These shall lift up their voice, and shall give praise: when the Lord shall be glorified, they shall make a joyful noise from the sea.

15 Therefore glorify ye the Lord in instruction: the name of the Lord God of Israel in the islands of the sea.

16 From the ends of the earth we have heard praises, the glory of the just one. And I said: My secret to myself, my secret to myself, wo is me: the prevaricators have prevaricated, and with the prevarication of transgressors they have prevaricated.

17 Fear, and the pit, and the snare are upon thee, O thou inhabitant of the earth.

18 And it shall come to pass, *that he that shall flee from the noise of the fear, shall fall into the pit: and he that shall rid himself out of the pit, shall be taken in shall rage against each other. Mat. xxiv. W.—They will also feel the effects of sin.—Mad: abandoned to their passions, (Deut. xxviii. 28.) excepting only the elect. M.—Few. The Chaldees permitted only a few of the poorest sort to remain. 2 Par. xxix. 10.

VER. 9. The drink. Heb. shecar, "palm wine."

VER. 10. Vanity. Jerusalem, (C.) or any other city, will be all in confusion. H.—In, as was the case in times of mourning. Jer. ix. 21. C.

VER. 14. Sea. The few elect (v. 13.) being rescued from the misery of the world, shall praise God. H.—They are exhorted to lift up their heads. Lu. xxi. 28. M.

VER. 15. Instruction. The Church is like an island, compared with the rest of the world; or it preaches the gospel to all nations, and to the islands, like Great Britain. W.—Apostolic men are required to preach incessantly to all sorts of people. Heb. "in light;" or Pagn. "in vales" M.

VER. 16. I said. The prophet, or any other, may speak thus in the latter days. C.—Myself. I cannot recount what horrid pains I beheld. S. Jer. M. 2 Cor. xii. 4.

VER. 17. Snare. He alludes to the methods of taking wild beasts. Job xviii. 11.—Opened, as they were in the days of Noe. C.—All sorts of misery hang over us.

VER. 20. Night, unexpectedly, (H.) and with the utmost speed. C.

VER. 21. High. The stars, which in many places of the Scripture are so called. Some commentators explain that these words here signify the demons of the air. Ch.—The apostate angels will be judged. 1 Cor. vi. 3. Mat. xxiv. 29. (928) the snare: for the flood-gates from on high are opened, and the foundations of the earth shall be shaken.

19 With breaking shall the earth be broken; with crushing shall the earth be crushed; with trembling shall the earth be moved.

20 With shaking shall the earth be shaken, as a drunken man, and shall be removed as the tent of one night: and the iniquity thereof shall be heavy upon it, and it shall fall and not rise again.

21 And it shall come to pass, that in that day the Lord shall visit upon the host of heaven on high, and upon the kings of the earth, on the earth.

22 And they shall be gathered together as in the gathering of one bundle into the pit, and they shall be shut up there in prison: and after many days they shall be visited.

23 ^bAnd the moon shall blush, and the sun shall be ashamed, when the Lord of hosts shall reign in Mount Sion, and in Jerusalem, and shall be glorified in the sight of his ancients.

CHAP. XXV.

A canticle of thanksgiving for God's judgments and benefits.

O LORD, thou art my God, I will exalt thee, and give glory to thy name; for thou hast done wonderful things, thy designs of old, faithful, Amen.

2 For thou hast reduced the city to a heap, the strong city to ruin, the house of strangers to be no city, and to be no more built up for ever.

3 Therefore shall a strong people praise thee; the city of mighty nations shall fear thee.

4 Because thou hast been a strength to the poor, a strength to the needy in his distress: a refuge from the whirlwind, a shadow from the heat. For the blast of the mighty is like a whirlwind beating against a wall.

5 Thou shalt bring down the tumult of strangers, as heat in thirst: and as with heat under a burning cloud, thou shalt make the branch of the mighty to wither away.

6 And the Lord of hosts shall make unto all people in this mountain, a feast of fat things, a feast of wine, of fat things full of marrow, of wine purified from the lees.

7 And he shall destroy in this mountain the face of the bond with which all people were tied, and the web that he began over all nations.

^b Joel ii. 31. Acts ii. 20.

VER. 22. Visited. Hence Origen (Prin. iii. 6. &c.) took occasion to assert, that the damned would one day be released, though the Scripture so often declares the contrary. The prophet speaks of the future liberation of the Jews; (C.) or he intimates that after many days, yea throughout eternity, the reprobate will still be punished. M.

VER. 23. Blush: he turned into blood. Joel ii. 10. Dreadful calamities shall ensue, to usher in the great day of judgment. C.

CHAP. XXV. VER. 1. Amen. He approves of God's judgments (H.) against Jerusalem. W.

VER. 2. City: Jerusalem, or rather Babylon, (C. xxi. C.) or every city (H.) in the world. M.—Strangers: the temples of idols.

VER. 3. People; the Chaldees, or their conquerors.

VER. 4. Poor: Juda, whom Nabuchodonosor's fury could not exterminate.

VER. 5. Away. Cyrus (C.) shall reduce Babylon the great. H.

VER. 6. Mountain of Sion, a figure of the Church, and of heaven. The Jews shall feast: yea, some of all nations shall partake of the blessed Eucharist, and obtain heaven. The expressions are too grand for a corruptible feast. C.—Wine. Lit. "of vintage," (H.) on which occasion great rejoicings were made. Hesiod. Hercul. 297.—Prot. "of wines on the lees." H.—In the East, the wines were very thick. Pa. lxxv. 9. C.—On the rejection of the Jews, the Gentiles were converted. W.

VER. 7. Tied. He will open their eyes to the truth of the gospel. They shall be no longer as criminals, expecting death, or mourning.

VER. 8. Ever. Heb. "he shall swallow up death in victory." 1 Cor. xv. 54.

8 He shall cast death down headlong for ever: *and the Lord God shall wipe away tears from every face; and the reproach of his people he shall take away from off the whole earth: for the Lord hath spoken it.

9 And they shall say in that day: Lo, this is our God, we have waited for him, and he will save us: this is the Lord, we have patiently waited for him, we shall rejoice and be joyful in his salvation.

10 For the hand of the Lord shall rest in this mountain: and Moab shall be trodden down under him, as straw is broken in pieces with the wain.

11 And he shall stretch forth his hands under him, as he that swimmeth stretcheth forth his hands to swim: and he shall bring down his glory with the dashing of his hands.

12 And the bulwarks of thy high walls shall fall, and be brought low, and shall be pulled down to the ground, even to the dust.

CHAP. XXVI.

A canticle of thanks for the deliverance of God's people.

IN that day shall this canticle be sung in the land of Juda. Sion, the city of our strength, a Saviour, a wall, and a bulwark, shall be set therein.

2 Open ye the gates, and let the just nation, that keepeth the truth, enter in.

3 The old error is passed away: thou wilt keep peace: peace, because we have hoped in thee.

4 You have hoped in the Lord for evermore, in the Lord God, mighty for ever.

5 For he shall bring down them that dwell on high; the high city he shall lay low. He shall bring it down even to the ground; he shall pull it down even to the dust.

6 The foot shall tread it down; the feet of the poor, the steps of the needy.

7 The way of the just is right; the path of the just is right to walk in.

8 And in the way of thy judgments, O Lord, we have patiently waited for thee: thy name, and thy remembrance are the desire of the soul.

9 My soul hath desired thee in the night: yea, and with my spirit within me, in the morning early, I will watch to thee. When thou shalt do thy judgments

Christ, by dying, conquered death, and rescued us from its power, if we do not voluntarily subject ourselves to it again. This was faintly represented by the liberation of the captives.

VER. 10. Mountain: the Church. C.—Moab. That is, the reprobate, whose eternal punishment, from which they can no way escape, is described under these figures. Ch.—The Machabees probably executed this vengeance on Moab. 1 Mac. v. 6.

VER. 11. Hands. All his exertions and fury will prove useless. H.—Moab shall lie prostrate.

CHAP. XXVI. VER. 1. Day. Under the law of grace, Christians sing this and such like canticles. W.—Sion. This word is not in Heb. &c. though it be understood. C.—Other nations have their respective cities. All Christians admit this one. W.—The captives continue to return thanks. Yet the Holy Ghost speaks chiefly of the Church, and of the general resurrection. C.—Bulwark. Faith and good works. W.

VER. 2. Truth. The Jews who returned from Babylon, were more virtuous than their ancestors, as the prophets intimate; though they have Christians principally in view.

VER. 3. Away; condemning the virtuous, as if they were fools. M.—Sym. "our work, or fiction, is taken away." Heb. may have other meanings. H.

VER. 4. You, people of Juda.

VER. 5. High: Nabuchodonosor and his empire.

VER. 6. Needy. The Jews shall behold the ruin of the city by Cyrus, (C.) who was of a contemptible nation. H.

VER. 7. In. God will remove every obstacle, at their return.

VER. 9. Night of distress.

on the earth, the inhabitants of the world shall learn justice.

10 Let us have pity on the wicked; but he will not learn justice: in the land of the saints he hath done wicked things, and he shall not see the glory of the Lord.

11 Lord, let thy hand be exalted, and let them not see: let the envious people see, and be confounded: and let fire devour thy enemies.

12 Lord, thou wilt give us peace: for thou hast wrought all our works for us.

13 O Lord, our God, other lords besides thee have had dominion over us, only in thee let us remember thy name.

14 Let not the dead live, let not the giants rise again: therefore hast thou visited and destroyed them, and hast destroyed all their memory.

15 Thou hast been favourable to the nation, O Lord, thou hast been favourable to the nation: art thou glorified? thou hast removed all the ends of the earth far off.

16 Lord, they have sought after thee in distress; in the tribulation of murmuring thy instruction was with them.

17 As a woman with child, when she draweth near the time of her delivery, is in pain, and crieth out in her pangs, so are we become in thy presence, O Lord.

18 We have conceived, and been as it were in labour, and have brought forth wind: we have not wrought salvation on the earth, therefore the inhabitants of the earth have not fallen.

19 Thy dead men shall live, my slain shall rise again: awake, and give praise, ye that dwell in the dust: for thy dew is the dew of the light: and the land of the giants thou shalt pull down into ruin.

20 Go, my people, enter into thy chambers, shut thy doors upon thee, hide thyself a little for a moment until the indignation pass away.

21 ^b For behold the Lord will come out of his place, to visit the iniquity of the inhabitant of the earth against him: and the earth shall disclose her blood, and shall cover her slain no more.

VER. 12. Works, both in punishing and rewarding. C.—God crowns his own gifts. E.

VER. 13. Lords of Babylon, (C.) and our own passions. H.

VER. 14. Giants; the proud emperors of Babylon, whom thou wilt destroy. Sept. "physicians;" as Rephaim has also this meaning.

VER. 15. Nation of the Jews. C.—Sept. "add evils to them, O Lord; add evils to the nobles of the land." H.—Heb. may have the same sense.—Ends: princes, or the Chaldees, sending them also into captivity; or thou hast propagated thy Church over the world.

VER. 16. They. Sept. "We," &c. C.—Affliction is a wholesome medicine. H.

VER. 18. Wind. Our expectation of aid from others has been disappointed. C.—Sept. "the spirit of thy salvation, which thou hast wrought on the earth. We shall not fall, but the inhabitants of the earth shall fall." H.—Their copies must have been different from ours.—Fallen. The Chananites are left for our trial and punishment. C.

VER. 19. Dead: a civil death, shall regain their liberty; and those who have left this world in a state of virtue, shall be happy.—Ruin. Cyrus liberated the Jews, having conquered Babylon.

VER. 20. Away, and Cambyses be destroyed. Ezech. xxxviii. 11. C.

VER. 21. Shall cover her slain no more. This is said with relation to the martyrs, and their happy resurrection. Ch.—The blood of the saints shall demand vengeance. C.

CHAP. XXVII.

The punishment of the oppressors of God's people. The Lord's favour to his Church.

IN that day the Lord, with his hard, and great, and strong sword, shall visit Leviathan, the bar serpent, and Leviathan, the crooked serpent, and shall slay the whale that is in the sea.

2 In that day there shall be singing to the vineyard of pure wine.

3 I am the Lord that keep it, I will suddenly give it drink: lest any hurt come to it, I keep it night and day.

4 There is no indignation in me: who shall make me a thorn and a brier in battle: shall I march against it, shall I set it on fire together.

5 Or rather, shall it take hold of my strength, shall it make peace with me, shall it make peace with me?

6 When they shall rush in unto Jacob, Israel shall blossom and bud, and they shall fill the face of the world with seed.

7 Hath he struck him according to the stroke of him that struck him? or is he slain, as he killed them that were slain by him?

8 In measure against measure, when it shall be cast off, thou shalt judge it. He hath meditated with his severe spirit in the day of heat.

9 Therefore upon this shall the iniquity of the house of Jacob be forgiven; and this is all the fruit, that the sin thereof should be taken away, when he shall have made all the stones of the altar, as burnt stones broken in pieces, the groves and temples shall not stand.

10 For the strong city shall be desolate, the beautiful city shall be forsaken, and shall be left as a wilderness: there the calf shall feed, and there shall he lie down, and shall consume its branches.

11 Its harvests shall be destroyed with drought, women shall come and teach it; for it is not a wise people, therefore he that made it, shall not have mercy on it: and he that formed it, shall not spare it.

12 And it shall come to pass, that in that day the Lord will strike from the channel of the river even to the torrent of Egypt, and you shall be gathered together one by one, O ye children of Israel.

CHAP. XXVII. VER. 1. Hard. Sept. "holy." C.—Leviathan. That is, the devil, the great enemy of the people of God. He is called the bar serpent from his strength, and the crooked serpent from his wiles, and the whale of the sea, from the tyranny he exercises in the sea of this world. He was spiritually slain by the death of Christ, when his power was destroyed. Ch.—It may also literally refer to Nabuchodonosor, and the king of Egypt, or rather to Cambyases, or Holofernes, but particularly Cambyases. C.

VER. 2. Vineyard; the Church of Christ, (Ch.) or Judea. It may be the beginning of a noted song. C.

VER. 3. Drink; or, as the Hebrew may also be rendered, I will continually water it. Ch.—God will protect his people. C.

VER. 4. In me, against the Church; nor shall I become as a thorn or brier in its regard; or march against it, or set it on fire: but it shall always take fast hold of me, and keep an everlasting peace with me. Ch.—God rather speaks of the enemy. If he attempt to lay waste this vineyard, I will chastise him. C.

VER. 5. Rush in. Some understand this of the enemies of the true Israel, that shall invade it in vain. Others of the spiritual invasion made by the apostles of Christ. Ch.—Prot. "He shall cause them that come of Jacob to take root." Sept. "those who come are children of Jacob." H.

VER. 7. Struck. Hath God punished the carnal persecuting Jews, in proportion to their doings against Christ and his saints? Ch.—God punished Israel as a father: but he will destroy the Chaldees, &c. C.

VER. 8. Cast off. When the synagogue shall be cast off, thou shalt judge it in measure, and in proportion to its crimes. Ch.—The Israelites have been rigorously punished. C.—He, &c. God hath designed severe punishments in the day of his wrath. Ch.

VER. 9. Jacob; viz. of such of them as shall be converted. Ch.—Altar, dedicated to idols: then he shall obtain pardon. C.

13 And it shall come to pass, that in that day a noise shall be made with a great trumpet, and they that were lost shall come from the land of the Assyrians, and they that were outcasts in the land of Egypt, and they shall adore the Lord in the holy mount in Jerusalem.

CHAP. XXVIII.

The punishment of the Israelites, for their pride, intemperance and contempt of religion. Christ the corner-stone.

WOE to the crown of pride, to the drunkards of Ephraim, and to the fading flower, the glory of his joy, who were on the head of the fat valley, staggering with wine.

2 Behold, the Lord is mighty and strong, as a storm of hail; a destroying whirlwind, as the violence of many waters overflowing, and sent forth upon a spacious land.

3 The crown of pride of the drunkards of Ephraim shall be trodden under feet.

4 And the fading flower, the glory of his joy, which is on the head of the fat valley, shall be as a hasty fruit before the ripeness of autumn: which, when he that seeth it shall behold, as soon as he taketh it in his hand, he will eat it up.

5 In that day the Lord of hosts shall be a crown of glory, and a garland of joy to the residue of his people:

6 And a spirit of judgment to him that sitteth in judgment, and strength to them that return out of the battle to the gate.

7 But these also have been ignorant through wine, and through drunkenness have erred: the priest and the prophet have been ignorant through drunkenness; they are swallowed up with wine; they have gone astray in drunkenness; they have not known him that seeth; they have been ignorant of judgment.

8 For all tables were full of vomit and filth, so that there was no more place.

9 Whom shall he teach knowledge? and whom shall he make to understand the hearing? them that are weaned from the milk, that are drawn away from the breasts.

VER. 10. City. Jerusalem, (Ch.) or more probably Babylon, of which he is going to speak.

VER. 11. Women. The princes shall be weak and irresolute. C.—Sept. "Hither, ye women, coming from the shew. For it is not an intelligent people."

VER. 12. River Euphrates, even to the Nile. H.—Nabuchodonosor laid waste all the intermediate countries. Afterwards Cyrus gave the people liberty. On the death of Cambyases, the nations were in consternation; and it was only during the peaceable reign of Darius that Israel returned, though not in a body, as the Jews had done twenty years before. C. xxvi. C.—By one, into the Church of Christ. Jo. xi. M.

VER. 13. Trumpet. The preaching of the Gospel for the conversion of the Jews. Ch.

CHAP. XXVIII. VER. 1. Ephraim. That is, the kingdom of the ten tribes. Ch.—Flower. The pride of the kingdom shall thus decay. M.—Head. Samaria, situated on a hill, having under it a most fertile valley. Ch.—See Amos ii. 6. and iv. 2. Samaria was taken in the sixth year of Ezechias.

VER. 2. The Lord. By his instrument, Salmanasar. H.—Heb. "behold the strong one, and the mighty to the Lord, as," &c. C.—Sept. "behold the Lord's fury... as." H.

VER. 4. Up. Theglathphalassar was captivated with the beauty of the country, and made it tributary. But Salmanasar, fearing a revolt, destroyed it. 4 K. xvii. 4.

VER. 5. People, who returned to the service of God; or it refers to the kingdom of Juda.

VER. 6. Gate. Ezechias reunited the divided kingdoms, and inspired his troops with courage, bringing them back victorious. 2 Par. xxx. 1. and 4 K. xviii. 7. C.

VER. 7. These also. The kingdom of Juda. Ch.—Ezechias could not correct

10 For command, command again, command, command again; expect, expect again, expect, expect again; a little there, a little there.

11 "For with the speech of lips, and with another tongue he will speak to this people.

12 To whom he said: This is my rest, refresh the weary, and this is my refreshing: and they would not hear.

13 And the word of the Lord shall be to them: Command, command again; command, command again; expect, expect again; expect, expect again; a little there, a little there: that they may go, and fall backward, and be broken, and snared, and taken.

14 Wherefore, hear the word of the Lord; ye scornful men, rule over my people that is in Jerusalem.

15 For you have said: We have entered into a league with death, and we have made a covenant with hell. When the overflowing scourge shall pass through, it shall not come upon us: for we have placed our hope in lies, and by falsehood we are protected.

16 "Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I will lay a stone in the foundations of Sion, a tried stone, a corner-stone, a precious stone, founded in the foundation. He that believeth, let him not hasten.

17 And I will set judgment in weight, and justice in measure: and hail shall overturn the hope of falsehood: and waters shall overflow its protection.

18 And your league with death shall be abolished, and your covenant with hell shall not stand: when the overflowing scourge shall pass, you shall be trodden down by it.

19 Whosoever it shall pass through, it shall take you away; because in the morning early it shall pass through, in the day and in the night, and vexation alone shall make you understand what you hear.

every abuse; though what is here specified, regards rather the reigns of his successors.

VER. 8. Place. All was defiled: they gloried in their shame.

VER. 9. Breasts? S. Paul seems to allude to this text. 1 Cor. iii. 2. C.—The abandoned Jews ask contemptuously, if they be to be taught like children? H.

VER. 10. Command, &c. This is said in the person of the Jews, resisting the repeated commands of God, and still putting him off. Ch.—They deride the prophets, speaking words of no meaning, as if their predictions were no better. S. Jer.—Think they that we have to learn the first elements, or to join syllables together? C.—Heb. Tsav latsav, &c. H.—The Nicolaites abused these words. S. Epiph. 25.—Why do they not speak plain! Sometimes terrible things are denounced, then subjects of joy! Isaias answers, that since they pretend not to understand, God will lead them into a country where they shall indeed have to learn the language, like children. C. xxix. 11. C.—Prot. "for precept must be upon precept... line upon line... here a little, and there a little. For with stammering lips," &c. H.

VER. 12. Hear. To leave off their wicked practices, and cruelty. The Jews would not understand: therefore Christ spoke to them in parables. C. vi. 9. Mat. xiii. 14. &c.

VER. 13. Taken. God will make his prophets speak, notwithstanding your repugnance; or he will reduce you to the necessity of learning an unknown language. C.

VER. 14. Men, who make a parade of your knowledge, (H.) to turn the most sacred things into ridicule.

VER. 15. Protected. Their conduct spoke this language. They would not fail to make alliances with Egypt, and to trust in idols, whatever the prophets might say to dissuade them. C.

VER. 16. Stone. Christ. Ch.—The Jews and Grotius would apply it to Ezechias. But he was already on the throne, and never could realize these glorious promises. The people were not to believe in him, &c. C.—Hasten. Let him expect his coming with patience. Ch.—It would be delayed some time. Heb. may also signify "stagger;" (C.) in which sense the Sept. and the authors of the New Test. seem to have taken it. "Whosoever believeth in him, shall not be confounded." See Rom. ix. 33. H.—Isaias promises a Redeemer, though these people were unworthy; and then returns to his own times. M.

VER. 17. Measure. In the days of the Redeemer, they shall lead a virtuous 20 For the bed is straitened, so that one must fall out, and a short covering cannot cover both.

21 "For the Lord shall stand up as in the mountain of divisions: "he shall be angry as in the valley which is in Gabaon: that he may do his work, his strange work: that he may perform his work, his work is strange to him.

22 And now do not mock, lest your bonds be tied strait. For I have heard of the Lord, the God of hosts, a consumption and a cutting short upon all the earth.

23 Give ear, and hear my voice, hearken, and hear my speech.

24 Shall the ploughman plough all the day to sow? shall he open and harrow his ground?

25 Will he not, when he hath made plain the surface thereof, sow gith, and scatter cummin, and put wheat in order, and barley, and millet, and vetches in their bounds.

26 For he will instruct him in judgment: his God will teach him.

27 For gith shall not be threshed with saws, neither shall the cart wheel turn about upon cummin: but gith shall be beaten out with a rod, and cummin with a staff.

28 But bread-corn shall be broken small: but the thresher shall not thresh it for ever; neither shall the cart wheel hurt it, nor break it with its teeth.

29 This also is come forth from the Lord God of hosts, to make his counsel wonderful, and magnify justice.

CHAP. XXIX.

God's heavy judgments upon Jerusalem, for their blind obstinacy: with a prophecy of the conversion of the Gentiles.

life, (C.) or the scornors shall be treated with rigour.—Protection. The wall, (M.) or lies, (v. 15. C.) on which you depend, shall turn to your confusion. H.

VER. 19. Hear. Under the last kings of Juda, the misery was continual. Captivity opened the eyes of the people, and they were afterwards more docile. The murder of Christ, and the subsequent evils which befel the nation, seem to have had a quite different effect. They will at last submit to his yoke. C.

VER. 20. Straitened. It is too narrow to hold two: God will have the bed of our heart all to himself. Ch. 1 Cor. x. 20. and 2 Cor. vi. 14. S. Jer. &c.—The Jews explain it of the utmost distress, to which the people would be reduced, so that they would not be able to assist a friend. Amos iii. 12. Forer. C.

VER. 21. As in, &c. As the Lord fought against the Philistines in Baal Pharasim, (2 K. v.) and against the Chanaanites, in the valley of Gabaon. Josue x. Ch.—Strange. He punished unwillingly. C.—"It is not God's work to ruin what he has created." S. Jer.—He will punish in an extraordinary manner those scoffers. v. 15. Num. xvi. 29. Piscat.

VER. 22. Earth. Nabuchodonosor will take a complete and speedy vengeance. C. x. 22.

VER. 24. Sow. The works of the husbandman vary, so will God's punishments be inflicted with measure, according to each one's deserts. v. 27. Wied. vi. 7. C.

VER. 25. Gith. Heb. ketsach. Sept. μελανθιον. H. Pliny xx. 17. M.—Sept. have not expressed all the terms of the original, (H.) being perhaps ignorant of their meaning. S. Jer.

VER. 26. God. From him proceeds every useful invention. The pagans attributed the discovery of corn, &c. to their idols.

VER. 27. Saws, or heavy instruments. It would be thus crushed too much. C.

VER. 28. But. Sept. "it shall be eaten with bread. For I will not be angry with you for ever, nor shall the sounds of my bitter wrath trample upon you." H.

VER. 29. This also, &c. Such also is the proceeding of the Lord with his land, and the divers seeds he sows therein. Ch.

CHAP. XXIX. VER. 1. Ariel. This word signifies the lion of God, and here is taken for the strong city of Jerusalem. Ch.—It was destroyed by the Chaldees, (4 K. xxv.) and still more by the Romans, 40 years after. C. W.—Ezechiel (xliii. 15.) styles the altar of holocausts Ariel.—Took. Sept. The Heb. means also "inhabited." H.—Sion was called the city of David. C.—The invasion (H.) of Sennacherib is here foretold (Forer) two years before. C. xxxi. 10.

2 And I will make a trench about Ariel, and it shall be in sorrow and mourning, and it shall be to me as Ariel.

3 And I will make a circle round about thee, and will cast up a rampart against thee, and raise up bulwarks to besiege thee.

4 Thou shalt be brought down, thou shalt speak out of the earth, and thy speech shall be heard out of the ground: and thy voice shall be from the earth like that of the Python, and out of the ground thy speech shall mutter.

5 And the multitude of them that fan thee, shall be like small dust, and as ashes passing away, the multitude of them that have prevailed against thee.

6 And it shall be at an instant suddenly. A visitation shall come from the Lord of hosts in thunder, and with earthquake, and with a great noise of whirlwind and tempest, and with the flame of devouring fire.

7 And the multitude of all nations that have fought against Ariel, shall be as the dream of a vision by night, and all that have fought, and besieged, and prevailed against it.

8 And as he that is hungry dreameth, and eateth, but when he is awake, his soul is empty: and as he that is thirsty dreameth, and drinketh, and after he is awake, is yet faint with thirst, and his soul is empty: so shall be the multitude of all the Gentiles that have fought against Mount Sion.

9 Be astonished, and wonder, waver, and stagger: be drunk, and not with wine: stagger, and not with drunkenness.

10 For the Lord hath mingled for you the spirit of a deep sleep; he will shut up your eyes; he will cover your prophets and princes, that see visions.

11 And the vision of all shall be unto you as the words of a book that is sealed, which when they shall deliver to one that is learned, they shall say: Read this: and he shall answer: I cannot, for it is sealed.

12 And the book shall be given to one that knoweth no letters, and it shall be said to him: Read: and he shall answer: I know no letters.

VER. 2. Trench. Sennacherib did not besiege the city. C. xxxvii. 33. But he made preparations for it, and his sentiments are expressed, (C.) together with the fatal consequences which he felt, when his army was offered up (H.) as a victim on the altar of holocausts: v. 1.

VER. 3. Circle. Thus provisions were cut off. C.

VER. 4. The Python. The diviner by a spirit. Ch.—Jerusalem shall hardly dare to make a noise. C.

VER. 5. Away. The numbers and speedy downfall of the Assyrians, are described. H.

VER. 6. Thunder. Ps. lxxv. 7. Tharaca was coming to assist Ezechias. C. xxxvii. 36. C.

VER. 7. It, in their dreams.

VER. 9. Be, &c. Though God spared the city, for the sake of the good, He will not fail to punish scoffers, in due time, as He now declares. H.—Drunkenness. You shall suffer for your crimes, (C. xxviii. 7.) or be affrighted.

VER. 10. Sleep, or compunction, (Rom. xi. 8. C.) denoting their obstinacy. S. Chrys.—Visions. Prot. "the seers." H.—The Jews perceived but very imperfectly the meaning of the prophets, when they spoke of a future Redeemer, God and man. They are now more infatuated, (C.) having a veil on their hearts. 1 Cor. iv. 3. Both learned and ignorant refuse to believe, excusing themselves.

VER. 12. H.—The more they read the Scriptures, the less do they understand. C.

VER. 13. Men. Our Saviour applies this to the Jews. The evangelists follow the Sept. Mat. xv. 8. Mark vii. 6. C.—"This people approacheth to me, (Grabe adds, with its mouth and with) their lips they honour me, but their heart is far have feared me with the commandment and doctrines of men:

14 Therefore, behold I will proceed to cause an admiration in this people, by a great and wonderful miracle: ^bfor wisdom shall perish from their wise men, and the understanding of their prudent men shall be hid.

15 Woe to you that are deep of heart, to hide your counsel from the Lord: and their works are in the dark, and they say: ^cWho seeth us, and who knoweth us?

16 This thought of yours is perverse: as if the clay should think against the potter, and the work should say to the maker thereof: Thou madest me not: or the thing framed should say to him that fashioned it: Thou understandest not.

17 Is it not yet a very little while, and Libanus shall be turned into charmel, and charmel shall be esteemed as a forest?

18 And in that day the deaf shall hear the words of the book, and out of darkness and obscurity the eyes of the blind shall see.

19 And the meek shall increase their joy in the Lord, and the poor men shall rejoice in the holy One of Israel.

20 For he that did prevail hath failed, the scorner is consumed, and they are all cut off that watched for iniquity:

21 That made men sin by word, and supplanted him that reproved them in the gate, and declined in vain from the just.

22 Therefore, thus saith the Lord to the house of Jacob, he that redeemed Abraham: Jacob shall not now be confounded, neither shall his countenance now be ashamed.

23 But when he shall see his children, the work of my hands, in the midst of him sanctifying my name, and they shall sanctify the holy One of Jacob, and shall glorify the God of Israel:

24 And they that erred in spirit, shall know understanding; and they that murmured, shall learn the law.

CHAP. XXX.

The people are blamed for their confidence in Egypt. God's mercies towards his Church: the punishment of sinners.

WOE to you, apostate children, saith the Lord, that you would take counsel, and not of me: and from me. Yet in vain do they honour me, teaching the commands of men and doctrines." H.—They still continue to corrupt God's word by their false interpretations.

VER. 14. Hid. At the approach of Sennacherib, the politicians were confounded. But the obstinate blindness of the Jews in the midst of such a blaze of predictions, which are evidently accomplished in Jesus Christ, excites admiration. That their ancestors should have found them obscure, is not so wonderful. The prophets foretold this event; and the reprobation of the synagogue, which had been so highly favoured, is a proof of the truth of the Christian religion 1 Cor. i. 18. C.

VER. 16. Not. So it is in vain to think that your hypocrisy or excuses will deceive God. C. xxviii. 15. H.

VER. 17. Charmel. This word signifies a fruitful field. Ch.—Shall Carmel be presently a forest or barren mountain? No. But I will work a greater miracle. v. 18. Jerusalem shall rejoice, and Sennacherib shall be filled with dismay.

VER. 19. Rejoice. Our Saviour alludes to this text, (Lu. vii. 22.) which, under the figure of the deliverance from captivity, points out the vocation of the Gentiles. C. xxxv. 6. and xlii. 7. 19.

VER. 20. Prevail. Wicked princes, scoffers, &c. (v. 10. C. xxviii. 7.) shall be exterminated. Ezechias promoted piety with greater zeal after his deliverance.

VER. 21. Gate. False prophets rose up against those who spoke the truth, and condemned them unjustly. C.—The just, Christ. M would begin a web, and not by my spirit, that you might add sin upon sin:

VER. 23. Israel. They shall serve God with fidelity and gratitude. C. xxx. 22. C.

2 Who walk to go down into Egypt, and have not asked at my mouth, hoping for help in the strength of Pharaoh, and trusting in the shadow of Egypt.

3 And the strength of Pharaoh shall be to your confusion: and the confidence of the shadow of Egypt to your shame.

4 For thy princes were in Tanis, and thy messengers came even to Hanes.

6 The burden of the beasts of the south. In a land of trouble and distress, from whence come the lioness, and the lion, the viper and the flying basilisk, they carry their riches upon the shoulders of beasts, and their treasures upon the bunches of camels to a people that shall not be able to profit them.

7 *For Egypt shall help in vain, and to no purpose: therefore have I cried concerning this: It is pride only, sit still.

8 Now therefore go in and write for them upon a box, and note it diligently in a book, and it shall be in the latter days for a testimony for ever.

9 For it is a people that provoketh to wrath, and lying children, children that will not hear the law of God.

10 Who say to the seers: See not: and to them that behold: Behold not for us those things that are right: speak unto us pleasant things; see errors for us.

11 Take away from me the way; turn away the path from me; let the holy One of Israel cease from before us.

12 Therefore thus saith the holy One of Israel: Because you have rejected this word, and have trusted in oppression and tumult, and have leaned upon it:

13 Therefore shall this iniquity be to you as a breach that falleth, and is found wanting in a high wall; for the destruction thereof shall come on a sudden, when it is not looked for.

14 And it shall be broken small, as the potter's vessel is broken all to pieces with mighty breaking, and there shall not a shard be found of the pieces thereof, wherein a little fire may be carried from the hearth or a little water be drawn out of the pit.

15 For thus saith the Lord God, the holy One of Israel: If you return and be quiet, you shall be saved: in silence and in hope shall your strength be. And you would not:

16 But have said: No, but we will flee to horses: therefore shall you flee. And we will mount upon swift ones: therefore shall they be swifter that shall pursue after you.

17 A thousand men shall flee for fear of one: and for fear of five shall you flee, till you be left as the mast of a ship on the top of a mountain, and as an ensign upon a hill.

18 Therefore the Lord waiteth, that he may have mercy on you: and therefore shall he be exalted, sparing you: because the Lord is the God of judgment: blessed are all they that wait for him.

19 For the people of Sion shall dwell in Jerusalem: weeping, thou shalt not weep, he will surely have pity on thee: at the voice of thy cry, as soon as he shall hear, he will answer thee.

20 And the Lord will give you spare bread, and short water: and will not cause thy teacher to flee away from thee any more: and thy eyes shall see thy teacher.

21 And thy ears shall hear the word of one admonishing thee behind thy back: This is the way, walk ye in it: and go not aside neither to the right hand, nor to the left.

22 And thou shalt defile the plates of thy graven things of silver, and the garment of thy molten things of gold, and shalt cast them away as the uncleanness of a menstruous woman. Thou shalt say to it: Get thee hence.

23 And rain shall be given to thy seed, wheresoever thou shalt sow in the land: and the bread of the corn of the land shall be most plentiful and fat. The lamb in that day shall feed at large in thy possession:

24 And thy oxen, and the ass-colts that till the ground, shall eat mingled provender, as it was winnowed in the floor.

25 And there shall be upon every high mountain,

27 Behold the name of the Lord cometh from afar, his wrath burneth and is heavy to bear: his lips are filled with indignation, and his tongue as a devouring fire.

28 His breath as a torrent overflowing even to the midst of the neck, to destroy the nations unto nothing, and the bridle of error that was in the jaws of the people.

29 You shall have a song as in the night of the sanctified solemnity, and joy of heart, as when one goeth with a pipe, to come into the mountain of the Lord, to the mighty One of Israel.

30 And the Lord shall make the glory of his voice to be heard, and shall shew the terror of his arm, in the threatening of wrath, and the flame of devouring fire: he shall crush to pieces with whirlwind, and hail-stones.

31 For at the voice of the Lord the Assyrian shall fear being struck with the rod.

32 And the passage of the rod shall be strongly grounded, which the Lord shall make to rest upon him with timbrels and harps, and in great battles he shall overthrow them.

33 For Topheth is prepared from yesterday, prepared by the king, deep, and wide. The nourishment thereof is fire and much wood: the breath of the Lord as a torrent of brimstone kindling it.

CHAP. XXXI.

The folly of trusting to Egypt, and forgetting God. He will fight for his people against the Assyrians.

WOE to them that go down to Egypt for help, trusting in horses, and putting their confidence in chariots, because they are many; and in horsemen, because they are very strong; and have not trusted in

VER. 26. Sevenfold. Exceedingly great, equal to the light of 49 days. C.—The fame of Ezechias spread widely. His kingdom was a figure of that of Christ, when this was more perfectly realized, the preaching of the gospel having dispelled the darkness of error. C.—He alludes to the day of judgment. S. Jer. M.

VER. 27. Name. Majesty of God, (C.) in future ages. H.
VER. 28. Error. The unjust government of Sennacherib, who endeavoured to engage all in idolatry.

VER. 29. Night. When the festivals commenced. C.—He may particularly mean that night, when the destroying angel slew the Egyptians. Vatab.—Pipe. Must. H.—This was not preserved.

VER. 30. Stones. The Angel raised the storm, which destroyed many, while the rest in a panic fell upon one another. C. ix. 5. and xxxvii. 36.

VER. 31. Rod. Sennacherib is terrified, who a few days before insulted the living God.

VER. 32. Harps. The sound of thunder will fill the people of Ezechias with joy, while the enemy shall perish irrecoverably. C.

VER. 33. Topheth. 'Tis the name as Gehenna, and is taken for hell. Ch.—The Assyrians perish amid horrid cries (H.) and thunders, which resembled the noise made by drums, and by children who were burning in the arms of Moloch. 4 K. xviii. 4. and xliii. 10. and 2 Par. xxix. 16. Some think that the carcasses of the Assyrians were to be burnt in this common sewer of Jerusalem. But they were too far distant. C. xxxvii. 35. C.

CHAP. XXXI. VER. 1. Chariots. He continues to inveigh against this practice. C. xxx. 16. C.—Salmanassar will ruin the ten tribes. M.

VER. 2. Words. The Lord will punish the wicked Jews, (C.) after the Egyptians. Joseph. x. 1.—The former would not believe the prophets. W.

VER. 3. Hand. If God neglect to support empires, they fail of themselves. (934) the holy One of Israel, and have not sought after the Lord.

2 But he that is the wise one hath brought evil, and hath not removed his words: and he will rise up against the house of the wicked, and against the aid of them that work iniquity.

3 Egypt is man, and not God: and their horses, flesh, and not spirit: and the Lord shall put down his hand, and the helper shall fall, and he that is helped shall fall, and they shall all be confounded together.

4 For thus saith the Lord to me: Like as the lion roareth, and the lion's whelp upon his prey, and when a multitude of shepherds shall come against him, he will not fear at their voice, nor be afraid of their multitude: so shall the Lord of hosts come down to fight upon Mount Sion, and upon the hill thereof.

5 As birds flying, so will the Lord of hosts protect Jerusalem, protecting and delivering, passing over and saving.

6 Return as you had deeply revolted, O children of Israel.

7 For in that day a man shall cast away his idols of silver, and his idols of gold, which your hands have made for you to sin.

8 *And the Assyrian shall fall by the sword, not of a man; and the sword, not of a man, shall devour him; and he shall flee not at the face of the sword: and his young men shall be tributaries:

9 And his strength shall pass away with dread, and his princes fleeing shall be afraid: the Lord hath said it, whose fire is in Sion, and his furnace in Jerusalem.

CHAP. XXXII.

The blessings of the reign of Christ. The desolation of the Jews, and prosperity of the Church of Christ.

BEHOOLD, a king shall reign in justice, and princes shall rule in judgment.

2 And a man shall be as when one is hid from the wind, and hideth himself from a storm, as rivers of waters in drought, and the shadow of a rock that standeth out in a desert land.

* Infra xxvii. 36. 4 Kings xix. 35. 2 Par. xxxii. 21.

VER. 4. Thereof. He will thence hurl destruction on the distant enemy. C.—He had destroyed Sennacherib's army. 4 K. xix. Yet they forgot this and other proofs of God's power and love. W.

VER. 5. Over. He will protect Jerusalem, notwithstanding the menaces of Sennacherib, as he did his people from the destroying angel.

VER. 6. Revolted. Let your conversion bear proportion (C.) with your sins. H.

VER. 7. Idols. Their worship was afterwards more severely prohibited. C. xxx. 21.

VER. 8. Flee not. Heb. "flee to himself," lo. Sept. and Vulg. have read lo, "not." The angel destroyed the army, and the king was slain at his return.—Tributaries. Nineve being afterwards subject to the Chaldees, &c. C.—Heb. "shall melt." Vat.

VER. 9. Strength. Heb. "rock," the king.—Jerusalem, to protect it, (C.) and punish the guilty. Chal.

CHAP. XXXII. VER. 1. King. Ezechias or Josias, as figures of Jesus Christ, who is meant. C.—They and their counsellors only foreshewed the advantages derived from Christ and his apostles in a more abundant manner. S. Jer.—Judgment and justice. These words have a higher meaning than what is assigned to them by philosophers. In God, the former implies the preparation of the means for man's redemption, as the latter does the execution; and in man, judgment denotes the selection of what is right, and justice implies the putting it willingly in practice. Thus Christ will fulfil all that he has graciously purposed, with the two other divine persons; and the princes, his pastors, shall discern what is good for their own and people's eternal welfare. W.

VER. 2. Land. Ezechias and Josias were both a defence to their subjects.

VER. 3. Dim. True prophets shall speak, while false ones shall be silent. C.

VER. 4. Plain. Some parts of the prediction relate literally to the Old Test

3 The eyes of them that see shall not be dim, and the ears of them that hear shall hearken diligently.

4 And the heart of fools shall understand knowledge, and the tongue of stammerers shall speak readily and plain.

5 The fool shall no more be called prince: neither shall the deceitful be called great:

6 For the fool will speak foolish things, and his heart will work iniquity, to practise hypocrisy, and speak to the Lord deceitfully, and to make empty the soul of the hungry, and take away the drink from the thirsty.

7 The vessels of the deceitful are most wicked: for he hath framed devices to destroy the meek, with lying words, when the poor man speaketh judgment.

8 But the prince will devise such thing as are worthy of a prince, and he shall stand above the rulers.

9 Rise up, ye rich women, and hear my voice: ye confident daughters, give ear to my speech,

10 For after days and a year, you that are confident shall be troubled: for the vintage is at an end, the gathering shall come no more.

11 Be astonished, ye rich women, be troubled, ye confident ones: strip you, and be confounded, gird your loins.

12 Mourn for your breasts, for the delightful country, for the fruitful vineyard.

13 Upon the land of my people shall thorns and briers come up: how much more upon all the houses of joy, of the city that rejoiced?

14 For the house is forsaken, the multitude of the city is left, darkness and obscurity are come upon its dens for ever. A joy of wild asses, the pastures of flocks.

15 Until the spirit be poured upon us from on high: and the desert shall be as a charmel, and charmel shall be counted for a forest.

16 And judgment shall dwell in the wilderness, and justice shall sit in charmel.

17 And the work of justice shall be peace, and the service of justice quietness, and security for ever.

18 And my people shall sit in the beauty of peace, and in the tabernacles of confidence, and in wealthy rest.

But this alludes to the New, when the mysteries of religion are clearly confessed in the Catholic Church. W.—Even the most illiterate are guided with security, if they will but hear the Church. H.

VER. 5. Deceitful. Heb. "miser be called liberal." Lu. xxii. 25. These good princes are contrasted with Achaz, who had oppressed his subjects.

VER. 7. Vessels. Arms, (C.) or all the words and actions of the miser are bent on evil. H.—The ministers of wicked princes resemble them. M.

VER. 9. Women. Great cities. He announces the impending dangers.

VER. 10. Year. After a long time; or the prophet speaks two years before the arrival of Sennacherib, after the vintage was ended. C. xxx. 20. and 4 K. xix. 29. C.

VER. 12. Mourn. Sept. "beat." H.—Breasts, suckling infants. In mourning, women beat and uncovered their breasts, which, on any other occasion, would have been deemed very indecent. C. Eze. xxiii. 34. Herod. ii. 84.

VER. 13. Up. Being uncultivated for two years. This was still more the case during the captivity. C.—How. Sept. "from every house joy shall be taken away, thou rich city." H.

VER. 14. Ever. Some palaces had been demolished by Sennacherib, though this seems to refer to the Babylonish captivity.

VER. 15. High, as Ezechiel (xxxvii. 16.) saw the dry bones rise again. Under this idea prosperity is frequently described. The rest of the chap. may very well be explained of the propagation of the gospel.—Forest. Carmel was a fertile spot. Judea shall flourish, and Assyria shall be laid waste. The synagogue will be rejected, while the Gentiles, (C.) formerly so barren, shall embrace the faith and true piety. H.

VER. 17. Peace. The just shall enjoy peace, under Ezechias.

VER. 19. Hail. God's judgments shall overtake Babylon, or rather Nineve.

19 But hail shall be in the descent of the forest, and the city shall be made very low.

20 Blessed are ye that sow upon all waters, sending thither the foot of the ox and the ass.

CHAP. XXXIII.

God's revenge against the enemies of his Church. The happiness of the heavenly Jerusalem.

WOE to thee that spoilest, shalt not thou thyself also be spoiled? and thou that despisest, shalt not thyself also be despised? when thou shalt have made an end of spoiling, thou shalt be spoiled: when being wearied, thou shalt cease to despise, thou shalt be despised.

2 O Lord, have mercy on us: for we have waited for thee: be thou our arm in the morning, and our salvation in the time of trouble.

3 At the voice of the angel the people fled, and at the lifting up thyself the nations are scattered.

4 And your spoils shall be gathered together as the locust is gathered, as when the ditches are full of them.

5 The Lord is magnified, for he hath dwelt on high: he hath filled Sion with judgment and justice.

6 And there shall be faith in thy times: riches of salvation, wisdom and knowledge: the fear of the Lord is his treasure.

7 Behold, they that see shall cry without: the angels of peace shall weep bitterly.

8 The ways are made desolate; no one passeth by the road; the covenant is made void; he hath rejected the cities; he hath not regarded the men.

9 The land hath mourned, and languished: Libanus is confounded, and become foul, and Saron is become as a desert: and Basan and Carmel are shaken.

10 Now will I rise up, saith the Lord: now will I be exalted, now will I lift up myself.

11 You shall conceive heat, you shall bring forth stubble: your breath, as fire, shall devour you.

12 And the people shall be as ashes after a fire; as a bundle of thorns, they shall be burnt with fire.

13 Hear, you that are far off, what I have done; and you that are near, know my strength.

14 The sinners in Sion are afraid; trembling hath seized upon the hypocrites. Which of you can dwell

VER. 20. Waters. Fruitful soils, abounding with cattle. C.—Both Jews and Gentiles shall submit to Christ. Clem. Strom. vi. S. Jer.

CHAP. XXXIII. VER. 1. Spoilest. This is particularly directed to Sennacherib. Ch.—He was a figure of persecutors of the Church, to which many passages here allude. C.—Remota justitia quid sunt regna nisi magna latrocinia? S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. iv. 4.—Sennacherib plundered Samaria and Juda, and despising God, was himself contemned. W.

VER. 2. Morning. Speedily. Heb. "mornings," or every day. Ezechias thus addresses God.

VER. 4. Them. The neglect of burying these insects has often brought on the plague. S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. iii. 31.

VER. 6. Faith. Sincerity and justice adorn the reigns of Ezechias and of Christ.

VER. 7. Without. The people of the country, and the envoys of Ezechias. 4 K. xviii. 14. Heb. "Behold their Ariel, cried they without," insultingly, (C.) pointing at Jerusalem. C. xxix. 1. At which (H.) the envoys rent their garments, &c. C. xxxvi. 22. C.—"Behold I shall appear to them." Aquila. S. Jer.—Angels. Messengers or deputies sent to negotiate a peace, (Ch.) who wept because they could not obtain it. W.

VER. 8. Void, though Sennacherib had received what he demanded. 4 K. xviii. 14.

VER. 9. Confounded. Its trees were cut down. C. xxxvii. 24.

VER. 10. Myself, when all human aid fails.

VER. 11. You, Assyrians, are bringing destruction upon yourselves. C.

VER. 14. Of you. Heb. "of us." H.—They are seriously alarmed at the sight of the fires prepared to burn the dead bodies of the Assyrians, (C. xxx. 22.) and begin to think of hell, (C.) which their sins deserve. H.

with devouring fire? which of you shall dwell with everlasting burnings?

15 *He that walketh in justices, and speaketh truth, that casteth away avarice by oppression, and shaketh his hands from all bribes, that stoppeth his ears lest he hear blood, and shutteth his eyes that he may see no evil,

16 He shall dwell on high, the fortifications of rocks shall be his highness: bread is given him, his waters are sure.

17 His eyes shall see the king in his beauty, they shall see the land far off.

18 Thy heart shall meditate fear: ^bwhere is the learned? where is he that pondereth the words of the law? where ^cis the teacher of the little ones?

19 The shameless people thou shalt not see, the people of profound speech: so that thou canst not understand the eloquence of his tongue, in whom there is no wisdom.

20 Look upon Sion, the city of our solemnity: thy eyes shall see Jerusalem, a rich habitation, a tabernacle that cannot be removed: neither shall the nails thereof be taken away for ever, neither shall any of the cords thereof be broken:

21 Because only there our Lord is magnificent: a place of rivers, very broad and spacious streams: no ship, with oars, shall pass by it, neither shall the great galley pass through it.

22 For the Lord is our judge, the Lord is our law-giver, the Lord is our king: he will save us.

23 Thy tacklings are loosed, and they shall be of no strength: thy mast shall be in such condition, that thou shalt not be able to spread the flag. Then shall the spoils of much prey be divided: the lame shall take the spoil.

24 Neither shall he that is near, say: I am feeble. The people that dwell therein, shall have their iniquity taken away from them.

CHAP. XXXIV.

The general judgment of the wicked.

COME near, ye Gentiles, and hear, and hearken, ye people: let the earth hear, and all that is

* Ps. xiv. 2.—^b 1 Cor. i. 20.

VER. 15. Blood. Avoiding revenge, and punishing the guilty, without respect to persons. Such was Ezechias, and therefore his enemies could not hurt him.

VER. 16. Sure. Never failing. C.—This was a great advantage in those dry regions. H.

VER. 17. King Ezechias, or he shall be one of his courtiers.—Off. Their limits shall be extended. Those who believe in Christ, shall cast their eyes up towards their heavenly country. Heb. ix. 13.

VER. 18. Ones. These questions were put by the people, when the enemy approached; or they now rejoice that their severe masters were gone.

VER. 19. Shameless, unjust Assyrians. Lu. xviii. 2. When shame is gone, people give way to every excess.—Profound. Unknown to the Jews. 4 K. xviii. 26.—No wisdom, manners, or piety.

VER. 20. Broken. It was taken 125 years afterwards. The Church remains till the end of time, (C.) whereas both the prophets and history assure us, that Jerusalem was subject to destruction. W.

VER. 21. Of rivers. He speaks of the rivers of endless joys that flow from the throne of God to water the heavenly Jerusalem, where no enemy's ship can come, &c. Ch.—God keeps all enemies from Jerusalem, like a deep river. C.

VER. 23. Thy tacklings. He speaks of the enemies of the church, under the allegory of a ship that is disabled. Ch.—Sennacherib shall attempt invasion no more than a ship without masts would put to sea.

VER. 24. Feeble. All were obliged to collect the plunder, to be afterwards divided. None shall plead illness. The inhabitants of Jerusalem will not feel the effects of sin (C.) on this occasion. H.

CHAP. XXXIV. VER. 1. Come. Both Gentiles and Jews are admonished of the world's end before judgment. W.

therein, the world, and every thing that cometh forth of it.

2 For the indignation of the Lord is upon all nations, and his fury upon all their armies: he hath killed them, and delivered them to slaughter.

3 Their slain shall be cast forth, and out of their carcasses shall rise a stink: the mountains shall be melted with their blood.

4 And all the hosts of the heavens shall pine away, and the heavens shall be folded together as a book: and all their host shall fall down as the leaf falleth from the vine, and from the fig-tree.

5 For my sword is inebriated in heaven: behold, it shall come down upon Idumea, and upon the people of my slaughter unto judgment.

6 The sword of the Lord is filled with blood; it is made thick with the blood of lambs and buck-goats, with the blood of rams full of marrow: for there is a victim of the Lord in Bosra, and a great slaughter in the land of Edom.

7 And the unicorns shall go down with them, and the bulls with the mighty: their land shall be soaked with blood, and their ground with the fat of fat ones.

8 For it is the day of the vengeance of the Lord, the year of recompenses of the judgment of Sion.

9 And the streams thereof shall be turned into pitch, and the ground thereof into brimstone: and the land thereof shall become burning pitch.

10 Night and day it shall not be quenched; the smoke thereof shall go up for ever: from generation to generation it shall lie waste, none shall pass through it for ever and ever.

11 The bittern and ericius shall possess it: and the ibis and the raven shall dwell in it: and a line shall be stretched out upon it, to bring it to nothing, and a plummet, unto desolation.

12 The nobles thereof shall not be there: they shall call rather upon the king, and all the princes thereof shall be nothing.

13 And thorns and nettles shall grow up in its houses, and the thistle in the fortresses thereof: and it shall be the habitation of dragons, and the pasture of ostriches.

VER. 4. Away. These strong expressions denote great misery. C. xiii. Joel ii. 10. Eze. xxxii. 27. C.—Book. Heb. "roll." H.—Some thence foolishly inferred that the destiny of every one might be read in the heavens. Huet. Eus. præp. vi. 11. Philo. xxiii. Pic. Astrol. viii. 5.—The prophet only means that the heavens shall be devoid of beauty, (C.) and covered with darkness. H.

VER. 5. Heaven. Casting down the rebel angels. S. Jer.—The resolution to destroy the Idumeans, for their cruelty to the Jews, has been taken long ago. All these expressions allude to the last judgment. C.—Idumea. Under the name of Idumea or Edom, a people that were enemies of the Jews, are here understood the wicked in general, the enemies of God and his Church. Ch.—Assaraddon fell upon Edom two years after Sennacherib's death. C.—No strong place like Bosra, shall rescue any from destruction at the last day. W.

VER. 7. The unicorns. That is, the great and mighty. Ch.

VER. 8. Recompenses. When the persecutors of Sion, that is, of the Church, shall receive their reward. Ch.—The Idumeans had frequently shown their ill-will towards the Jews. 2 Par. xxviii. 17. Amos i. 11. C.—Sion shall perish as the wicked in hell shall be tormented. W.

VER. 9. Pitch. The soil was sulphureous, and became neglected, (v. 10.) like the territory of Sodom. The people are now no more, and only a few miserable Arabs pitch their tents there.

VER. 11. Line. Intimating entire destruction. Lam. ii. 3 and 4 K. xi. 13. C.—Yet God will not punish more than people deserve. M.

VER. 13. Dragons, Thannim. C. xiii. 22. H.—Ostriches, or swans.

VER. 14. Monsters. Lit. "Ass-centaurs." H.—Heb. "fishermen shall find islands." C. xiii. 21.—Ones. Goats.—Lamia. Heb. lilith. Chal. "owl," the bird of Minerva, or the Moon, which the Arabs style Alilat. C.—Diodorus (20) relates that Lamia was an African queen, who having lost her children, was 14 And demons and monsters shall meet, and the hairy ones shall cry out to one another, there hath the lamia lain down, and found rest for herself.

15 There hath the ericius had its hole, and brought up its young ones, and hath dug round about, and cherished them in the shadow thereof: thither are the kites gathered together one to another.

16 Search ye diligently in the book of the Lord, and read: not one of them was wanting, one hath not sought for the other: for that which proceedeth out of my mouth, he hath commanded, and his spirit it hath gathered them.

17 And he hath cast the lot for them, and his hand hath divided it to them by line: they shall possess it for ever; from generation to generation they shall dwell therein.

CHAP. XXXV.

The joyful flourishing of Christ's kingdom: in his Church shall be a holy and secure way.

THE land that was desolate and impassable, shall be glad, and the wilderness shall rejoice, and shall flourish like the lily.

2 It shall bud forth and blossom, and shall rejoice with joy and praise: the glory of Libanus is given to it: the beauty of Carmel, and Saron, they shall see the glory of the Lord, and the beauty of our God.

3 Strengthen ye the feeble hands, and confirm the weak knees.

4 Say to the faint-hearted: Take courage, and fear not: behold, your God will bring the revenge of recompense: God himself will come and will save you.

5 Then shall the eyes of the blind be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped.

6 Then shall the lame man leap as a hart; and the tongue of the dumb shall be free: for waters are broken out in the desert, and streams in the wilderness.

7 And that which was dry land, shall become a pool, and the thirsty land springs of water. In the dens, where dragons dwelt before, shall rise up the verdure of the reed and the bulrush.

8 And a path and a way shall be there, and it shall be called the holy way: the unclean shall not pass over it, and this shall be unto you a straight way, so that fools shall not err therein.

9 No lion shall be there, nor shall any mischievous beast go up by it, nor be found there: but they shall walk there that shall be delivered.

10 And the redeemed of the Lord shall return, and shall come into Sion with praise, and everlasting joy shall be upon their heads: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and mourning shall flee away.

CHAP. XXXVI.

Sennacherib invades Juda: his blasphemies.

AND it came to pass in the fourteenth year^a of king Ezechias, that Sennacherib, king of the Assyrians, came up against all the fenced cities of Juda, and took them.

2 And the king of the Assyrians sent Rabsaces from Lachis to Jerusalem, to king Ezechias, with a great army, and he stood by the conduit of the upper pool, in the way of the fuller's field.

3 And there went out to him Eliacim, the son of Helcias, who was over the house, and Sobna, the scribe, and Joahe, the son of Asaph, the recorder.

4 And Rabsaces said to them: Tell Ezechias: Thus saith the great king, the king of the Assyrians: What is this confidence wherein thou trustest?

5 Or with what counsel or strength dost thou prepare for war? on whom dost thou trust, that thou art revolted from me?

6 Lo, thou trusteth upon this broken staff of a reed, upon Egypt: upon which, if a man lean, it will go into his hand, and pierce it: so is Pharaoh, king of Egypt, to all that trust in him.

7 But if thou wilt answer me: We trust in the Lord our God: is it not he whose high places and altars Ezechias hath taken away, and hath said to Juda and Jerusalem: You shall worship before this altar?

8 And now deliver thyself up to my lord, the king of the Assyrians, and I will give thee two thousand horses, and thou wilt not be able, on thy part, to find riders for them.

9 And how wilt thou stand against the face of the judge of one place, of the least of my master's servants? But if thou trust in Egypt, in chariots and in horsemen:

10 And am I now come up without the Lord, against this land to destroy it? The Lord said to me: Go up against this land, and destroy it.

11 And Eliacim, and Sobna, and Joahe, said to Rabsaces: Speak to thy servants in the Syrian tongue: for we understand it: Speak not to us in the Jews' language, in the hearing of the people, that are upon the wall.

12 And Rabsaces said to them: Hath my master

changed into a beast, and destroyed all the children she could catch; and the Jews deal still more in fables, (C.) asserting that Lilith was the first wife of Adam, &c. Buxtorf. Syn. 2.

VER. 3. Erius. Heb. "kippos, (IL) hath its nest." It may denote the serpent, acrotias. Bochart.—All this shews the desolation of the country.

VER. 16. Read what I have written.—The other. All these beasts will be there, (C.) or all these declarations will be verified. H.

CHAP. XXXV. VER. 1. Lily. Judas flourishes under Ezechias: but the Church does more so after the coming of Christ, to whom these expressions conduct us. C.—The Gentiles shall be converted and flourish, as this text shews. W.

VER. 2. Joy. The primitive Christians rejoiced in a good conscience, and in suffering for the truth.

VER. 3. Knees. Ye prophets, comfort the people with these promises. C.—The apostles taught the Gentiles to do good. M.

VER. 4. Recompense. Christ will satisfy the justice of his Father. H.—He will redeem the world, and refute the false interpretations of the Bible. C.—He will bring the devil into subjection. M.

VER. 6. Free. Our Saviour healed both soul and body, (C.) shewing by his works (Jo. x. W.) that he had fulfilled this prediction. Lu. vii. 22. Mat. xi. 5.—Waters. Baptism has sanctified the most wicked.

VER. 7. Dragons. Sea monsters. C. xxxiv. 13. C. All shall be in proper order neither too dry nor too wet. H.

VER. 8. Way, leading to Jerusalem. Idolaters, &c. shall not be there. C. lii. 1. This was only verified (C.) in the Catholic Church, where, though some wicked may be found, the truth still prevails; and holiness can be obtained nowhere else. H.—This Church is unspotted. Eph. v. 27. C.—Idols. The most simple may learn what is necessary for salvation, (M.) which will never be done by consulting Scripture alone. H.

VER. 9. Lion. The devil's power shall be repressed, so that none will be deluded except by their own fault. M.

VER. 10. Sion. Before the defeat of Sennacherib, the roads were unsafe. C. xxxviii. 8. C.

CHAP. XXXVI. VER. 1. And. These four chapters are taken from 4 K. xviii. &c. as a sort of explanation of what Isaias had been foretelling. C.—An abridgment also occurs, 2 Par. xxxii.

VER. 7. Altar. Such is the blindness of infidels, that they confound what is done to destroy idols, with their worship. W.

sent me to thy master and to thee, to speak all these words; and not rather to the men that sit on the wall; that they may eat their own dung, and drink their urine with you?

13 Then Rabsaces stood, and cried out with a loud voice in the Jews' language, and said: Hear the words of the great king, the king of the Assyrians.

14 Thus saith the king: Let not Ezechias deceive you, for he shall not be able to deliver you.

15 And let not Ezechias make you trust in the Lord, saying: The Lord will surely deliver us, and this city shall not be given into the hands of the king of the Assyrians.

16 Do not hearken to Ezechias: for thus saith the king of the Assyrians: Do with me that which is for your advantage, and come out to me, and eat ye every one of his vine, and every one of his fig-tree, and drink ye every one the water of his cistern, 17 Till I come and take you away to a land, like to your own; a land of corn and of wine; a land of bread and vineyards.

18 Neither let Ezechias trouble you, saying: The Lord will deliver us. Have any of the gods of the nations delivered their land out of the hand of the king of the Assyrians?

19 Where is the god of Emath, and of Arphad? where is the god of Sepharvaim? have they delivered Samaria out of my hand?

20 Who is there among all the gods of these lands, that hath delivered his country out of my hand, that the Lord may deliver Jerusalem out of my hand?

21 *And they held their peace, and answered him not a word. For the king had commanded, saying: Answer him not.

22 And Eliacim, the son of Helcias, that was over the house, and Sobna, the scribe, and Joahe, the son of Asaph, the recorder, went into Ezechias, with their garments rent, and told him the words of Rabsaces.

CHAP. XXXVII.

Ezechias, his mourning and prayer. God's promise of protection. The Assyrian army is destroyed. Sennacherib is slain.

AND ^bit came to pass when king Ezechias had heard it, that he rent his garments, and covered himself with sackcloth, and went in to the house of the Lord.

2 And he sent Eliacim, who was over the house, and Sobna, the scribe, and the ancients of the priests, covered with sackcloth, to Isaias, the son of Amos, the prophet.

3 And they said to him: Thus saith Ezechias: This day is a day of tribulation, and of rebuke, and of blasphemy: for the children are come to the birth, and there is not strength to bring forth.

4 It may be the Lord thy God will hear the words of Rabsaces, whom the king of the Assyrians, his master, hath sent to blaspheme the living God, and to reproach with words which the Lord thy God hath heard: wherefore lift up thy prayer for the remnant that is left.

5 And the servants of Ezechias came to Isaias.

6 And Isaias said to them: Thus shall you say to your master: Thus saith the Lord: Be not afraid of the words that thou hast heard, with which the servants of the king of the Assyrians have blasphemed me.

7 Behold, I will send a spirit upon him, and he shall hear a message, and shall return to his own country, and I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own country.

8 And Rabsaces returned, and found the king of the Assyrians besieging Lobna. *For he had heard that he was departed from Lachis.

9 And he heard say about Tharaca, the king of Ethiopia: He is come forth to fight against thee. And when he heard it, he sent messengers to Ezechias, saying:

10 Thus shall you speak to Ezechias, the king of Juda, saying: Let not thy God deceive thee, in whom thou trustest, saying: Jerusalem shall not be given into the hands of the king of the Assyrians.

11 Behold, thou hast heard all that the kings of the Assyrians have done to all countries which they have destroyed, and canst thou be delivered?

12 Have the gods of the nations delivered them whom my fathers have destroyed, Gozam, and Haram, and Reseph, and the children of Eden, that were in Thalassar?

13 Where is the king of Emath, and the king of Arphad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim, of Ana, and of Ava? ^a 14 And Ezechias took the letter from the hand of the messengers, and read it, and went up to the house of the Lord, and Ezechias spread it before the Lord.

15 And Ezechias prayed to the Lord, saying:

16 O Lord of hosts, God of Israel, who sittest upon the Cherubims, thou alone art the God of all the kingdoms of the earth, thou hast made heaven and earth.

17 Incline, O Lord, thy ear, and hear: open, O Lord, thy eyes, and see, and hear all the words of Sennacherib, which he hath sent to blaspheme the living God.

18 For of a truth, O Lord, the kings of the Assyrians have laid waste lands, and their countries.

19 And they have cast their gods into the fire, for they were not gods, but the works of men's hands, of wood and stone: and they broke them in pieces.

20 And now, O Lord, our God, save us out of his hand: and let all the kingdoms of the earth know, that thou only art the Lord.

21 And Isaias, the son of Amos, sent to Ezechias, saying: Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel: For the prayer thou hast made to me concerning Sennacherib, the king of the Assyrians:

22 This is the word which the Lord hath spoken of him: The virgin, the daughter of Sion, hath despised

23 Whom hast thou reproached, and whom hast thou blasphemed, and against whom hast thou exalted thy voice, and lifted up thy eyes on high? Against the holy One of Israel.

24 By the hand of thy servants thou hast reproached the Lord: and hast said: With the multitude of my chariots I have gone up to the height of the mountains, to the top of Libanus: and I will cut down its tall cedars, and its choice fir-trees, and will enter to the top of its height, to the forest of its Carmel.

25 I have digged, and drunk water, and have dried up with the sole of my foot all the rivers shut up in banks.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

Ezechias being advertised that he shall die, obtains by prayer a prolongation of his life: in confirmation of which the sun goes back. The canticle of Ezechias.

IN ^b those days Ezechias was sick, even to death, and Isaia, the son of Amos, the prophet, came unto him, and said to him: Thus saith the Lord: Take order with thy house, for thou shalt die, and not live.

2 And Ezechias turned his face toward the wall, and prayed to the Lord,

3 And said: I beseech thee, O Lord, remember how I have walked before thee in truth, and with a perfect heart, and have done that which is good in thy sight. And Ezechias wept with great weeping.

4 And the word of the Lord came to Isaia, saying:

5 Go and say to Ezechias: Thus saith the Lord, the God of David, thy father: I have heard thy prayer, and I have seen thy tears: behold, I will add to thy days fifteen years:

6 And I will deliver thee and this city out of the hand of the king of the Assyrians, and I will protect it.

7 And this shall be a sign to thee from the Lord, that the Lord will do this word which he hath spoken:

8 * Behold, I will bring again the shadow of the lines, by which it is now gone down in the sun-dial of Achaz, with the sun, ten lines backward. And the sun returned ten lines by the degrees by which it was gone down.

10 I said: In the midst of my days I shall go to the gates of hell: I sought for the residue of my years.

11 I said: I shall not see the Lord God in the land of the living. I shall behold man no more, nor the inhabitant of rest.

12 My generation is at an end, and it is rolled away from me, as a shepherd's tent. My life is cut off, as by a weaver: whilst I was yet but beginning, he cut me off: from morning even to night thou wilt make an end of me.

13 I hoped till morning; as a lion so hath he broken all my bones: from morning even to night thou wilt make an end of me.

17 Behold in peace is my bitterness most bitter: but thou hast delivered my soul that it should not perish; thou hast cast all my sins behind thy back.

18 For hell shall not confess to thee, neither shall death praise thee: nor shall they that go down into the pit, look for thy truth.

19 The living, the living, he shall give praise to thee, as I do this day: the father shall make thy truth known to the children.

CHAP. XXXIX.

Ezechias shews all his treasures to the ambassadors of Babylon; upon which Isaiah foretells the Babylonish captivity.

AT that time Merodach Baladan, the son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters and presents to Ezechias: for he had heard that he had been sick, and was recovered.

2 And Ezechias rejoiced at their coming, and he shewed them the storehouse of his aromatical spices, and of the silver, and of the gold, and of the sweet odours, and of the precious ointment, and all the storehouses of his furniture, and all that were found in his treasures. There was nothing in his house, nor in all his dominion that Ezechias shewed them not.

3 Then Isaiah, the prophet, came to king Ezechias, and said to him: What said these men, and from whence came they to thee? And Ezechias said: From a far country they came to me, from Babylon.

4 And he said: What saw they in thy house? And Ezechias said: All things that are in my house have they seen; there was not any thing which I have not shewn them in my treasures.

5 And Isaiah said to Ezechias: Hear the word of the Lord of hosts.

6 Behold the days shall come, that all that is in thy house, and that thy fathers have laid up in store until this day, shall be carried away into Babylon: there shall not any thing be left, saith the Lord.

7 And of thy children, that shall issue from thee, whom thou shalt beget, they shall take away, and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.

8 And Ezechias said to Isaiah: The word of the Lord, which he hath spoken, is good. And he said: Only let peace and truth be in my days.

VER. 25. Sun. Cyrus had a Persian for his father, and a Mede for his mother; (942)

23 Shew the things that are to come hereafter, and we shall know that ye are gods. Do ye also good or evil, if you can: and let us speak, and see together.

24 Behold, you are of nothing, and your work of that which hath no being: he that hath chosen you is an abomination.

25 I have raised up one from the north, and he shall come from the rising of the sun: he shall call upon my name, and he shall make princes to be as dirt, and as the potter treading clay.

26 Who hath declared from the beginning, that we may know: and from time of old, that we may say: Thou art just. There is none that sheweth, nor that foretelleth, nor that heareth your words.

27 The first shall say to Sion: Behold, they are hear, and to Jerusalem, I will give an evangelist.

28 And I saw, and there was no one even among them to consult, or who, when I asked, could answer a word.

29 Behold, they are all in the wrong, and their works are vain: their idols are wind and vanity.

CHAP. XLII.

The office of Christ. The preaching of the gospel to the Gentiles. The blindness and reprobation of the Jews.

BEHOLD, ^amy servant, I will uphold him: my elect, my soul delighteth in him: I have given my spirit upon him, he shall bring forth judgment to the Gentiles.

2 He shall not cry, nor have respect to person, neither shall his voice be heard abroad.

3 The bruised reed he shall not break, and smoking flax he shall not quench: he shall bring forth judgment unto truth.

4 He shall not be sad, or troublesome, till he set judgment in the earth: and the islands shall wait for his law. ^b

5 Thus saith the Lord God, that created the heavens, and stretched them out; that established the earth, and the things that spring out of it; that giveth breath to the people upon it, and spirit to them that tread thereon.

6 I, the Lord, have called thee in justice, and taken thee by the hand, and preserved thee. ^b And I have given thee for a covenant of the people, for a light of the Gentiles:

7 That thou mightest open the eyes of the blind, and bring forth the prisoner out of prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison-house.

VER. 28. I. Isaias, (M.) or God, (H.) pronounces sentence against the speechless idols. M.

CHAP. XLII. VER. 1. My servant. Christ, who, according to his humanity, is the servant of God, (Ch.) and Redeemer of others; none else being able to satisfy for themselves. W. Phil. ii. 7. C.—This passage clearly refers to the Messiah, (Chal. Kimchi) who was prefigured by Cyrus. v. 6. C. Hugo.—It is quoted by S. Mat. (xii. 18.) who has some variations both from the Heb. and the Sept. (C.) particularly the first part of v. 4. which the Sept. render, “He shall shine, and shall not be broken.”

VER. 4. Islands. Sept. and S. Mat. “the Gentiles shall hope in his name.” H.

VER. 6. Gentiles. This was literally verified in Christ. Cyrus is also styled the just, (C. xli. 26.) and gave liberty to many nations.

VER. 7. House. The Jews out of captivity, prefiguring the redemption of mankind. These miracles proved that Jesus was the Messiah. Lu. vii. 34.

8 "I, the Lord, this is my name: I will not give my glory to another, nor my praise to graven things.

9 The things that were first, behold they are come: and new things do I declare: before they spring forth, I will make you hear them.

10 Sing ye to the Lord a new song, his praise is from the ends of the earth: you that go down to the sea, and all that are therein: ye islands, and ye inhabitants of them.

11 Let the desert and the cities thereof be exalted: Cedar shall dwell in houses: ye inhabitants of Petra, give praise, they shall cry from the top of the mountains.

12 They shall give glory to the Lord, and shall declare his praise in the islands.

13 The Lord shall go forth as a mighty man; as a man of war shall he stir up zeal: he shall shout and cry: he shall prevail against his enemies.

14 I have always held my peace, I have kept silence, I have been patient, I will speak now as a woman in labour. I will destroy, and swallow up at once.

15 I will lay waste the mountains and hills, and will make all their grass to wither: and I will turn rivers into islands, and will dry up the standing pools.

16 And I will lead the blind into the way which they know not: and in the paths which they were ignorant of I will make them walk: I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight: these things have I done to them, and have not forsaken them.

17 They are turned back: let them be greatly confounded, that trust in a graven thing, that say to a molten thing: You are our gods.

18 Hear ye deaf, and ye blind behold that you may see.

19 Who is blind, but my servant? or deaf, but he to whom I have sent my messengers? Who is blind, but he that is sold? or who is blind but the servant of the Lord?

20 Thou that seest many things, wilt thou not observe them? thou that hast ears open, wilt thou not hear?

21 And the Lord was willing to sanctify him, and to magnify the law, and exalt it.

22 But this is a people that is robbed and wasted:

they are all the snare of young men, and they are hid in the houses of prisons: they are made a prey, and there is none to deliver them: a spoil, and there is none that saith: Restore.

23 Who is there among you that will give ear to this, that will attend and hearken for times to come?

24 Who hath given Jacob for a spoil, and Israel to robbers? hath not the Lord himself, against whom we have sinned? And they would not walk in his ways, and they have not hearkened to his law.

25 And he hath poured out upon him the indignation of his fury, and a strong battle, and hath burnt him round about, and he knew not: and set him on fire, and he understood not.

CHAP. XLIII.

God comforts his Church, promising to protect her for ever: he expostulates with the Jews for their ingratitude.

AND now thus saith the Lord that created thee, O Jacob, and formed thee, O Israel: Fear not, for I have redeemed thee, and called thee by thy name: thou art mine.

2 When thou shalt pass through the waters, I will be with thee, and the rivers shall not cover thee: when thou shalt walk in the fire, thou shalt not be burnt, and the flames shall not burn in thee:

3 For I am the Lord thy God, the holy One of Israel, thy Saviour, I have given Egypt for thy atonement, Ethiopia, and Saba for thee.

4 Since thou becamest honourable in my eyes, thou art glorious: I have loved thee, and I will give men for thee, and people for thy life.

5 Fear not, for I am with thee: I will bring thy seed from the east, and gather thee from the west.

6 I will say to the north: Give up: and to the south, Keep not back: bring my sons from afar, and my daughters from the ends of the earth.

7 And every one that calleth upon my name, I have created him for my glory, I have formed him, and made him.

8 Bring forth the people that are blind, and have eyes: that are deaf, and have ears.

9 All the nations are assembled together, and the tribes are gathered: who among you can declare this, and shall make us hear the former things? let them bring forth their witnesses, let them be justified, and hear, and say: It is truth.

11 ^aI am, I am the Lord: and there is no Saviour besides me.

12 I have declared, and have saved: I have made it heard, and there was no strange one among you. You are my witnesses, saith the Lord, and I am God.

13 And from the beginning I am the same, and there is none that can deliver out of my hand: I will work, and who shall turn it away?

14 Thus saith the Lord, your Redeemer, the holy One of Israel: For your sake I sent to Babylon, and have brought down all their bars, and the Chaldeans glorying in their ships.

15 I am the Lord, your holy One, the Creator of Israel, your king.

16 Thus saith the Lord, who made a way in the sea, and a path in the mighty waters.

17 Who brought forth the chariot and the horse, the army and the strong: they lay down to sleep together, and they shall not rise again: they are broken as flax, and are extinct.

18 Remember not former things, and look not on things of old.

19 ^bBehold, I do new things, and now they shall spring forth; verily you shall know them: I will make a way in the wilderness, and rivers in the desert.

20 The beast of the field shall glorify me, the dragons and the ostriches: because I have given waters in the wilderness: rivers in the desert, to give drink to my people, to my chosen.

21 This people have I formed for myself: they shall shew forth my praise.

22 But thou hast not called upon me, O Jacob, neither hast thou laboured about me, O Israel.

23 Thou hast not offered me the ram of thy holocaust, nor hast thou glorified me with thy victims: I have not caused thee to serve with oblations, nor wearied thee with incense.

24 Thou hast bought me no sweet cane with money, neither hast thou filled me with the fat of thy victims. But thou hast made me to serve with thy sins, thou hast wearied me with thy iniquities.

26 Put me in remembrance, and let us plead together: tell, if thou hast any thing to justify thyself.

27 Thy first father sinned, and thy teachers have transgressed against me.

28 And I have profaned the holy princes, I have given Jacob to slaughter, and Israel to reproach.

CHAP. XLIV.

God's favour to his Church. The folly of idolatry. The people shall be delivered from captivity.

AND now hear, O Jacob, my servant, and Israel, whom I have chosen.

2 Thus saith the Lord, that made and formed thee, thy helper from the womb: Fear not, O my servant, Jacob, and thou most righteous, whom I have chosen.

3 For I will pour out waters upon the thirsty ground, and streams upon the dry land: I will pour out my spirit upon thy seed, and my blessing upon thy stock.

4 And they shall spring up among the herbs, as willows beside the running waters.

5 One shall say: I am the Lord's, and another shall call himself by the name of Jacob, and another shall subscribe with his hand, To the Lord, and surname himself by the name of Israel.

6 Thus saith the Lord, the king of Israel, and his Redeemer, the Lord of hosts: ^aI am the first, and I am the last, and besides me there is no God.

7 Who is like to me? let him call and declare: and let him set before me the order, since I appointed the ancient people: and the things to come, and that shall be hereafter, let them shew unto them.

8 Fear ye not, neither be ye troubled, from that time I have made thee to hear, and have declared: you are my witnesses. Is there a God besides me, a Maker, whom I have not known?

9 The makers of idols are all of them nothing; and their best beloved things shall not profit them. They are their witnesses, that they do not see, nor understand, that they may be ashamed.

10 Who hath formed a god, and made a graven thing that is profitable for nothing?

14 He hath cut down cedars, taken the holm, and the oak that stood among the trees of the forest: he hath planted the pine-tree, which the rain hath nourished.

15 And it hath served men for fuel: he took thereof, and warmed himself: and he kindled it, and baked bread: but of the rest he made a god, and adored it: he made a graven thing, and bowed down before it.

16 Part of it he burnt with fire, and with part of it he dressed his meat: he boiled pottage, and was filled, and was warmed, and said: Aha, I am warm, I have seen the fire.

17 But the residue thereof he made a god, and a graven thing for himself: he boweth down before it, and adoreth it, and prayeth unto it, saying: Deliver me, for thou art my god.

20 Part thereof is ashes: his foolish heart adoreth it, and he will not save his soul, nor say: Perhaps there is a lie in my right hand.

21 Remember these things, O Jacob, and Israel, for thou art my servant. I have formed thee, thou art my servant, O Israel, forget me not.

CHAP. XLV.

A prophecy of Cyrus, as a figure of Christ, the great deliverer of God's people.

THUS saith the Lord, to my anointed Cyrus, whose right hand I have taken hold of, to subdue nations before his face, and to turn the backs of kings, and to open the doors before him, and the gates shall not be shut.

2 I will go before thee, and will humble the great ones of the earth: I will break in pieces the gates of brass, and will burst the bars of iron.

3 And I will give thee hidden treasures, and the concealed riches of secret places: that thou mayst know that I am the Lord who called thee by thy name, the God of Israel.

4 For the sake of my servant Jacob, and Israel my elect, I have even called thee by thy name: I have made a likeness of thee, and thou hast not known me.

5 I am the Lord, and there is none else: there is no God besides me: I girded thee, and thou hast not known me:

6 That they may know who are from the rising of the sun, and they who are from the west, that there is none besides me. I am the Lord, and there is none else.

7 I form the light, and create darkness; I make —The title of shepherd is given to Agamemnon by Homer, and it denotes a good prince, such as historians represent Cyrus to have been. He observed that kings and shepherds had the like duties to perform; (Xenoph. viii.) and after his death he was bewailed as a "father." Herod. iii. 89.—At first he did not bear the name of Cyrus, (Herod. i. 113.) which in the Persian language means "the sun." Ctesias. Plut.

CHAP. XLV. VER. 1. Anointed, often implies one chosen for some great work. Cyrus was to ruin the empire of Babylon, and to set the nations at liberty. He was a proof of the Deity by executing his decrees.—Cyrus. Some copies of the Sept. seem to have read κύριος, "to the Lord," incorrectly. S. VER. 4. Likeness of Christ.—Known me. Before the Jews had shewn Cyrus the prophecies, he did not attribute his success to the Lord, and even afterwards he seems not to have left the superstitions of his country, as his sacrifices to idols are described. He resembled Nabuchodonosor and the philosophers, who did not glorify God according to their knowledge. Dan. ii. 47. Rom. i. 21. Cyrus even revoked the decree for building the temple. 1 Esd. iv. 5. peace, and create evil: I, the Lord, that do all these things.

8 Drop down dew, ye heavens, from above, and let the clouds rain the just: let the earth be opened, and bud forth a Saviour; and let justice spring up together: I, the Lord, have created him.

9 "Woe to him that gainsayeth his Maker, a sherd of the earthen pots: shall the clay say to him that fashioneth it: What art thou making, and thy work is without hands?

10 Woe to him that saith to his father: Why begettest thou: and to the woman: Why dost thou bring forth?

11 Thus saith the Lord, the holy One of Israel, his Maker: Ask me of things to come concerning my children, and concerning the work of my hands give ye charge to me.

12 I made the earth: and I created man upon it: my hand stretched forth the heavens, and I have commanded all their host.

13 I have raised him up to justice, and I will direct all his ways: he shall build my city, and let go my captives, not for ransom, nor for presents, saith the Lord, the God of hosts.

14 Thus saith the Lord: The labour of Egypt, and the merchandise of Ethiopia, and of Sabaim, men of stature shall come over to thee, and shall be thine: they shall walk after thee, they shall go bound with manacles: and they shall worship thee, and shall make supplication to thee: only in thee is God, and there is no God besides thee.

15 Verily, thou art a hidden God, the God of Israel, the Saviour.

16 They are all confounded and ashamed: the forgers of errors are gone together into confusion.

17 Israel is saved in the Lord with an eternal salvation: you shall not be confounded, and you shall not be ashamed for ever and ever.

18 For thus saith the Lord, that created the heavens, God himself, that formed the earth, and made it, the very maker thereof: he did not create it in vain: he formed it to be inhabited. I am the Lord, and there is no other.

19 I have not spoken in secret, in a dark place of the earth: I have not said to the seed of Jacob: Seek me in vain. I am the Lord, that speak justice, that declare right things.

20 Assemble yourselves, and come, and draw near together, ye that are saved of the Gentiles: they have no knowledge that set up the wood of their graven work, and pray to a god that cannot save.

21 Tell ye, and come, and consult together: who hath declared this from the beginning, who hath foretold this from that time? Have not I, the Lord, and there is no God else besides me? A just God, and a Saviour, there is none besides me.

22 Be converted to me, and you shall be saved, all ye ends of the earth, for I am God, and there is no other.

23 I have sworn by myself, the word of justice shall go out of my mouth, and shall not return:

24 ^bFor every knee shall be bowed to me, and every tongue shall swear.

25 Therefore shall he say: In the Lord are my justices and empire: they shall come to him, and all that resist him shall be confounded.

VER. 10. Forth. As such language would be improper to parents, so it is wrong to complain that God places us in any situation. M.

VER. 11. To me. Ask what will come to pass, or direct me how to act.

VER. 13. Justice. Cyrus shall punish the Chaldees and restore the Jews. C.—The prophet returns to him after having mentioned a greater Saviour. v. 8. Houbig.

VER. 14. Stature: the people of Saba were the tallest and best proportioned in Arabia. Agathar. v. 50.—Cyrus possessed all these countries. He sent the Egyptians home in the third year of his reign, at Babylon, A. 3470. Ezech. xxix. 11. They never became subject to the Jews; but embraced the religion of Christ, acknowledging him for God. v. 15. C.—Besides thee. Prot. "surely God is in thee, and there is none else, there is no God." Those whom we have hitherto adored, deserve not the name. Vulg. and Sept. make the people address Christ, the God-man. H.

VER. 15. Saviour. We confess that thou hast delivered the Jews, or rather, we acknowledge that thou, O Christ, art true God under the veils of thy human nature, and Saviour of all. Cyrus was only a feeble representation of thee.

VER. 16. Confusion. Idolaters shall be confounded, when they shall behold the glory of the elect.

VER. 18. In vain. Heb. "to be a chaos." Gen. viii. 2.

VER. 19. Earth. The pagan oracles were given chiefly in mountains, where the impostures of the priests might escape detection. They were also generally ambiguous, or mere guesses. The declarations of the true prophets were quite the reverse.—In vain; without reward. C.

VER. 20. Gentiles: converts, (I.) or Jews, returning from Babylon.

VER. 21. Me. He transports his auditors to the times succeeding the captivity, when the completion of the prophecies will be evident.

VER. 23-24. Myself, having none greater. Heb. vi. 13. Justice: sure.—To me. All that are born belong to me. The Jewish women had seldom recourse to midwives, (Ex. i. 19. and 1 K. iv. 19. C.) no more than the Ethiopians. Ludolf i. 14.—Swear, by the true God. H.—Oaths on proper occasions, honour him. Deut. vi. 13. Nothing could be spoken more plainly of the Gentiles' conversion.

VER. 25. Empire. Cyrus shall make this confession, (1 Esd. i. 2.) and all who embrace the religion of Christ, shall attribute all their virtue to him.

CHAP. XLVI. VER. 1. Bel; perhaps Nimrod, (C.) or Saturn, to whom they sacrificed their children. W.—Nabo, "the oracle" of Belus, The Chaldees adored statues and beasts. But the Persians worshipped the elements. C.—Xerxes destroyed the tomb of Belus, after his expedition into Greece. Arrian vii. He had there demolished the temples, (Herod. viii. 109.) pretending (I.) that "the world is the house of the gods." Cic. Leg. ii.—Weariness. The priests affected to be weighed down, as if the god were present. Bar. vi. 25. S. Cyr.

VER. 2. They. Lit. "their soul." H.—The pagans must have supposed they had one. C.—Captivity. "There are as many triumphs over the gods as over men." Tert.—The former shared the fate of their adorers. Their statues were plundered.

VER. 3. By my. Vulg. may have read a me ab, (C.) instead of a meo. Heb.

grey hairs I will carry you: I have made you, and I will bear: I will carry, and will save.

6 You that contribute gold out of the bag, and weigh out silver in the scales: and hire a goldsmith to make a god: and they fall down and worship.

7 *They bear him on their shoulders and carry him, and set him in his place, and he shall stand, and shall not stir out of his place. Yea, when they shall cry also unto him, he shall not hear: he shall not save them from tribulation.

8 Remember this, and be ashamed: return, ye transgressors, to the heart.

9 Remember the former age, for I am God, and there is no God beside, neither is there the like to me:

10 Who shew from the beginning the things that shall be at last, and from ancient times the things that as yet are not done, saying: My counsel shall stand, and all my will shall be done:

11 Who call a bird from the east, and from a far country the man of my own will, and I have spoken, and will bring it to pass: I have created, and I will do it. Hear me, O ye hard-hearted, who are far from justice.

12 I have brought my justice near, it shall not be far off: and my salvation shall not tarry. I will give salvation in Sion, and my glory in Israel.

CHAP. XLVII.

God's judgment upon Babylon.

COME down, sit in the dust, O virgin, daughter of Babylon, sit on the ground: there is no throne for the daughter of the Chaldeans, for thou shalt no more be called delicate and tender.

2 Take a mill-stone and grind meal: uncover thy shame, strip thy shoulder, make bare thy legs, pass over the rivers.

3 *Thy nakedness shall be discovered, and thy shame shall be seen: I will take vengeance, and no man shall resist me.

4 Our Redeemer, the Lord of hosts is his name, the holy One of Israel.

5 Sit thou silent, and get thee into darkness, O daughter of the Chaldeans: for thou shalt no more be called the lady of kingdoms.

6 I was angry with my people, I have polluted my inheritance, and have given them into thy hand: thou hast shewn no mercy to them: upon the ancient thou hast laid thy yoke exceedingly heavy.

and Sept. "taken from the womb," (H.) and treated with the utmost tenderness. C.

VER. 8. Ashamed. Sept. "groan." Prot. "shew yourselves men." H.
VER. 11. Bird: Cyrus, whose rapid conquests are thus denoted. C.—He chose a golden eagle, with wings expanded, for his standard. Xen. vii.—Christ came from heaven to redeem the world. Ps. xviii. 6. Mal. iv. 2. C.—He was the orient, adored by the eastern sages, to whom the prophet refers. S. Jer. W.

VER. 12. Israel. It shall no longer be a reproach. Cyrus shall restore my people to their own country. But Christ more fully accomplished what is here declared respecting the establishment of his Church. C.

CHAP. XLVII. VER. 1. Virgin: delicate. M.—Cyrus overthrew this empire, (C.) which now felt its share of misery. W.

VER. 2. Shame. Heb. tsammalheh. Cant. iv. 1. 4. Prot. "thy locks, make bare the legs, uncover the thigh, pass," &c. H.—Thou shalt be reduced to a state of the most abject slavery. Ex. xi. 5. Sup. iii. 17. and xx. 4. The Barbarians sold their slaves naked.

7 And thou hast said: I shall be a lady for ever: thou hast not laid these things to thy heart, neither hast thou remembered thy latter end.

8 And now hear these things, thou that art delicate, and dwellest confidently, that sayest in thy heart: *I am, and there is none else besides me: I shall not sit as a widow, and I shall not know barrenness.

9 *These two things shall come upon thee suddenly in one day, barrenness and widowhood. All things are come upon thee, because of the multitude of thy sorceries, and for the great hardness of thy enchanters.

10 And thou hast trusted in thy wickedness, and hast said: There is none that seeth me. Thy wisdom, and thy knowledge, this hath deceived thee. And thou hast said in thy heart: I am, and besides me there is no other.

11 Evil shall come upon thee, and thou shalt not know the rising thereof: and calamity shall fall violently upon thee, which thou canst not keep off: misery shall come upon thee suddenly, which thou shalt not know.

12 Stand now with thy enchanters, and with the multitude of thy sorceries, in which thou hast laboured from thy youth, if so be it may profit thee any thing, or if thou mayst become stronger.

13 Thou hast failed in the multitude of thy counsels: let now the astrologers stand and save thee, they that gazed at the stars, and counted the months, that from them they might tell the things that shall come to thee.

14 Behold, they are as stubble, fire hath burnt them, they shall not deliver themselves from the power of the flames: there are no coals wherewith they may be warmed, nor fire, that they may sit thereat.

15 Such are all the things become to thee, in which thou hast laboured: thy merchants, from thy youth, every one hath erred in his own way, there is none that can save thee.

CHAP. XLVIII.

He reproaches the Jews for their obstinacy: he will deliver them out of their captivity, for his own name's sake.

HEAR ye these things, O house of Jacob, you that are called by the name of Israel, and are come forth out of the waters of Juda, you who swear by the name of the Lord, and make mention of the God of Israel, but not in truth, nor in justice.

2 For they are called of the holy city, and are established upon the God of Israel: the Lord of hosts is his name.

VER. 7. Lady. Pride goes before ruin. Prov. xvi. 18.

VER. 9. Two. The empire and the people shall be removed at once.—Enchanters: princes or magicians, who gave them evil counsel. v. 12.

VER. 11. Know. All this shews the vanity of magic, which cannot announce future events to do any good. C.

VER. 13. Months, to tell which would prove lucky. Est. iii. 7.

VER. 14. Thereat, to warm themselves, (H.) or to adore. C.—In Cappadocia are to be seen "Pyraethia, . . in which the magi keep a perpetual fire, and sing hymns about the space of an hour." Strabo xv.—These were a sort of open temples. C.

VER. 15. Merchants. The city was well situated for trade. C. xiii. 20. Diod. ii.

CHAP. XLVIII. VER. 1. Waters: people, (Apoc. xvii. 15. H.) or from the (947) they went forth out of my mouth, and I have made them to be heard: I did them suddenly, and they came to pass.

4 For I knew that thou art stubborn, and thy neck is an iron sinew, and thy forehead of brass.

5 I foretold thee of old: before they came to pass I told thee, lest thou shouldst say: My idols have done these things, and my graven and molten things have commanded them.

6 See now all the things which thou hast heard: but have you declared them? I have shewn thee new things from that time, and things are kept which thou knowest not:

7 They are created now, and not of old: and before the day, when thou heardest them not, lest thou shouldst say: Behold, I knew them.

8 Thou hast neither heard, nor known, neither was thy ear opened of old. For I know that transgressing thou wilt transgress, and I have called thee a transgressor from the womb.

9 For my name's sake I will remove my wrath far off: and for my praise I will bridle thee, lest thou shouldst perish.

10 Behold, I have refined thee, but not as silver; I have chosen thee in the furnace of poverty.

11 For my own sake, for my own sake will I do it, that I may not be blasphemed: and I will not give my glory to another.

12 Hearken to me, O Jacob, and thou Israel, whom I call: ^bI am he, I am the first, and I am the last.

13 My hand also hath founded the earth, and my right hand hath measured the heavens: I shall call them, and they shall stand together.

14 Assemble yourselves together, all you, and hear: who among them hath declared these things? the Lord hath loved him, he will do his pleasure in Babylon, and his arm shall be on the Chaldeans.

15 I, even I, have spoken, and called him: I have brought him, and his way is made prosperous.

16 Come ye near unto me, and hear this: I have not spoken in secret from the beginning: from the time before it was done, I was there, and now the Lord God hath sent me, and his spirit.

VER. 3. Suddenly, when there was no human appearance of the event, as when I foretold the exploits of Cyrus and the ruin of Babylon so long before.

VER. 4. Brass; unblushing. Jer. iii. 8. C.—Os tuum ferreum. Cic. c. Piso.

VER. 6. Them. Could you have believed them?—Knowest not. He upbraids their ignorance and indolence.

VER. 7. Knew. Therefore I did not speak of the liberation from Egypt, but from Babylon, which is represented as just taking place. C.

VER. 8. Opened; doiled, (Theod.) or acquainted with these things. Isaias first made known the captivity of Babylon, and its end; and he insists so much, that people may discern the truth of his predictions, and of religion. No atheist can, with a good conscience, hold out against his arguments. C. xl. &c.

VER. 9. Bridle thee, like a headstrong beast, (C.) running to its own ruin. H.—God pardons freely, that people may be saved if they will. W.

VER. 14. Things, as I have done respecting Cyrus! (S. Cyr. &c.) who was a figure of Christ. v. 15.

VER. 16. Spirit. The Fathers here find the three Persons of the blessed Trinity specified. Isaias was not from the beginning, though the text may also speak of him (C.) as he spoke long before the event, by divine inspiration. Chal. S. Jer.

17 Thus saith the Lord, thy Redeemer, the holy One of Israel: I am the Lord thy God, that teach thee profitable things, that govern thee in the way that thou walkest.

18 O that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments: thy peace had been as a river, and thy justice as the waves of the sea,

19 And thy seed had been as the sand, and the offspring of thy bowels like the gravel thereof: his name should not have perished, nor have been destroyed from before my face:

20 *Come forth out of Babylon, flee ye from the Chaldeans, declare it with the voice of joy: make this to be heard, and speak it out even to the ends of the earth. Say: The Lord hath redeemed his servant Jacob.

21 They thirsted not in the desert, when he led them out: ^ahe brought forth water out of the rock for them, and he clove the rock, and the waters gushed out.

22 *There is no peace to the wicked, saith the Lord.

CHAP. XLIX.

Christ shall bring the Gentiles to salvation. God's love to his Church is perpetual.

GIVE ear, ye islands, and hearken, ye people from afar. The Lord hath called me from the womb; from the bowels of my mother he hath been mindful of my name.

2 *And he hath made my mouth like a sharp sword: in the shadow of his hand he hath protected me, and hath made me as a chosen arrow: in his quiver he hath hidden me.

3 And he said to me: Thou art my servant, Israel, for in thee will I glory.

4 And I said: I have laboured in vain, I have spent my strength without cause and in vain: therefore my judgment is with the Lord, and my work with my God.

5 And now saith the Lord, that formed me from the womb to be his servant, that I may bring back Jacob unto him, and Israel will not be gathered together: and I am glorified in the eyes of the Lord, and my God is made my strength.

6 And he said: It is a small thing that thou shouldst be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to convert the dregs of Israel. ^aBehold, I have given

VER. 19. Name. The Jews were not forgotten, till they had rejected the Messias.

VER. 21. Out. Their return was facilitated. This may easily be applied (C.) to the conversion of the Gentiles. S. Jer.

VER. 22. Peace. Sept. "rejoicing," or prosperity for the Chaldees or wicked Jews. v. 18. C.—It is promised only to the penitent. W.

CHAP. XLIX. VER. 1. Give. This fresh discourse continues to C. lvi. 9 relating to the Messias, who is introduced speaking to all the world. Acts xiii. 47. and 2 Cor. vi. 2. Some apply a part to Cyrus, Isaias, or the Baptist, as to his figures. C.—The prophet has foretold the conversion of the Gentiles, as he now does, like an evangelist. S. Jer.—Many Jews will embrace the gospel at the end of time. W.

VER. 2. Sword, penetrating the very soul, (Heb. iv. 12.) and slaying the wicked. Apoc. i. 16. and 2 Thess. ii. 8. Without Christ, his ministers can apply this sword to little purpose. Cyrus cut asunder the bonds of the captives by his decree. C.—Grotius improperly explains all of Isaias. Houbigant.

VER. 3. Glory. In the Church, God is adored in spirit and truth. Isaias is ordered thus to address the Israelites.

VER. 4. God. He will reward the labours of his ministers, though the people be obstinate. The prophets and our Saviour frequently complain. C. lrv. 2. Mar. ix. 18.

VER. 5. Will not. Heb. Sept. &c. "to be gathered." H.—The original text, independent of the Masorets, may have the sense of the Vulg. Yet there are other proofs of the synagogue's rejection. C.—Prot. "though Israel be not gathered, yet," &c. Margin, or "that Israel may be gathered, and I may," &c. H.

thee to be the light of the Gentiles, that thou mayst be my salvation even to the farthest part of the earth.

7 Thus saith the Lord, the Redeemer of Israel, his holy One, to the soul that is despised, to the nation that is abhorred, to the servant of rulers: Kings shall see, and princes shall rise up, and adore, for the Lord's sake, because he is faithful, and for the holy One of Israel, who hath chosen thee.

8 Thus saith the Lord: *In an acceptable time I have heard thee, and in the day of salvation I have helped thee: and I have preserved thee, and given thee to be a covenant of the people, that thou mightest raise up the earth, and possess the inheritances that were destroyed:

9 That thou mightest say to them that are bound: Come forth: and to them that are in darkness: Shew yourselves. They shall feed in the ways, and their pastures shall be in every plain.

10 ^bThey shall not hunger, nor thirst, neither shall the heat nor the sun strike them: for he that is merciful to them, shall be their shepherd, and at the fountains of waters he shall give them drink.

11 And I will make all my mountains a way, and my paths shall be exalted.

12 Behold, these shall come from afar, and behold these from the north and from the sea, and these from the south country.

13 Give praise, O ye heavens, and rejoice, O earth; ye mountains, give praise with jubilation: because the Lord hath comforted his people, and will have mercy on his poor ones.

14 And Sion said: The Lord hath forsaken me, and the Lord hath forgotten me.

15 Can a woman forget her infant, so as not to have pity on the son of her womb? and if she should forget, yet will not I forget thee.

16 Behold, I have graven thee in my hands: *thy walls are always before my eyes.

17 Thy builders are come: they that destroy thee, and make thee waste, shall go out of thee.

18 ^dLift up thy eyes round about, and see all these are gathered together, they are come to thee: as I live, saith the Lord, thou shalt be clothed with all these as with an ornament, and as a bride thou shalt put them about thee.

19 For thy deserts, and thy desolate places, and the land of thy destruction shall now be too narrow by reason of the inhabitants, and they that swallowed thee up shall be chased far away.

20 The children of thy barrenness shall still say in thy ears: The place is too strait for me, make me room to dwell in.

21 And thou shalt say in thy heart: Who hath begotten these? I was barren, and brought not forth, led away, and captive: and who hath brought up these? I was destitute and alone: and these where were they?

22 Thus saith the Lord God: Behold I will lift up my hand to the Gentiles, and will set up my standard to the people. And they shall bring thy sons in their arms, and carry thy daughters upon their shoulders.

23 And kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and queens thy nurses: they shall worship thee with their face toward the earth, and they shall lick up the dust of thy feet. *And thou shalt know that I am the Lord, for they shall not be confounded that wait for him.

24 Shall the prey be taken from the strong? or can that which was taken by the mighty be delivered?

25 For thus saith the Lord: Yea verily, even the captivity shall be taken away from the strong: and that which was taken by the mighty, shall be delivered. But I will judge those that have judged thee, and thy children I will save.

26 And I will feed thy enemies with their own flesh: and they shall be made drunk with their own blood, as with new wine: and all flesh shall know, that I am the Lord that save thee, and thy Redeemer, the mighty One of Jacob.

CHAP. L.

The synagogue shall be divorced for her iniquities. Christ, for her sake, will endure ignominious afflictions.

THUS saith the Lord: What is this bill of the divorce of your mother, with which I have put her away? or who is my creditor, to whom I have sold you: behold, you are sold for your iniquities, and for your wicked deeds have I put your mother away.

2 Because I came, and there was not a man: I called, and there was none that would hear. 'Is my hand shortened and become little, that I cannot redeem? or is there no strength in me to deliver? Behold, at my rebuke, I will make the sea a desert, I will turn the rivers into dry land: the fishes shall rot for want of water, and shall die for thirst.

CHAP. L. VER. 1. Away. Such a one could not be received again, if she had taken another husband. Dout. xxiv. 3. Some explain this of the captives. But God restored them to favour. It seems rather to relate to the reprobation (C.) of the synagogue, which will never again become the true Church, (H.) though many of Israel will be converted. Rom. xi. 25.—Sold you, as a father might do. Ex. xxi. 1. Mat. xviii. 15. S. Ambrose (Tob. viii.) inveighs against such cruel parents, as the Christian religion had not then entirely repressed this inhumanity. C.—God rejected the synagogue, not out of hard-heartedness or want, but because of her sins. W.

VER. 2. Hear. My spouse had gone after other lovers. The people refused to hear the prophets; and the priests were become as corrupt as the rest, when the city was taken by the Chaldees and by the Romans. C.—Sea. Babylon. C. xxi. H.—I could work the same miracles, as I did when Israel came out of Egypt.

3 I will clothe the heavens with darkness, and will make sackcloth their covering.

4 The Lord hath given me a learned tongue, that I should know how to uphold by word him that is weary: he wakeneth in the morning, in the morning he wakeneth my ear, that I may hear him as a master.

5 The Lord God hath opened my ear, and I do not resist: I have not gone back.

6 "I have given my body to the strikers, and my cheeks to them that plucked them: I have not turned away my face from them that rebuked me, and spit upon me.

7 The Lord God is my helper, therefore am I not confounded: therefore have I set my face as a most hard rock, and I know that I shall not be confounded.

8 "He is near that justifieth me, who will contend with me? let us stand together, who is my adversary? let him come near to me.

9 Behold, the Lord God is my helper: who is he that shall condemn me? Lo, they shall all be destroyed as a garment, the moth shall eat them up.

10 Who is there among you that feareth the Lord, that heareth the voice of his servant, that hath walked in darkness, and hath no light? let him hope in the name of the Lord, and lean upon his God.

11 Behold, all you that kindle a fire, encompassed with flames, walk in the light of your fire, and in the flames which you have kindled: this is done to you by my hand, you shall sleep in sorrows.

CHAP. LI.

An exhortation to trust in Christ. He shall protect the children of his Church.

GIVE ear to me, you that follow that which is just, and you that seek the Lord: look unto the rock whence you are hewn, and to the hole of the pit from which you are dug out.

2 Look unto Abraham, your father, and to Sara, that bore you: for I called him alone, and blessed him, and multiplied him.

3 The Lord therefore will comfort Sion, and will comfort all the ruins thereof: and he will make her desert as a place of pleasure, and her wilderness as the garden of the Lord. Joy and gladness shall be found therein, thanksgiving and the voice of praise.

4 Harken unto me, O my people, and give ear to me, O my tribes: "for a law shall go forth from me, and my judgment shall rest to be a light of the nations.

5 My just one is near at hand, my Saviour is gone forth, and my arm shall judge the people: the islands shall look for me, and shall patiently wait for my arm.

9 Arise, arise, put on strength, O thou arm of the Lord: arise, as in the days of old, in the ancient generations. Hast not thou struck the proud one, and wounded the dragon?

10 "Hast not thou dried up the sea, the water of the mighty deep, who madest the depth of the sea a way, that the delivered might pass over?

11 And now they that are redeemed by the Lord, shall return, and shall come into Sion singing praises, and joy everlasting shall be upon their heads, they shall obtain joy, and gladness, sorrow and mourning shall flee away.

12 I, I myself will comfort you: who art thou, that thou shouldst be afraid of a mortal man, and of the son of man, who shall wither away like grass?

13 And thou hast forgotten the Lord, thy Maker, who stretched out the heavens, and founded the earth: and thou hast been afraid continually, all the day, at the presence of his fury who afflicted thee, and had prepared himself to destroy thee: where is now the fury of the oppressor?

14 He shall quickly come that is going to open unto you, and he shall not kill unto utter destruction, neither shall his bread fail.

15 But I am the Lord thy God, who trouble the sea, and the waves thereof swell: the Lord of hosts is my name.

16 "I have put my words in thy mouth, and have protected thee in the shadow of my hand, that thou mightest plant the heavens, and found the earth: and mightest say to Sion: Thou art my people barren. I can surely save you likewise. C.—The example of these great progenitors is set before the Jews. Thus S. Paul says: Remember your prelates Heb. xiii. W.

VER. 4. Nations. This was verified when the Bible was translated into Greek, and still more by the preaching of the gospel.

VER. 5. Just. Christ, prefigured by Cyrus, whose empire was very mild. C. xlv. 28.

VER. 6. Fail. Mat. xxiv. 35. The prosperity of the Jews was not of long duration. But the Church will remain till the end of time.

VER. 9. Proud. Heb. "Rahab," Pharo, king of Egypt. Job xxvi. 12. Eze. xxix. 3. C.—God drowned in the water, which had retired for Israel. He will thus destroy the devil. W.

VER. 13. Oppressor. If thou hadst not abandoned God, thou wouldst have had no reason to fear Nabuchodonosor; and his power is now gone.

VER. 14. Fail. Cyrus shall quickly restore the Jews to their country. He shall not lay waste the provinces, like many conquerors.

18 There is none that can uphold her among all the children that she hath brought forth: and there is none that taketh her by the hand among all the children that she hath brought up.

19 *There are two things that have happened to thee? who shall be sorry for thee? desolation and destruction, and the famine, and the sword, who shall comfort thee?

20 Thy children are cast forth, they have slept at the head of all the ways, as the wild ox that is snared: full of the indignation of the Lord, of the rebuke of thy God.

21 Therefore hear this, thou poor little one, and thou that art drunk, but not with wine.

22 Thus saith thy Sovereign, the Lord, and thy God, who will fight for his people: Behold, I have taken out of thy hand the cup of dead sleep, the dregs of the cup of my indignation, thou shalt not drink it again any more.

23 And I will put it in the hand of them that have oppressed thee, and have said to thy soul: Bow down, that we may go over: and thou hast laid thy body as the ground, and as a way to them that went over.

CHAP. LII.

Under the figure of the deliverance from the Babylonish captivity, the Church is invited to rejoice for her redemption from sin. Christ's kingdom shall be exalted.

ARISE, arise, put on thy strength, O Sion, put on the garments of thy glory, O Jerusalem, the city of the holy One: for henceforth the uncircumcised, and the unclean, shall no more pass through thee.

2 Shake thyself from the dust, arise, sit up, O Jerusalem: loose the bonds from off thy neck, O captive daughter of Sion.

3 For thus saith the Lord: You were sold gratis, and you shall be redeemed without money.

4 For thus saith the Lord God: *My people went down into Egypt at the beginning to sojourn there: and the Assyrian hath oppressed them without any cause at all.

5 And now, what have I here, saith the Lord: for my people is taken away gratis? They that rule over them, treat them unjustly, saith the Lord, *and my name is continually blasphemed all the day long.

6 Therefore my people shall know my name in that day: for I myself that spoke, behold, I am here.

7 *How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, and that preacheth peace: of him that sheweth forth good, that preacheth salvation, that saith to Sion: Thy God shall reign.

8 The voice of thy watchmen: they have lifted up their voice, they shall praise together: for they shall see eye to eye when the Lord shall convert Sion.

9 Rejoice, and give praise together, O ye deserts of Jerusalem: for the Lord hath comforted his people: he hath redeemed Jerusalem.

10 The Lord hath prepared his holy arm in the sight of all the Gentiles: *and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God.

11 Depart, depart, go ye out from thence, *touch ye no unclean thing: go out of the midst of her be ye clean, you that carry the vessels of the Lord.

12 For you shall not go out in a tumult, neither shall you make haste by flight: for the Lord will go before you, and the God of Israel will gather you together.

13 Behold, my servant shall understand, he shall be exalted, and extolled, and shall be exceedingly high.

14 As many have been astonished at thee, so shall his visage be inglorious among men, and his form among the sons of men.

15 He shall sprinkle many nations, kings shall shut their mouth at him: *for they to whom it was not told of him, have seen: and they that heard not have beheld.

A prophecy of the Passion of Christ.

WHIO *hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?

VER. 17. Dreys. Take courage: Babylon's turn is come. v. 23. C.

VER. 19. Two. War and famine cause desolation and destruction. W.—Jerusalem was reduced to the greatest misery in the last siege under Nabuchodonosor. Lam. iv. 3. C.

VER. 20. Ox, oryx. Heb. Thua. Deut. xiv. 5. H.—Many accounts respecting it are fabulous. Some understand a sort of wolf, mentioned by Pliny viii. 34. Sept. "like beet half boiled."

VER. 23. Over. This inhumanity was not uncommon. Jos. x. 24. Ps. cix. 1. CHAP. LII. VER. 1. Thee. Judea was no more laid waste by its ancient enemies. The persecution of Epiphanees did not continue long. Many have attacked the Church; but they cannot overcome her, nor will she cease to preach the truth, and to continue pure and holy.

VER. 3. Money. The Chaldees acted impolitically in leaving the country without inhabitants, and Cyrus will derive no immediate advantage from your return. C.—The Jews had not injured the Chaldees, nor mankind the devil. But both had offended God, who out of mercy paid their ransom. W.

VER. 13. Servant, Christ. In vain do the Jews attempt to apply this to any other. It is wonderful that Grotius should follow their steps, and understand Jeremias to be meant; though elsewhere he allows that the prophet speaks only of the Messias. De Verit. v. 19.—This author has been of great prejudice to religion. The Chal. and many modern Jews have been compelled by evidence to apply this to the Messias. See Geir, &c. Jesus was pleased to assume the form of a servant. Phil. ii. 7.

VER. 14. Of men, who have disfigured the countenance of our Saviour with buffets, &c. The Jews would not receive him under this abject form, though it had been foretold equally with his elevation. C.

4 *Surely he hath borne our infirmities, and carried our sorrows: and we have thought him as it were a leper, and as one struck by God and afflicted.

5 *But he was wounded for our iniquities, he was bruised for our sins: the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and by his bruises we are healed.

6 All we like sheep have gone astray, every one hath turned aside into his own way: and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquities of us all.

7 He was offered because it was his own will, and he opened not his mouth: he shall be led as a sheep to the slaughter, and shall be dumb as a lamb before his shearer, and he shall not open his mouth.

8 He was taken away from distress, and from judgment: who shall declare his generation? because he is cut off out of the land of the living: for the wickedness of my people have I struck him.

9 And he shall give the ungodly for his burial, and the rich for his death: *because he hath done no iniquity, neither was there deceit in his mouth.

10 And the Lord was pleased to bruise him in infirmity: if he shall lay down his life for sin, he shall see a long-lived seed, and the will of the Lord shall be prosperous in his hand.

11 Because his soul hath laboured, he shall see and be filled: by his knowledge shall this my just servant justify many, and he shall bear their iniquities.

12 Therefore will I distribute to him very many, and he shall divide the spoils of the strong, because he hath delivered his soul unto death, and was reputed with the wicked: and he hath borne the sins of many, and hath prayed for the transgressors.

VER. 9. Death. Heb. "and he made his grave with the wicked men, and with the rich man, in his death." H.—Grave and death seem to be transposed; and we might better read, "He was taken up with wicked men in his death, and with a rich man was his sepulchre." This indeed is only a conjecture, but well grounded in the context. See Jos. xxiv. 19. Kennicott.—Sept. "and I will give the wicked for his grave, and the rich men for his death." H.—The rich man may denote the small number of Jews who embraced the faith. C.—They (1952)

CHAP. LIV.

The Gentiles, who were barren before, shall multiply in the Church of Christ, from which God's mercy shall never depart.

GIVE ^bpraise, O thou barren, that bearest not: sing forth praise, and make a joyful noise, thou that didst not travail with child: for many are the children of the desolate, more than of her that hath a husband, saith the Lord.

2 Enlarge the place of thy tent, and stretch out the skins of thy tabernacles, spare not: lengthen thy cords, and strengthen thy stakes.

3 For thou shalt pass on to the right hand, and to the left: and thy seed shall inherit the Gentiles, and shall inhabit the desolate cities.

4 Fear not, for thou shalt not be confounded, nor blush: for thou shalt not be put to shame, because thou shalt forget the shame of thy youth, and shalt remember no more the reproach of thy widowhood.

5 For he that made thee shall rule over thee, the Lord of hosts is his name: and thy Redeemer, the holy One of Israel, shall be called the God of all the earth.

6 For the Lord hath called thee as a woman forsaken and mourning in spirit, and as a wife cast off from her youth, said thy God.

7 For a small moment have I forsaken thee, but with great mercies will I gather thee.

8 In a moment of indignation have I hid my face a little while from thee; but with everlasting kindness have I had mercy on thee, said the Lord, thy Redeemer.

9 *This thing is to me as in the days of Noe, to whom I swore, that I would no more bring in the waters of Noe upon the earth: so have I sworn not to be angry with thee, and not to rebuke thee.

10 For the mountains shall be moved, and the hills shall tremble: but my mercy shall not depart from thee, and the covenant of my peace shall not be moved: said the Lord that hath mercy on thee.

VER. 3. Left. To the north and south. Jerusalem increased. But what was it compared with the Christian establishment!

VER. 4. Widowhood. Thy former excesses shall be forgotten. C.

VER. 5. Thee. Heb. "Bohalaic (H.) shall be your Baalim," or husband, who was styled Lord. 1 Pet. iii. 6. Perhaps he may allude to the two wives, the synagogue and the Church, or to the idols, which should be adored no more.

VER. 6. Youth. This enhances her fault. God is pleased to overlook it, in the captives (C. l. 1.) and Gentiles.

VER. 9. Earth. Giving him the rainbow for a sign. My covenant with the Church is equally irrevocable: she is founded on a rock. Mat. xvi. 18. C.—Christ will no more abandon her than he will drown the world. Some mountains shall be moved out of their place, but she shall not. W.

12 And I will make thy bulwarks of jasper: and thy gates of graven stones, and all thy borders of desirable stones.

13 *All thy children shall be taught of the Lord: and great shall be the peace of thy children.

14 And thou shalt be founded in justice: depart far from oppression, for thou shalt not fear; and from terror, for it shall not come near thee.

15 Behold, an inhabitant shall come, who was not with me; he that was a stranger to thee before, shall be joined to thee.

16 Behold, I have created the smith that bloweth the coals in the fire, and bringeth forth an instrument for his work; and I have created the killer to destroy.

17 No weapon that is formed against thee, shall prosper: and every tongue that resisteth thee in judgment, thou shalt condemn. This is the inheritance of the servants of the Lord, and their justice with me, saith the Lord.

God promises abundance of spiritual graces to the faithful, that shall believe in Christ out of all nations, and sincerely serve him.

ALL^a you that thirst, come to the waters: and you that have no money, make haste, buy, and eat: come ye, buy wine, and milk, without money, and without any price.

2 Why do you spend money for that which is not bread, and your labour for that which doth not satisfy you? Hearken diligently to me, and eat that which is good, and your soul shall be delighted in fatness.

3 Incline your ear, and come to me: hear and your soul shall live, and I will make an everlasting covenant with you, *the faithful mercies of David.

4 Behold, I have given him for a witness to the people; for a leader and a master to the Gentiles.

5 Behold, thou shalt call a nation, which thou knewest not: and the nations that knew not thee, shall run to thee, because of the Lord thy God, and for the holy One of Israel, for he hath glorified thee.

8 For my thoughts are not your thoughts: nor your ways my ways, saith the Lord.

9 For as the heavens are exalted above the earth, so are my ways exalted above your ways, and my thoughts above your thoughts.

10 And as the rain and the snow come down from heaven, and return no more thither, but soak the earth, and water it, and make it to spring, and give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater:

11 So shall my word be, which shall go forth from my mouth: it shall not return to me void, but it shall do whatsoever I please, and shall prosper in the things for which I have sent it.

12 For you shall go out with joy, and be led forth with peace: the mountains and the hills shall sing praise before you, and all the trees of the country shall clap their hands.

13 Instead of the shrub shall come up the fig-tree and instead of the nettle, shall come up the myrtle-tree: and the Lord shall be named for an everlasting sign, that shall not be taken away.

VER. 3. People. The Jews would not admit all nations to their communion. Deut. xxxiii. 1. A little before Christ's coming, they began to make more proselytes; (Mat. xxiii. 15.) and the sacred books being translated, came to the knowledge of the Gentiles, who were thus induced by degrees to embrace the true faith. The road to heaven was always open for those who kept the commandments, (v. 6. C.) though they might not receive circumcision. H.—Christ has removed the wall of separation, (Eph. ii. 14. C.) and established one fold for all. Jo. x. H.

VER. 4. Eunuchs. It was ignominious to have no children among the Jews, as the propagation of the true religion depended much on their numbers. But now, since the Church is gathered from all nations, virginity is preferable to marriage, and those who keep the sabbath, or all the commandments, and choose this state freely, will receive greater glory than the other sons and daughters of God. Against this plain meaning, P. Martyr (de Celib.) asserts that God prefers eunuchs only before those who transgress the law. But he gives them a shall keep my sabbaths, and shall choose the things that please me, and shall hold fast my covenant:

5 I will give to them in my house, and within my walls, a place, and a name better than sons and daughters: I will give them an everlasting name, which shall never perish.

2 Let peace come, let him rest in his bed that hath walked in his uprightness.

3 But draw near hither, you sons of the sorceress, the seed of the adulterer, and of the harlot.

4 Upon whom have you jested? upon whom have you opened your mouth wide, and put out your tongue? are not you wicked children, a false seed?

5 Who seek your comfort in idols under every green tree, sacrificing children in the torrents, under the high rocks?

6 In the parts of the torrent is thy portion, this is thy lot: and thou hast poured out libations to them, thou hast offered sacrifice. Shall I not be angry at these things?

7 Upon a high and lofty mountain thou hast laid thy bed, and hast gone up thither to offer victims.

8 And behind the door, and behind the post, thou hast set up thy remembrance: for thou hast discovered thyself beside me, and hast received an adulterer: thou hast enlarged thy bed, and made a covenant with them: thou hast loved their bed with open hand.

9 And thou hast adorned thyself for the king, with ointment, and hast multiplied thy perfumes. Thou hast sent thy messengers far off, and wast debased even to hell.

10 Thou hast been wearied in the multitude of thy ways: yet thou saidst not: I will rest: thou hast found life of thy hand, therefore thou hast not asked.

11 For whom hast thou been solicitous and afraid, that thou hast lied, and hast not been mindful of me, nor thought on me in thy heart? for I am silent, and as one that seeth not, and thou hast forgotten me.

12 I will declare thy justice, and thy works shall not profit thee.

13 When thou shalt cry, let thy companies deliver thee, but the wind shall carry them all off, a breeze

16 For I will not contend for ever, neither will I be angry unto the end: because the spirit shall go forth from my face, and breathings I will make.

17 For the iniquity of his covetousness I was angry, and I struck him: I hid my face from thee, and was angry: and he went away wandering in the way of his own heart.

18 I saw his ways, and I healed him, and brought him back, and restored comforts to him, and to them that mourn for him.

19 I created the fruit of the lips, peace, peace to him that is far off, and to him that is near, said the Lord, and I healed him.

20 But the wicked are like the raging sea, which cannot rest, and the waves thereof cast up dirt and mire.

21 "There is no peace to the wicked, saith the Lord God.

CHAP. LVIII.

God rejects the hypocritical fasts of the Jews: recommends works of mercy, and sincere godliness.

CRY, cease not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and shew my people their wicked doings, and the house of Jacob their sins.

2 For they seek me from day to day, and desire to know my ways, as a nation that hath done justice, and hath not forsaken the judgment of their God: they ask of me the judgments of justice: they are willing to approach to God.

3 Why have we fasted, and thou hast not regarded: why have we humbled our souls, and thou hast not taken notice? Behold, in the day of your fast, your own will is found, and you exact of all your debtors.

4 Behold, you fast for debates and strife, and strike with the fist wickedly. Do not fast as you have done until this day, to make your cry to be heard on high.

5 "Is this such a fast as I have chosen: for a man to afflict his soul for a day? is this it, to wind his head about like a circle, and to spread sackcloth and ashes? wilt thou call this a fast, and a day acceptable to the Lord?

6 Is not this rather the fast that I have chosen? loose the bands of wickedness, undo the bundles that oppress, let them that are broken, go free, and break asunder every burden.

7 "Deal thy bread to the hungry, and bring the needy and the harbourless into thy house: when thou shalt see one naked, cover him, and despise not thy own flesh.

8 Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thy health shall speedily arise, and thy justice shall go before thy face, and the glory of the Lord shall gather thee up.

9 Then shalt thou call, and the Lord shall hear: thou shalt cry, and he shall say: Here I am. If thou wilt take away the chain out of the midst of thee, and cease to stretch out the finger, and to speak that which profiteth not.

10 When thou shalt pour out thy soul to the hungry, and shalt satisfy the afflicted soul, then shall thy light rise up in darkness, and thy darkness shall be as the noon-day.

11 And the Lord will give thee rest continually, and will fill thy soul with brightness, and deliver thy bones, and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a fountain of waters, whose water shall not fail.

12 "And the places that have been desolate for ages, shall be built in thee: thou shalt raise up the foundations of generation and generation: and thou shalt be called the repairer of the fences, turning the paths into rest.

CHAP. LIX.

The dreadful evil of sin is displayed, as the great obstacle to all good from God: yet he will send a Redeemer, and make an everlasting covenant with his Church.

BEHOLD, *the hand of the Lord is not shortened, that it cannot save, neither is his ear heavy that it cannot hear.

2 But your iniquities have divided between you and your God, and your sins have hid his face from you that he should not hear.

3 ^bFor your hands are defiled with blood, and your fingers with iniquity: your lips have spoken lies, and your tongue uttereth iniquity.

4 There is none that calleth upon justice, neither is there any one that judgeth truly: but they trust in a mere nothing, and speak vanities: they have conceived labour, and brought forth iniquity.

5 They have broken the eggs of asps, *and have woven the webs of spiders: he that shall eat of their eggs, shall die: and that which is brought out, shall be hatched into a basilisk.

6 Their webs shall not be for clothing, neither shall they cover themselves with their works: their works are unprofitable works, and the work of iniquity is in their hands.

7 ^dTheir feet run to evil, and make haste to shed innocent blood: their thoughts are unprofitable thoughts: wasting and destruction are in their ways.

8 They have not known the way of peace, and there is no judgment in their steps: their paths are become crooked to them: every one that treadeth in them, knoweth no peace.

9 Therefore is judgment far from us, and justice shall not overtake us. We looked for light, and behold darkness: brightness, and we have walked in the dark.

10 We have groped for the wall, and like the blind we have groped as if we had no eyes: we have stumbled at noon-day, as in darkness, we are in dark places, as dead men.

11 We shall roar all of us like bears, and shall lament as mournful doves. We have looked for judgment, and there is none: for salvation, and it is far from us.

12 For our iniquities are multiplied before thee, and our sins have testified against us: for our wicked doings are with us, and we have known our iniquities,

13 In sinning and lying against the Lord: and we have turned away so that we went not after our God, but spoke calumny and transgression: we have conceived, and uttered from the heart, words of falsehood.

14 And judgment is turned away backward, and justice hath stood far off: because truth hath fallen down in the street, and equity could not come in.

15 And truth hath been forgotten: and he that departed from evil, lay open to be a prey: and the Lord saw, and it appeared evil in his eyes, because there is no judgment.

16 And he saw that there is not a man: and he stood astonished, because there is none to oppose himself: and his own arm brought salvation to him, and his own justice supported him.

17 *He put on justice as a breast-plate, and a helmet of salvation upon his head: he put on the garments of vengeance, and was clad with zeal as with a cloak.

18 As unto revenge, as it were to repay wrath to his adversaries, and a reward to his enemies: he will repay the like to the islands.

19 And they from the west, shall fear the name of the Lord: and they from the rising of the sun, his glory: when he shall come as a violent stream, which the spirit of the Lord driveth on:

20 *And there shall come a Redeemer to Sion, and to them that return from iniquity in Jacob, saith the Lord.

21 This is my covenant with them, saith the Lord: My spirit that is in thee, and my words that I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy seed, nor out of the mouth of thy seed's seed, saith the Lord from henceforth, and for ever.

CHAP. LX. VER. 1. O Jerusalem, is not in Heb. or S. Jer. but in the Sept. Some few things may refer to the terrestrial Jerusalem, though the prophet speaks chiefly of the celestial and of the Church.—Lord, very great. Christ came to save us. 5 Then shalt thou see, and abound, and thy heart shall wonder and be enlarged, when the multitude of the sea shall be converted to thee, the strength of the Gentiles shall come to thee.

6 The multitude of camels shall cover thee, the dromedaries of Madian and Ephraim: all they from Saba shall come, bringing gold and frankincense: and shewing forth praise to the Lord.

7 All the flocks of Cedar shall be gathered together unto thee, the rams of Nabaioth shall minister to thee: they shall be offered upon my acceptable altar, and I will glorify the house of my majesty.

8 Who are these, that fly as clouds, and as doves to their windows?

9 For the islands wait for me, and the ships of the sea in the beginning: that I may bring thy sons from afar: their silver, and their gold with them, to the name of the Lord thy God, and to the holy One of Israel, because he hath glorified thee.

10 And the children of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister to thee: for in my wrath have I struck thee, and in my reconciliation have I had mercy upon thee.

11 *And thy gates shall be open continually: they shall not be shut day nor night, that the strength of the Gentiles may be brought to thee, and their kings may be brought.

12 For the nation and the kingdom that will not serve thee, shall perish: and the Gentiles shall be wasted with desolation.

16 And thou shalt suck the milk of the Gentiles, and thou shalt be nursed with the breasts of kings: and thou shalt know that I am the Lord, thy Saviour, and thy Redeemer, the mighty One of Jacob.

17 For brass, I will bring gold, and for iron I will bring silver: and for wood, brass, and for stones, iron: and I will make thy visitation peace, and thy overseers justice.

18 Iniquity shall no more be heard in thy land, wasting or destruction in thy borders, and salvation shall possess thy walls, and praise thy gates.

19 *Thou shalt no more have the sun for thy light by day, neither shall the brightness of the moon enlighten thee; but the Lord shall be unto thee for an everlasting light, and thy God for thy glory.

20 Thy sun shall go down no more, and thy moon shall not decrease: for the Lord shall be unto thee for an everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended.

21 And thy people shall be all just, they shall inherit the land for ever, the branch of my planting, the work of my hand to glorify me.

22 The least shall become a thousand, and a little one a most strong nation: I, the Lord, will suddenly do this thing in its time.

VER. 19. Thou shalt, &c. In this latter part of the chapter, the prophet passes from the illustrious promises made to the Church militant on earth, to the glory of the Church triumphant in heaven. Ch.—Glory. S. John seems to have copied this. Apoc. xviii. &c.

VER. 22. The least of the apostles shall bring many converts, (C.) or shall be spiritual (H.) governor of a great city, (Mic. v. 2.) in the Church militant. C.—A small shoot, or family, in the Church, shall produce many others. M.

CHAP. LXI. VER. 1. Lord. Heb. adda, "God." Adonai seems to have been inserted to prevent the pronunciation of Jehovah, (Kennicott) which alone occurs in the Sept. Arab. and in S. Luke, iv. 18. H.—Thus Elohim may have been substituted for Jehovah, Gen. xxii. 8. as v. 14, "Abraham called the name of that place Jehovah jireh, because he had said that day on the mount: Jehovah will provide" a victim, even Jesus Christ in the same place. Perhaps no part of the Bible is "so absurdly translated" as this, (Ken.) by Protestants. H.—S. Luke follows the Sept. in his quotation, only instead of to preach a, &c. he has an explanation, to set at liberty them that are bruised. Isaiahs may here speak of himself, (Chal.) yet only as the figure of Christ. The Jews admit that the Messiah is meant. Christ had received the Holy Spirit at the Jordan. John i. 32. He performed these works, (Lu. vii. 22.) particularly addressing his discourse

2 To proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord, and the day of vengeance of our God: "to comfort all that mourn:

3 To appoint to the mourners of Sion, and to give them a crown for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, a garment of praise for the spirit of grief: and they shall be called in it the mighty ones of justice, the planting of the Lord to glorify him.

4 ^b And they shall build the places that have been waste from of old, and shall raise up ancient ruins, and shall repair the desolate cities, that were destroyed for generation and generation.

5 And strangers shall stand and shall feed your flocks: and the sons of strangers shall be your husbandmen, and the dressers of your vines.

6 But you shall be called the priests of the Lord: to you it shall be said: Ye ministers of our God: ye shall eat the riches of the Gentiles, and you shall pride yourselves in their glory.

7 For your double confusion and shame, they shall praise their part: therefore shall they receive double in their land, everlasting joy shall be unto them.

8 For I am the Lord that love judgment, and hate robbery in a holocaust: and I will make their work in truth, and I will make a perpetual covenant with them.

9 And they shall know their seed among the Gentiles, and their offspring in the midst of peoples: all that shall see them, shall know them, that these are the seed which the Lord hath blessed.

10 I will greatly rejoice in the Lord, and my soul shall be joyful in my God: for he hath clothed me with the garments of salvation: and with the robe of justice he hath covered me, as a bridegroom decked with a crown, and as a bride adorned with her jewels.

11 For as the earth bringeth forth her bud, and as the garden causeth her seed to shoot forth: so shall the Lord God make justice to spring forth, and praise before all the nations.

CHAP. LXII.

The prophet will not cease from preaching Christ: to whom all nations shall be converted: and whose Church shall continue for ever.

FOR Sion's sake, I will not hold my peace, and for the sake of Jerusalem, I will not rest, till her just one come forth as brightness, and her Saviour be lighted as a lamp.

2 And the Gentiles shall see thy just One, and all kings thy glorious one: and thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of the Lord shall name.

3 And thou shalt be a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God.

4 Thou shalt no more be called forsaken: and thy land shall no more be called desolate: but thou shalt be called My pleasure in her, and thy land inhabited. Because the Lord hath been well pleased with thee: and thy land shall be inhabited.

5 For the young man shall dwell with the virgin, and thy children shall dwell in thee. And the bridegroom shall rejoice over the bride, and thy God shall rejoice over thee.

6 Upon thy walls, O Jerusalem, I have appointed watchmen all the day, and all the night; they shall never hold their peace. You that are mindful of the Lord, hold not your peace,

7 And give him no silence till he establish, and till he make Jerusalem a praise in the earth.

Christ's victory over his enemies: his mercies to his people: their complaint.

WHIO is this that cometh from Edom, with dyed garments from Bosra, this beautiful one in his robe, walking in the greatness of his strength? I, that speak justice, and am a defender to save.

2 ^bWhy then is thy apparel red, and thy garments like theirs that tread in the wine-press?

3 I have trodden the wine-press alone, and of the Gentiles there is not a man with me: I have trampled on them in my indignation, and have trodden them down in my wrath, and their blood is sprinkled upon my garments, and I have stained all my apparel.

4 ^aFor the day of vengeance is in my heart, the year of my redemption is come.

5 I looked about, and there was none to help: I sought, and there was none to give aid: and my own arm hath saved for me, and my indignation itself hath helped me.

6 And I have trodden down the people in my wrath, and have made them drunk in my indignation, and have brought down their strength to the earth.

7 I will remember the tender mercies of the Lord, the praise of the Lord for all the things that the Lord hath bestowed upon us, and for the multitude of his good things to the house of Israel, which he hath given them according to his kindness, and according to the multitude of his mercies.

8 And he said: Surely, they are my people, children that will not deny: so he became their Saviour.

9 In all their affliction he was not troubled, and the angel of his presence saved them: in his love, and in his mercy he redeemed them, and he carried them and lifted them up all the days of old.

thee. Ch.—Abraham is not able to save us. C.—The patriarchs may justly disregard us, as degenerate children; yet we hope in God's mercies. Thus S. made known to thy enemies: that the nations might tremble at thy presence.

3 When thou shalt do wonderful things, we shall not bear them: thou didst come down, and at thy presence the mountains melted away.

4 From the beginning of the world they have not heard, nor perceived with the ears: "the eye hath not seen, O God, besides thee, what things thou hast prepared for them that wait for thee.

5 Thou hast met him that rejoiceth, and doth justice: in thy ways they shall remember thee: behold, thou art angry, and we have sinned: in them we have been always, and we shall be saved.

6 And we are all become as one unclean, and all our justices as the rag of a menstruous woman: and we have all fallen as a leaf, and our iniquities, like the wind, have taken us away.

8 And now, O Lord, thou art our Father, and we are clay: and thou art our Maker, and we all are the works of thy hands.

9 ^b Be not very angry, O Lord, and remember no longer our iniquity: behold, see we are all thy people.

10 The city of thy sanctuary is become a desert, Sion is made a desert, Jerusalem is desolate.

11 The house of our holiness, and of our glory, where our fathers praised thee, is burnt with fire, and all our lovely things are turned into ruins.

This is spoken particularly of the sacrifices, sacraments, and ceremonies of the Jews, after the death of Christ, and the promulgation of the new law. Ch.—The justice which is under the law is stated uncleanness, when compared with evangelical purity. Phil. iii. 8.—"If any one after the gospel... would observe the ceremonies of the law, let him hear the people confessing that all that justice is compared to a most filthy rag." S. Jer.—The good works which are done by grace, and not by man alone, cannot be said to be of this description. They constitute the internal glory of man, and God will one day crown these his gifts. Of ourselves indeed we can do nothing, and the works of the Mosaic law will not avail, as S. Paul inculcates; but those works, point out the saint, which are performed by charity with faith in Christ. This justice is not imputed only, but real; and shews where true faith exists, according to S. James. Thus the apostles explain each other. H.—Woman. Sept. "of one sitting down;" like Rachel. Gen. xxxi. 35. Sym. "lying-in." Aq. "of proofs." Grot. "like a plaster on a sore, which is thrown away." Such were Alcimus, &c. C.—To practise (H.) the Jewish rites would now be sinful. M.

10 Rejoice with Jerusalem, and be glad with her, all you that love her: rejoice for joy with her, all you that mourn for her.

11 That you may suck, and be filled with the breasts of her consolations: that you may milk out, and flow with delights from the abundance of her glory.

12 For thus saith the Lord: Behold, I will bring upon her, as it were, a river of peace, and as an overflowing torrent, the glory of the Gentiles, which you shall suck: you shall be carried at the breasts, and upon the knees they shall caress you.

13 As one whom the mother caresseth, so will I comfort you, and you shall be comforted in Jerusalem.

14 You shall see, and your heart shall rejoice, *and your bones shall flourish like an herb; and the hand of the Lord shall be known to his servants, and he shall be angry with his enemies.

15 For behold the Lord will come with fire, and his chariots are like a whirlwind, to render his wrath in indignation, and his rebuke with flames of fire.

16 For the Lord shall judge by fire, and by his sword unto all flesh, and the slain of the Lord shall be many.

THE PROPHECY OF JEREMIAS.

JEREMIAS was a priest, a native of Anathoth, a priestly city, in the tribe of Benjamin, and was sanctified from his mother's womb to be a prophet of God; which office he began to execute when he was yet a child in age. He was in his whole life, according to the signification of his name, great before the Lord, and a special figure of Jesus Christ, in the persecutions he underwent for discharging his duty, in his charity for his persecutors, and in the violent death he suffered at their hands; it being an ancient tradition of the Hebrews, that he was stoned to death by the remnant of the Jews who had retired into Egypt, (Ch.) at Taphnes. His style is plaintive, (W.) like that of Simonides, (C.) and not so noble as that of Isaias and Osee. S. Jer.—He was the prophet of the Gentiles, as well as of the Jews, predicting many things which befel both, and particularly the liberation of the latter, A. 3485, after seventy years' captivity, dating from A. 3415, (C.) or 3398, the 4th of Joakim. Usher. C. xxv. II.—He began to prophesy when he was very young, A. 3375, in the 13th year of Josias, (C.) before that prince had brought his reformation to any great perfection. II.

CHAP. I.

The time and the calling of Jeremias: his prophetic visions. God encourages him.

THE words of Jeremias, the son of Helcias, of the priests that were in Anathoth, in the land of Benjamin.

2 The word of the Lord, which came to him in the days of Josias, the son of Amon, king of Juda, in the thirteenth year * of his reign.

3 And which came to him in the days of Joakim, the son of Josias, king of Juda, unto the end of the eleventh year of Sedecias, the son of Josias, king of Juda, even unto the carrying away of Jerusalem captive, in the fifth month.

4 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

5 Before I formed thee in the bowels of thy mother, I knew thee: and before thou camest forth out of the womb, I sanctified thee, and made thee a prophet unto the nations.

6 And I said: Ah, ah, ah, Lord God: behold, I cannot speak, for I am a child.

7 And the Lord said to me: Say not: I am a child: for thou shalt go to all that I shall send thee: and whatsoever I shall command thee, thou shalt speak.

8 Be not afraid at their presence: for I am with thee to deliver thee, saith the Lord.

9 And the Lord put forth his hand, and touched my mouth: and the Lord said to me: Behold, I have given my words in thy mouth:

10 Lo, I have set thee this day over the nations, and over kingdoms, to root up, and to pull down, and to waste, and to destroy, and to build, and to plant.

11 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: What seest thou, Jeremias? And I said: I see a rod watching.

CHAP. I. VER. 1. Helcias, the high priest who discovered the book of the law, (Clem. Strom. i. &c.) though this be uncertain.—Anathoth, a village to the north of Jerusalem, to which many priests had retired, though it did not belong to them. C.

VER. 2. Joakim. His immediate predecessor and successor, both called Jehonias, (H.) are passed over, as their reign was short, (C.) only lasting three months each. H.—Fifth. Jerusalem was taken on the 9th of the preceding month. But the temple was not burnt, nor the captives sent off till the fifth month, or the 10th of the civil year. C. xxxix. 5. and lii. 13. and 4 K. xxv. 2. C.—Jeremias also prophesied in Egypt. C. xlv. W.—But this title alludes to his principal predictions. M.

VER. 5. Knew, with affection, and designed thee for this office from eternity. Many think (C.) that Jeremias was purified from original sin before his birth. S. Aug.—He had this privilege, and was also a priest, prophet, virgin, and martyr. W.—Yet to sanctify, often means only to set aside. Ex. xiii. 2. Eccli. xlix. 9.—Nations, whose overthrow he points out. C. xxv. 27. 44. &c. C.

VER. 6. Ah. Heb. ahah. Sept. "thou Being." Prot. "Then said I: Ah, Lord God." H.—He does not imitate a child. He might be above 30 years old, 12 And the Lord said to me: Thou hast seen well: for I will watch over my word to perform it.

13 And the word of the Lord came to me a second time, saying: What seest thou? And I said: I see a boiling caldron, and the face thereof from the face of the north.

14 And the Lord said to me: From the north shall an evil break forth upon all the inhabitants of the land.

15 For behold I will call together all the families of the kingdoms of the north, saith the Lord: and they shall come, and shall set every one his throne in the entrance of the gates of Jerusalem, and upon all the walls thereof round about, and upon all the cities of Juda.

16 And I will pronounce my judgments against them, touching all their wickedness, who have forsaken me, and have sacrificed to strange gods, and have adored the work of their own hands.

17 Thou, therefore, gird up thy loins, and arise, and speak to them all that I command thee. Be not afraid at their presence: for I will make thee not to fear their countenance.

18 For behold I have made thee this day a fortified city, and a pillar of iron, and a wall of brass, over all the land, to the kings of Juda, to the princes thereof, and to the priests, and to the people of the land.

19 And they shall fight against thee, and shall not prevail: for I am with thee, saith the Lord, to deliver thee.

God expostulates with the Jews for their ingratitude and infidelity though some say (C.) only 14, (T.) or less; yet he finds himself devoid of eloquence, like Moses. Ex. xiv. 10. C.

thy youth, and the love of thy espousals, when thou followedst me in the desert, in a land that is not sown.

3 Israel is holy to the Lord, the first-fruits of his increase: all they that devour him, offend: evils shall come upon them, saith the Lord.

4 Hear ye the word of the Lord, O house of Jacob, and all ye families of the house of Israel.

5 Thus saith the Lord: "What iniquity have your fathers found in me, that they are gone far from me, and have walked after vanity, and are become vain?"

6 And they have not said: Where is the Lord, that made us come up out of the land of Egypt? that led us through the desert, through a land uninhabited and unpassable, through a land of drought, and the image of death, through a land, wherein no man walked, nor any man dwelt?

7 And I brought you into the land of Carmel, to eat the fruit thereof, and the best things thereof: and when you entered in, you defiled my land, and made my inheritance an abomination.

8 The priests did not say: Where is the Lord? and they that held the law knew me not, and the pastors transgressed against me: and the prophets prophesied in Baal, and followed idols.

9 Therefore will I yet contend in judgment with you, saith the Lord, and I will plead with your children.

10 Pass over to the isles of Cethim, and see: and send into Cedar, and consider diligently: and see if there hath been done any thing like this.

11 If a nation hath changed their gods, and indeed they are not gods: but my people have changed their glory into an idol.

12 Be astonished, O ye heavens, at this, and ye gates thereof, be very desolate, saith the Lord.

13 For my people have done two evils: They have forsaken me, the fountain of living water, and have digged to themselves cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water.

14 Is Israel a bondman, or a home-born slave? why then is he become a prey?

15 The lions have roared upon him, and have made a noise, they have made his land a wilderness: his cities are burnt down, and there is none to dwell in them.

16 The children also of Memphis, and of Taphnes, have deflowered thee, even to the crown of the head.

17 Hath not this been done to thee, because thou hast forsaken the Lord thy God at that time, when he led thee by the way?

18 And now what hast thou to do in the way of Egypt, to drink the troubled water? And what hast thou to do with the way of the Assyrians, to drink the water of the river?

19 Thy own wickedness shall reprove thee, and thy apostacy shall rebuke thee. Know thou, and see that it is an evil and a bitter thing for thee, to have left the Lord thy God, and that my fear is not with thee, saith the Lord, the God of hosts.

20 Of old time thou hast broken my yoke, thou hast burst my bands, and thou saidst: I will not serve. ^bFor on every high hill, and under every green tree, thou didst prostitute thyself.

21 "Yet I planted thee a chosen vineyard, all true seed: how then art thou turned unto me into that which is good for nothing, O strange vineyard?"

22 Though thou wash thyself with nitre, and multiply to thyself the herb borith, thou art stained in thy iniquity before me, saith the Lord God.

23 How canst thou say: I am not polluted, I have not walked after Baalim? see thy ways in the valley, know what thou hast done: as a swift runner pursuing his course.

24 A wild ass accustomed to the wilderness in the desire of his heart, snuffed up the wind of his love: none shall turn her away: all that seek her shall not fail: in her monthly filth they shall find her.

25 Keep thy foot from being bare, and thy throat from thirst. But thou saidst: I have lost all hope, I will not do it: for I have loved strangers, and I will walk after them.

26 As the thief is confounded when he is taken, so is the house of Israel confounded, they and their kings, their princes, and their priests, and their prophets.

2 Lift up thy eyes on high: and see where thou hast not prostituted thyself: thou didst sit in the ways, waiting for them, as a robber in the wilderness: and thou hast polluted the land with thy fornications, and with thy wickedness.

3 Therefore, the showers were withholden, and there was no lateward rain: thou hadst a harlot's forehead, thou wouldst not blush.

4 Therefore, at the least, from this time, call to me: Thou art my father, the guide of my virginity.

5 Wilt thou be angry for ever, or wilt thou continue unto the end? Behold, thou hast spoken, and hast done evil things, and hast been able.

6 And the Lord said to me in the days of king Josias: "Hast thou seen what rebellious Israel hath done? she hath gone of herself upon every high mountain, and under every green tree, and hath played the harlot there.

7 And when she had done all these things, I said: Return to me, and she did not return. And her treacherous sister, Juda, saw,

8 That because the rebellious Israel had played the harlot, I had put her away, and given her a bill of divorce: yet her treacherous sister, Juda, was not afraid, but went and played the harlot also herself.

9 And by the facility of her fornication she defiled the land, and played the harlot with stones and with stocks.

10 And after all this, her treacherous sister, Juda, hath not returned to me with her whole heart, but with falsehood, saith the Lord.

11 And the Lord said to me: The rebellious Israel hath justified her soul in comparison of the treacherous Juda.

12 Go, and proclaim these words towards the north, and thou shalt say: Return, O rebellious Israel, saith the Lord, and I will not turn away my face from you: for I am holy, saith the Lord, and I will not be angry for ever.

13 But yet, acknowledge thy iniquity, that thou hast transgressed against the Lord thy God: and thou hast scattered thy ways to strangers under every green tree, and hast not heard my voice, saith the Lord.

VER. 5. Wilt. Heb. "will he," &c. The faithless people will not use this language, but do all the evil possible.

VER. 6. Days, before the 18th year. God now pronounces sentence (C.) on all. H.—Rebellious, a faithless wife. The kingdom of Israel gave way to idolatry first. But the people were less favoured than Juda, which had many prophets and good kings, the temple, &c. Moreover, the misfortunes of Israel did not open the eyes of their brethren. C.—Both the ten tribes, and the two tribes (W.) which adhered to the line of David, prevaricated. H.

VER. 10. Falsehood. Their reform was only apparent, under Joas, &c. C.

VER. 11. Soul, and appeared comparatively innocent. v. 6. Ezec. xvi. 51. S. Jer.—Yet neither of them was excusable. W.

VER. 12. North. Samaria, or rather Assyria, where the people were captives.—Face, in anger.

VER. 13. Ways, dividing thy love, and adoring idols with me.

VER. 14. Kindred. Only few Israelites returned under Cyrus. The rest came by degrees, though it was more fully accomplished by the conversion of the Gentiles.

15 And I will give you pastors, according to my own heart, and they shall feed you with knowledge and doctrine.

16 And when you shall be multiplied, and increase in the land in those days, saith the Lord, they shall say no more: The ark of the covenant of the Lord: neither shall it come upon the heart, neither shall they remember it, neither shall it be visited, neither shall that be done any more.

17 At that time Jerusalem shall be called the throne of the Lord: and all the nations shall be gathered together to it, in the name of the Lord, to Jerusalem, and they shall not walk after the perversity of their most wicked heart.

18 In those days the house of Juda shall go to the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north to the land which I gave to your fathers.

19 But I said: How shall I put thee among the children, and give thee a lovely land, the goodly inheritance of the armies of the Gentiles? And I said: Thou shalt call me father, and shalt not cease to walk after me.

20 But as a woman that despiseth her lover, so hath the house of Israel despised me, saith the Lord.

21 A voice was heard in the high ways, weeping and howling of the children of Israel: because they have made their way wicked, they have forgotten the Lord their God.

22 Return, you rebellious children, and I will heal your rebellions. Behold, we come to thee: for thou art the Lord our God.

23 In very deed the hills were liars, and the multitude of the mountains: truly, in the Lord our God, is the salvation of Israel.

24 Confusion hath devoured the labour of our fathers from our youth, their flocks and their herds, their sons and their daughters.

25 We shall sleep in our confusion, and our shame shall cover us, because we have sinned against the Lord our God, we and our fathers, from our youth, even to this day: and we have not hearkened to the voice of the Lord our God.

CHAP. IV.

An admonition to sincere repentance, and circumcision of the heart, with threats of grievous punishment to those that persist in sin.

IF thou wilt return, O Israel, saith the Lord, return to me: if thou wilt take away thy stumbling-blocks out of my sight, thou shalt not be moved.

VER. 15. Pastors. Zorobabel, &c. but more particularly Christ and his apostles.

VER. 16. Ark. It was no longer at Jerusalem. The law and its figures cease.

VER. 17. All. Many might embrace the Jewish religion. But the predictions of the prophets on this head, were not verified, till the gospel was preached. C.—Then many embraced the faith: several captives also returned to God. W.

VER. 18. North. Sept. add, "and from all places" where the Jews were in captivity. H.—Many thus returned to their own country. v. 14. C.—Israel had been led into captivity sooner, but all were released at once. Theodor. W.

VER. 19. Gentiles, which they all covet, or to which they are invited in the Church. C.—Me. On these conditions thou shalt be restored. H.

VER. 21. God. Hence proceed these miseries and lamentations.

VER. 23. Liars, unfruitful; and the idols have left us empty. C.—They were placed on the hills. Houbigant.

VER. 24. Confusion. Thus Baal was styled Boseth, contemptuously. Jer. xi. 13.

VER. 25. Shame. We are justly punished with exile (C.) and death. M.

2 And thou shalt swear: As the Lord liveth, in truth, and in judgment, and in justice: and the Gentiles shall bless him, and shall praise him.

2 For thus saith the Lord to the men of Juda and Jerusalem: "Break up anew your fallow ground, and sow not upon thorns:

4 Be circumcised to the Lord, and take away the foreskins of your hearts, ye men of Juda, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem: lest my indignation come forth like fire, and burn, and there be none that can quench it: because of the wickedness of your thoughts.

5 Declare ye in Juda, and make it heard in Jerusalem: speak, and sound with the trumpet in the land: cry aloud, and say: Assemble yourselves, and let us go into strong cities.

6 Set up the standard in Sion. Strengthen yourselves, stay not, ^bfor I bring evil from the north, and great destruction.

7 The lion is come up out of his den, and the robber of nations hath roused himself: he is come forth out of his place, to make thy land desolate: thy cities shall be laid waste, remaining without an inhabitant.

8 For this, gird yourself with hair-cloth, lament and howl: for the fierce anger of the Lord is not turned away from us.

9 And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord: That the heart of the king shall perish, and the heart of the princes: and the priests shall be astonished, and the prophets shall be amazed.

10 And I said: Alas, alas, alas, O Lord God, hast thou then deceived this people and Jerusalem, saying: You shall have peace: and behold the sword reacheth even to the soul?

11 At that time it shall be said to this people, and to Jerusalem: A burning wind is in the ways that are in the desert of the way of the daughter of my people, not to fan, nor to cleanse.

12 A full wind from these places shall come to me: and now I will speak my judgments with them.

13 Behold, he shall come up as clouds, and his chariots as a tempest: his horses are swifter than eagles: woe unto us, for we are laid waste.

14 Wash thy heart from wickedness, O Jerusalem, that thou mayst be saved: how long shall hurtful thoughts abide in thee?

15 For a voice of one declaring from Dan, and giving notice of the idol from Mount Ephraim.

CHAP. IV. VER. 1. Blocks; idols, (C.) and other occasions of sin. H.

VER. 2. Swear, when requisite. C.—Thus thou wilt learn to confess one God. Theod.—If all were upright, oaths would be unnecessary. Mat. v. 34. But as they are not so, (C.) this may be a religious act. W.—Justice. These three conditions are essential. H.—Him; the people, (C.) or God. S. Jer.—An oath must attest God, and be used when a thing is true and of moment. W.

VER. 3. Thorns. Your misconduct hinders your advancement. C.

VER. 4. Hearts. Understand, and act with purity. H.

VER. 5. Cities. Nabuchodonosor is at hand.

VER. 7. Robber. Nabuchodonosor attacks unjustly, (C.) though he be God's scourge.

VER. 9. Heart; counsel and vigour.—Prophets of falsehood.

VER. 10.—Alas! Prot. "Then I said: Ah! Lord God, surely thou hast deceived," &c. (H.) by permitting the people to follow false prophets. Is. lxi. 17. Ps. xliii. 19.

VER. 11. Desert of Arabia. It may designate Nechao, (2 Par. xxxv. 20.) who slew Josias, after whose death all fell to ruin.

VER. 15. Ephraim. At Bethel and Dan the calves were adored. C.—But 16 Say ye to the nations: Behold, it is heard in Jerusalem, that guards are coming from a far country, and give out their voice against the cities of Juda.

17 They are set round about her, as keepers of fields: because she hath provoked me to wrath, saith the Lord.

18 *Thy ways and thy devices have brought these things upon thee: this is thy wickedness, because it is bitter, because it hath touched thy heart.

19 My bowels, my bowels are in pain, the senses of my heart are troubled within me, I will not hold my peace, for my soul hath heard the sound of the trumpet, the cry of battle.

20 Destruction upon destruction is called for, and all the earth is laid waste: my tents are destroyed on a sudden, and my pavilions in a moment.

21 How long shall I see men fleeing away, how long shall I hear the sound of the trumpet?

22 For my foolish people have not known me: they are foolish and senseless children: they are wise to do evils, but to do good they have no knowledge.

23 I beheld the earth, and lo it was void, and nothing: and the heavens, and there was no light in them.

24 I looked upon the mountains, and behold they trembled: and all the hills were troubled.

25 I beheld, and lo there was no man: and all the birds of the air were gone.

26 I looked, and behold Carmel was a wilderness: and all its cities were destroyed at the presence of the Lord, and at the presence of the wrath of his indignation.

27 For thus saith the Lord: All the land shall be desolate, but yet I will not utterly destroy.

28 The earth shall mourn, and the heavens shall lament from above: because I have spoken, I have purposed, and I have not repented, neither am I turned away from it.

29 At the voice of the horsemen, and the archer, all the city is fled away: they have entered into thickets, and have climbed up the rocks: all the cities are forsaken, and there dwelleth not a man in them.

30 But when thou art spoiled, what wilt thou do? though thou clothest thyself with scarlet, though thou deckest thee with ornaments of gold, and paintest thy eyes with stibic-stone, thou shalt dress thyself out in they were now no more. H.—The irruption of Nabuchodonosor is announced. He set himself up for a god.

VER. 16. Guards. The Chaldees will besiege the city, and prevent provisions from entering. 4 K. xxv. 1. C.

VER. 19. My. God, (S. Jer.) the people, (Grot.) or rather Jeremiah speaks.

VER. 20. Moment. The cities are destroyed as easily as a tent.

VER. 22. Me, practically. They have not honoured me as they ought. C.

—If they were indeed devoid of sense, they would be excused. W.

VER. 23. Void. Heb. "Thohu and bohü," like chaos. Gen. i. 2. H.

VER. 25. Gone. Beasts feel the wrath of God, and in a land uninhabited; not even birds will remain. Osee iv. 3. S. Jer.

VER. 26. Carmel: the beautiful country of Palestine, (H.) Jerusalem, (Theod.) or the mountain so called.

VER. 27. Destroy, when Jechonias was led captive. God allowed the people still eleven years to repent; and he afterwards restored the Jews. C.—He will never suffer his church to perish. W.

VER. 28. Repented. Only a finite being can do this. God's resolution is here unconditional and fixed.

VER. 30. Stone, or antimony, like Jezabel, (4 K. ix. 30.) to darken and enlarge the eye-lids.—Lovers. Infidel nations of Egypt, &c.

VER. 31. Child. Heb. and Sept. "a first-born," when the pains are most acute. C.

CHAP. V. VER. 1. O, Jeremiah, and you who publicly adhere to me.—

vain: thy lovers have despised thee, they will seek thy life.

31 For I have heard the voice as of a woman in travail; anguishes, as of a woman in labour of a child. The voice of the daughter of Sion, dying away, spreading her hands: Woe is me, for my soul hath fainted because of them that are slain.

CHAP. V.

The judgments of God shall fall upon the Jews for their manifold sins.

GO about, through the streets of Jerusalem, and see, and consider, and seek in the broad places thereof, if you can find a man that executeth judgment, and seeketh faith: and I will be merciful unto it.

2 And though they say: The Lord liveth; this also they will swear falsely.

3 O Lord, thy eyes are upon truth: thou hast struck them, and they have not grieved: thou hast bruised them, and they have refused to receive correction: they have made their faces harder than the rock, and they have refused to return.

4 But I said: Perhaps these are poor and foolish, that know not the way of the Lord, the judgment of their God.

5 I will go therefore to the great men, and will speak to them: for they have known the way of the Lord, the judgment of their God: and, behold, these have altogether broken the yoke more, and have burst the bonds.

6 Wherefore a lion out of the wood hath slain them, a wolf in the evening hath spoiled them, a leopard watcheth for their cities: every one that shall go out thence, shall be taken, because their transgressions are multiplied, their rebellions are strengthened.

7 How can I be merciful to thee? thy children have forsaken me, and swear by them that are not gods: I fed them to the full, and they committed adultery, and rioted in the harlot's house.

8 They are become as amorous horses, and stallions: every one neighed after his neighbour's wife.

9 Shall I not visit for these things, saith the Lord? and shall not my soul take revenge on such a nation?

10 Scale the walls thereof, and throw them down, but do not utterly destroy: take away the branches thereof, because they are not the Lord's.

b Ezec. xxii. 11.

Man. Sodom would have been spared for the sake of ten just people. Gen. xviii. 32. Before the reform of Josias, Jerusalem was strangely corrupted, though these expressions be hyperbolic, and spoken as it were in the heat of debate. Josias, Holda, and others, were living at this time, and renowned for their piety.

VER. 2. Falsely. Some may confess my name. But they swear falsely. C. iv. 2. C.—Unless the requisite conditions be observed, an oath is unlawful. W.

VER. 3. Return. The miseries with which, Achaz, &c. were afflicted, produced no amendment.

VER. 4. Foolish idiots, (C.) who have had no means of receiving instruction. H.—Such might be more excusable; but when the chiefs offend, the evil is irremediable.

VER. 6. Lion. Nabuchodonosor.—Wolf. Cambyaes, (C.) and leopard. Epiphanes. H.—The Chaldees, Persians and Greeks afflict them. S. Jer.—The first beast may designate Nabuc: the second, Nabuzardan: the third, Alexander or Epiphanes. W.

VER. 7. How can. I have only the character of judge left. C.

VER. 10. Destroy, at the first taking of the city, v. 18. and C. iv. 27.—Branches. Children of Jechonias, (C. xxii. 30.) and the people. C.—Heb. "har battlements," (H.) Chal. "palaces."

11 For the house of Israel, and the house of Juda, have greatly transgressed against me, saith the Lord.

12 They have denied the Lord, and said, It is not he: and the evil shall not come upon us: we shall not see the sword and famine.

13 The prophets have spoken in the wind, and there was no word of God in them: these things therefore shall befall them.

14 Thus saith the Lord, the God of hosts: Because you have spoken this word: behold, I will make my words in thy mouth as fire, and this people as wood, and it shall devour them.

15 Behold, I will bring upon you a nation from afar, O house of Israel, saith the Lord: a strong nation, an ancient nation, a nation whose language thou shalt not know, nor understand what they say.

16 Their quiver is as an open sepulchre, they are all valiant.

17 And they shall eat up thy corn, and thy bread: they shall devour thy sons, and thy daughters: they shall eat up thy flocks, and thy herds: they shall eat thy vineyards, and thy figs: and with the sword they shall destroy thy strong cities, wherein thou trusteth.

18 Nevertheless, in those days, saith the Lord, I will not bring you to utter destruction.

19 *And if you shall say: Why hath the Lord our God done all these things to us? thou shalt say to them: As you have forsaken me, and served a strange god in your own land, so shall you serve strangers in a land that is not your own.

20 Declare ye this to the house of Jacob, and publish it in Juda, saying:

21 Hear, O foolish people, and without understanding: who have eyes, and see not: and ears, and hear not.

22 Will not you then fear me, saith the Lord? and will you not repent at my presence? I have set the sand a bound for the sea, an everlasting ordinance, which it shall not pass over: and the waves thereof shall toss themselves, and shall not prevail: they shall swell, and shall not pass over it.

23 But the heart of this people is become hard of belief, and provoking, they are revolted and gone away.

24 And they have not said in their heart: Let us fear the Lord our God, who giveth us the early and the latter rain in due season: who preserveth for us the fulness of the yearly harvest.

VER. 13. Them. The evil shall fall on the head of these impostors. So the wicked deride the prophets (C.) impugning the known truth. H.

VER. 14. Fire. Thou shalt declare their impending ruin.

VER. 15. Ancient. Nemrod founded the empire of Ninive and of Babylon. GEN. x. 10. Nabopolassar had succeeded to the ancient Assyrian and Chaldee sovereigns. Under his son, Nabuchodonosor, the dominions were much enlarged.—Say. 4 K. xviii. 26.

VER. 17. Devour. Heb. "destroy." They did not eat human flesh.

VER. 19. Own. You shall thus know the difference between the masters. C.

VER. 21. Understanding. Lit. "heart." C. iv. 22. H.

VER. 22. It. Nature and chance are improper terms. God regulates all, and has established those laws which preserve the world.

VER. 24. Rain, in autumn and in spring. Deut. xi. 14. C.—Fulness. Heb. "the weeks for harvest." H.—That of barley began at the Passover, and that of wheat ended before the feast of weeks, (Ex. xxxiv. 22. Lev. xxiii. 10. C.) or Pentecost. H.

VER. 25. Away. The rain comes unseasonably.

VER. 26. Men. As some tyrants have done, though this implies (C.) the eagerness with which the wicked strive to corrupt mankind. H.

25 Your iniquities have turned these things away, and your sins have withholden good things from you.

26 For among my people are found wicked men, that lie in wait as fowlers, setting snares and traps to catch men.

27 As a net is full of birds, so their houses are full of deceit: therefore are they become great and enriched.

28 They are grown gross and fat: and have most wickedly transgressed my words. ^bThey have not judged the cause of the widow; they have not managed the cause of the fatherless, and they have not judged the judgment of the poor.

29 Shall I not visit for these things, saith the Lord? or shall not my soul take revenge on such a nation?

30 Astonishing and wonderful things have been done in the land.

31 The prophets prophesied falsehood, and the priests clapped their hands: and my people loved such things: what then shall be done in the end thereof?

CHAP. VI.

The evils that threaten Jerusalem. She is invited to return, and walk in the good way, and not to rely on sacrifices without obedience.

STRENGTHEN yourselves, ye sons of Benjamin, in the midst of Jerusalem, and sound the trumpet in Thecua, and set up the standard over Bethacarem: for evil is seen out of the north, and a great destruction.

2 I have likened the daughter of Sion to a beautiful and delicate woman.

3 The shepherds shall come to her with their flocks: they have pitched their tents against her round about: every one shall feed them that are under his hand.

4 Prepare ye war against her: arise, and let us go up at mid-day: woe unto us, for the day is declined, for the shadows of the evening are grown longer.

5 Arise, and let us go up in the night, and destroy her houses.

6 For thus saith the Lord of hosts: Hew down her trees, cast up a trench about Jerusalem: this is the city to be visited, all oppression is in the midst of her.

7 As a cistern maketh its water cold, so hath she made her wickedness cold: violence and spoil shall be heard in her, infirmity and stripes are continually before me.

8 Be thou instructed, O Jerusalem, lest my soul depart from thee, lest I make thee desolate, a land uninhabited.

VER. 29. Nation? It is contrary to God's justice not to punish the guilty. W.

VER. 31. Clapped. Heb. "came down to, or received in, or domineered by their hands." The priests concurred with these impostors for their own ends. C.

CHAP. VI. VER. 1. Strengthen. Heb. also, "Flee, Benjamites, from the midst," &c. Jerusalem belonged partly to this tribe, which prided itself on its valour.—Thecua was in the lot of Juda, 15 miles south of Jerusalem.—North. The Chaldees approach. C. i. 13. C.

VER. 3. Shepherds. So captains are styled, because they feed and govern soldiers. W.

VER. 4. Prepare. Lit. "sanctify." Observe the usual formalities of demanding reparation, offering victims, &c. The Chaldees thus encourage one another, and will allow themselves no rest day or night. v. 5.

VER. 7. Cold. Heb. "come forth." All the citizens imitate her vices.

VER. 8. Instructed, by afflictions and prosperity, by public and internal admonitions. Wilful ignorance is criminal, and drives God away. C. li. 9. Ps. lxxx. 12.

9 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: They shall gather the remains of Israel, as in a vine, even to one cluster: turn back thy hand, as a grape-gatherer into the basket.

10 To whom shall I speak? and to whom shall I testify, that he may hear? behold, their ears are uncircumcised, and they cannot hear: behold, the word of the Lord is become unto them a reproach: and they will not receive it.

11 Therefore am I full of the fury of the Lord, I am weary with holding in: pour it out upon the child abroad, and upon the council of the young men together: for man and woman shall be taken, the ancient, and he that is full of days.

12 And their houses shall be turned over to others, with their lands and their wives together: for I will stretch forth my hand upon the inhabitants of the land, saith the Lord.

13 *For from the least of them even to the greatest, all are given to covetousness: and from the prophet, even to the priest, all are guilty of deceit.

14 And they healed the breach of the daughter of my people disgracefully, saying: Peace, peace: and there was no peace.

15 They were confounded, because they committed abomination: yea, rather they were not confounded with confusion, and they knew not how to blush: wherefore they shall fall among them that fall: in the time of their visitation they shall fall down, saith the Lord.

16 Thus saith the Lord: Stand ye on the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, which is the good way, and walk ye in it: ^band you shall find refreshment for your souls. And they said: We will not walk.

17 And I appointed watchmen over you, saying: Harken ye to the sound of the trumpet. And they said: We will not hearken.

18 Therefore, hear, ye nations, and know, O congregation, what great things I will do to them.

19 Hear, O earth: Behold, I will bring evils upon this people, the fruit of their own thoughts: because they have not heard my words, and they have cast away my law.

20 *To what purpose do you bring me frankincense from Saba, and the sweet smelling cane from a far country? your holocausts are not acceptable, nor are your sacrifices pleasing to me.

21 Therefore, thus saith the Lord: Behold, I will bring destruction upon this people, by which fathers

24 We have heard the fame thereof, our hands grew feeble: anguish hath taken hold of us, as a woman in labour.

25 Go not out into the fields, nor walk in the highway: for the sword of the enemy, and fear, is on every side.

26 Gird thee with sackcloth, O daughter of my people, and sprinkle thee with ashes: make thee mourning as for an only son, a bitter lamentation, because the destroyer shall suddenly come upon us.

27 I have set thee for a strong trier among my people: and thou shalt know, and prove their way.

28 All these princes go out of the way, they walk deceitfully, they are brass and iron: they are all corrupted.

29 The bellows have failed, the lead is consumed in the fire, the founder hath melted in vain: for their wicked deeds are not consumed.

CHAP. VII.

The temple of God shall not protect a sinful people, without a sincere conversion. The Lord will not receive the prayers of the prophet for them; because they are obstinate in their sins.

THE word that came to Jeremias from the Lord, saying:

2 Stand in the gate of the house of the Lord, and proclaim there this word, and say: Hear ye the word of the Lord, all ye men of Juda, that enter in at these gates, to adore the Lord.

3 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: ^aMake your ways and your doings good: and I will dwell with you in this place.

4 Trust not in lying words, saying: The temple of the Lord, the temple of the Lord, it is the temple of the Lord.

VER. 3. Dwell. Heb. "make you dwell here." H.

VER. 4. Lord. The triple repetition shews the vain confidence of the people, who blindly imagined that the temple would screen them, (C.) and that external sacrifices would suffice. But they were rejected with the temple. W.

6 If you oppress not the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, and shed not innocent blood in this place, and walk not after strange gods to your own hurt:

7 I will dwell with you in this place: in the land, which I gave to your fathers from the beginning, and for evermore.

8 Behold, you put your trust in lying words, which shall not profit you:

9 To steal, to murder, to commit adultery, to swear falsely, to offer to Baalim, and to go after strange gods, which you know not.

10 And you have come, and stood before me in this house, in which my name is called upon, and have said: We are delivered, because we have done all these abominations.

11 *Is this house then, in which my name hath been called upon, in your eyes become a den of robbers? I, I am he: I have seen it, saith the Lord.

12 Go ye to my place in Silo, where my name dwelt from the beginning: and see what I did to it for the wickedness of my people Israel:

13 And now, because you have done all these works, saith the Lord: and I have spoken to you rising up early, and speaking, and you have not heard: and I have called you, and you have not answered:

14 *I will do to this house, in which my name is called upon, and in which you trust, and to the place which I have given you and your fathers, as I did to Silo.

15 And I will cast you away from before my face, as I have cast away all your brethren, the whole seed of Ephraim.

16 *Therefore do not thou pray for this people, nor take to thee praise and supplication for them, and do not withstand me: for I will not hear thee.

17 Seest thou not what they do in the cities of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem?

18 The children gather wood, and the fathers kindle the fire, and the women knead the dough, to make cakes to the queen of heaven, and to offer libations to strange gods, and to provoke me to anger.

19 Do they provoke me to anger, saith the Lord? is it not themselves, to the confusion of their own countenance?

20 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: Behold, my wrath and my indignation is enkindled against this place, upon men and upon beasts, and upon the trees of the field, and upon the fruits of the land, and it shall burn, and shall not be quenched.

21 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Add your burnt-offerings to your sacrifices, and eat ye the flesh.

22 For I spoke not to your fathers, and I commanded them not, in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, concerning the matter of burnt-offerings and sacrifices.

23 But this thing I commanded them, saying: Harken to my voice, and I will be your God, and you shall be my people: and walk ye in all the way, that I have commanded you, that it may be well with you.

24 But they hearkened not, nor inclined their ear: but walked in their own will, and in the perversity of their wicked heart: and went backward and not forward,

25 From the day that their fathers came out of the land of Egypt, even to this day. And I have sent to you all my servants, the prophets, from day to day, rising up early and sending.

26 And they have not hearkened to me: nor inclined their ear: but have hardened their neck, and have done worse than their fathers.

27 And thou shalt speak to them all these words, but they will not hearken to thee: and thou shalt call them, but they will not answer thee.

28 And thou shalt say to them: This is a nation which hath not hearkened to the voice of the Lord their God, nor received instruction: faith is lost, and is taken away out of their mouth.

29 Cut off thy hair, and cast it away: and take up a lamentation on high: for the Lord hath rejected, and forsaken the generation of his wrath,

30 Because the children of Juda have done evil in my eyes, saith the Lord. They have set their abominations in the house in which my name is called upon, to pollute it:

Other evils that shall fall upon the Jews for their impenitence.

AT that time, saith the Lord, they shall cast out the bones of the kings of Juda, and the bones of the princes thereof, and the bones of the priests, and the bones of the prophets, and the bones of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, out of their graves.

2 And they shall spread them abroad to the sun, and the moon, and all the host of heaven, whom they have loved, and whom they have served, and after whom they have walked, and whom they have sought, and adored: they shall not be gathered, and they shall not be buried: they shall be as dung upon the face of the earth.

3 And death shall be chosen rather than life, by all that shall remain of this wicked kindred in all places, which are left, to which I have cast them out, saith the Lord of hosts.

4 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord: Shall not he that falleth, rise again? and he that is turned away, shall he not turn again?

5 Why then is this people in Jerusalem turned away with a stubborn revolting? they have laid hold on lying, and have refused to return.

9 The wise men are confounded, they are dismayed, and taken: for they have cast away the word of the Lord, and there is no wisdom in them.

10 ^b Therefore will I give their women to strangers, their fields to others for an inheritance: because from the least, even to the greatest, all follow covetousness: from the prophet, even to the priest, all deal deceitfully.

CHAP. IX.

The prophet laments the miseries of his people: and their sins, which are the cause of them. He exhorts them to repentance.

WHO will give water to my head, and a fountain of tears to my eyes? and I will weep day and night for the slain of the daughter of my people.

2 Who will give me in the wilderness a lodging-place of wayfaring men, and I will leave my people, and depart from them? because they are all adulterers, an assembly of transgressors.

3 And they have bent their tongue, as a bow, for lies, and not for truth: they have strengthened themselves upon the earth, for they have proceeded from evil to evil, and me they have not known, saith the Lord.

4 Let every man take heed of his neighbour, and let him not trust in any brother of his: for every brother will utterly supplant, and every friend will walk deceitfully.

5 And a man shall mock his brother, and they will not speak the truth: for they have taught their tongue to speak lies: they have laboured to commit iniquity.

6 Thy habitation is in the midst of deceit: through deceit they have refused to know me, saith the Lord.

7 Therefore, thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold I will melt, and try them: for what else shall I do before the daughter of my people?

8 *Their tongue is a piercing arrow, it hath spoken deceit: with his mouth one speaketh peace with his friend, and secretly he lieth in wait for him.

3 For the laws of the people are vain: ^bfor the work of the hand of the workman hath cut a tree out of the forest with an axe.

The prophet proclaims the covenant of God: and denounces evils to the obstinate transgressors of it. The conspiracy of the Jews against him, a figure of their conspiracy against Christ.

2 Hear ye the words of this covenant, and speak to the men of Juda, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

3 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel: Cursed is the man that shall not hearken to the words of this covenant.

4 Which I commanded your fathers, in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, from the iron furnace, saying: Hear ye my voice, and do all things that I command you: and you shall be my people, and I will be your God:

5 That I may accomplish the oath which I swore to your fathers, to give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as it is this day. And I answered, and said: Amen, O Lord.

6 And the Lord said to me: Proclaim aloud all these words in the cities of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem, saying: Hear ye the words of this covenant, and do them:

7 For protesting, I conjured your fathers in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, even to this day: rising early, I conjured them, and said: Harken ye to my voice:

8 And they obeyed not, nor inclined their ear: but walked every one in the perverseness of his own wicked heart: and I brought upon them all the words of this covenant, which I commanded them to do, but they did them not.

9 And the Lord said to me: A conspiracy is found among the men of Juda, and among the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

10 They are returned to the former iniquities of their fathers, who refused to hear my words: so these likewise have gone after strange gods, to serve them: the house of Israel, and the house of Juda, have made void my covenant, which I made with their fathers.

11 Wherefore thus saith the Lord: Behold I will bring in evils upon them, which they shall not be able to escape: and they shall cry to me, and I will not hearken to them.

12 And the cities of Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem shall go, and cry to the gods to whom they offer sacrifice, and they shall not save them in the time of their affliction.

13 *For according to the number of thy cities were thy gods, O Juda: and according to the number of the streets of Jerusalem, thou hast set up altars of confusion, altars to offer sacrifice to Baalim.

14 ^bTherefore do not thou pray for this people, and do not take up praise and prayer for them: for I will not hear them in the time of their cry to me, in the time of their affliction.

15 What is the meaning, that my beloved hath wrought much wickedness in my house? shall the holy flesh take away from thee thy crimes, in which thou hast boasted?

16 The Lord called thy name, a plentiful olive-tree, fair, fruitful, and beautiful: at the noise of a word, a great fire was kindled in it, and the branches thereof are burnt.

17 And the Lord of hosts, that planted thee, hath pronounced evil against thee: for the evils of the house of Israel, and of the house of Juda, which they have done to themselves, to provoke me, offering sacrifice to Baalim.

18 But thou, O Lord, hast shewn me, and I have known: then thou shewedst me their doings.

19 And I was as a meek lamb, that is carried to be a victim: and I knew not that they had devised counsels against me, saying: Let us put wood on his bread, and cut him off from the land of the living, and let his name be remembered no more.

20 ^cBut thou, O Lord of Sabaoth, who judgest justly, and triest the reins and the hearts, let me see thy revenge on them: for to thee have I revealed my cause.

21 Therefore thus saith the Lord to the men of Anathoth, who seek thy life, and say: Thou shalt not

CHAP. XII.

The prosperity of the wicked shall be but for a short time. The desolation of the Jews for their sins. Their return from their captivity.

THOU indeed, O Lord, art just, if I plead with thee, ^abut yet I will speak what is just to thee: ^bWhy doth the way of the wicked prosper: why is it well with all them that transgress, and do wickedly?

2 Thou hast planted them, and they have taken root: they prosper and bring forth fruit: thou art near in their mouth, and far from their reins.

3 And thou, O Lord, hast known me; thou hast seen me, and proved my heart with thee: gather them together as sheep for a sacrifice, and prepare them for the day of slaughter.

4 How long shall the land mourn, and the herb of every field wither for the wickedness of them that dwell therein? The beasts and the birds are consumed: because they have said: He shall not see our last end.

7 I have forsaken my house, I have left my inheritance: I have given my dear soul into the hand of her enemies.

10 Many pastors have destroyed my vineyard, they have trodden my portion under foot: they have changed my delightful portion into a desolate wilderness.

11 They have laid it waste, and it hath mourned for me. With desolation is all the land made desolate: because there is none that considereth in the heart.

12 The spoilers are come upon all the ways of the wilderness, for the sword of the Lord shall devour from one end of the land to the other end thereof: there is no peace for all flesh.

13 They have sown wheat, and reaped thorns: they have received an inheritance, and it shall not profit them: you shall be ashamed of your fruits, because of the fierce wrath of the Lord.

14 Thus saith the Lord, against all my wicked neighbours, that touch the inheritance that I have shared out to my people Israel: Behold, I will pluck them out of their land, and I will pluck the house of Juda out of the midst of them.

15 And when I shall have plucked them out, I will return, and have mercy on them: and I will bring them back every man to his inheritance, and every man into his land.

16 And it shall come to pass, if they will be taught, and will learn the ways of my people, to swear by my name, The Lord liveth; as they have taught my people to swear by Baal: that they shall be built up in the midst of my people.

17 But if they will not hear, I will utterly pluck out and destroy that nation, saith the Lord.

Under the figure of a linen girdle is foretold the destruction of the Jews. Their obstinacy in sin brings all miseries upon them.

THUS saith the Lord to me: Go, and get thee a linen girdle, and thou shalt put it about thy loins, and shalt not put it into water.

2 And I got a girdle according to the word of the Lord, and put it about my loins.

VER. 4. Euphrates, above 150 leagues distant. Some think this was only to be done in spirit: but it is generally supposed that the prophet made this long about thy loins, and arise, go to the Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole of the rock.

5 And I went and hid it by the Euphrates, as the Lord had commanded me.

6 And it came to pass after many days, that the Lord said to me: Arise, go to the Euphrates, and take from thence the girdle, which I commanded thee to hide there.

7 And I went to the Euphrates, and digged, and took the girdle out of the place where I had hid it: and behold, the girdle was rotten, so that it was fit for no use.

8 And the word of the Lord came to me saying:

9 Thus saith the Lord: After this manner will I make the pride of Juda, and the great pride of Jerusalem to rot.

10 This wicked people, that will not hear my words, and that walk in the perverseness of their heart, and have gone after strange gods to serve them, and to adore them: and they shall be as this girdle, which is fit for no use.

11 For as the girdle sticketh close to the loins of a man, so have I brought close to me all the house of Israel, and all the house of Juda, saith the Lord: that they might be my people, and for a name, and for a praise, and for a glory: but they would not hear.

12 Thou shalt speak therefore to them this word: Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel: Every bottle shall be filled with wine. And they shall say to thee: Do we not know that every bottle shall be filled with wine?

13 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord: Behold, I will fill all the inhabitants of this land, and the kings of the race of David that sit upon his throne, and the priests, and the prophets, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, with drunkenness.

14 And I will scatter them every man from his brother, and fathers and sons in like manner, saith the Lord: I will not spare, and I will not pardon: nor will I have mercy, but destroy them.

15 Hear ye, and give ear. Be not proud, for the Lord hath spoken.

16 Give ye glory to the Lord your God, before it be dark, and before your feet stumble upon the dark mountains: you shall look for light, and he will turn it into the shadow of death, and into darkness.

17 But if you will not hear this, my soul shall weep in secret for your pride: *weeping, it shall weep, and my eyes shall run down with tears, because the flock of the Lord is carried away captive.

18 Say to the king, and to the queen: Humble yourselves, sit down: for the crown of your glory is come down from your head.

19 The cities of the south are shut up, and there is none to open them: all Juda is carried away captive with an entire captivity.

20 Lift up your eyes, and see, you that come from the north: where is the flock that is given thee, thy beautiful cattle?

21 What wilt thou say when he shall visit thee? for thou hast taught them against thee, and instructed them against thy own head: shall not sorrows lay hold on thee, as a woman in labour?

22 And if thou shalt say in thy heart: Why are these things come upon me? ^bFor the greatness of thy iniquity, thy nakedness is discovered, the soles of thy feet are defiled.

23 If the Ethiopian can change his skin, or the leopard his spots: you also may do well, when you have learned evil.

24 And I will scatter them as stubble, which is carried away by the wind in the desert.

25 This is thy lot, and the portion of thy measure from me, saith the Lord, because thou hast forgotten me, and hast trusted in falsehood.

26 Wherefore I have also bared thy thighs against thy face, and thy shame hath appeared.

27 I have seen thy adulteries, and thy neighing, the wickedness of thy fornication, and thy abominations, upon the hills in the field. Woe to thee, Jerusalem, wilt thou not be made clean after me: how long yet?

journey twice. Bochart suggests that Euphrates (Heb. Peratha) may be put for Ephrata, or Bethlehem, as the first syllable is often cut off. C.—Yet a journey to the Euphrates would represent more strikingly the destination of the people; and it would not be difficult for God to convey Jeremias thither in a short time, if requisite, as he sent Habacuc through the air to carry a dinner to Daniel; (xiv. 32.) though this supposition is not here necessary, as the labour to which Jeremias was repeatedly exposed, might shew the people their manifold transgressions and captivities. 7 If our iniquities have testified against us, O Lord, do thou it for thy name's sake, for our rebellions are many, we have sinned against thee.

8 O expectation of Israel, the Saviour thereof in time of trouble: why wilt thou be as a stranger in the land, and as a way-faring man turning in to lodge?

W.—And Samuel. These two had shewn a particular love for the people. Ex. xxxii. and 2 K. xii. C.—Ezekiel (xiv. 4.) specifies Noe, Daniel, and Job, who were eminent for sanctity. Daniel was still alive. Yet God will not grant their request; and he forbids his prophet to pray for those who were resolved not to repent. C. xiv. 11. H.—Their punishment was fixed, and God will not remit it at the request either of the living or of the dead. Hence it is evident, that the dead could and did sometimes make intercession, otherwise they would not here be mentioned. To evade this argument, Prot. in the Geneva Bible, suppose God's "meaning to be, that if there were any man living, moved with so great zeal towards the people as were these two, yet he would not grant their request, for so much as he had determined the contrary." Yet surely Jeremias, Daniel, &c. had a similar zeal; and therefore the text speaks of Moses and Samuel in a state of happiness, where their charity is greater than in this life, as S. Jer. S. Chry. (hom. 1. in 1. Thess.) and S. Greg. (Mor. ix. 12.) explain it. W.—Jeremias had been praying earnestly for the people in the temple. But God answers his request with a severity rarely witnessed in Scripture, ordering him to drive the people out, or to announce that they should be thus treated. C.

5 For who shall have pity on thee, O Jerusalem? or who shall bemoan thee? or who shall go to pray for thy peace?

6 Thou hast forsaken me, saith the Lord, thou art gone backward: and I will stretch out my hand against thee, and I will destroy thee: I am weary of intreating thee.

7 And I will scatter them with a fan in the gates of the land: I have killed and destroyed my people, and yet they are not returned from their ways.

8 Their widows are multiplied unto me above the sand of the sea: I have brought upon them against the mother of the young man, a spoiler at noon-day: I have cast a terror on a sudden upon the cities.

9 *She that hath borne seven is become weak, her soul hath fainted away: *her sun is gone down, while it was yet day: she is confounded, and ashamed: and the residue of them I will give up to the sword in the sight of their enemies, saith the Lord.

10 Woe is me, my mother: why hast thou borne me a man of strife, a man of contention to all the earth? I have not lent on usury, neither hath any man lent to me on usury, yet all curse me.

11 The Lord saith to me: Assuredly it shall be well with thy remnant, assuredly I shall help thee in the time of affliction, and in the time of tribulation, against the enemy.

17 *I sat not in the assembly of jesters, nor did I make a boast of the presence of thy hand: I sat alone, because thou hast filled me with threats.

18 *Why is my sorrow become perpetual, and my wound desperate, so as to refuse to be healed? it is become to me as the falsehood of deceitful waters that cannot be trusted.

19 Therefore, thus saith the Lord: If thou wilt be converted, I will convert thee, and thou shalt stand before my face: and if thou wilt separate the precious from the vile, thou shalt be as my mouth: they shall be turned to thee, and thou shalt not be turned to them.

20 And I will make thee to this people as a strong wall of brass: and they shall fight against thee, and shall not prevail: for I am with thee to save thee, and to deliver thee, saith the Lord.

21 And I will deliver thee out of the hand of the wicked, and I will redeem thee out of the hand of the mighty.

CHAP. XVI.

The prophet is forbid to marry. The Jews shall be utterly ruined for their idolatry: but shall at length be released from their captivity, and the Gentiles shall be converted.

CHAP. XVI. VER. 2. Place. It was going to be destroyed, and the cares of a family might interrupt the prophet. The Fathers believe that Jeremiah never married, (see S. Jer. in C. xxiii. laidor.) which was then a rare example.

3 For thus saith the Lord concerning the sons and daughters, that are born in this place, and concerning their mothers that bore them: and concerning their fathers, of whom they were born in this land:

4 They shall die by the death of grievous illnesses: they shall not be lamented, and they shall not be buried, they shall be as dung upon the face of the earth: and they shall be consumed with the sword, and with famine: and their carcasses shall be meat for the fowls of the air, and for the beasts of the earth.

5 For thus saith the Lord: Enter not into the house of feasting, neither go thou to mourn, nor to comfort them: because I have taken away my peace from this people, saith the Lord, my mercy and commiserations.

6 Both the great and the little shall die in this land: they shall not be buried nor lamented, and men shall not cut themselves, nor make themselves bald for them.

7 And they shall not break bread among them to him that mourneth, to comfort him for the dead: neither shall they give them to drink of the cup, to comfort them for their father and mother.

8 And do not thou go into the house of feasting, to sit with them, and to eat and drink:

9 For thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will take away out of this place, in your sight, and in your days, the voice of mirth, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride.

10 And when thou shalt tell this people all these words, and they shall say to thee: "Wherefore hath the Lord pronounced against us all this great evil? what is our iniquity? and what is our sin, that we have sinned against the Lord our God?"

11 Thou shalt say to them: Because your fathers forsook me, saith the Lord: and went after strange gods, and served them, and adored them: and they forsook me, and kept not my law.

12 ^bAnd you also have done worse than your fathers: for behold every one of you walketh after the perverseness of his evil heart, so as not to hearken to me.

13 So will I cast you forth out of this land, into a land which you know not, nor your fathers: and there you shall serve strange gods day and night, which shall not give you any rest.

14 Therefore, behold the days come, saith the Lord, when it shall be said no more: The Lord liveth, that brought forth the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt.

15 But, The Lord liveth, that brought the children of Israel out of the land of the north, and out of all the lands to which I cast them out: and I will bring them again into their land, which I gave to their fathers.

16 Behold, I will send many fishers, saith the Lord, and they shall fish them: and after this I will send them many hunters, and they shall hunt them from every mountain, and from every hill, and out of the holes of the rocks.

17 For my eyes are upon all their ways: they are not hid from my face, and their iniquity hath not been hid from my eyes.

18 And I will repay first their double iniquities, and their sins: because they have defiled my land with the carcasses of their idols, and they have filled my inheritance with their abominations.

19 O Lord, my might, and my strength, and my refuge in the day of tribulation: to thee the Gentiles shall come from the ends of the earth, and shall say: Surely our fathers have possessed lies, a vanity which hath not profited them.

20 Shall a man make gods unto himself, and they are no gods?

21 Therefore, behold I will this once cause them to know, I will shew them my hand and my power: and they shall know that my name is the Lord.

CHAP. XVII.

For their obstinacy in sin the Jews shall be led captive. He is cursed that trusteth in flesh: God alone searcheth the heart, giving to every one as he deserves. The prophet prayeth to be delivered from his enemies: and preacheth up the observance of the sabbath.

THE sin of Juda is written with a pen of iron, with the point of a diamond, it is graven upon the table of their heart, and upon the horns of their altars.

CHAP. XVII. VER. 1. The. Grabe (de Vit. p. 8.) observes that the four first verses were omitted in the Sept. by some careless transcriber, long before the days of Origen, who restored them from the Heb. and the other Gr. versions. On such occasions his work was very useful; but the marks being soon neglected, great confusion ensued. S. Jer. Kennicott, Dis. ii.—Grabe has restored these verses in his edition. H.—Eusebius (Dem. x.) and Theodoret acknowledged them; and Nobilius found the first verse thus expressed in many copies, (C.) as it is in Grabe: "The sin of Juda is expressed in writing with a finger nail of adamant, cleaving to the breast of," &c. H.—Altars, to appear more conspicuously to the latest times. This excited God's indignation. C.—These figurative expressions shew the inveterate malice of the people. W.

4 And thou shalt be left stript of thy inheritance, which I gave thee: and I will make thee serve thy enemies in a land which thou knowest not: because thou hast kindled a fire in my wrath, it shall burn for ever.

5 Thus saith the Lord: "Cursed be the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm, and whose heart departeth from the Lord.

7 Blessed be the man that trusteth in the Lord, and the Lord shall be his confidence.

8 "And he shall be as a tree that is planted by the waters, that spreadeth out its roots towards moisture: and it shall not fear when the heat cometh. And the leaf thereof shall be green, and in the time of drought it shall not be solicitous, neither shall it cease at any time to bring forth fruit.

VER. 13. Earth, where alone their portion shall be, (Apoc. iii. 5,) or they shall be forgotten. It is a proverbial expression, like that of Catullus:

15 Behold, they say to me: Where is the word of the Lord? let it come.

16 And I am not troubled, following thee for my pastor, and I have not desired the day of man, thou knowest. That which went out of my lips, hath been right in thy sight.

17 Be not thou a terror unto me, thou art my hope in the day of affliction.

18 Let them be confounded that persecute me, and let not me be confounded: let them be afraid, and let not me be afraid: bring upon them the day of affliction, and with a double destruction, destroy them.

19 Thus saith the Lord to me: Go, and stand in the gate of the children of the people, by which the kings of Juda come in, and go out, and in all the gates of Jerusalem:

20 And thou shalt say to them: Hear the word of the Lord, ye kings of Juda, and all Juda, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, that enter in by these gates.

21 Thus saith the Lord: Take heed to your souls, and carry no burdens on the sabbath-day: and bring them not in by the gates of Jerusalem.

22 And do not bring burdens out of your houses on the sabbath-day, neither do ye any work: sanctify the sabbath-day, as I commanded your fathers.

23 But they did not hear, nor inclined their ear: but hardened their neck, that they might not hear me, and might not receive instruction.

24 And it shall come to pass: if you will hearken to me, saith the Lord, to bring in no burdens by the gates of this city on the sabbath-day: and if you will sanctify the sabbath-day to do no work therein:

25 Then shall there enter in by the gates of this city kings and princes, sitting upon the throne of David, and riding in chariots and on horses, they and their princes, the men of Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem: and this city shall be inhabited for ever.

26 And they shall come from the cities of Juda, and from the places round about Jerusalem, and from the land of Benjamin, and from the plains, and from the mountains, and from the south, bringing holocausts, and victims, and sacrifices, and frankincense, and they shall bring in an offering into the house of the Lord.

CHAP. XVIII.

As clay in the hand of the potter, so is Israel in God's hand. He pardoneth penitents, and punisheth the obstinate. They conspire against Jeremias, for which he denounceth to them the miseries that hang over them.

THE word that came to Jeremias from the Lord, saying:

2 Arise, and go down into the potter's house, and there thou shalt hear my words.

3 And I went down into the potter's house, and behold he was doing a work on the wheel.

4 And the vessel was broken which he was making of clay with his hands: and turning, he made another vessel, as it seemed good in his eyes to make it.

5 Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

6 "Cannot I do with you, as this potter, O house of Israel, saith the Lord? behold as clay is in the hand of the potter, so are you in my hand, O house of Israel.

7 I will suddenly speak against a nation, and against a kingdom, to root out, and to pull down, and to destroy it.

8 If that nation against which I have spoken, shall repent of their evil, I also will repent of the evil that I have thought to do to them.

9 And I will suddenly speak of a nation and of a kingdom, to build up and plant it.

10 If it shall do evil in my sight, that it obey not my voice: I will repent of the good that I have spoken to do unto it.

11 Now, therefore, tell the men of Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying: Thus saith the Lord: Behold I frame evil against you, and devise a device against you: "let every man of you return from his evil way, and make ye your ways and your doings good.

12 And they said: We have no hopes: for we will go after our own thoughts, and we will do every one according to the perverseness of his evil heart.

nations: Who hath heard such horrible things, as the virgin of Israel hath done to excess?

14 Shall the snow of Libanus fail from the rock of the field? or can the cold waters that gush out and run down, be taken away?

15 Because my people have forgotten me, sacrificing in vain, and stumbling in their ways, in ancient paths, to walk by them in a way not trodden:

16 "That their land might be given up to desolation, and to a perpetual hissing: every one that shall pass by it, shall be astonished, and wag his head.

17 As a burning wind will I scatter them before the enemy: I will shew them the back, and not the face, in the day of their destruction.

18 And they said: Come, and let us invent devices against Jeremias: for the law shall not perish from the priest, nor counsel from the wise, nor the word from the prophet: come, and let us strike him with the tongue, and let us give no heed to all his words.

19 Give heed to me, O Lord, and hear the voice of my adversaries.

20 Shall evil be rendered for good, because they have digged a pit for my soul? Remember that I have stood in thy sight, to speak good for them, and to turn away thy indignation from them.

21 Therefore, deliver up their children to famine, and bring them into the hands of the sword: let their wives be bereaved of children, and widows: and let their husbands be slain by death: let their young men be stabbed with the sword in battle.

22 Let a cry be heard out of their houses: for thou shalt bring the robber upon them suddenly: because they have digged a pit to take me, and have hid snares for my feet.

23 But thou, O Lord, knowest all their counsel against me unto death: forgive not their iniquity, and let not their sin be blotted out from thy sight: let them be overthrown before thy eyes, in the time of thy wrath do thou destroy them.

VER. 18. Prophet. Jeremias will not cease to upbraid us with our transgressions; or we have guides as good as him, and we shall not be left destitute, as he would intimate.—Tongue, detraction; or make him suffer for what he says. In all the transactions of this prophet, Christ was foreshewn; (C.) and here, particularly, the Jews demand the crucifixion. S. Jer. W.

VER. 20. Remember, &c. This is spoken in the person of Christ, persecuted by the Jews, and prophetically denouncing the evils that should fall upon them in punishment of their crimes. Ch.—Jeremias had prayed earnestly for the people. C. xiv. 17. H.

VER. 21. Therefore. He foretells of the event, and approves of the chastisement of the impenitent, (C.) whose "impurity might be a bad precedent for others. S. Jer. See C. xvii. 18.

VER. 22. For. Prot. "when." H.—Robber. So Nabuchodonosor and all professional conquerors are styled. C.

VER. 23. Destroy. Heb. "with them." Use them as vessels of ignominy: abutare. H.

CHAP. XIX. VER. 1. Priests. They were to furnish the vessel, and accompany the prophet. v. 10. Sept. "and thou shalt take some of," &c. H.—Words and actions together instruct most powerfully. S. Jer. W.

2 And go forth into the valley of the son of Ennom, which is by the entry of the earthen gate: and there thou shalt proclaim the words that I shall tell thee.

3 And thou shalt say: Hear the word of the Lord, O ye kings of Juda, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem: Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold I will bring an affliction upon this place: so that whosoever shall hear it, his ears shall tingle:

4 Because they have forsaken me, and have profaned this place: and have sacrificed therein to strange gods, whom neither they, nor their fathers knew, nor the kings of Juda: and they have filled this place with the blood of innocents.

5 And they have built the high places of Baalim, to burn their children with fire for a holocaust to Baalim: which I did not command, nor speak of, neither did it once come into my mind.

6 Therefore, behold the days come, saith the Lord, that this place shall no more be called Topheth, nor the valley of the son of Ennom, but the valley of slaughter.

7 And I will defeat the counsel of Juda, and of Jerusalem, in this place: and I will destroy them with the sword in the sight of their enemies, and by the hands of them that seek their lives: and I will give their carcasses to be meat for the fowls of the air, and for the beasts of the earth.

8 *And I will make this city an astonishment, and a hissing: every one that shall pass by it, shall be astonished, and shall hiss, because of all the plagues thereof.

9 And I will feed them with the flesh of their sons, and with the flesh of their daughters: and they shall eat every one the flesh of his friend in the siege, and in the distress wherewith their enemies, and they that seek their lives, shall straiten them.

10 And thou shalt break the bottle in the sight of the men that shall go with thee.

11 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Even so will I break this people, and this city, as the potter's vessel is broken, which cannot be made whole again: and they shall be buried in Topheth, because there is no other place to bury in.

12 Thus will I do to this place, saith the Lord, and to the inhabitants thereof: and I will make this city as Topheth.

VER. 13. Topheth. This sentence was not in S. Jerom's Heb. copy, but in the Sept. (C.) with some variations: (H.) 13 And the houses of Jerusalem, and the houses of the kings of Juda, shall be unclean as the place of Topheth: all the houses, upon whose roofs they have sacrificed to all the host of heaven, and have poured out drink-offerings to strange gods.

14 Then Jeremias came from Topheth, whither the Lord had sent him to prophesy, and he stood in the court of the house of the Lord, and said to all the people:

15 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold I will bring in upon this city, and upon all the cities thereof, all the evils that I have spoken against it: because they have hardened their necks, that they might not hear my words.

CHAP. XX.

The prophet is persecuted: he denounces captivity to his persecutors, and bemoans himself.

NOW Phassur, the son of Emmer, the priest, who was appointed chief in the house of the Lord, heard Jeremias prophesying these words.

2 And Phassur struck Jeremias, the prophet, and put him in the stocks, that were in the upper gate of Benjamin, in the house of the Lord.

3 And when it was light the next day, Phassur brought Jeremias out of the stocks. And Jeremias said to him: The Lord hath not called thy name Phassur, but fear on every side.

4 For thus saith the Lord: Behold, I will deliver thee up to fear, thee and all thy friends: and they shall fall by the sword of their enemies, and thy eyes shall see it, and I will give all Juda into the hand of the king of Babylon: and he shall carry them away to Babylon, and shall strike them with the sword.

5 And I will give all the substance of this city, and all its labour, and every precious thing thereof, and all the treasures of the kings of Juda will I give into the hands of their enemies: and they shall pillage them, and take them away, and carry them to Babylon.

6 But thou, Phassur, and all that dwell in thy house, shall go into captivity, and thou shalt go to Babylon, and there thou shalt die, and there thou shalt be buried, thou and all thy friends, to whom thou hast prophesied a lie.

CHAP. XX. VER. 1. Son, or descendant. His father was Melchias. C. xxi. 1. and 1 Par. ix. 12. C.—Chief: high priest, (Theod.) or rather a chief officer (C. xxix. 25.) or prince, (Mat. xxvi. 27. Tolet. Grot.) whose duty it was to take up impostors. He treated Jeremias in this light. C.—See Lu. xxii. 52. II.

VER. 2. Struck, or seized. Grot.—Upper gate, nearer the temple. C.

VER. 3. Phassur. This name signifies, increase and principality; and therefore is here changed to Magor-Misabib, or "fear on every side," to denote the evils that should come upon him in punishment of his opposing the word of God. C.—Aquila renders Posseur, "a stranger," and S. Jer. "blackness of visage." H.—It may also mean, "one who causes paleness." C.—Magur may signify "fear or distress." Sept. and Syr. "an exile." H.—He deserved to be thus treated. v. 6. C.—He would be terrified by many enemies. W.

VER. 6. Lie. He was therefore a false prophet, and vexed that Jeremias should contradict him. C.

VER. 7. Thou hast deceived, &c. The meaning of the prophet is not to charge God with any untruth; but what he calls deceiving, was only the concealing

8 For I am speaking now this long time, crying out against iniquity, and I often proclaim devastation: and the word of the Lord is made a reproach to me, and a derision all the day.

9 Then I said: I will not make mention of him, nor speak any more in his name: and there came in my heart as a burning fire, shut up in my bones, and I was wearied, not being able to bear it.

10 For I heard the reproaches of many, and terror on every side: Persecute him, and let us persecute him: from all the men, that were my familiars, and continued at my side: if by any means he may be deceived, and we may prevail against him, and be revenged on him.

11 But the Lord is with me as a strong warrior: therefore, they that persecute me, shall fall, and shall be weak: they shall be greatly confounded, "because they have not understood the everlasting reproach, which never shall be effaced.

CHAP. XXI.

The prophet's answer to the messengers of Sedecias, when Jerusalem was besieged.

THE word that came to Jeremias from the Lord, when king Sedecias sent unto him Phassur, the son of Melchias, and Sophonias, the son of Maasias, the priest, saying:

2 Enquire of the Lord for us, for Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, maketh war against us: if so be, the Lord will deal with us according to all his wonderful works, that he may depart from us.

3 And Jeremias said to them: Thus shall you say to Sedecias:

4 Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel: Behold, I will turn back the weapons of war that are in your hands, and with which you fight against the king of Babylon, and the Chaldeans, that besiege you round about the walls: and I will gather them together in the midst of this city.

5 And I myself will fight against you with an outstretched hand, and with a strong arm, and in fury, and in indignation, and in great wrath.

6 And I will strike the inhabitants of this city: men and beasts shall die of a great pestilence.

7 And, after this, saith the Lord, I will give Sedecias, the king of Juda, and his servants, and his people, and such as are left in this city from the pestilence, and the sword, and the famine, into the hand of Nabuchodonosor, the king of Babylon, and into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them that seek their life, and he shall strike them with the edge of the sword, and he shall not be moved to pity, nor spare them, nor shew mercy to them.

8 And to this people thou shalt say: Thus saith the Lord: Behold, I set before you the way of life, and the way of death.

9 "He that shall abide in this city, shall die by the sword, and by the famine, and by the pestilence: but he that shall go out, and flee over to the Chaldeans, that besiege you, shall live, and his life shall be to him as a spoil.

An exhortation both to king and people to return to God. The sentence of God upon Joachaz, Joakim, and Jehonias.

THUS saith the Lord: Go down to the house of the king of Juda, and there thou shalt speak this word.

2 And thou shalt say: Hear the word of the Lord, O king of Juda, that sittest upon the throne of David: thou and thy servants; and thy people, who enter in by these gates.

3 Thus saith the Lord: "Execute judgment and justice, and deliver him that is oppressed out of the hand of the oppressor: and afflict not the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, nor oppress them unjustly: and shed not innocent blood in this place.

4 For if you will do this thing indeed, then shall there enter in, by the gates of this house, kings of the race of David sitting upon his throne, and riding in chariots and on horses, they and their servants, and their people.

5 But if you will not hearken to these words: I swear by myself, saith the Lord, that this house shall become a desolation.

yet surely I will make thee a wilderness, and cities not habitable.

7 And I will prepare against thee the destroyer and his weapons: and they shall cut down thy chosen cedars, and shall cast them headlong into the fire.

8 And many nations shall pass by this city: and they shall say every man to his neighbour: "Why hath the Lord done so to this great city?"

9 And they shall answer: Because they have forsaken the covenant of the Lord their God, and have adored strange gods, and served them.

10 Weep not for him that is dead, nor bemoan him with your tears: lament him that goeth away, for he shall return no more, nor see his native country.

11 For thus saith the Lord to Sallum, the son of Josias, the king of Juda, who reigned instead of his father, who went forth out of this place: He shall return hither no more.

12 But in the place, to which I have removed him, there shall he die, and he shall not see this land any more.

13 Woe to him that buildeth up his house by injustice, and his chambers not in judgment: that will oppress his friend without cause, and will not pay him his wages.

14 Who saith: I will build me a wide house, and large chambers: who openeth to himself windows, and maketh roofs of cedar, and painteth them with vermilion.

15 Shalt thou reign, because thou comparest thyself to the cedar? did not thy father eat and drink, and do judgment and justice, and it was then well with him?

16 He judged the cause of the poor and needy for his own good: was it not, therefore, because he knew me, saith the Lord?

17 But thy eyes and thy heart are set upon covetousness, and upon shedding innocent blood, and upon oppression, and running after evil works.

18 Therefore, thus saith the Lord concerning Joakim, the son of Josias, king of Juda: They shall not mourn for him, Alas! my brother, and alas! sister: they shall not lament for him, Alas! my lord, or alas! the noble one.

21 I spoke to thee in thy prosperity: and thou saidst: I will not hear: this hath been thy way from thy youth, because thou hast not heard my voice.

22 The wind shall feed all thy pastors, and thy lovers shall go into captivity: and then shalt thou be confounded, and ashamed of all thy wickedness.

23 Thou that sittest in Libanus, and makest thy nest in the cedars, how hast thou mourned when sorrows came upon thee, as the pains of a woman in labour?

24 As I live, saith the Lord, if Jechonias, the son of Joakim, the king of Juda, were a ring on my right hand, I would pluck him thence.

25 And I will give thee into the hand of them that seek thy life, and into the hand of them whose face thou fearest, and into the hand of Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, and into the hand of the Chaldeans.

26 And I will send thee, and thy mother that bore thee, into a strange country, in which you were not born, and there you shall die:

27 And they shall not return into the land, whereunto they lift up their mind to return thither.

28 Is this man, Jechonias, an earthen and a broken vessel? is he a vessel wherein is no pleasure? why are they cast out, he and his seed, and are cast into a land which they know not?

29 O earth, earth, earth, hear the word of the Lord.

12 Therefore their way shall be as a slippery way in the dark: for they shall be driven on, and fall therein: for I will bring evils upon them, the year of their visitation, saith the Lord.

13 And I have seen folly in the prophets of Samaria: they prophesied in Baal, and deceived my people Israel.

14 And I have seen the likeness of adulterers, and the way of lying in the prophets of Jerusalem: and they strengthened the hands of the wicked, that no man should return from his evil doings: they are all

15 Therefore, thus saith the Lord of hosts to the prophets: "Behold, I will feed them with wormwood, and will give them gall to drink: for, from the prophets of Jerusalem, corruption is gone forth into all the land.

16 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: "Hearken not to the words of the prophets that prophesy to you, and deceive you: they speak a vision of their own heart, and not out of the mouth of the Lord.

17 They say to them that blaspheme me: The Lord hath said: "You shall have peace: and to every one that walketh in the perverseness of his own heart, they have said: No evil shall come upon you.

19 "Behold the whirlwind of the Lord's indignation shall come forth, and a tempest shall break out and come upon the head of the wicked.

20 The wrath of the Lord shall not return till he execute it, and till he accomplish the thought of his heart: in the latter days you shall understand his counsel.

21 "I did not send prophets, yet they ran: I have not spoken to them, yet they prophesied.

22 If they had stood in my counsel, and had made my words known to my people, I should have turned them from their evil way and from their wicked doings.

24 Shall a man be hid in secret places, and I not see him, saith the Lord? do not I fill heaven and earth, saith the Lord?

25 I have heard what the prophets said, that prophesy lies in my name, and say: I have dreamed, I have dreamed.

26 How long shall this be in the heart of the prophets that prophesy lies, and that prophesy the delusions of their own heart.

30 Therefore behold I am against the prophets, saith the Lord: who steal my words every one from his neighbour.

31 Behold I am against the prophets, saith the Lord: who use their tongues, and say: The Lord saith it.

32 Behold I am against the prophets that have lying dreams, saith the Lord: and tell them, and cause my people to err by their lying, and by their wonders: when I sent them not, nor commanded them, who have not profited this people at all, saith the Lord.

33 If therefore this people, or the prophet, or the priest, shall ask thee, saying: What is the burden of the Lord? thou shalt say to them: You are the burden: for I will cast you away, saith the Lord.

34 And, as for the prophet, and the priest, and the people, that shall say: The burden of the Lord: I will visit upon that man, and upon his house.

35 Thus shall you say every one to his neighbour and to his brother: What hath the Lord answered? and what hath the Lord spoken?

36 And the burden of the Lord shall be mentioned no more, for every man's word shall be his burden: for you have perverted the words of the living God, of the Lord of hosts, our God.

37 Thus shalt thou say to the prophet: What hath the Lord answered thee? and what hath the Lord spoken?

38 But if you shall say: The burden of the Lord: therefore, thus saith the Lord: Because you have said this word: The burden of the Lord: and I have sent to you, saying: Say not the burden of the Lord:

39 Therefore, behold I will take you away, carrying you, and will forsake you, and the city which I gave to you, and to your fathers, out of my presence.

Under the type of good and bad figs, he foretells the restoration of the Jews that had been carried away captive with Jechonias, and the desolation of those that were left behind.

THE Lord shewed me: and behold two baskets full of figs, set before the temple of the Lord, after that "Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, had carried away Jechonias, the son of Joakim, the king of Juda, and his chief men, and the craftsmen, and engravers of Jerusalem, and had brought them to Babylon.

2 One basket had very good figs, like the figs of the first season: and the other basket had very bad figs, which could not be eaten, because they were bad.

3 And the Lord said to me: What seest thou, Jeremias? And I said: Figs, the good figs, very good: and the bad figs, very bad, which cannot be eaten, because they are bad.

4 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

5 Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel: Like these good figs, so will I regard the captives of Juda, whom I have sent forth out of this place into the land of the Chaldeans, for their good.

6 And I will set my eyes upon them to be pacified, and I will bring them again into this land: and I will build them up, and not pull them down: and I will plant them, and not pluck them up.

7 And I will give them a heart to know me, that I am the Lord: "and they shall be my people, and I will be their God: because they shall return to me with their whole heart.

8 "And as the very bad figs, that cannot be eaten, because they are bad: thus saith the Lord: So will I give Sedecias, the king of Juda, and his princes, and the residue of Jerusalem, that have remained in this city, and that dwell in the land of Egypt.

3 From the thirteenth year of Josias, the son of Ammon, king of Juda, until this day: this is the three and twentieth year, the word of the Lord hath come to me, and I have spoken to you rising before day, and speaking, and you have not hearkened.

4 And the Lord hath sent to you all his servants, the prophets, rising early, and sending, and you have not hearkened, nor inclined your ears to hear.

7 And you have not heard me, saith the Lord, that you might provoke me to anger with the works of your hands, to your own hurt.

8 Therefore, thus saith the Lord of hosts: Because you have not heard my words:

9 Behold, I will send and take all the kindreds of the north, saith the Lord, and Nabuchodonosor, the king of Babylon, my servant: and I will bring them against this land, and against the inhabitants thereof, and against all the nations that are round about it: and I will destroy them, and make them an astonishment and a hissing, and perpetual desolations.

CHAP. XXVI.

The prophet is apprehended and accused by the priests: but discharged by the princes.

IN the beginning of the reign of Joakim, the son of Josias, king of Juda, came this word from the Lord, saying:

2 Thus saith the Lord: Stand in the court of the house of the Lord, and speak to all the cities of Juda, out of which they come, to adore in the house of the Lord, all the words which I have commanded thee to speak unto them: leave not out one word.

3 If so be they will hearken, and be converted every one from his evil way; that I may repent me of the evil that I think to do unto them for the wickedness of their doings.

4 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord: If you will not hearken to me to walk in my law, which I have given you,

5 To give ear to the words of my servants, the prophets, whom I sent to you rising up early, and sending, and you have not hearkened:

6 I will make this house like Silo, and I will make this city a curse to all the nations of the earth.

7 And the priests, and the prophets, and all the people, heard Jeremias speaking these words in the house of the Lord.

8 And when Jeremias had made an end of speaking all that the Lord had commanded him to speak to all the people: the priests, and the prophets, and all the people laid hold of him, saying: Let him be put to death.

9 Why hath he prophesied in the name of the Lord: saying: This house shall be like Silo: and this city shall be made desolate, without an inhabitant? And all the people were gathered together against Jeremias, in the house of the Lord.

10 And the princes of Juda heard these words: and they went up from the king's house into the house of the Lord, and sat in the entry of the new gate of the house of the Lord.

11 And the priests and the prophets spoke to the princes, and to all the people, saying: The judgment of death is for this man: because he hath prophesied against this city, as you have heard with your ears.

12 Then Jeremias spoke to all the princes, and to all the people, saying: "The Lord sent me to prophesy concerning this house, and concerning this city, all the words that you have heard.

13 "Now, therefore, amend your ways, and your doings, and hearken to the voice of the Lord your God: and the Lord will repent him of the evil he hath spoken against you.

14 But, as for me, behold I am in your hands: do with me what is good and right in your eyes:

15 But know ye, and understand, that if you put me to death, you will shed innocent blood against your own selves, and against this city, and the inhabitants thereof. For, in truth, the Lord sent me to you, to speak all these words in your hearing.

16 Then the princes, and all the people said to the priests, and to the prophets: There is no judgment of death for this man: for he hath spoken to us in the name of the Lord our God.

17 And some of the ancients of the land rose up. and they spoke to all the assembly of the people, saying:

18 Micheas, of Morasthi, was a prophet, in the days of Ezechias, king of Juda, and he spoke to all the people of Juda, saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: "Sion shall be ploughed like a field, and Jerusalem shall be a heap of stones: and the mountain of the house the high places of woods.

19 Did Ezechias, king of Juda, and all Juda, condemn him to death? did they not fear the Lord, and beseech the face of the Lord: and the Lord repented of the evil that he had spoken against them? therefore, we are doing a great evil against our souls.

20 There was also a man that prophesied in the name of the Lord, Urias, the son of Semei, of Cariatiarim, and he prophesied against this city, and against this land, according to all the words of Jeremias.

21 And king Joakim, and all his men in power, and his princes, heard these words: and the king sought to put him to death. And Urias heard it, and was afraid, and fled, and went into Egypt.

22 And king Joakim sent men into Egypt, Elnathan, the son of Achobor, and men with him into Egypt.

23 And they brought Urias out of Egypt: and brought him to king Joakim, and he slew him with the sword: and he cast his dead body into the graves of the common people.

CHAP. XXVII.

The prophet sends chains to divers kings, signifying that they must bend their necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon. The vessels of their temple shall not be brought back till all the rest are carried away.

IN the beginning of the reign of Joakim, the son of Josias, king of Juda, this word came to Jeremias, from the Lord, saying:

2 Thus saith the Lord, to me: Make thee bands, and chains: and thou shalt put them on thy neck.

3 And thou shalt send them to the king of Edom, and to the king of Moab, and to the king of the children of Ammon, and to the king of Tyre, and to the king of Sidon: by the hand of the messengers that are come to Jerusalem, to Sedecias, the king of Juda.

4 And thou shalt command them to speak to their masters: Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Thus shall you say to your masters:

5 I made the earth, and the men, and the beasts that are upon the face of the earth, by my great power, and by my stretched out arm: and I have given it to whom it seemed good in my eyes.

6 And now I have given all these lands into the hand of Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, my servant: moreover also the beasts of the field I have given him to serve him.

7 And all nations shall serve him, and his son, and his son's son: till the time come for his land and himself: and many nations and great kings shall serve him.

8 But the nation and kingdom that will not serve Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, and whosoever will not bend his neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon: I will visit upon that nation with the sword, and with famine, and with pestilence, saith the Lord: till I consume them by his hand.

9 Therefore, hearken not to your prophets and diviners, and dreamers, and soothsayers, and sorcerers, that say to you: You shall not serve the king of Babylon.

10 For they prophesy lies to you: to remove you far from your country, and cast you out, and to make you perish.

11 But the nation that shall bend down their neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and shall serve him: I will let them remain in their own land, saith the Lord: and they shall till it, and dwell in it.

12 And I spoke to Sedecias, the king of Juda, according to all these words, saying: Bend down your necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him, and his people, and you shall live.

13 Why will you die, thou and thy people by the sword, and by famine, and by the pestilence, as the Lord hath spoke against the nation that will not serve the king of Babylon?

14 Hearken not to the words of the prophets, that say to you: You shall not serve the king of Babylon: for they tell you a lie.

15 For I have not sent them, saith the Lord: and they prophesy in my name falsely: to drive you out, and that you may perish, both you and the prophets, that prophesy to you.

16 I spoke also to the priests, and to this people, saying: Thus saith the Lord: Hearken not to the words of your prophets, that prophesy to you, saying: Behold, the vessels of the Lord shall now in a short time be brought again from Babylon: for they prophesy a lie unto you.

17 Therefore, hearken not to them, but serve the king of Babylon, that you may live. Why should this city be given up to desolation?

18 But if they be prophets, and the word of the Lord be in them: let them interpose themselves before the Lord of hosts, that the vessels which were left in the house of the Lord, and in the house of the king of Juda, and in Jerusalem, may not go to Babylon.

19 For thus saith the Lord of hosts to the pillars, and to the sea, and to the bases, and to the rest of the vessels that remain in this city:

20 Which Nabuchodonosor, the king of Babylon, did not take, when he carried away Jechonias, the son of Joakim, the king of Juda, from Jerusalem to Babylon, and all the great men of Juda and Jerusalem.

21 For thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, to the vessels that are left in the house of the Lord, and in the house of the king of Juda and Jerusalem:

22 They shall be carried to Babylon, and there they shall be until the day of their visitation, saith the Lord: and I will cause them to be brought, and to be restored in this place.

CHAP. XXVIII.

The false prophecy of Hananias: he dies that same year as Jeremias foretold.

AND it came to pass in that year, in the beginning of the reign of Sedecias, king of Juda, in the fourth year, "in the fifth month, that Hananias, the son of Azur, a prophet, of Gabaon, spoke to me, in the house of the Lord, before the priests, and all the people, saying:

2 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon.

3 As yet, two years of days, and I will cause all the vessels of the house of the Lord to be brought back into this place, which Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, took away from this place, and carried them to Babylon.

4 And I will bring back to this place, Jechonias, the son of Joakim, king of Juda, and all the captives of Juda, that are gone to Babylon, saith the Lord: for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon.

5 And Jeremias, the prophet, said to Hananias, the prophet, in the presence of the priests, and in the presence of all the people that stood in the house of the Lord:

6 And Jeremias, the prophet, said: Amen, the Lord do so: the Lord perform thy words, which thou hast prophesied: that the vessels may be brought again into the house of the Lord, and all the captives may return out of Babylon to this place.

7 Nevertheless, hear this word, that I speak in thy ears, and in the ears of all the people:

8 The prophets that have been before me, and before thee from the beginning, and have prophesied concerning many countries, and concerning great kingdoms, of war, and of affliction, and of famine.

10 And Hananias, the prophet, took the chain from the neck of Jeremias, the prophet, and broke it.

11 And Hananias spoke in the presence of all the people, saying: Thus saith the Lord: Even so will I break the yoke of Nabuchodonosor, the king of Babylon, after two full years, from off the neck of all the nations.

Hananias, the prophet, had broken the chain from off the neck of Jeremias, the prophet, saying:

13 Go, and tell Hananias: Thus saith the Lord: Thou hast broken chains of wood, and thou shalt make for them chains of iron.

14 For thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: I have put a yoke of iron upon the neck of all these nations, to serve Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, and they shall serve him: moreover also I have given him the beasts of the earth.

15 And Jeremias, the prophet, said to Hananias, the prophet: Hear now, Hananias: the Lord hath not sent thee, and thou hast made this people to trust in a lie.

16 Therefore, thus saith the Lord: Behold, I will send thee away from off the face of the earth: this year shalt thou die: for thou hast spoken against the Lord.

17 And Hananias, the prophet, died in that year, in the seventh month.

Jeremias writeth to the captives in Babylon, exhorting them to be easy there, and not to hearken to false prophets. That they shall be delivered after seventy years. But those that remain in Jerusalem shall perish by the sword, famine, and pestilence. And that Ahab, Sedecias, and Semeias, false prophets, shall die miserably.

NOW these are the words of the letter which Jeremias, the prophet, sent from Jerusalem, to the residue of the ancients that were carried into captivity, and to the priests, and to the prophets, and to all the people whom Nabuchodonosor had carried away from Jerusalem to Babylon:

2 After that Jechonias, the king, and the queen, and the eunuchs, and the princes of Juda, and of Jerusalem, and the craftsmen, and the engravers, were departed out of Jerusalem:

3 By the hand of Elasa, the son of Saphan, and Gamarias, the son of Helcias, whom Sedecias, king of Juda, sent to Babylon, to Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, saying:

4 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, to all that are carried away captives, whom I have caused to be carried away from Jerusalem to Babylon:

5 Build ye houses, and dwell in them: and plant orchards, and eat the fruit of them.

6 Take ye wives, and beget sons and daughters: and take wives for your sons, and give your daughters to husbands, and let them bear sons and daughters: and be ye multiplied there, and be not few in number.

11 For I know the thoughts that I think towards you, saith the Lord, thoughts of peace, and not of affliction, to give you an end and patience.

25 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Because thou hast sent letters in thy name to all the people that are in Jerusalem, and to Sophonias, the son of Maasias, the priest, and to all the priests, saying:

26 The Lord hath made thee priest instead of Joiada, the priest, that thou shouldst be ruler in the house of the Lord, over every man that raveth and prophesieth, to put him in the stocks, and into prison.

God will deliver his people from their captivity: Christ shall be their king: and his Church shall be glorious for ever.

THIS ^ais the word that came to Jeremias from the Lord, saying:

2 Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel, saying: Write thee all the words that I have spoken to thee, in a book.

3 For behold the days come, saith the Lord, and I will bring again the captivity of my people Israel and Juda, saith the Lord: and I will cause them to return to the land which I gave to their fathers, and they shall possess it.

4 And these are the words that the Lord hath spoken to Israel and to Juda:

5 For thus saith the Lord: We have heard a voice of terror: there is fear, and no peace.

6 Ask ye, and see if a man bear children? why then have I seen every man with his hands on his loins, like a woman in labour, and all faces are turned yellow?

7 ^bAlas, for that day is great, neither is there the like to it: and it is the time of tribulation to Jacob, but he shall be saved out of it.

8 And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord of hosts, that I will break his yoke from off thy neck, and will burst his bands: and strangers shall no more rule over him:

9 But they shall serve the Lord, their God, and David, their king, whom I will raise up to them.

10 ^cTherefore, fear thou not, my servant Jacob, saith the Lord, neither be dismayed, O Israel: for, behold, I will save thee from a country afar off, and thy seed from the land of their captivity: and Jacob shall return, and be at rest, and abound with all good things, and there shall be none whom he may fear:

11 For I am with thee, saith the Lord, to save thee: for I will utterly consume all the nations among which I have scattered thee: but I will not utterly consume thee: but I will chastise thee in judgment, that thou mayst not seem to thyself innocent.

12 For thus saith the Lord: Thy bruise is incurable, thy wound is very grievous.

15 Why criest thou for thy affliction? thy sorrow is incurable: for the multitude of thy iniquity, and for thy hardened sins, I have done these things to thee.

16 Therefore, all they that devour thee, shall be devoured: and all thy enemies shall be carried into captivity: and they that waste thee shall be wasted; and all that prey upon thee, will I give for a prey.

17 For I will close up thy scar, and will heal thee of thy wounds, saith the Lord. Because they have called thee, O Sion, an outcast: This is she that had none to seek after her.

18 Thus saith the Lord: Behold, I will bring back the captivity of the pavilions of Jacob, and will have pity on his houses, and the city shall be built in her high place, and the temple shall be founded according to the order thereof.

19 And out of them shall come forth praise, and the voice of them that play: and I will multiply them, and they shall not be made few: and I will glorify them, and they shall not be lessened.

20 And their children shall be as from the beginning, and their assembly shall be permanent before me: and I will visit against all that afflict them.

21 And their leader shall be of themselves: and their prince shall come forth from the midst of them: and I will bring him near, and he shall come to me: for who is this that setteth his heart to approach to me, saith the Lord?

22 And you shall be my people: and I will be your God.

23 Behold the whirlwind of the Lord, his fury going forth, a violent storm, it shall rest upon the head of the wicked.

24 The Lord will not turn away the wrath of his indignation, till he hath executed and performed the thought of his heart: in the latter days you shall understand these things.

CHAP. XXXI.

The restoration of Israel. Rachel shall cease from mourning. The new covenant. The Church shall never fail.

AT that time, "saith the Lord, I will be the God of all the families of Israel, and they shall be my people.

2 Thus saith the Lord: The people that were left and escaped from the sword, found grace in the desert: Israel shall go to his rest.

3 The Lord hath appeared from afar to me. Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love: therefore have I drawn thee, taking pity on thee.

4 And I will build thee again, and thou shalt be built, O virgin of Israel: thou shalt again be adorned with thy timbrels, and shalt go forth in the dances of them that make merry.

5 Thou shalt yet plant vineyards in the mountains of Samaria: the planters shall plant, and they shall not gather the vintage before the time:

6 For there shall be a day, in which the watchmen on Mount Ephraim shall cry: "Arise, and let us go up to Sion, to the Lord our God.

7 For thus saith the Lord: Rejoice ye in the joy of Jacob, and neigh before the head of the Gentiles: shout ye, and sing, and say: Save, O Lord, thy people, the remnant of Israel.

8 Behold, I will bring them from the north country, and will gather them from the ends of the earth: and among them shall be the blind and the lame, the woman with child, and she that is bringing forth together, a great company of them returning hither.

9 They shall come with weeping: and I will bring them back in mercy: and I will bring them through the torrents of waters in a right way, and they shall not stumble in it: for I am a father to Israel, and Ephraim is my first-born.

10 Hear the word of the Lord, O ye nations, and declare it in the islands that are afar off, and say: He that scattered Israel will gather him: and he will keep him as the shepherd doth his flock.

11 For the Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and delivered him out of the hand of one that was mightier than he.

12 And they shall come, and shall give praise in Mount Sion: and they shall flow together to the good things of the Lord, for the corn, and wine, and oil, and the increase of cattle and herds, and their soul shall be as a watered garden, and they shall be hungry no more.

13 Then shall the virgin rejoice in the dance, the young men and old men together: and I will turn their mourning into joy, and will comfort them, and make them joyful after their sorrow.

14 And I will fill the soul of the priests with fatness: and my people shall be filled with my good things, saith the Lord.

15 Thus saith the Lord: "A voice was heard on high of lamentation, of mourning, and weeping of Rachel, weeping for her children, and refusing to be comforted for them, because they are not.

16 Thus saith the Lord: Let thy voice cease from weeping, and thy eyes from tears: for there is a reward for thy work, saith the Lord: and they shall return out of the land of the enemy.

17 And there is hope for thy last end, saith the Lord: and the children shall return to their own borders.

18 Hearing, I heard Ephraim, when he went into captivity: thou hast chastised me, and I was instructed as a young bullock, unaccustomed to the yoke. Convert me, and I shall be converted: for thou art the Lord my God.

19 For, after thou didst convert me, I did penance: and, after thou didst shew unto me, I struck my thigh: I am confounded and ashamed, because I have borne the reproach of my youth.

20 Surely Ephraim is an honourable son to me, surely he is a tender child: for, since I spoke of him, I will still remember him. Therefore are my bowels troubled for him: pitying, I will pity him, saith the Lord.

21 Set thee up a watch-tower, make to thee bitterness: direct thy heart into the right way, wherein thou hast walked: return, O virgin of Israel, return to these thy cities.

22 How long wilt thou be dissolute in deliciousness, O wandering daughter? for the Lord hath created a new thing upon the earth: A WOMAN SHALL COMPASS A MAN.

23 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: As yet shall they say this word in the land of Juda, and in the cities thereof, when I shall bring back their captivity: The Lord bless thee, the beauty of justice, the holy mountain.

24 And Juda and all his cities shall dwell therein together: the husbandmen, and they that drive the flocks.

25 For I have inebriated the weary soul: and I have filled every hungry soul.

26 Upon this I was as it were awaked out of a sleep, and I saw, and my sleep was sweet to me.

27 Behold, the days come, saith the Lord: and I will sow the house of Israel, and the house of Juda, with the seed of men, and with the seed of beasts.

28 And, as I have watched over them, to pluck up, and to throw down, and to scatter, and destroy, and afflict; so will I watch over them, to build up, and to plant them, saith the Lord.

29 In those days they shall say no more: "The fathers have eaten a sour grape, and the teeth of the children are set on edge.

30 But every one shall die for his own iniquity; every man that shall eat the sour grape, his teeth shall be set on edge.

31 "Behold, the days shall come, saith the Lord, and I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Juda:

32 Not according to the covenant which I made with their fathers, in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; the covenant which they made void, and I had dominion over them, saith the Lord.

H.—"The Lord hath created a new thing in a woman." Aquila.—Symmachus agrees nearly with the Sept. "because the Lord has created thee by salvation a new plantation. Men shall go about in thy salvation." This "might be explained, if it were not sacrilegious to argue respecting God's word by human sense," says S. Jerom; though this censure of "the Vulgate" (Sept.) seems rather harsh. He complains here of his copy. Theodoret explains it of the apostles going through the world to spread the gospel. H.—Behold whence thy happiness must come, (M.) O thou who hast so long proved faithless, going astray after many lovers. H.—Christ, in his mother's womb, was in stature small, but a perfect man (W.) in the use of reason, &c. H.

VER. 23. Bless thee. Thus the captives speak in rapture at their return.

VER. 24. Together. Jerusalem shall be large enough to contain all, at the great festivals.

VER. 26. To me. Thus Jeremias concludes his prediction with joy. C.

VER. 29. Edge. Such observations had been too often made. Ezec. xviii. 12. H.—Henceforward you shall not suffer for the faults of Ahab, Manasses, &c. Each one shall bear his own burden. The captivity has been like a deluge, cleaning all away. C.

VER. 31. Covenant. That made with the captives was not such. Their covenant is grown old, and at an end, as S. Paul shews. Heb. viii. 8. They were not indeed divided, as they had been. Ezec. xxxvii. 16.

33 But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel, after those days, saith the Lord: "I will give my law in their bowels, and I will write it in their heart; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.

34 And they shall teach no more every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying: Know the Lord; for all shall know me from the least of them even to the greatest, saith the Lord: "for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more.

35 Thus saith the Lord, who giveth the sun for the light of the day, the order of the moon and of the stars, for the light of the night; who stirreth up the sea, and the waves thereof roar, the Lord of hosts is his name.

36 If these ordinances shall fail before me, saith the Lord; then also the seed of Israel shall fail, so as not to be a nation before me for ever.

37 Thus saith the Lord: If the heavens above can be measured, and the foundations of the earth searched out beneath; I also will cast away all the seed of Israel, for all that they have done, saith the Lord.

38 Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that the city shall be built to the Lord, from the tower of Hanameel, even to the gate of the corner.

39 And the measuring line shall go out farther in his sight upon the hill Gareb; and it shall compass Goatha.

40 And the whole valley of dead bodies, and of ashes, and all the country of death, even to the torrent Cedron, and to the corner of the horse-gate towards the east, the Holy of the Lord: it shall not be plucked up, and it shall not be destroyed any more for ever.

CHAP. XXXII.

Jeremias, by God's commandment, purchases a field of his kinsman: and prophesies the return of the people out of captivity: and the everlasting covenant God will make with his Church.

VER. 33. Heart. They were more docile after their return: yet still their service was very imperfect and forced. How many false traditions were received at the coming of Christ! This of course, regards his disciples.

VER. 34. Lord. Christ himself came to instruct mankind. The true God was better known than ever, even by the illiterate. Yet God requires us to have recourse to men, in order to know his truths, as S. Paul was sent to Hanaanias, and the eunuch to Philip. H.—The apostles were enlightened by the Holy Ghost, (Jo. vi. 45. S. Aug. de Spir. C.) who still guides the flock by his pastors. The private spirit is too fanatical and delusive. H.—The most ignorant shall easily become acquainted with the truths of salvation. External preaching is requisite, though of little use unless grace touch the mind and the heart. Bel. vi. 6.—Ever. Yet the temple was utterly destroyed by the Romans, so that we must explain this of the Catholic Church, founded on a rock,

2 At that time the army of the king of Babylon besieged Jerusalem; and Jeremias, the prophet, was shut up in the court of the prison, which was in the house of the king of Juda.

3 For Sedecias, king of Juda, had shut him up, saying: Why dost thou prophesy, saying: Thus saith the Lord: Behold, I will give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it?

4 And Sedecias, king of Juda, shall not escape out of the hand of the Chaldeans; but he shall be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon; and he shall speak to him mouth to mouth, and his eyes shall see his eyes.

5 And he shall lead Sedecias to Babylon; and he shall be there till I visit him, saith the Lord. But if you will fight against the Chaldeans, you shall have no success.

6 And Jeremias said: The word of the Lord came to me, saying:

7 Behold, Hanameel, the son of Sellem, thy cousin, shall come to thee, saying: Buy thee my field, which is in Anathoth, for it is thy right to buy it, being next akin.

8 And Hanameel, my uncle's son, came to me, according to the word of the Lord, to the entry of the prison, and said to me: Buy my field, which is in Anathoth, in the land of Benjamin; for the right of inheritance is thine, and thou art next of kin to possess it. And I understood that this was the word of the Lord.

9 And I bought the field of Hanameel, my uncle's son, that is in Anathoth: and I weighed him the money, seven staters, and ten pieces of silver.

10 And I wrote it in a book, and sealed it, and took witnesses; and I weighed him the money in the balances.

11 And I took the deed of the purchase, that was sealed, and the stipulations, and the ratifications, with the seals, that were on the outside.

12 And I gave the deed of the purchase to Baruch, the son of Neri, the son of Maasias, in the sight of Hanameel, my uncle's son, in the presence of the witnesses that subscribed the book of the purchase, and before all the Jews that sat in the court of the prison.

13 And I charged Baruch before them, saying:

14 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Take these writings, this deed of the purchase that is sealed up, and this deed that is open, and put them in an earthen vessel, that they may continue many days.

15 For thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Houses, and fields, and vineyards, shall be possessed again in this land.

16 And, after I had delivered the deed of purchase to Baruch, the son of Neri, I prayed to the Lord, saying:

17 Alas, alas, alas, O Lord God, behold thou hast made heaven and earth by thy great power, and thy stretched out arm; no word shall be hard to thee.

18 *Thou shewest mercy unto thousands, and returnest the iniquity of the fathers into the bosom of their children after them; O most mighty, great, and powerful, the Lord of hosts is thy name.

19 Great in counsel, and incomprehensible in thought; whose eyes are open upon all the ways of the children of Adam, to render unto every one according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his devices.

20 Who hast set signs and wonders in the land of Egypt, even until this day, and in Israel, and amongst men, and hast made thee a name as at this day.

21 And hast brought forth thy people Israel, out of the land of Egypt, with signs, and with wonders, and with a strong hand, and a stretched out arm, and with great terror.

22 And hast given them this land which thou didst swear to their fathers, to give them a land flowing with milk and honey.

23 And they came in, and possessed it; but they obeyed not thy voice, and they walked not in thy law: and they did not any of those things that thou didst command them to do, and all these evils are come upon them.

24 Behold works are built up against the city to take it: and the city is given into the hands of the Chaldeans, who fight against it, by the sword, and the famine, and the pestilence: and what thou hast spoken is all come to pass, as thou thyself seest.

25 And sayest thou to me, O Lord God: Buy a field for money, and take witnesses, whereas the city is given into the hands of the Chaldeans?

26 And the word of the Lord came to Jeremias, saying:

27 Behold I am the Lord, the God of all flesh: shall any thing be hard for me?

28 Therefore, thus saith the Lord: Behold, I will deliver this city into the hands of the Chaldeans, and into the hands of the king of Babylon, and they shall take it.

shall come and set it on fire, and burn it, with the houses upon whose roofs they offered sacrifice to Baal, and poured out drink-offerings to strange gods, to provoke me to wrath.

30 For the children of Israel, and the children of Juda, have continually done evil in my eyes from their youth: the children of Israel, who even till now provoke me with the work of their hands, saith the Lord.

31 For this city hath been to me a provocation and indignation from the day that they built it, until this day, in which it shall be taken out of my sight.

32 Because of all the evil of the children of Israel, and of the children of Juda, which they have done, provoking me to wrath, they and their kings, their princes, and their priests, and their prophets, the men of Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

33 And they have turned their backs to me, and not their faces: when I taught them early in the morning, and instructed them, and they would not hearken to receive instruction.

34 *And they have set their idols in the house, in which my name is called upon, to defile it.

35 And they have built the high places of Baal, which are in the valley of the son of Ennom, to consecrate their sons and their daughters to Moloch: which I commanded them not, neither entered it into my heart, that they should do this abomination, and cause Juda to sin.

36 And now, therefore, thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel, to this city, whereof you say that it shall be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon, by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence:

37 Behold I will gather them together out of all the lands to which I have cast them out, in my anger, and in my wrath, and in my great indignation: and I will bring them again into this place, and will cause them to dwell securely.

38 And they shall be my people, and I will be their God.

39 And I will give them one heart and one way, that they may fear me all days: and that it may be well with them, and with their children after them.

40 And I will make an everlasting covenant with them, and will not cease to do them good: and I will give my fear in their heart, that they may not revolt from me.

41 And I will rejoice over them, when I shall do them good: and I will plant them in this land in truth, with my whole heart, and with all my soul.

42 For thus saith the Lord: As I have brought upon this people all this great evil, so will I bring upon them all the good that I now speak to them.

43 And fields shall be purchased in this land: whereof you say that it is desolate, because there remaineth neither man nor beast, and it is given into the hands of the Chaldeans.

44 Fields shall be bought for money, and deeds shall be written and sealed, and witnesses shall be taken, in the land of Benjamin, and round about Jerusalem, in the cities of Juda, and in the cities on the mountains, and in the cities of the plains, and in the cities that are towards the south: for I will bring back their captivity, saith the Lord.

CHAP. XXXIII.

God promises reduction from captivity, and other blessings: especially the coming of Christ, whose reign in his Church shall be glorious and perpetual.

AND ^bthe word of the Lord came to Jeremias the second time, while he was yet shut up in the court of the prison, saying:

2 Thus saith the Lord, who will do, and will form it, and prepare it, the Lord is his name.

3 Cry to me, and I will hear thee: and I will shew thee great things, and sure things, which thou knowest not.

4 For thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel, to the houses of this city, and to the houses of the king of Juda, which are destroyed, and to the bulwarks, and to the sword,

5 Of them that come to fight with the Chaldeans, and to fill them with the dead bodies of the men whom I have slain in my wrath, and in my indignation, hiding my face from this city because of all their wickedness.

6 Behold I will close their wounds and give them health, and I will cure them: and I will reveal to them the prayer of peace and truth.

C. xxxi. 31. C.) except those who embraced the true faith of Christ. At all times one religion alone can be pleasing to God, (v. 39.) and those who were saved under the old law, must have believed in a Redeemer to come, as we must do in one already past. C.—It was perhaps his last work, undertaken after the twelve minor and the other three great prophets. He never wrote on Baruch, on the epistle of Jeremias, the Gr. parts of Daniel, &c. as the Jews did not allow them to be canonical, and the point was not then decided. The Church styles S. Jerom "the greatest doctor in expounding the sacred Scriptures," as he translated and illustrated the greatest part of them; (H.) and indeed he seems to have been the best qualified for the undertaking, of all the fathers. Du Pin.—Hence we may lament the more that we have not all his works in their genuine purity and perfection, as even the latest editions are very faulty, and proceed upon a plan which the learned do not approve. 9 And it shall be to me a name, and a joy, and a praise, and a gladness before all the nations of the earth, that shall hear of all the good things which I will do to them: and they shall fear and be troubled for all the good things, and for all the peace, that I will make for them.

10 Thus saith the Lord: There shall be heard again in this place, (which you say is desolate, because there is neither man nor beast: in the cities of Juda, and without Jerusalem, which are desolate without man, and without inhabitant, and without beast)

11 The voice of joy and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, the voice of them that shall say: Give ye glory to the Lord of hosts, for the Lord is good, for his mercy endureth for ever: and of them that shall bring their vows into the house of the Lord: for I will bring back the captivity of the land as at the first, saith the Lord.

12 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: There shall be again in this place, that is desolate without man, and without beast, and in all the cities thereof, an habitation of shepherds, causing their flocks to lie down.

13 And in the cities on the mountains, and in the cities of the plains, and in the cities that are towards the south: and in the land of Benjamin, and round about Jerusalem, and in the cities of Juda shall the flocks pass again under the hand of him that numbereth them, saith the Lord.

14 Behold the days come, saith the Lord, that I will perform the good word that I have spoken to the house of Israel, and to the house of Juda.

15 In those days, and at that time, I will make the bud of justice to spring forth unto David, and he shall do judgment and justice in the earth.

16 In those days shall Juda be saved, and Jerusalem shall dwell securely: and this is the name that they shall call him, The Lord our just one.

19 And the word of the Lord came to Jeremias, saying:

20 Thus saith the Lord: If my covenant with the day can be made void, and my covenant with the night, that there should not be day and night in their season:

21 My covenant also with David, my servant, may be made void, that he should not have a son to reign upon his throne, and with the Levites and priests, my ministers.

22 As the stars of heaven cannot be numbered, nor the sand of the sea be measured: so will I multiply the seed of David, my servant, and the Levites, my ministers.

23 And the word of the Lord came to Jeremias, saying:

24 Hast thou not seen what this people hath spoken, saying: The two families which the Lord had chosen, are cast off: and they have despised my people, so that it is no more a nation before them?

25 Thus saith the Lord: If I have not set my covenant between day and night, and laws to heaven and earth:

26 Surely I will also cast off the seed of Jacob, and of David, my servant, so as not to take any of his seed to be rulers of the seed of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob: for I will bring back their captivity, and will have mercy on them.

CHAP. XXXIV.

The prophet foretells that Sedecias shall fall into the hands of Nabuchodonosor: God's sentence upon the princes and people that had broken his covenant.

THE "word that came to Jeremias from the Lord, (when Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, and all his army, and all the kingdoms of the earth that were under the power of his hand, and all the people fought against Jerusalem, and against all the cities thereof) saying:

2 Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel: Go, and speak to Sedecias, king of Juda, and say to him: Thus saith the Lord: Behold, I will deliver this city into the hands of the king of Babylon, and he shall burn it with fire.

and he was of another tribe. The priests governed after Nehemias, till Herod was appointed by the Romans. This must therefore be explained of Christ's eternal kingdom. Gen. xlix. C.

VER. 18. Priests. This promise relates to the Christian priesthood; which shall also continue for ever: the functions of which (more especially the great sacrifice of the altar) are here expressed, by the name of holocausts, and other offerings of the law, which were so many figures of the Christian sacrifice. Ch.—The Levitical sacrifices have ceased for 17 centuries. But Christ will officiate by his ministers till the end of time. C.—S. Hypolitus and all the fathers agree that the blessed Eucharist is the complement of all the ancient sacrifices. W.

VER. 21. Ministers. The promise is not conditional, but as unchangeable as the course of the seasons. C.

VER. 24. Families of kings and priests, (Ch.) or the two kingdoms of Israel and Juda. The people complained that God had broken his word, (C.) so heretics assert that he has abandoned his Church for above 800 years. Providence watched in a particular manner over the families of Aaron and David, which enjoyed peculiar privileges, (H.) or blessings. W.

4 Yet hear the word of the Lord, O Sedecias, king of Juda: Thus saith the Lord to thee: Thou shalt not die by the sword,

5 But thou shalt die in peace; and according to the burnings of thy fathers, the former kings that were before thee, so shall they burn thee: and they shall mourn for thee, saying: Alas, Lord: for I have spoken the word, saith the Lord.

6 And Jeremias, the prophet, spoke all these words to Sedecias, the king of Juda, in Jerusalem.

7 And the army of the king of Babylon fought against Jerusalem, and against all the cities of Juda that were left, against Lachis, and against Azecba: for these remained of the cities of Juda, fenced cities.

8 The word that came to Jeremias from the Lord, after that king Sedecias had made a covenant with all the people in Jerusalem, making a proclamation:

9 That every man should let his man-servant, and every man his maid-servant, being a Hebrew man or a Hebrew woman, go free: and that they should not lord it over them; to wit, over the Jews, their brethren.

10 And all the princes, and all the people, who entered into the covenant, heard that every man should let his man-servant, and every man his maid-servant, go free, and should no more have dominion over them: and they obeyed, and let them go free.

11 But afterwards they turned: and brought back again their servants and their handmaids, whom they had let go free, and brought them into subjection as men-servants and maid-servants.

12 And the word of the Lord came to Jeremias from the Lord, saying:

13 Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel: I made a covenant with your fathers in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage, saying:

14 *At the end of seven years, let ye go every man, his brother, being a Hebrew, who hath been sold to thee, so he shall serve thee six years: and thou shalt let him go free from thee: and your fathers did not hearken to me, nor did they incline their ear.

15 And you turned to-day, and did that which was right in my eyes, in proclaiming liberty every one to his brother: and you made a covenant in my sight, in the house upon which my name is invoked.

16 And you are fallen back, and have defiled my name: and you have brought back again every man his man-servant, and every man his maid-servant, whom you had let go free, and set at liberty: and you have brought them into subjection to be your servants and handmaids.

17 Therefore thus saith the Lord: You have not hearkened to me, in proclaiming liberty, every man to his brother, and every man to his friend: behold, I proclaim a liberty for you, saith the Lord, to the sword, to the pestilence, and to the famine: and I will cause you to be removed to all the kingdoms of the earth.

18 And I will give the men that have transgressed my covenant, and have not performed the words of the covenant, which they agreed to in my presence, when they cut the calf in two, and passed between the parts thereof:

19 The princes of Juda, and the princes of Jerusalem, the eunuchs and the priests, and all the people of the land, that passed between the parts of the calf:

20 And I will give them into the hands of their enemies, and into the hands of them that seek their life: and their dead bodies shall be for meat to the fowls of the air, and to the beasts of the earth.

21 And Sedecias, the king of Juda, and his princes, I will give into the hands of their enemies, and into the hands of them that seek their lives, and into the hands of the armies of the king of Babylon, which are gone from you.

22 Behold I will command, saith the Lord, and I will bring them again to this city, and they shall fight against it, and take it, and burn it with fire: and I will make the cities of Juda a desolation, without an inhabitant.

CHAP. XXXV. VER. 1. Joakim, when Nabuchodonosor besieged him again in his 7th year. The Rechabites then pitched their tents in Jerusalem. v. 11 C.—Here we behold a figure of religious orders in the Church, as well as in the Nazarites and disciples of the propheta. Num. vi. and 4. K. i. They observed certain rules for acquiring greater perfection, and refrained from many things which were otherwise lawful. Thus various religious orders, both of men and of women, have flourished in the Church, and though they have different names and regulations, yet they are not sects, as heretics would pretend, but all follow the same faith, use the same sacraments, and are a great ornament to the Catholic Church by their profession of the three essential vows of poverty, chastity, and obedience, in imitation of the apostles. Mat. xix. 12.—Joakim. This happened before the preceding prophecies. W.

VER. 2. Rechabites. These were of the race of Jethro, father-in-law to (999) one of the chambers of the treasures, and thou shalt give them wine to drink.

3 And I took Jezonias, the son of Jeremias, the son of Habsanias, and his brethren, and all his sons, and the whole house of the Rechabites.

4 And I brought them into the house of the Lord, to the treasure-house of the sons of Hanan, the son of Jegedelias, the man of God, which was by the treasure-house of the princes, above the treasure of Maasias, the son of Sellum, who was keeper of the entry.

5 And I set before the sons of the house of the Rechabites pots full of wine, and cups: and I said to them: Drink ye wine.

6 And they answered: We will not drink wine; because Jonadab, the son of Rechab, *our father, commanded us, saying: You shall drink no wine, neither you nor your children, for ever:

7 Neither shall ye build houses, nor sow seed, nor plant vineyards, nor have any: but you shall dwell in tents all your days, that you may live many days upon the face of the earth, in which you are strangers.

8 Therefore we have obeyed the voice of Jonadab, the son of Rechab, our father, in all things that he commanded us, so as to drink no wine all our days: neither we, nor our wives, nor our sons, nor our daughters:

9 Nor to build houses to dwell in, nor to have vineyard, or field, or seed:

10 But we have dwelt in tents, and have been obedient according to all that Jonadab, our father, commanded us.

11 But when Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, came up to our land, we said: Come, let us go into Jerusalem, from the face of the army of the Chaldeans, and from the face of the army of Syria: and we have remained in Jerusalem.

12 And the word of the Lord came to Jeremias, saying:

13 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Go, and say to the men of Juda, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem: Will you not receive instruction, to obey my words, saith the Lord?

14 The words of Jonadab, the son of Rechab, by which he commanded his sons not to drink wine, have prevailed: and they have drunk none to this day, because they have obeyed the commandment of their father: but I have spoken to you, rising early and speaking, and you have not obeyed me.

These are models of those Christians who follow the rule of some virtuous person, in order to be at a greater distance from any transgression of the law, and to observe it with more perfection. C.—“If a father could lay such an injunction on his descendants, and they receive commendation for observing it, why may not the fathers of the Church enjoin things which are not of themselves necessary, but . . . useful to avoid the occasions of evil, or to advance in virtue?” says Grotius, a Protestant, after S. Jerom. (ad Paulin) S. Aug. in Pa. lxx. &c. H. Jonadab exhorted, and prescribed this rule, but it was not properly a command, being too arduous. T.

15 And I have sent to you all my servants, the prophets, rising early, and sending and saying. ^bReturn ye every man from his wicked way, and make your ways good: and follow not strange gods, nor worship them, and you shall dwell in the land which I gave you and your fathers: and you have not inclined your ear, nor hearkened to me.

16 So the sons of Jonadab, the son of Rechab, have constantly kept the commandment of their father, which he commanded them: but this people hath not obeyed me.

17 Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold I will bring upon Juda, and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, all the evil that I have pronounced against them, because I have spoken to them, and they have not heard: I have called to them, and they have not answered me.

18 And Jeremias said to the house of the Rechabites: Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Because you have obeyed the commandment of Jonadab, your father, and have kept all his precepts, and have done all that he commanded you:

19 Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: There shall not be wanting a man of the race of Jonadab, the son of Rechab, standing before me for ever.

CHAP. XXXVI.

Jeremias sends Baruch to read his prophecies in the temple: the book is brought to king Joakim, who burns it. The prophet denounces his judgment, and causes Baruch to write a new copy.

AND it came to pass *in the fourth year of Joakim, the son of Josias, king of Juda, that this word came to Jeremias by the Lord, saying:

2 Take thee a roll of a book, and thou shalt write in it all the words that I have spoken to thee against Israel and Juda, and against all the nations, from the day that I spoke to thee, from the days of Josias even to this day.

3 If so be, when the house of Juda shall hear all the evils that I purpose to do unto them, that they may return every man from his wicked way: and I will forgive their iniquity and their sin.

4 So Jeremias called Baruch, the son of Nerias: and Baruch wrote from the mouth of Jeremias, all the CHAP. XXXVI. VER. 1. Fourth, towards the conclusion, after the siege was raised. v. 6. 9.

VER. 2. Write. He had already prophesied 22 years. Now he was more frequently ordered to write. C.—He executed the order by the hand of Baruch. v. 4.

VER. 3. If. This indicates free-will. H.—God makes this last effort, that the hearing of so many separate prophecies together might make a deeper impression.

VER. 4. Book. This was afterwards burnt. What he wrote a second time has not come down to us, in the same order. Jeremias made use of his memory which was directed by the Holy Spirit. C.

VER. 5. Shut up. Not that the prophet was now in prison; for the contrary words of the Lord, which he spoke to him, upon the roll of a book.

5 And Jeremias commanded Baruch, saying: I am shut up, and cannot go into the house of the Lord.

6 Go thou in, therefore, and read out of the volume which thou hast written from my mouth, the words of the Lord, in the hearing of all the people in the house of the Lord, on the fasting day; and, also, thou shalt read them in the hearing of all Juda, that come out of their cities:

7 If so be, they may present their supplication before the Lord, and may return every one from his wicked way; for great is the wrath and indignation which the Lord hath pronounced against this people.

8 And Baruch, the son of Nerias, did according to all that Jeremias, the prophet, had commanded him, reading out of the volume the words of the Lord, in the house of the Lord.

9 And it came to pass in the fifth year of Joakim, the son of Josias, king of Juda, in the ninth month, that they proclaimed a fast before the Lord to all the people in Jerusalem, and to all the people that were come together out of the cities of Juda to Jerusalem.

10 And Baruch read out of the volume the words of Jeremias, in the house of the Lord, in the treasury of Gamarias, the son of Saphan the scribe, in the upper court, in the entry of the new gate of the house of the Lord, in the hearing of all the people.

11 And when Micheas, the son of Gamarias, the son of Saphan, had heard out of the book all the words of the Lord,

12 He went down into the king's house, to the secretary's chamber; and behold all the princes sat there; Elisama, the scribe, and Dalaias, the son of Semeias, and Elnathan, the son of Achobor, and Gamarias, the son of Saphan, and Sedecias, the son of Hananias, and all the princes.

13 And Micheas told them all the words that he had heard, when Baruch read out of the volume in the hearing of the people.

14 Therefore all the princes sent Judi, the son of Nathanias, the son of Selemias, the son of Chusi, to Baruch, saying: Take in thy hand the volume in which thou hast read in the hearing of the people, and come. So Baruch, the son of Nerias, took the volume in his hand, and came to them.

15 And they said to him: Sit down and read these things in our hearing. And Baruch read in their hearing.

16 And when they had heard all the words, they looked upon one another with astonishment, and they said to Baruch: We must tell the king all these words.

17 And they asked him, saying: Tell us how didst thou write all these words from his mouth.

18 And Baruch said to them: With his mouth he pronounced all these words as if he were reading to me: and I wrote in a volume with ink.

19 And the princes said to Baruch: Go, and hide thee, both thou and Jeremias, and let no man know where you are.

20 And they went in to the king, into the court; but they laid up the volume in the chamber of Elisama, the scribe; and they told all the words in the hearing of the king.

21 And the king sent Judi that he should take the volume: who, bringing it out of the chamber of Elisama, the scribe, read it in the hearing of the king, and of all the princes that stood about the king.

22 Now the king sat in the winter-house, in the ninth month; and there was a hearth before him, full of burning coals.

23 And when Judi had read three or four pages, he cut it with the penknife, and he cast it into the fire that was upon the hearth, till all the volume was consumed with the fire that was on the hearth.

24 And the king, and all his servants that heard all these words, were not afraid, nor did they rend their garments.

25 But yet Elnathan, and Dalaias, and Gamarias spoke to the king, not to burn the book; and he heard them not.

26 And the king commanded Jeremiel, the son of Amelech, and Saraias, the son of Ezriel, and Selemias, the son of Abdeel, to take up Baruch, the scribe, and Jeremias, the prophet: but the Lord hid them.

27 And the word of the Lord came to Jeremias, the prophet, after that the king had burnt the volume, and the words that Baruch had written from the mouth of Jeremias, saying:

28 Take thee again another volume: and write in it all the former words that were in the first volume, which Joakim, the king of Juda, hath burnt.

appears from v. 19. but that he kept himself shut up, by reason of the persecutions he had lately met with. See chap. xxvi. Ch.—If he had been confined, as Grotius asserts, the king would easily have found him. C.—He and Baruch retired to some secret place, as most priests (W.) did formerly in England, (H.) that they might better exercise their functions than they could do in the hands of the persecutors. 30 Therefore thus saith the Lord against Joakim, the king of Juda: He shall have none to sit upon the throne of David; and his dead body shall be cast out to the heat by day, and to the frost by night.

31 And I will punish him and his seed: and his servants for their iniquities, and I will bring upon them, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and upon the men of Juda, all the evil that I have pronounced against them: but they have not heard.

32 And Jeremias took another volume, and gave it to Baruch, the son of Nerias, the scribe; who wrote in it, from the mouth of Jeremias, all the words of the book which Joakim, the king of Juda, had burnt with fire; and there were added besides, many more words than had been before.

CHAP. XXXVII.

Jeremias prophesies that the Chaldeans, who had departed from Jerusalem, would return and burn the city. He is cast into prison. His conference with Sedecias.

NOW king Sedecias, the son of Josias, reigned instead of Jechonias, the son of Joakim; whom Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, made king in the land of Juda.

2 But neither he, nor his servants, nor the people of the land, did obey the words of the Lord, that he spoke in the hand of Jeremias, the prophet.

3 And king Sedecias sent Juchal, the son of Sele-mias, and Sophonias, the son of Maasias, the priest, to Jeremias, the prophet, saying: Pray to the Lord, our God, for us.

4 Now Jeremias walked freely in the midst of the people; for they had not as yet cast him into prison. And the army of Pharao was come out of Egypt: and the Chaldeans, that besieged Jerusalem, hearing these tidings, departed from Jerusalem.

5 And the word of the Lord came to Jeremias, the prophet, saying:

6 Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel: Thus shall you say to the king of Juda, who sent you to inquire of me: Behold the army of Pharao, which is come forth to help you, shall return into their own land, into Egypt.

7 And the Chaldeans shall come again, and fight against this city, and take it, and burn it with fire.

8 Thus saith the Lord: Deceive not your souls, saying: The Chaldeans shall surely depart and go away from us: for they shall not go away.

9 But if you should even beat all the army of the Chaldeans that fight against you, and there should be left of them some wounded men; they shall rise up, every man from his tent, and burn this city with fire.

10 Now, when the army of the Chaldeans was gone away from Jerusalem, because of Pharao's army, 11 Jeremias went forth out of Jerusalem, to go into the land of Benjamin, and to divide a possession there in the presence of the citizens.

12 And when he was come to the gate of Benjamin, the captain of the gate, who was there in his turn, was one named Jerias, the son of Selemias, the son of Hananias: and he took hold of Jeremias, the prophet, saying: Thou art fleeing to the Chaldeans.

13 And Jeremias answered: It is not so; I am not fleeing to the Chaldeans. But he hearkened not to him: so Jerias took Jeremias, and brought him to the princes.

14 Wherefore the princes were angry with Jeremias: and they beat him, and cast him into the prison that was in the house of Jonathan, the scribe; for he was chief over the prison.

15 So Jeremias went into the house of the prison, and into the dungeon: and Jeremias remained there many days.

16 Then Sedecias, the king, sending, took him: and asked him secretly in his house, and said: Is there, thinkest thou, any word from the Lord? And Jeremias said: There is. And he said: Thou shalt be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon.

17 And Jeremias said to king Sedecias: In what have I offended against thee, or thy servants, or thy people, that thou hast cast me into prison?

18 Where are your prophets that prophesied to you, and said: The king of Babylon shall not come against you, and against this land?

19 Now therefore hear, I beseech thee, my lord the king; let my petition be accepted in thy sight; and send me not back into the house of Jonathan, the scribe, lest I die there.

20 Then king Sedecias commanded that Jeremias should be committed into the entry of the prison, and that they should give him daily a piece of bread, beside broth, till all the bread in the city was spent: and Jeremias remained in the entry of the prison.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

The prophet, at the instance of the great men, is cast into a filthy dungeon: he is drawn out by Abdemelech, and has another conference with the king.

NOW *Saphatias, the son of Mathan, and Gedelias, the son of Phassur, and Juchal, the son of Sel-emias, and Phassur, the son of Melchias, heard the words that Jeremias spoke to all the people, saying:

2 Thus saith the Lord: ^bWhosoever shall remain in this city, shall die by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence: but he that shall go forth to the Chaldeans, shall live, and his life shall be safe, and he shall live.

3 Thus saith the Lord: This city shall surely be delivered into the hand of the army of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it.

4 And the princes said to the king: We beseech thee that this man may be put to death: for on purpose he weakeneth the hands of the men of war, that remain in this city, and the hands of the people, speaking to them according to these words: for this man seeketh not peace to this people, but evil.

5 And king Sedecias said: Behold he is in your hands: for it is not lawful for the king to deny you any thing.

6 Then they took Jeremias, and cast him into the dungeon of Melchias, the son of Amelech, which was in the entry of the prison: and they let down Jeremias by ropes into the dungeon, wherein there was no water, but mire. And Jeremias sunk into the mire.

7 Now Abdemelech, the Ethiopian, an eunuch that was in the king's house, heard that they had put Jeremias in the dungeon: but the king was sitting in the gate of Benjamin.

8 And Abdemelech went out of the king's house, and spoke to the king, saying:

9 My lord the king, these men have done evil in all that they have done against Jeremias, the prophet, casting him into the dungeon to die there with hunger, for there is no more bread in the city.

10 Then the king commanded Abdemelech, the Ethiopian, saying: Take from hence thirty men with thee, and draw up Jeremias, the prophet, out of the dungeon, before he die.

11 So Abdemelech, taking the men with him, went into the king's house that was under the storehouse; and he took from thence old rags, and old rotten things, and he let them down by cords to Jeremias, into the dungeon.

12 And Abdemelech, the Ethiopian, said to Jeremias: Put these old rags, and these rent and rotten 13 And they drew up Jeremias with the cords, and brought him forth out of the dungeon. And Jeremias remained in the entry of the prison.

14 And king Sedecias sent and took Jeremias, the prophet, to him to the third gate, that was in the house of the Lord: and the king said to Jeremias: I will ask thee a thing; hide nothing from me.

15 Then Jeremias said to Sedecias: If I shall declare it to thee, wilt thou not put me to death? and if I give thee counsel, thou wilt not hearken to me.

16 Then king Sedecias swore to Jeremias, in private, saying: As the Lord liveth, that made us this soul, I will not put thee to death, nor will I deliver thee into the hands of these men that seek thy life.

17 And Jeremias said to Sedecias: Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: If thou wilt take a resolution, and go out to the princes of the king of Babylon, thy soul shall live, and this city shall not be burnt with fire; and thou shalt be safe, and thy house.

18 But if thou wilt not go out to the princes of the king of Babylon, this city shall be delivered into the hands of the Chaldeans, and they shall burn it with fire; and thou shalt not escape out of their hands.

19 And king Sedecias said to Jeremias: I am afraid, because of the Jews that are fled over to the Chaldeans: lest I should be delivered into their hands, and they should abuse me.

20 But Jeremias answered: They shall not deliver thee; hearken, I beseech thee, to the word of the Lord, which I speak to thee, and it shall be well with thee, and thy soul shall live.

21 But if thou wilt not go forth: this is the word which the Lord hath shewn me:

22 Behold, all the women that are left in the house of the king of Juda, shall be brought out to the princes of the king of Babylon: and they shall say: Thy men of peace have deceived thee, and have prevailed against thee, they have plunged thy feet in the mire, and in a slippery place, and they have departed from thee.

23 And all thy wives, and thy children, shall be brought out to the Chaldeans; and thou shalt not escape their hands, but thou shalt be taken by the hand of the king of Babylon; and he shall burn this city with fire.

24 Then Sedecias said to Jeremias: Let no man know these words, and thou shalt not die.

25 But if the princes shall hear that I have spoken with thee, and shall come to thee, and say to thee: Tell 27 So all the princes came to Jeremias, and asked him: and he spoke to them according to all the words that the king had commanded him: and they left him: for nothing had been heard.

28 But Jeremias remained in the entry of the prison, until the day that Jerusalem was taken: and it came to pass that Jerusalem was taken.

CHAP. XXXIX.

After two years' siege, Jerusalem is taken. Sedecias is carried before Nabuchodonosor, who kills his sons in his sight, and then puts out his eyes. Jeremias is set at liberty.

IN the ninth year^a of Sedecias, king of Juda, in the tenth month, came Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, and all his army to Jerusalem, and they besieged it.

2 And in the^b eleventh year of Sedecias, in the fourth month, the fifth day of the month, the city was opened.

3 And all the princes of the king of Babylon came in, and sat in the middle gate: Neregel, Sereser, Semegarnabu, Sarsachim, Rabsares, Neregel, Sereser, Rebmag, and all the rest of the princes of the king of Babylon.

4 And when Sedecias, the king of Juda, and all the men of war, saw them, they fled: and they went forth in the night out of the city, by the way of the king's garden, and by the gate that was between the two walls, and they went out to the way of the desert.

5 But the army of the Chaldeans pursued after them; and they took Sedecias in the plain of the desert of Jericho; and when they had taken him, they brought him to Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, to Reblatha, which is in the land of Emath: and he gave judgment upon him.

6 And the king of Babylon slew the sons of Sedecias, in Reblatha, before his eyes: and the king of Babylon slew all the nobles of Juda.

7 He also put out the eyes of Sedecias, and bound him with fetters, to be carried to Babylon.

8 And the Chaldeans burnt the king's house, and the houses of the people, with fire; and they threw down the wall of Jerusalem.

9 And Nabuzardan, the general of the army, carried away captive to Babylon the remnant of the people that remained in the city, and the fugitives that had gone over to him, and the rest of the people that remained.

10 But Nabuzardan, the general, left some of the poor people, that had nothing at all in the land of Juda: and he gave them vineyards and cisterns at that time.

11 Now Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, had given charge to Nabuzardan, the general, concerning Jeremias, saying:

12 Take him, and set thy eyes upon him, and do him no harm; but as he hath a mind, so do with him.

13 Therefore Nabuzardan, the general, sent; and Nabusezban, and Rabsares, and Neregel, and Sereser, and Rebmag, and all the nobles of the king of Babylon, 14 Sent, and took Jeremias out of the court of the prison, and committed him to Godolias, the son of Ahicam, the son of Saphan, that he might go home and dwell among the people.

15 But the word of the Lord came to Jeremias, when he was yet shut up in the court of the prison, saying: Go, and tell Abdemelech, the Ethiopian, saying:

16 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will bring my words upon this city unto evil, and not unto good: and they shall be accomplished in thy sight, in that day.

17 And I will deliver thee in that day, saith the Lord; and thou shalt not be given into the hands of the men whom thou fearest:

18 But delivering, I will deliver thee, and thou shalt not fall by the sword; but thy life shall be saved for thee, because thou hast put thy trust in me, saith the Lord.

2 And the general of the army taking Jeremias, said to him: The Lord, thy God, hath pronounced this evil upon this place.

3 And he hath brought it: and the Lord hath done as he hath said: because you have sinned against the Lord, and have not hearkened to his voice, and this word is come upon you.

4 Now then, behold I have loosed thee this day from the chains which were upon thy hands: if it please thee to come with me to Babylon, come: and I will set my eyes upon thee: but if it do not please thee to come with me to Babylon, stay here: behold all the land is before thee, as thou shalt choose, and whither it shall please thee to go, thither go.

5 And come not with me: but dwell with Godolias, the son of Ahicam, the son of Saphan, whom the king of Babylon hath made governor over the cities of Juda: dwell, therefore, with him in the midst of the people: or whithersoever it shall please thee to go, go. And the general of the army gave him victuals and presents, and let him go.

7 And when all the captains of the army that were scattered through the countries, they and their companions, had heard that the king of Babylon had made Godolias, the son of Ahicam, governor of the country, and that he had committed unto him men and women, and children, and of the poor of the land, them that had not been carried away captive to Babylon:

8 They came to Godolias, to Masphath: and Ismahel, the son of Nathania, and Johanan, and Jonathan, the sons of Caree, and Sareas, the son of Thanehumeth, and the children of Ophi, that were of Netophathi, and Jezonias, the son of Maachathi, they and their men.

9 And Godolias, the son of Ahicam, the son of Saphan, swore to them, and to their companions, saying: Fear not to serve the Chaldeans; dwell in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you.

10 Behold, I dwell in Masphath, that I may answer the commandment of the Chaldeans that are sent to us; but as for you, gather ye the vintage, and the harvest, and the oil, and lay it up in your vessels, and abide in your cities which you hold.

11 Moreover, all the Jews that were in Moab, and among the children of Ammon, and in Edom, and in all the countries, when they heard that the king of Babylon had left a remnant in Judea, and that he had made Godolias, the son of Ahicam, the son of Saphan, ruler over them:

12 All the Jews, I say, returned out of all the places to which they had fled, and they came into the land of Juda, to Godolias, to Masphath; and they gathered wine, and a very great harvest.

13 Then Johanan, the son of Caree, and all the captains of the army, that had been scattered about the countries, came to Godolias, to Masphath.

14 And they said to him: Know that Baalis, the king of the children of Ammon, hath sent Ismahel, the son of Nathania, to kill thee. And Godolias, the son of Ahicam, believed them not.

15 But Johanan, the son of Caree, spoke to Godolias privately in Masphath, saying: I will go, and I will kill Ismahel, the son of Nathania, and no man shall know it, lest he kill thee, and all the Jews be scattered, that are gathered unto thee, and the remnant of Juda perish.

16 And Godolias, the son of Ahicam, said to Johanan, the son of Caree: Do not this thing: for what thou sayest of Ismahel is false.

CHAP. XLI.

Godolias is slain: the Jews that were with him are apprehensive of the Chaldeans.

AND it came to pass in the seventh month, that Ismahel, the son of Nathania, the son of Elisama, of the royal blood, and the nobles of the king, and ten men with him, came to Godolias, the son of Ahicam, into Masphath: and they eat bread there together in Masphath.

2 And Ismahel, the son of Nathania, arose, and the ten men that were with him, and they struck Godolias, the son of Ahicam, the son of Saphan, with the sword, and slew him whom the king of Babylon had made governor over the land.

3 Ismahel slew also all the Jews that were with Godolias in Masphath, and the Chaldeans that were found there, and the soldiers.

4 And on the second day after he had killed Godolias, no man yet knowing it,

5 There came some from Sichein, and from Silo, and from Samaria, fourscore men, with their beards shaven,

6 And Ismahel, the son of Nathania, went forth from Masphath to meet them, weeping all along as he went: and when he had met them, he said to them: Come to Godolias, the son of Ahicam.

7 And when they were come to the midst of the city, Ismahel, the son of Nathania, slew them, and cast them into the midst of the pit, he and the men that were with him.

8 But ten men were found among them, that said to Ismahel: Kill us not; for we have stores in the field, of wheat, and barley, and oil, and honey. And he forbore, and slew them not with their brethren.

9 And the pit into which Ismahel cast all the dead bodies of the men whom he slew, because of Godolias, is the same that king Asa made, for fear of Baasa, the king of Israel: the same did Ismahel, the son of Nathania fill, with them that were slain.

10 Then Ismahel carried away captive all the remnant of the people that were in Masphath; the king's daughters, and all the people that remained in Masphath; whom Nabuzardan, the general of the army, had committed to Godolias, the son of Ahicam. And Ismahel, the son of Nathania, took them, and he departed, to go over to the children of Ammon.

11 But Johanan, the son of Caree, and all the captains of the fighting men that were with him, heard of the evil that Ismahel, the son of Nathania, had done.

12 And taking all the men, they went out to fight against Ismahel, the son of Nathania, and they found him by the great waters that are in Gabaon.

13 And when all the people that were with Ismahel, had seen Johanan, the son of Caree, and all the captains of the fighting men that were with him, they rejoiced.

14 And all the people whom Ismahel had taken, went back to Masphath: and they returned, and went to Johanan, the son of Caree.

15 But Ismahel, the son of Nathania, fled with eight men, from the face of Johanan, and went to the children of Ammon.

16 Then Johanan, the son of Caree, and all the captains of the soldiers that were with him, took all the remnant of the people whom they had recovered from Ismahel, the son of Nathania, from Masphath, after that he had slain Godolias, the son of Ahicam: valiant men for war, and the women, and the children, and the eunuchs, whom he had brought back from Gabaon:

17 And they departed, and sat as sojourners in Chamaam, which is near Bethlehem: in order to go forward, and enter into Egypt,

18 From the face of the Chaldeans: for they were afraid of them, because Ismahel, the son of Nathania, had slain Godolias, the son of Ahicam, whom the king of Babylon had made governor in the land of Juda.

CHAP. XLII.

Jeremias assures the remnant of the people, that if they will stay in Juda, they shall be safe: but if they go down into Egypt, they shall perish.

THEN *all the captains of the warriors, and Johanan, the son of Caree, and Jezonias, the son of Osaias, and the rest of the people, from the least to the greatest, came near:

2 And they said to Jeremias, the prophet: Let our supplication fall before thee: and pray thou for us to the Lord, thy God, for all this remnant, for we are left but a few of many, as thy eyes do behold us.

3 And let the Lord, thy God, shew us the way by which we may walk, and the thing that we must do.

4 And Jeremias, the prophet, said to them: I have heard you: behold I will pray to the Lord, your God, according to your words: and whatsoever thing he shall answer me, I will declare it to you: and I will hide nothing from you.

5 And they said to Jeremias: The Lord be witness between us of truth and faithfulness, if we do not according to every thing for which the Lord, thy God, shall send thee to us.

6 Whether it be good or evil, we will obey the voice of the Lord, our God, to whom we send thee: that it may be well with us when we shall hearken to the voice of the Lord, our God.

7 Now, after ten days, the word of the Lord came to Jeremias.

8 And he called Johanan, the son of Caree, and all the captains of the fighting men that were with him, and all the people, from the least to the greatest.

9 And he said to them: Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel, to whom you sent me, to present your supplications before him:

10 If you will be quiet and remain in this land, I will build you up, and not pull you down: I will plant you, and not pluck you up: for now I am appeased for the evil that I have done to you.

13 But if you say: We will not dwell in this land, neither will we hearken to the voice of the Lord our God,

15 For this now hear the word of the Lord, ye remnant of Juda: Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: If you set your faces to go into Egypt, and enter in to dwell there:

16 The sword which you fear, shall overtake you there, in the land of Egypt: and the famine, whereof you are afraid, shall cleave to you in Egypt, and there you shall die.

17 And all the men that set their faces to go into Egypt, to dwell there, shall die by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence: none of them shall remain, nor escape from the face of the evil that I will bring upon them.

18 For thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: As my anger and my indignation hath been kindled against the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so shall my indignation be kindled against you, when you shall enter into Egypt, and you shall be an execration, and an astonishment, and a curse, and a reproach; and you shall see this place no more.

19 This is the word of the Lord concerning you, O ye remnant of Juda: Go ye not into Egypt: know certainly that I have adjured you this day.

20 For you have deceived your own souls; for you sent me to the Lord our God, saying: Pray for us to the Lord our God, and according to all that the Lord our God shall say to thee, so declare unto us, and we will do it.

21 And now I have declared it to you this day, and you have not obeyed the voice of the Lord your God, with regard to all the things for which he hath sent me to you.

22 Now, therefore, know certainly that you shall die by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence, in the place to which you desire to go to dwell there.

CHAP. XLIII.

The Jews, contrary to the orders of God, by the prophet, go into Egypt, carrying Jeremias with them. He foretells the devastation of that land by the king of Babylon.

AND "it came to pass, that when Jeremias had made an end of speaking to the people all the words of the Lord their God, for which the Lord their God had sent him to them, all these words:

2 Azarias, the son of Osaia, and Johanan, the son of Caree, and all the proud men, made answer, saying, to Jeremias: Thou tellest a lie; the Lord our God hath not sent thee, saying: Go not into Egypt, to dwell there.

3 But Baruch, the son of Neria, setteth thee on against us, to deliver us into the hands of the Chaldeans, to kill us, and to cause us to be carried away captives to Babylon.

4 So Johanan, the son of Caree, and all the captains of the soldiers, and all the people, obeyed not the voice of the Lord, to remain in the land of Juda.

5 But Johanan, the son of Caree, and all the captains of the soldiers, took all the remnant of Juda, that were returned out of all nations, to which they had before been scattered, to dwell in the land of Juda:

6 Men, and women, and children, and the king's daughters, and every soul, which Nabuzardan, the general, had left with Godolias, the son of Ahicam, the son of Saphan, and Jeremias, the prophet, and Baruch, the son of Neria.

7 And they went into the land of Egypt, for they obeyed not the voice of the Lord: and they came as far as Taphnis.

8 And the word of the Lord came to Jeremias, in Taphnis, saying:

9 Take great stones in thy hand, and thou shalt hide them in the vault that is under the brick wall at the gate of Pharaoh's house in Taphnis: in the sight of the men of Juda.

10 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will send, and take Nabuchodonosor, the king of Babylon, my servant; and I will set his throne over these stones which I have hid, and he shall set his throne over them.

CHAP. XLIV.

The prophet's admonition to the Jews, in Egypt, against idolatry, is not regarded: he denounces to them their destruction.

THE word that came to Jeremias, concerning all the Jews that dwelt in the land of Egypt, dwelling in Magdal, and in Taphnis, and in Memphis, and in the land of Phatures, saying:

2 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: You have seen all this evil that I have brought upon Jerusalem, and upon all the cities of Juda; and behold they are desolate this day, and there is not an inhabitant in them:

3 Because of the wickedness which they have committed, to provoke me to wrath, and to go and offer sacrifice, and worship other gods, which neither they, nor you, nor your fathers knew.

4 And I sent to you all my servants, the prophets, rising early, and sending, and saying: Do not commit this abominable thing, which I hate.

5 But they heard not, nor inclined their ear to turn from their evil ways, and not to sacrifice to strange gods.

6 Wherefore my indignation and my fury was poured forth, and was kindled in the cities of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem: and they are turned to desolation and waste, as at this day.

7 And now thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Why do you commit this great evil against your own souls, that there should die of you man and woman, child and suckling, out of the midst of Juda, and no remnant should be left you:

8 In that you provoke me to wrath with the works of your hands, by sacrificing to other gods, in the land of Egypt, into which you are come to dwell there: and that you should perish, and be a curse, and a reproach to all the nations of the earth?

9 Have you forgotten the evils of your fathers, and the evils of the kings of Juda, and the evils of their wives, and your evils, and the evils of your wives, that they have done in the land of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem?

10 They are not cleansed even to this day; neither have they feared, nor walked in the law of the Lord, nor in my commandments, which I set before you and before your fathers.

11 Therefore, thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will set my face upon you for evil; and I will destroy all Juda.

12 And I will take the remnant of Juda that have set their faces to go into the land of Egypt, and to dwell there: and they shall be all consumed in the land of Egypt: they shall fall by the sword, and by the famine: and they shall be consumed from the least even to the greatest, by the sword, and by the famine shall they die: and they shall be for an execration, and for a wonder, and for a curse, and for a reproach.

13 And I will visit them that dwell in the land of Egypt, as I have visited Jerusalem by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence.

14 And there shall be none that shall escape, and remain, of the remnant of the Jews that are gone to sojourn in the land of Egypt: and that shall return into the land of Juda, to which they have a desire to return, to dwell there: there shall none return but they that shall flee.

15 Then all the men that knew that their wives sacrificed to other gods: and all the women, of whom there stood by a great multitude, and all the people of them that dwelt in the land of Egypt, in Phatures, answered Jeremias, saying:

16 As for the word which thou hast spoken to us in the name of the Lord, we will not hearken to thee:

17 But we will certainly do every word that shall proceed out of our own mouth, to sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink-offerings to her, as we and our fathers have done, our kings, and our princes, in the cities of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem: and we were filled with bread, and it was well with us, and we saw no evil.

18 But since we left off to offer sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink-offerings to her, we have wanted all things, and have been consumed by the sword, and by famine.

19 And if we offer sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and pour out drink-offerings to her: did we make cakes to worship her, to pour out drink-offerings to her, without our husbands?

20 And Jeremias spoke to all the people, to the men, and to the women, and to all the people which had given him that answer, saying:

21 Was it not the sacrifice that you offered in the cities of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem, you and your fathers, your kings, and your princes, and the people of the land, which the Lord hath remembered, and hath it not entered into his heart?

22 So that the Lord could no longer bear, because of the evil of your doings, and because of the abominations which you have committed: therefore your land is become a desolation, and an astonishment, and a curse, without an inhabitant, as at this day.

23 Because you have sacrificed to idols, and have sinned against the Lord: and have not obeyed the voice of the Lord, and have not walked in his law, and in his commandments, and in his testimonies: therefore are these evils come upon you, as at this day.

24 And Jeremias said to all the people, and to all the women: Hear ye the word of the Lord, all Juda, you that dwell in the land of Egypt:

25 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, saying: You and your wives have spoken with your mouth, and fulfilled with your hands, saying: Let us perform our vows which we have made, to offer sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink-offerings to her: you have fulfilled your vows, and have performed them indeed.

26 Therefore, hear ye the word of the Lord, all Juda, you that dwell in the land of Egypt: Behold I have sworn by my great name, saith the Lord: that my name shall no more be named in the mouth of any man of Juda, in the land of Egypt, saying: The Lord God liveth.

27 Behold I will watch over them for evil, and not for good: and all the men of Juda that are in the land of Egypt, shall be consumed by the sword, and by famine, till there be an end of them.

28 And a few men that shall flee from the sword, shall return out of the land of Egypt into the land of Juda: and all the remnant of Juda that are gone into the land of Egypt, to dwell there, shall know, whose word shall stand, mine, or theirs.

29 And this shall be a sign to you, saith the Lord, that I will punish you in this place: that you may know that my words shall be accomplished indeed against you for evil.

30 Thus saith the Lord: Behold I will deliver Pharaoh Ephree, king of Egypt, into the hand of his enemies, and into the hand of them that seek his life: as I delivered Sedecias, king of Juda, into the hand of Nabuchodonosor, the king of Babylon, his enemy, and that sought his life.

The prophet comforts Baruch in his affliction.

THE word that Jeremias, the prophet, spoke to Baruch, the son of Nerias, when he had written these words in a book, out of the mouth of Jeremias, in the fourth year of Joakim, the son of Josias, king of Juda, saying:

2 Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel, to thee, Baruch:

3 Thou hast said: Woe is me, wretch that I am, for the Lord hath added sorrow to my sorrow; I am wearied with my groans, and I find no rest.

4 Thus saith the Lord: Thus shalt thou say to him: Behold, them whom I have built, I do destroy; and them whom I have planted, I do pluck up, and all this land.

5 And dost thou seek great things for thyself? Seek not; for behold I will bring evil upon all flesh, saith the Lord: but I will give thee thy life, and save thee in all places whithersoever thou shalt go.

CHAP. XLVI.

A prophecy against Egypt. The Jews shall return from captivity.

THE word of the Lord, that came to Jeremias, the prophet, against the Gentiles,

2 Against Egypt, against the army of Pharaoh Nechao, king of Egypt, which was by the river Euphrates, in Charcamis, whom Nabuchodonosor, the king of Babylon, defeated, in the fourth year of Joakim, the son of Josias, king of Juda.

3 Prepare ye the shield and buckler, and go forth to battle.

4 Harness the horses, and get up, ye horsemen; stand forth with helmets, furbish the spears, put on coats of mail.

5 What then? I have seen them dismayed, and turning their backs, their valiant ones slain: they fled apace, and they looked not back: terror was round about, saith the Lord.

6 Let not the swift flee away, nor the strong think to escape: they are overthrown, and fallen down, towards the north, by the river Euphrates.

7 Who is this that cometh up as a flood: and his streams swell like those of rivers?

8 Egypt riseth up like a flood, and the waves thereof shall be moved as rivers, and he shall say: I will go up, and will cover the earth: I will destroy the city and its inhabitants.

CHAP. XLVI. VER. 1. Gentiles, to whom Jeremias was sent. C. i. 5. What follows regards them, (C) if we except the last chapter. H.—It was thought proper to place these predictions here, though out of their chronological order, to which the Sept. have more adhered, placing them after C. xxv. C.—The punishment of the chief enemies of the Jews is foretold. W.

VER. 2. Nechao. He slew Josias, and took all as far as Charcamis. 4 K. xxiii. Four years after Nabopolassar associated his son, and sent him to conquer these countries, which he effected. 4 K. xxiv. 7. Jos.

VER. 3. Prepare Egyptians, the enemy is at hand. C.

VER. 5. Seen. The prophets usually speak as if things were already past. W.

VER. 6. Away. It will be in vain. C.—Nechao went to defend Charcamis, but lost "many myriads in the battle," and all the country "as far as Pelusium, except Judea." Joseph. x. 7.

VER. 7. Rivers. He alludes to the Nile. The king of Egypt had a numerous army.

VER. 8. City; Babylon, and every fort which shall oppose my progress. C.

VER. 9. Men. Soldiers formed one of the principal classes among the Egyptians. Herod. ii. 164.—Ethiopians. Heb. "Cush," in Lower Egypt, on the Red (1009)

9 Get ye up on horses, and glory in chariots, and let the valiant men come forth, the Ethiopians, and the Lybians, that hold the shield, and the Lydians that take, and shoot arrows.

10 For this is the day of the Lord, the God of hosts, a day of vengeance, that he may revenge himself of his enemies: the sword shall devour, and shall be filled, and shall be drunk with their blood: for there is a sacrifice of the Lord God of hosts in the north country, by the river Euphrates.

11 Go up into Galaad, and take balm, O virgin daughter of Egypt: in vain dost thou multiply medicines, there shall be no cure for thee.

12 The nations have heard of thy disgrace, and thy howling hath filled the land: for the strong hath stumbled against the strong, and both are fallen together.

13 The word that the Lord spoke to Jeremias, the prophet, how Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, should come and strike the land of Egypt:

14 Declare ye to Egypt, and publish in Magdal, ^aand let it be known in Memphis, and in Taphnis: say ye: Stand up, and prepare thyself: for the sword shall devour all round about thee.

15 Why are thy valiant men come to nothing? they stood not: because the Lord hath overthrown them,

16 He hath multiplied them that fall, and one hath fallen upon another, and they shall say: Arise, and let us return to our own people, and to the land of our nativity, from the sword of the dove.

17 Call ye the name of Pharaoh, king of Egypt, a tumult time hath brought.

18 As I live (saith the king, whose name is the Lord of hosts) as Thabor is among the mountains, and as Carmel by the sea, so shall he come.

19 Furnish thyself to go into captivity, thou daughter inhabitant of Egypt: for Memphis shall be made desolate, and shall be forsaken and uninhabited.

20 Egypt is like a fair and beautiful heifer: there shall come from the north one that shall goad her.

^a Supra xlv. 1.—^b Ezeo. xxix. 13.

Sea.—Lybians. Heb. "Phut, another son of Cham, inhabiting the Nome Phthenethu." Ezeo. xxx. 5. Nah. iii. 2.—Lydians. Their situation is not known.

VER. 10. Devour. It seems animated, and eager to slay the victim. Ezeo. xxxix. 17.

VER. 11. Of Egypt; or ye Egyptians, who have been wounded. The balm (H.) or resina of Galaad was then very famous. Gen. xxxvii. 25. C.—Egypt thought itself invulnerable, and is derided. Its cure was hopeless. v. 16. W.

VER. 13. Egypt, under Apries, about thirty-five years after the former expedition. C. xlv. 30. Ezeo. xxix. and xxxi. This country was invaded the last. v. 14.

VER. 15. Men. Lit. "man." Heb. abir, (H.) where Apis has been perhaps formed. C.—Sept. "Why has Apis (Comp. omits this word) fled from thee? thy calf, thy chosen one has not remained." H.—He derides the chief idol of Egypt; or he alludes to those who fell at Charcamia, or rather who fled after they had come out to assist Sedecias. C. xxxvii. 5. Ezeo. xxx. 21.

VER. 16. Dove. Heb. also, "of the destroyer." Sept. "Greeks," or Ionians. C.—See C. xxv. 35. Ch.—Nabuchodonosor came with expedition, or had a dove on his standards. M.

VER. 17. Pharaoh. Sept. add, "Necho." But Apries seems rather to be meant. C.—A. Heb. shaon hekebir hanched. Prot. "is but a noise, he hath passed the time appointed;" (H.) or, "the height which the crowd (or God, who raised) hath displaced." C.—Sept retain the original: but the middle word varies in their copies. H.—All the boasts of Pharaoh ended in smoke. He lost the proper opportunity, and caused his own kingdom to be laid waste. Syr. "the disturber, who deranges the times." C.

VER. 18. He, the destroyer; (v. 16) or "it," my word (H.) shall surely stand as long as the mountains, (C.) yea, longer than heaven and earth. H.—My decrees shall be put in execution in spite of the efforts of man. C.

VER. 19. Furnish. Lit. "make thyself vessels of captivity," or pack up what thou mayest want there. H. Ezeo. xii. 3. and xxix. 11.—Many returned under Cyrus. v. 26.

21 Her hirelings also that lived in the midst of her; like fatted calves are turned back, and are fled away together, and they could not stand: for the day of their slaughter is come upon them, the time of their visitation.

22 Her voice shall sound like brass, for they shall hasten with an army, and with axes they shall come against her, as hewers of wood.

23 They have cut down her forest, saith the Lord, which cannot be counted: they are multiplied above locusts, and are without number.

24 The daughter of Egypt is confounded, and delivered into the hand of the people of the north.

25 The Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, hath said: Behold, I will visit upon the tumult of Alexandria, and upon Pharaoh, and upon Egypt, and upon her gods, and upon her kings, and upon Pharaoh, and upon them that trust in him.

26 And I will deliver them into the hand of them that seek their lives, and into the hand of Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, and into the hand of his servants: and afterwards it shall be inhabited ^bas in the days of old, saith the Lord.

27 ^aAnd thou, my servant, Jacob, fear not, and be not thou dismayed, O Israel: for behold I will save thee from afar off, and thy seed out of the land of thy captivity: and Jacob shall return, and be at rest, and prosper: and there shall be none to terrify him.

28 And thou, my servant, Jacob, fear not, saith the Lord: because I am with thee, for I will consume all the nations to which I have cast thee out: but thee I will not consume, but I will correct thee in judgment, neither will I spare thee, as if thou wert innocent.

CHAP. XLVII.

A prophecy of the desolation of the Philistines, of Tyre, Sidon, Gaza, and Ascalon.

THE word of the Lord that came to Jeremias, the prophet, against the people of Palestine, before Pharaoh took Gaza:

^c Issi. xliii. 1. and xlv. 2.

VER. 20. Goad her Nabuchodonosor shall subdue the country.

VER. 21. Hirelings. Apries had thirty thousand Carians, &c. who were defeated by Amasia. Herod. ii. 168.

VER. 22. Brass. Sept. "hissing serpent;" lamenting in secret. Is. xxix. 4. —Wood. Battle-axes were then used. Great cities and monarchs shall fall. Zac. xi. 2. Ezeo. xxxi. 3. C.

VER. 23. Above, or "more than locusts," (H.) which destroy all herbs where they light.

VER. 25. Visit upon. That is, punish.—Alexandria. In the Heb. No; which was the ancient name of the city, to which Alexander gave afterwards the name of Alexandria; (Ch.) or this city was built near Rachotes, the harbour. "Ammon of No" was rather Diospolis, (Ezeo. xxx. 14. Sept.) in the Delta, north of Basiria. Ammon was the chief god adored at No. Nah. iii. 8. Sept. Alex. "I will revenge myself of Ammon, her son, on Egypt, on Pharaoh, and on them." H.—Ammon was of their invention, and for this the people were justly punished. It means also, "a multitude."—Kings. C. xlii. 12. Apries was slain, (C. xlv. 33. C.) and his two successors perished miserably by sentence of Cambysea. Herod. iii. 14. and 16.

VER. 26. Afterwards, forty years being expired (Ezeo. xxix. 14.) from the time when Apries made his unsuccessful attack on Cyrene, and his subjects revolted.

VER. 27. Off from all countries, (C.) particularly from Egypt; (H.) on occasion of which country's deliverance, that of Jacob is foretold. C.—If God would bring the Egyptians back, much more would he deliver the Jews. W.

VER. 28. Nations of Assyria, Chaldea, &c. C. xxx. 11. C.

CHAP. XLVII. VER. 1. Gaza, going or returning from Charcamia. Apries also attacked Tyre, and would of course invade the Philistines. They had assisted the Tyrians against Nabuchodonosor, who therefore made incursions into their territory, and into that of Ammon, &c. while the main part of his army besieged Tyre for thirteen years. C.

VER. 3. Marching. Lit. "pomp," (H.) or warlike apparatus. H.—Prot.

2 Thus saith the Lord: Behold there come up waters out of the north, and they shall be as an overflowing torrent, and they shall cover the land, and all that is therein, the city, and the inhabitants thereof: then the men shall cry, and all the inhabitants of the land shall howl,

3 At the noise of the marching of arms, and of his soldiers, at the rushing of his chariots, and the multitude of his wheels. The fathers have not looked back to the children, for feebleness of hands,

4 Because of the coming of the day, in which all the Philistines shall be laid waste, and Tyre, and Sidon shall be destroyed, with all the rest of their helpers. For the Lord hath wasted the Philistines, *the remnant of the isle of Cappadocia.

5 Baldness is come upon Gaza: Ascalon hath held her peace, with the remnant of their valley: how long shalt thou cut thyself?

6 O thou sword of the Lord, how long wilt thou not be quiet? Go into thy scabbard, rest and be still.

7 How shall it be quiet, when the Lord hath given it a charge against Ascalon, and against the countries thereof by the sea side, and there hath made an appointment for it.

CHAP. XLVIII.

A prophecy of the desolation of Moab, for their pride: but their captivity shall at last be released.

A GAINST ^bMoab thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Woe to Nabo, for it is laid waste, and confounded: Cariathaim is taken: the strong city is confounded, and hath trembled.

2 There is no more rejoicing in Moab over Hesebon: they have devised evil. Come, and let us cut it off from being a nation. Therefore, shalt thou in silence hold thy peace, and the sword shall follow thee.

3 A voice of crying from Oronaim: waste and great destruction.

4 Moab is destroyed; proclaim a cry for her little ones.

5 For by the ascent of Luith shall the mourner go up with weeping; for in the descent of Oronaim, the enemies have heard a howling of destruction:

6 Flee, save your lives; and be *as heath in the wilderness.

7 For because thou hast trusted in thy bulwarks, and in thy treasures, thou also shalt be taken; and Chamos shall go into captivity, his priests, and his princes together.

8 And the spoiler shall come upon every city, and no city shall escape; and the valleys shall perish, and the plains shall be destroyed, for the Lord hath spoken:

9 Give a flower to Moab, for in its flower it shall go out; and the cities thereof shall be desolate, and uninhabited.

10 Cursed be he that doth the work of the Lord deceitfully; and cursed be he that withholdeth his sword from blood.

11 Moab hath been fruitful from his youth, and hath rested upon his lees; and hath not been poured out from vessel to vessel, nor hath gone into captivity: therefore his taste hath remained in him, and his scent is not changed.

12 Therefore, behold the days come, saith the Lord, and I will send him men that shall order and overturn his bottles, and they shall cast him down, and shall empty his vessels, and break their bottles one against another.

13 And Moab shall be ashamed of Chamos, ^das the house of Israel was ashamed of Bethel, in which they trusted.

14 *How do you say: We are valiant, and stout men in battle?

15 Moab is laid waste, and they have cast down her cities; and her choice young men are gone down to the slaughter, saith the king, whose name is the Lord of hosts.

16 The destruction of Moab is near to come: the calamity thereof shall come on exceeding swiftly.

VER. 16. Swiftly; about twenty-three years from the fourth of Joakim.

17 Comfort him, all you that are round about him; and all you that know his name, say: How is the strong staff broken, the beautiful rod?

18 Come down from thy glory, and sit in thirst, O dwelling of the daughter of Dibon; because the spoiler of Moab is come up to thee, he hath destroyed thy bulwarks.

19 Stand in the way, and look out, O habitation of Aroer: enquire of him that fleeth, and say to him that hath escaped: What is done?

20 Moab is confounded, because he is overthrown: howl ye, and cry, tell ye it in Arnon, that Moab is wasted.

21 And judgment is come upon the plain country; upon Helon, and upon Jasa, and upon Mephaath;

22 And upon Dibon, and upon Nabo, and upon the house of Deblathaim;

23 And upon Cariathaim, and upon Bethgamul, and upon Bethmaon;

24 And upon Carioth, and upon Bosra, and upon all the cities of the land of Moab, far or near.

25 The horn of Moab is cut off, and his arm is broken, saith the Lord.

26 Make him drunk, because he lifted up himself against the Lord; and Moab shall dash his hand in his own vomit, and he also shall be in derision.

27 For Israel hath been a derision unto thee; as though thou hadst found him amongst thieves: for thy words, therefore, which thou hast spoken against him, thou shalt be led away captive.

28 Leave the cities, and dwell in the rock, you that dwell in Moab; and be ye like the dove that maketh her nest in the mouth of the hole in the highest place.

29 *We have heard the pride of Moab; he is exceedingly proud; his haughtiness, and his arrogancy, and his pride, and the loftiness of his heart.

30 I know, saith the Lord, his boasting: and that the strength thereof is not according to it, neither hath it endeavoured to do according as it was able.

31 Therefore will I lament for Moab, and I will cry out to all Moab, for the men of the brick wall that mourn.

32 O vineyard of Sabama, I will weep for thee, with the mourning of Jazer; thy branches are gone over the sea, they are come even to the sea of Jazer: the robber hath rushed in upon thy harvest, and thy vintage.

33 *Joy and gladness is taken away from Carmel, and from the land of Moab, and I have taken away the wine out of the presses: the treader of the grapes shall not sing the accustomed cheerful tune.

34 From the cry of Hesebon, even to Eleale, and to Jasa, they have uttered their voice; from Segor to Oronaim, as a heifer of three years old; the waters also of Nemrin shall be very bad.

35 And I will take away from Moab, saith the Lord, him that offereth in the high places, and that sacrificeth to his gods.

36 Therefore my heart shall sound for Moab like pipes; and my heart shall sound like pipes for the men of the brick wall; because he hath done more than he could, therefore they have perished.

37 *For every head shall be bald, and every beard shall be shaven: all hands shall be tied together, and upon every back there shall be haircloth.

38 Upon all the house-tops of Moab, and in the streets thereof general mourning; because I have broken Moab as an useless vessel, saith the Lord.

39 How is it overthrown, and they have howled? How hath Moab bowed down the neck, and is confounded? And Moab shall be a derision, and an example to all round about him.

40 Thus saith the Lord: Behold, he shall fly as an eagle, and shall stretch forth his wings to Moab.

41 Carioth is taken, and the strong holds are won: and the heart of the valiant men of Moab, in that day, shall be as the heart of a woman in labour.

42 And Moab shall cease to be a people: because he hath gloried against the Lord.

43 Fear, and the pit, and the snare come upon thee, O inhabitant of Moab, saith the Lord.

44 *He that shall flee from the fear, shall fall into the pit; and he that shall get up out of the pit, shall be taken in the snare; for I will bring upon Moab the year of their visitation, saith the Lord.

45 They that fled from the snare stood in the shadow of Hesebon, but there came a fire out of Hesebon, and a flame out of the midst of Seon, and it shall devour part of Moab, and the crown of the head of the children of tumult.

46 Woe to thee, Moab, thou hast perished, O people of Chamos; for thy sons, and thy daughters are taken captives.

47 And I will bring back the captivity of Moab in the last days, saith the Lord. Hitherto the judgments of Moab.

CHAP. XLIX.

The like desolation of Ammon, of Idumea, of the Syrians, of the Agarenes, and of the Elumites.

A GAINST *the children of Ammon. Thus saith the Lord: Hath Israel no sons? or hath he no heir? Why then hath Melchom inherited Gad, and his people dwelt in his cities?

2 Therefore, behold the days come, saith the Lord, and I will cause the noise of war to be heard in Rabbath, of the children of Ammon, and it shall be destroyed into a heap, and her daughters shall be burnt with fire, and Israel shall possess them that have possessed him, saith the Lord.

3 Howl, O Hesebon, for Hai is wasted. Cry, ye daughters of Rabbath; gird yourselves with haircloth; mourn, and go about by the hedges; for Melchom shall be carried into captivity, his priests and his princes together.

4 Why gloriest thou in the valleys? thy valley hath flowed away, O delicate daughter, that hast trusted in thy treasures, and hast said: Who shall come to me?

5 Behold, I will bring a fear upon thee, saith the Lord God of hosts, from all that are round about thee; and you shall be scattered every one out of one another's sight, neither shall there be any to gather together them that flee.

6 And afterwards I will cause the captives of the children of Ammon to return, saith the Lord.

7 Against Edom.^b Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Is wisdom no more in Theman? counsel is perished from her children: their wisdom is become unprofitable.

8 Flee, and turn your backs, go down into the deep hole, ye inhabitants of Dedan; for I have brought the destruction of Esau upon him, the time of his visitation.

9 If grape-gatherers had come to thee, would they not have left a bunch? if thieves in the night, they would have taken what was enough for them.

10 But I have made Esau bare, I have revealed his

CHAP. XLIX. VER. 1. Melchom, the idol of the Ammonites. Ch.—Gad, to whom a part of their country was assigned. After the captivity of this tribe, the Ammonites seized the country, regardless of God's appointment. They joined the Chaldees afterwards; but the latter could not depend upon them, and sent them into captivity, to revenge the death of Godolias. C. xli. 2. Soph. ii. 8. Ezech. xxv. 3. C.—They had taken the country as their right, as if all Israel had perished; which God resents. W.

VER. 2. Rabbath; called Amana, Astarte, and Philadelphia, by Stephanus.—Possess; returning first from captivity, and subduing the cities of Ammon, under Hyrcan. 1 Mac. v. 6.

VER. 3. Hai, or Je-abarim. Both these cities pertained also to Moab.—Hedges. Heb. Gederoth, may be the city Gadara.—Melchom, or Molec, who claimed dominion over this people. If they had used their reason, they must have seen that he was no god, since the Lord disposed of him as he pleased so long before.

VER. 4. Delicate. Heb. "rebel or dissolute." Sept. "impudent."

secrets, and he cannot be hid: his seed is laid waste, and his brethren and his neighbours, and he shall not be.

11 Leave thy fatherless children: I will make them live; and thy widows shall hope in thee.

12 For thus saith the Lord: Behold, they whose judgment was not to drink of the cup, shall certainly drink; and shalt thou come off as innocent? thou shalt not come off as innocent, but drinking thou shalt drink.

13 For I have sworn by myself, saith the Lord, that Bosra shall become a desolation: and a reproach, and a desert, and a curse, and all her cities shall be everlasting wastes.

14 *I have heard a rumour from the Lord, and an ambassador is sent to the nations: Gather yourselves together, and come against her, and let us rise up to battle.

15 For behold I have made thee a little one among the nations, despicable among men.

16 Thy arrogancy hath deceived thee, and the pride of thy heart; O thou that dwellest in the cliffs of the rock, and endeavourest to lay hold on the height of the hill; *but though thou shouldest make thy nest as high as an eagle, I will bring thee down from thence, saith the Lord.

17 And Edom shall be desolate: every one that shall pass by it shall be astonished, and shall hiss at all its plagues.

18 *As Sodom was overthrown and Gomorrha, and the neighbours thereof, saith the Lord: there shall not a man dwell there, and there shall no son of man inhabit it.

19 Behold one shall come up as a lion from the swelling of the Jordan, against the strong and beautiful: for I will make him run suddenly upon her: and who shall be the chosen one whom I may appoint over her? for who is like to me? and who shall abide me? *and who is that shepherd that can withstand my countenance?

20 Therefore, hear ye the counsel of the Lord, which he hath taken concerning Edom: and his thoughts, which he hath thought concerning the inhabitants of Theman: surely the little ones of the flock shall cast them down, of a truth they shall destroy them with their habitation.

VER. 7. Edom. This nation was involved in the common ruin, for its barbarity towards God's people. Abd. x. Ps. cxxxvi. 7. Ezech. xxv. 12.—Theman, renowned formerly for wisdom. Job ii. 11. Yet at the approach of danger, all were confounded. C.—They were only worldly wise. W.

VER. 8. Hole. The territory of Edom, from Eleutheropolis to Elath, is full of such. S. Jer. in Abd.—Dedan lies south of the Dead Sea. C.

VER. 10. Secrets, or lurking holes. v. 8. H.—God permits the Chaldees to plunder all.—Brethren; Israelites.—Neighbours; Moab, &c.

VER. 12. Was not so much. There were some faithful Jews. C. xxv. 23. C.

VER. 13. Bosra, different from that of Ammon; (C. xlviii. 24. Cellar. iii. 14.) though this may be doubtful. Could such a city be unknown?

VER. 14. Ambassador; Jeremias: or rather this is a personification of the passions, which would sufficiently prompt the Chaldees. C.—A good angel might urge them to execute the divine decrees. Theodoret.—The greatest armies are thus made use of by Providence, without approving of their malicious designs.

VER. 15. Little. Edom was scarcely known, except in sacred history; and it was forced to receive circumcision by the Machabees.

VER. 16. Hill. The mountains were numerous, and full of caverns. v. 8.

VER. 17. Desolate. The few who survived left their ancient territories, which are now a desert, like most of Stony Arabia. C.—Hiss, out of contempt. The punishment was so great as to excite surprise. W.

VER. 19. Swelling. Lit. "pride;" (H.) or those banks which the Jordan reaches, when it overflows. They are lined with woods, from which lions rush 21 The earth is moved at the noise of their fall: the cry of their voice is heard in the Red Sea.

22 Behold he shall come up as an eagle, and fly: and he shall spread his wings over Bosra: and in that day the heart of the valiant ones of Edom shall be as the heart of a woman in labour.

23 Against Damascus. Emath is confounded, and Arphad: for they have heard very bad tidings, they are troubled as in the sea: through care they could not rest.

24 Damascus is undone, she is put to flight, trembling hath seized on her: anguish and sorrows have taken her as a woman in labour.

25 How have they forsaken the city of renown, the city of joy?

26 Therefore, her young men shall fall in her streets: and all the men of war shall be silent in that day, saith the Lord of hosts.

27 And I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus, and it shall devour the strong holds of Benadad.

28 Against Cedar, and against the kingdoms of Asor, which Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, destroyed. Thus saith the Lord: Arise, and go ye up to Cedar, and waste the children of the east.

29 They shall take their tents, and their flocks: and shall carry off for themselves their curtains, and all their vessels, and their camels: and they shall call fear upon them round about.

30 Flee ye, get away speedily, sit in deep holes, you that inhabit Asor, saith the Lord: for Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, hath taken counsel against you, and hath conceived designs against you.

31 Arise, and go up to a nation that is at ease, and that dwelleth securely, saith the Lord: they have neither gates, nor bars: they dwell alone.

32 And their camels shall be for a spoil, and the multitude of their cattle for a booty: and I will scatter into every wind them that have their hair cut round, and I will bring destruction upon them from all their confines, saith the Lord.

33 And Asor shall be a habitation for dragons, desolate for ever: no man shall abide there, nor son of man inhabit it.

34 The word of the Lord that came to Jeremias, the prophet, against Elam, in the beginning of the reign of Sedecias, king of Juda, saying:

35 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold I will break the bow of Elam, and their chief strength.

36 And I will bring upon Elam the four winds from the four quarters of heaven: and I will scatter them into all these winds: and there shall be no nation to which the fugitives of Elam shall not come.

37 And I will cause Elam to be afraid before their enemies, and in the sight of them that seek their life: and I will bring evil upon them, my fierce wrath, saith the Lord: and I will send the sword after them, till I consume them.

38 And I will set my throne in Elam, and destroy kings and princes from thence, saith the Lord.

39 But in the latter days I will cause the captives of Elam to return, saith the Lord.

CHAP. L.

Babylon, which hath afflicted the Israelites, after their restoration, shall be utterly destroyed.

THE word *that the Lord hath spoken against Babylon, and against the land of the Chaldeans, in the hand of Jeremias the prophet.

2 Declare ye among the nations, and publish it, lift up a standard: proclaim, and conceal it not: say: Babylon is taken, Bel is confounded, Merodach is overthrown, their graven things are confounded, their idols are overthrown.

3 For a nation is come up against her out of the north, which shall make her land desolate: and there shall be none to dwell therein, from man even to beast: yea, they are removed, and gone away.

4 In these days, and at that time, saith the Lord, the children of Israel shall come, they and the children of Juda together: going and weeping, they shall make haste, and shall seek the Lord their God.

5 They shall ask the way to Sion, their faces are to devour the sheep. C.—Strong "one's dwelling." Heb. H. Zac. xi. 8.—Over her. What sort of men come to the attack? or, who shall dare to resist them? C.

VER. 20. Little. Chal. "chiefs of the people." Tsair (H.) is supposed to have this sense. Mic. v. 2. C.—But the weakest of the Chaldees will be an overmatch for Edom. H.

VER. 23. Damascus, the capital of Syria. Is. vii. 8. W.—It was punished at the same time as the rest. Jos.—Arphad; Arad, an island near Tyre, or Raphana. Theod.—Syr. "Rephad. . . they are troubled from the sea." Nabuchodonosor left Tyre to invade them. C.—As in. The islands of the Mediterranean tremble for themselves, and all Syria is afraid, hearing of the fall of so many cities and nations.

VER. 25. They. Heb. Sept. and Chal. add, "not." Why have they not spared this beautiful city? or, why have not its citizens given it up, to prevent its entire demolition?

VER. 27. Benadad. So the kings were usually styled. 3 K. xv. 8. Sept. "the son of Ader."

VER. 28. Cedar and Asor were parts of Arabia; which, with Moab, Ammon, Edom, &c. were all brought under the yoke of Nabuchodonosor. Ch.—We know nothing of the situation of Asor, which means "a court." C.—It might be the flying camp (Theod.) of the Saracens (S. Jer. in Is. xxi. 16.) who dwelt under tents like the hordes of Tartars, the Ethiopian emperor, and the mogul. Yet this seems to have been a fixed habitation. v. 30. 33.—East; the Desert Arabia. v. 32. C.—Cedar was the son of Ismael, and Asor the chief city of the Agarens. W.

VER. 29. About. The enemy shall terrify them, and plunder all their riches.

VER. 31. Alone. We need not fear any resistance. They have no allies. C.—The ancient Suevi, of Germany, laid waste the surrounding countries, that they might appear more terrible. Cesar iv. and vi.

VER. 32. Wind; throughout the world.—Round. C. ix. 26. C.—This the Arabs did, in imitation of Bacchus. Herod. iii. 8.

VER. 34. Elam. A part of Persia. Ch.—The Elamites had besieged Jerusalem, under Manasses, (C.) and are therefore punished. W.—They were subject to Aseradon: Nabuchodonosor subdued them after the other nations. v. 38. Cyrus set his countrymen at liberty, (C.) and thus began his conquests. H.—Pagan historians assert, at random, that they were before subject to the Medes.

VER. 38. Thence. Daniel (viii. 2.) governed at Susa, the capital of Elam, for Baltassar.

VER. 39. Return. They joined the standards of Cyrus, and became masters of the East. C.—This and similar texts are understood of the conversion of the Gentiles. Acts ii. 7. W.

CHAP. L. VER. 1. Prophet. He had spoken against them in the fourth year of Joachim, and now is more explicit in the fourth of Sedecias, (C. li. 60.) sending his predictions to be read, and then thrown into the Euphrates. The fall of Babylon was gradual. It was in consequence of her pride and cruelty. v. 11, 17, 23, 29. Is. xlvii. 6. C.—It had shewn the greatest enmity to the Jews, and was at last overthrown by the Medes and Persians. W.

VER. 2. Declare. This is grand. Let all the captives publish these tidings. C.—Bel, &c. Bel and Merodach were worshipped for gods by the men of Babylon. Ch.—Merodach might be an ancient king deified. C.—These greatest of their idols could neither save the people nor themselves. W.

VER. 3. A nation, &c. viz. the Medes, (Ch.) under Darius, (Dan. v. 31. Theod. Grot.) or rather under Cyrus, who came upon Babylon from the north, after conquering Asia; though he was born to the east of that city. Is. lxi. 2. 25. He was a Mede by his mother, and ruler of that nation. He gave liberty to the Jews, as the prophet inculcates ten times.—Desolate. Herodotus. Xenophon, &c. say not that Cyrus demolished any part of the city; but Berosus informs us that he took it without opposition, and levelled the outer walls. Hyaspes did more damage. Herod. iii. 150.

hitherward. They shall come, and shall be joined to the Lord by an everlasting covenant, which shall never be forgotten.

6 My people hath been a lost flock, their shepherds have caused them to go astray, and have made them wander in the mountains: they have gone from mountain to hill, they have forgotten their resting-place.

7 All that found them, have devoured them: and their enemies said: We have not sinned in so doing: because they have sinned against the Lord, the beauty of justice, and against the Lord, the hope of their fathers.

8 Remove out of the midst of Babylon, and go forth out of the land of the Chaldeans: and be ye as kids at the head of the flock.

9 For behold I raise up, and will bring against Babylon an assembly of great nations from the land of the north: and they shall be prepared against her, and from thence she shall be taken: their arrows, like those of a mighty man, a destroyer, shall not return in vain.

10 And Chaldea shall be made a prey: all that waste her shall be filled, saith the Lord.

11 Because you rejoice, and speak great things, pilaging my inheritance: because you are spread abroad as calves upon the grass, and have bellowed as bulls.

12 Your mother is confounded exceedingly, and she that bore you is made even with the dust: behold she shall be the last among the nations, a wilderness unpassable, and dry.

13 Because of the wrath of the Lord, it shall not be inhabited, but shall be wholly desolate: every one that shall pass by Babylon, shall be astonished, and shall hiss at all her plagues.

14 Prepare yourselves against Babylon, round about, all you that bend the bow: fight against her, spare not arrows: because she hath sinned against the Lord.

15 Shout against her, she hath everywhere given her hand, her foundations are fallen, her walls are thrown down, for it is the vengeance of the Lord. Take vengeance upon her: as she hath done, so do to her.

16 Destroy the sower out of Babylon, and him that holdeth the sickle in the time of harvest: for fear of the sword of the dove every man shall return to his people, and every one shall flee to his own land.

VER. 5. Covenant. They renewed the old one under Nehemias, and never publicly broke it, as they had done. Yet the covenant of Christ is more properly meant.

VER. 6. Shepherds; kings, (C.) and false prophets. H.

VER. 7. Not sinned: the Jews were such notorious offenders. But in what had they injured the Chaldees?—Beauty. Heb. "dwelling or fold."

VER. 8. Kids; rams. This comparison was not ignoble. Go boldly out of the city, before it be besieged.

VER. 9. Nations. Cyrus had Armenians, &c. in his army. C.—Thence, by the bed of the Euphrates, the waters of which were mostly let out into the marshes. Thus the city was taken, while the people were feasting. Herod. i. 191.—Aristotle (Pol. iii. 3.) says, three days passed before all the citizens were apprised of its fate, it was so extensive; but this is incredible. VER. 11. Bulls. You have rioted in Juda, and treated my people cruelly. H.—In Heb. four verbs have improperly i for v; but C. li. 34. v supplants i five times Kennicott.

VER. 12. Dust, like a suppliant. Is. xlvii. 1. C.—Dry. The country shall be equally unfruitful. The waters of the Euphrates being let off, gave a passage to the enemy. v. 9. H.—Babylon soon lost its splendour. C.—Vologeses completed its ruin. Pliny vi. 26.—It ceased to be the metropolis or mother city. H.—The whole country was laid waste. W.

VER. 15. Hand, to form leagues; or she faints, (Sept.) and submits. Lam. v. 6.

17 Israel is a scattered flock, the lions have driven him away: first the king of Assyria devoured him: and last this Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, hath broken his bones.

18 Therefore, thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold I will visit the king of Babylon and his land, as I have visited the king of Assyria.

19 And I will bring Israel again to his habitation: and he shall feed on Carmel, and Basan, and his soul shall be satisfied in Mount Ephraim, and Galaad.

20 In those days, and at that time, saith the Lord, the iniquity of Israel shall be sought for, and there shall be none: and the sin of Juda, and there shall none be found: for I will be merciful to them whom I shall leave.

21 Go up against the land of the rulers, and punish the inhabitants thereof, waste, and destroy all behind them, saith the Lord: and do according to all that I have commanded thee.

22 A noise of war in the land, and a great destruction.

23 How is the hammer of the whole earth broken, and destroyed? how is Babylon turned into a desert among the nations?

24 I have caused thee to fall into a snare, and thou art taken, O Babylon, and thou wast not aware of it: thou art found and caught, because thou hast provoked the Lord.

25 The Lord hath opened his armoury, and hath brought forth the weapons of his wrath: for the Lord, the God of hosts, hath a work to be done in the land of the Chaldeans.

26 Come ye against her from the uttermost borders: open, that they may go forth that shall tread her down: take the stones out of the way, and make heaps, and destroy her: and let nothing of her be left.

27 Destroy all her valiant men, let them go down to the slaughter: woe to them, for their day is come, the time of their visitation.

28 The voice of them that flee, and of them that have escaped out of the land of Babylon: to declare in Sion the revenge of the Lord, our God, the revenge of his temple.

VER. 16. Harvest. Such were usually unmolested. C.—Babylon was so large, that people sowed corn within the walls. Curt. v.—The environs were well cultivated. Pliny xviii. 17.—Dove, or the destroyer; for the Hebrew word signifies either the one or the other. Ch. C. xxv. 38. and xlv. 16.—Lit. "from before the sword of the dove." The power of Babylon is no more. H.—The king is compared to a dove, for his swiftness; or God is meek, though terrible. W.—Land. The other nations were set free as well as the Jews. C.

VER. 17. Bones. He completely ruined the nation, which the Assyrians had left. H.—They led the ten tribes away, and the Chaldees took the rest. 4 K. xviii. and xxv. W.

VER. 18. Assyria. This monarchy was subdued by Nabopolassar.

VER. 19. Israel; the ten tribes, whose country is specified.

VER. 20. None. Idolatry shall not be re-established.

VER. 21. Rulers: the most potent empire of Babylon.—All. Heb. "anathematize them and their posterity."

VER. 23. Hammer. The violent injustice of the Chaldees is thus entitled.

VER. 24. Aware. Men seemed to rise out of the earth. v. 9.

VER. 25. Armoury. Fire and war are the Lord's weapons. Job xxxviii. 22.—Work: punishment. C. xlviii. 10.

VER. 26. That. Heb. "her granaries; trample on her as on heaps of corn; destroy," &c. He alludes to the custom of oxen trampling out the corn. C. li. 33.

VER. 28. Voice. I hear the captives proclaiming this at their return.

VER. 30. Peace, in the grave; (C.) or shall submit quietly. 1 Mac i. 3. H.

VER. 31. Proud. So the Chaldees are often styled in the Psalms. C.—The prophet addresses Nabuchodonosor, or rather Baltassar, (M.) under whom the the bow: stand together against her round about, and let none escape: pay her according to her work: *according to all that she hath done, do ye to her: for she hath lifted up herself against the Lord, against the holy One of Israel.

30 Therefore shall her young men fall in her streets: and all her men of war shall hold their peace in that day, saith the Lord.

31 Behold I come against thee, O proud one, saith the Lord, the God of hosts: for thy day is come, the time of thy visitation.

32 And the proud one shall fall, he shall fall down, and there shall be none to lift him up: and I will kindle a fire in his cities, and it shall devour all round about him.

33 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: The children of Israel, and the children of Juda are oppressed together: all that have taken them captives, hold them fast, they will not let them go.

34 Their Redeemer is strong, the Lord of hosts is his name, he will defend their cause in judgment, to terrify the land, and to disquiet the inhabitants of Babylon.

35 A sword is upon the Chaldeans, saith the Lord, and upon the inhabitants of Babylon, and upon her princes, and upon her wise men.

36 A sword upon her diviners, and they shall be foolish: a sword upon her valiant ones, and they shall be dismayed.

37 A sword upon their horses, and upon their chariots, and upon all the people that are in the midst of her: and they shall become as women: a sword upon her treasures, and they shall be made a spoil.

38 A drought upon her waters, and they shall be dried up: because it is a land of idols, and they glory in monstrous things.

39 Therefore shall dragons dwell there with the fig-fauns: and ostriches shall dwell therein: and it shall be no more inhabited for ever, neither shall it be built up from generation to generation.

city was taken, (Jos. &c.) by Darius and Cyrus. He may be the Nabonides of Berosus, the question is so much perplexed. Yet "we are convinced that Darius reigned at Babylon before Cyrus, and took the city after the death of Baltassar." C.—Most commentators are of a different opinion. H.

VER. 33. Israel. Samaria had been destroyed forty-four years before the fourth of Joakim, from which period many of Juda had been captives seventy years, till Cyrus became their deliverer, and chastised the Chaldees. C.—Both kingdoms had been oppressed by a strong hand, till a stronger, even God himself, delivered them. W.

VER. 34. Name. He gives victory to Cyrus. Thus the Lord directs all for the sake of his elect, and laughs at the vain projects of men. C.

VER. 35. Wise men. They were styled Chaldees, and inhabited a certain part of the city, being employed in astronomical and mathematical observations. They disapproved of those who cast nativities. Strabo xvi.

VER. 36. Diviners. Heb. "impostors." They were nowhere more plentiful. Dan. i. 20. Fortune-tellers were consulted on every occasion. The eastern nations are still much addicted to this superstition.

VER. 38. Drought. Cyrus almost drained the Euphrates. C. li. 42. Is. xxi. —Things, fit to terrify children. Bar. vi. 14. C.—Prot. "they are mad upon their idols." H.

VER. 39. Fig-fauns. Monsters of the desert, or demons in monstrous shapes; such as the ancients called fauns and satyrs: and as they imagined them to live upon wild figs, they called them fauni-ficarii, or fig-fauns. Ch.—Maldonat reads sicarii, "ruffians." Sixtus V. and S. Jerom. (in Is. xiii. 21.) have fatui, "foolish wild men." Heb. "the Tsim with the tim shall dwell there, and the daughters of the Tahana (H. swans) shall there reside," or "fishermen among the rushes shall dwell," &c.—Ever. Its situation is unknown. There is still a town of the same name, but not in the same place.

and their neighbour cities, saith the Lord: no man shall dwell there, neither shall the son of man inhabit it.

41 Behold a people cometh from the north, and a great nation, and many kings shall rise up from the ends of the earth.

42 They shall take the bow and the shield: they are cruel and unmerciful: their voice shall roar like the sea, and they shall ride upon horses: like a man prepared for battle against thee, O daughter of Babylon.

43 The king of Babylon hath heard the report of them, and his hands are grown feeble: anguish hath taken hold of him, pangs as a woman in labour.

44 *Behold he shall come up like a lion from the swelling of the Jordan to the strong and beautiful: for I will make him run suddenly upon her: and who shall be the chosen one whom I may appoint over her? for who is like to me? and who shall bear up against me? ^aand who is that shepherd that can withstand my countenance?

45 Therefore, hear ye the counsel of the Lord, which he hath taken against Babylon: and his thoughts which he hath thought against the land of the Chaldeans: surely the little ones of the flocks shall pull them down, of a truth their habitation shall be destroyed with them.

46 At the noise of the taking of Babylon the earth is moved, and the cry is heard amongst the nations.

CHAP. LI.

The miseries that shall fall upon Babylon from the Medes: the destruction of her idols.

THUS saith the Lord: *Behold I will raise up as it were a pestilential wind against Babylon, and against the inhabitants thereof, who have lifted up their heart against me.

2 And I will send to Babylon fanners, and they shall fan her, and shall destroy her land: for they are come upon her on every side in the day of her affliction.

3 Let not him that bendeth, bend his bow, and let not him go up that is armed with a coat of mail: spare not her young men, destroy all her army.

4 And the slain shall fall in the land of the Chaldeans, and the wounded in the regions thereof.

^c Supra xlix. 19.—^d Job xli. 1.—^e A. 3409.

VER. 42. Cruel. The Medes will not spare for money. v. 3. Is. xiii. 7.

VER. 43. King. Baltassar, (though he was succeeded by Darius) or Nabonides v. 31. C.

VER. 44. And beautiful. Heb. "habitation." H.—He will rush into the fold. C. xlix. 19. C.—The king of Babylon had ruined many. Others shall destroy him, rushing on like the Jordan. W.

CHAP. LI. VER. 1. Thereof. Heb. leb kamai, "of the heart, rising up against me." H.—Many take Leb-kamai to be the enigmatical name of the Chaldees, by a secret combination of letters, (Kimchi. Grot.) as if they were not clearly designated in the sequel. C.—The prophet expresses more pointedly what he had declared in the preceding chapter. W.

VER. 2. Fan her. After the corn was trodden out, it was heaved into the wind. This custom would insinuate the distress and captivity of the Chaldees. Sept. "I will send . . . scoffers, and they shall treat her with scorn, καθυβρισεις." H.—They have read (C.) zedim for zarim.

VER. 3. Mail. There will be little or no resistance made. C. l. 8. H.—The Persians denounce destruction to all taken in arms; or, according to Sept. and Syr. they exhort each other to fight. C.—"Let him," &c. H.—Heb. of the Masor. "you who bend . . . spare not." C.—Prot. "against him that bendeth let the archer bend his bow," &c. H.—Heb. is printed ne tendat tendat tendane. The second word is properly omitted in some MSS. Thus (1 Chron. xxiv. 6.) we read taken taken, achuz having been put erroneously for achad, one. Kennicott.

VER. 5. Forsaken, as a widow, viduatus. H.—God still considers the nation as his spouse—Their land. That of the Chaldees, (C.) or of the Jews. Theodor. —Sin, or punishment.

VER. 6. Silent. Jews proclaim that Babylon is justly punished, (C.) lest you partake in her crimes. Apoc. xviii. 4. Prot. "be not cut off in her," &c. H.

5 For Israel and Juda have not been forsaken by their God, the Lord of hosts: but their land hath been filled with sin against the holy One of Israel.

6 Flee ye from the midst of Babylon, and let every one save his own life: be not silent upon her iniquity: for it is the time of revenge from the Lord, he will render unto her what she hath deserved.

7 Babylon hath been a golden cup in the hand of the Lord, that made all the earth drunk: the nations have drunk of her wine, and therefore they have staggered.

8 *Babylon is suddenly fallen, and destroyed: howl for her, take balm for her pain, if so she may be healed.

9 We would have cured Babylon, but she is not healed: let us forsake her, and let us go every man to his own land: because her judgment hath reached even to the heavens, and is lifted up to the clouds.

10 The Lord hath brought forth our justices: come, and let us declare in Sion the work of the Lord our God.

11 Sharpen the arrows, fill the quivers: the Lord hath raised up the spirit of the kings of the Medes: and his mind is against Babylon, to destroy it, because it is the vengeance of the Lord, the vengeance of his temple.

12 Upon the walls of Babylon set up the standard, strengthen the watch: set up the watchmen, prepare the ambushes: for the Lord hath both purposed, and done all that he spoke against the inhabitants of Babylon.

13 O thou that dwellest upon many waters, rich in treasures, thy end is come for thy entire destruction.

14 ^bThe Lord of hosts hath sworn by himself, saying: I will fill thee with men as with locusts, and they shall lift up a joyful shout against thee.

15 *He that made the earth by his power, that hath prepared the world by his wisdom, and stretched out the heavens by his understanding.

16 When he uttereth his voice the waters are multiplied in heaven: he lifteth up the clouds from the ends of the earth; he hath turned lightning into rain; and hath brought forth the wind out of his treasures.

* Isa. xxi. 9. Apoc. xiv. 8.

VER. 7. Cup. She has exercised the vengeance of the Lord on Juda, Egypt, &c.

VER. 8. Suddenly. She has not lost many battles; but is fallen at once from being the greatest city of the East.

VER. 17. Every man, &c. That is, every maker of idols, however he boasts of his knowledge and skill, does but shew himself a fool in pretending to make a god. Ch. Wisd. xiv. 18.—By his, or "by default of knowledge," (a scientia. H.) as the Heb. may also mean. The Babylonians were so confounded, they knew not what to do. C.—Prot. "Every man is brutish by his knowledge." Marg. or "is more brutish than to know." C. x. 14. H.

17 Every man is become foolish by his knowledge; every founder is confounded by his idol, for what he hath cast is a lie, and there is no breath in them.

18 They are vain works, and worthy to be laughed at; in the time of their visitation, they shall perish.

19 The portion of Jacob is not like them: for he that made all things, he it is, and Israel is the sceptre of his inheritance: the Lord of hosts is his name.

20 Thou dashest together for me the weapons of war, and with thee I will dash nations together, and with thee I will destroy kingdoms:

21 And with thee I will break in pieces the horse, and his rider: and with thee I will break in pieces the chariot, and him that getteth up into it.

22 And with thee I will break in pieces man and woman, and with thee I will break in pieces the old man and the child, and with thee I will break in pieces the young man and the virgin:

23 And with thee I will break in pieces the shepherd and his flock, and with thee I will break in pieces the husbandman and his yoke of oxen, and with thee I will break in pieces captains and rulers.

24 And I will render to Babylon, and to all the inhabitants of Chaldea, all their evil that they have done in Sion, before your eyes, saith the Lord.

25 Behold, I come against thee, thou destroying mountain, saith the Lord, which corruptest the whole earth: and I will stretch out my hand upon thee, and will roll thee down from the rocks, and will make thee a burnt mountain.

26 And they shall not take of thee a stone for the corner, nor a stone for foundations, but thou shalt be destroyed for ever, saith the Lord.

27 Set ye up a standard in the land; sound with a trumpet among the nations; prepare the nations against her; call together against her the kings of Ararat, Meni, and Ascenez; number Taphsar against her; bring the horse as the stinging locust.

28 Prepare the nations against her, the kings of Media, their captains, and all the rulers, and all the land of their dominion.

29 And the land shall be in a commotion, and shall be troubled; for the design of the Lord against Babylon shall awake, to make the land of Babylon desert and uninhabitable.

30 The valiant men of Babylon have forborne to fight, they have dwelt in holds: their strength hath failed, and they are become as women; her dwelling-places are burnt, her bars are broken.

31 One running post shall meet another, and messenger shall meet messenger, to tell the king of Babylon that his city is taken from one end to the other:

32 And that the fords are taken, and the marshes are burnt with fire, and the men of war are affrighted.

33 For thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: The daughter of Babylon is like a threshing-floor; this is the time of her threshing: yet a little while, and the time of her harvest shall come.

34 Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, hath eaten me up, he hath devoured me; he hath made me as an empty vessel; he hath swallowed me up like a dragon, he hath filled his belly with my delicate meats, and he hath cast me out.

35 The wrong done to me, and my flesh, be upon Babylon, saith the habitation of Sion; and my blood upon the inhabitants of Chaldea, saith Jerusalem.

36 Therefore, thus saith the Lord: Behold, I will judge thy cause, and will take vengeance for thee, and I will make her sea desolate, and will dry up her spring.

37 And Babylon shall be reduced to heaps, a dwelling-place for dragons, an astonishment and a hissing, because there is no inhabitant.

38 They shall roar together like lions, they shall shake their manes like young lions.

39 In their heat I will set them drink; and I will make them drunk, that they may slumber, and sleep an everlasting sleep, and awake no more, saith the Lord.

40 I will bring them down like lambs to the slaughter, and like rams with kids.

41 How is Sesach taken, and the renowned one of all the earth surprised? How is Babylon become an astonishment among the nations?

42 The sea is come up over Babylon: she is covered with the multitude of the waves thereof.

VER. 32. Fords. Thus the enemy entered.—Marshes. Heb. "sedges," which grew to the size of trees, and were burnt when the waters of the river and lakes were drained. Herodotus (i. 185. and 178.) specifies a lake four hundred and twenty stadia square, and says the ditches round the city were full of water.

VER. 41. Sesach, the city which worshipped the moon, (C. xxv. 26.) Bel, (C. l. 2.) &c.

VER. 42. Sea; numerous armies of Cyrus, or the waters of the Euphrates let loose. C.—In the days of Alexander, many tombs of the kings were inundated. Strabo xv.

43 Her cities are become an astonishment, a land uninhabited and desolate, a land wherein none can dwell, nor son of man pass through it.

44 And I will visit against Bel in Babylon, and I will bring forth out of his mouth that which he had swallowed down: and the nations shall no more flow together to him, for the wall also of Babylon shall fall.

45 Go out of the midst of her, my people; that every man may save his life from the fierce wrath of the Lord.

46 And lest your hearts faint, and ye fear for the rumour that shall be heard in the land: and a rumour shall come in one year, and after this year another rumour: and iniquity in the land, and ruler upon ruler.

47 Therefore, behold the days come, and I will visit the idols of Babylon: and her whole land shall be confounded, and all her slain shall fall in the midst of her.

48 And the heavens and the earth, and all things that are in them shall give praise for Babylon: for spoilers shall come to her from the north, saith the Lord.

49 And as Babylon caused that there should fall slain in Israel; so of Babylon there shall fall slain in all the earth.

50 You that have escaped the sword, come away, stand not still; remember the Lord afar off, and let Jerusalem come into your mind.

51 We are confounded, because we have heard reproach; shame hath covered our faces; because strangers are come upon the sanctuary of the house of the Lord.

52 Therefore, behold the days come, saith the Lord, and I will visit her graven things, and in all her land the wounded shall groan.

53 If Babylon should mount up to heaven, and establish her strength on high; from me there should come spoilers upon her, saith the Lord.

VER. 44. Down. His priests pretended that he eat, (Dan. xiv. 11.) and a woman of their choice slept in the most retired part of the temple. Herod. i. 181.—The prophet derides this notion. The idol, or rather his votaries, (H.) shall be forced to let go the Israelites. C.—Fall, by means of Cyrus and of Darius. C. l. 3. H.

VER. 46. Faint. You may apprehend that your miseries will increase in the midst of such confusion; but no, Baltassar, the last of your oppressor's race, shall be assassinated by Neriglissor, who will be succeeded by Laborosoarched and Nabonides. This last shall yield to Cyrus, who will grant you liberty. Baltassar reigned two years, Neriglissor four, his ill-tempered infant son nine months, when his followers murdered him, and gave the crown to a Babylonian called Nabonides, who kept it seventeen years, till Cyrus took him prisoner. This we learn from Berosus, quoted by Josephus, c. Ap. i. On the other hand Daniel makes Darius, the Mede, succeed Baltassar, and after him Cyrus reigned. To these changes and continual alarms the prophet alludes.

upon Babylon, and her valiant men are taken, and their bow is weakened, because the Lord, who is a strong revenger, will surely repay.

57 And I will make her princes drunk, and her wise men, and her captains, and her rulers, and her valiant men; and they shall sleep an everlasting sleep, and shall awake no more, saith the king, whose name is Lord of hosts.

58 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: That broad wall of Babylon shall be utterly broken down, and her high gates shall be burnt with fire, and the labours of the people shall come to nothing, and of the nations shall go to the fire and shall perish.

59 The word that Jeremias, the prophet, commanded Saraias, the son of Nerias, the son of Naasias, when he went with king Sedecias, to Babylon, in the fourth year of his reign: now Saraias was chief over the prophecy.

60 And Jeremias wrote in one book all the evil that was to come upon Babylon: all these words that are written against Babylon.

61 And Jeremias said to Saraias: When thou shalt come into Babylon, and shalt see, and shalt read all these words,

62 Thou shalt say, O Lord, thou hast spoken against this place to destroy it; so that there should be neither man nor beast to dwell therein and that it should be desolate for ever.

63 And when thou shalt have made an end of reading this book, thou shalt tie a stone to it, and shalt throw it into the midst of the Euphrates:

64 And thou shalt say, Thus shall Babylon sink, and she shall not rise up from the affliction that I will bring upon her, and she shall be utterly destroyed. Thus far are the words of Jeremias.

CHAP. LII.

A recapitulation of the reign of Sedecias, and the destruction of Jerusalem. The number of the captives.

SEDECIA^a was one and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem; and the name of his mother was Amital, the daughter of Jeremias, of Lobna.

2 And he did that which was evil in the eyes of the Lord, according to all that Joakim had done.

VER. 55. Great voice, or boasting and songs of joy, usual at public meetings. — Noise. They groan under affliction.

VER. 57. Drunk, with the wine of fury. v. 39. C. xxv. 26.

VER. 58. Broad wall. The pagan historians agree not in the dimensions, but allow it was excessively broad and lofty. C.—Six chariots might go abreast. It was 360 stadia long, (Ctesias); or 480 (Herod. i. 178.) that is above 23 leagues, allowing 2,500 paces for each. This author says the breadth was fifty cubits of the king, three inches larger than the common one, or about twenty-one inches. Pliny (vi. 26.) improperly applies this to Roman feet, and says the walls were two hundred feet high; while Herodotus assigns so many cubits. C.—There were three different walls. Curt. v.—Cyrus demolished the outer one, Beros.—What remained, (C.) with the hundred brazen gates, Darius treated in like manner. Herod. i. 179. and iii. 159.—Thus was the prediction fulfilled, and the works of so many captive nations brought to nothing. It is asserted that 200,000 (C.) daily finished a stadium, (Curt. v.) or 125 paces. C.

VER. 59. With. Heb. also, (C) "on behalf of." Prot. marg. H.—It is no where else asserted that Sedecias went in person, and Sept. Chal. &c. explain it in this manner. Baruch accompanied his brother Saraias, and probably took the letter. Bar. i. 2. Saraias went to petition for the sacred vessels.—Prophecy, or of the embassy to speak (C.) in the king's name. Heb. menucha, was a caution of Benjamin. It means, "rest;" whence some have inferred that he was chamberlain, (Cant. iii. 8.) or a favourite. Most translate, "chief of the presents," Sept. and Chal. as if they had read mincha, which he carried as a tribute to

3 For the wrath of the Lord was against Jerusalem, and against Juda, till he cast them out from his presence; and Sedecias revolted from the king of Babylon.

4 And it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, the tenth day of the month, that Nabuchodonosor, the king of Babylon, came, he and all his army, against Jerusalem, and they besieged it, and built forts against it round about.

5 And the city was besieged until the eleventh year of king Sedecias.

6 And in the fourth month, the ninth day of the month, a famine overpowered the city; and there was no food for the people of the land.

7 And the city was broken up, and the men of war fled, and went out of the city in the night by the way of the gate that is between the two walls, and leadeth to the king's garden, (the Chaldeans besieging the city round about) and they went by the way that leadeth to the wilderness.

8 But the army of the Chaldeans pursued after the king; and they overtook Sedecias in the desert which is near Jericho: and all his companions were scattered from him.

9 And when they had taken the king, they carried him to the king of Babylon, to Reblatha, which is in the land of Emath; and he gave judgment upon him.

10 And the king of Babylon slew the sons of Sedecias before his eyes; and he slew all the princes of Juda, in Reblatha.

11 And he put out the eyes of Sedecias, and bound him with fetters, and the king of Babylon brought him to Babylon, and he put him in prison till the day of his death.

12 And in the fifth month, the tenth day of the month, the same is the nineteenth year of Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, came Nabuzardan, the general of the army, who stood before the king of Babylon, in Jerusalem.

13 And he burnt the house of the Lord, and the king's house, and all the houses of Jerusalem, and every great house he burnt with fire.

14 And all the army of the Chaldeans, that were with the general, broke down all the wall of Jerusalem, round about.

Babylon. Jeremias gave him charge of the parcel, perhaps before Baruch had determined to go.

VER. 64. Sink. The angel did the like; (Apoc. xviii. 21. C.) and the Phœceans, leaving their country, swore that they would return no more till a piece of red hot iron, which they threw into the sea, should swim. Herod. i. 165.—Thus, &c. was added by the compiler. Sept. omit the sentence, as what relates to Babylon is placed C. xxviii. in their copies. C.—Yet Grabe puts it in a different character. H.—Jeremias wrote a good deal, after the 4th year of Sedecias, v. 59. C.—He here finished his predictions against Babylon. W.—This does not mean that he did not write the next chapter, (M.) as Cappel allows, (Houbig.) though this may still be doubted. II.

CHAP. LII. VER. 1. Sedecias. This is purely historical, taken from 4 K. xxiv. 18, &c. Many doubt with reason that Jeremias inserted it, as he could not well be alive at the time when Joakim was honoured, v. 31. If he had written both this and the Book of Kings, the variations which we here discover would not be seen. It seems, therefore, that Esdras or some other has inserted it, to explain the fall of Jerusalem and the lamentations; as a similar addition has been made to Isaiah. C. xxxvi. &c. See Grot. C.—The history occurs more at large, Par. ult. W.

VER. 3. Revolted, breaking his oath, which greatly offended God.

VER. 12. Tenth: 4 K. seventh, on which day Nabuzardan set out from Reblatha, according to some. But it was above sixty leagues, or hours journey, distant. C.—He entered the city on the 7th, and put his orders in execution on 15 But Nabuzardan, the general, carried away captives some of the poor people, and of the rest of the common sort, who remained in the city, and of the fugitives that were fled over to the king of Babylon, and the rest of the multitude.

16 But of the poor of the land, Nabuzardan, the general, left some for vine-dressers, and for husbandmen.

17 The Chaldeans also broke in pieces the brazen pillars that were in the house of the Lord, and the bases, and the sea of brass that was in the house of the Lord: and they carried all the brass of them to Babylon.

18 And they took the cauldrons, and the flesh-hooks, and the psalteries, and the bowls, and the little mortars, and all the brazen vessels that had been used in the ministry: and

19 The general took away the pitchers, and the censers, and the pots, and the basins, and the candlesticks, and the mortars, and the cups; as many as were of gold, in gold; and as many as were of silver, in silver:

20 And the two pillars, and one sea, and twelve oxen of brass that were under the bases, which king Solomon had made in the house of the Lord: there was no weight of the brass of all these vessels.

21 And concerning the pillars; one pillar was eighteen cubits high, and a cord of twelve cubits compassed it about; but the thickness thereof was four fingers, and it was hollow within.

22 And chaptrels of brass were upon both: the height of one chaptriel was five cubits; and net-work, and pomegranates were upon the chaptrels round about, all of brass. The same of the second pillar, and the pomegranates.

23 And there were ninety-six pomegranates hanging down; and the pomegranates, being a hundred in all, were compassed with net-work.

24 And the general took Saraias the chief priest, and Sophonias, the second priest, and the three keepers of the entry.

25 He also took out of the city, one eunuch, that was chief over the men of war; and seven men of them that were near the king's person, that were found in the city; and a scribe, an officer of the army, who exercised the young soldiers; and threescore men of the people of the land, that were found in the midst of the city.

26 And Nabuzardan, the general, took them, and brought them to the king of Babylon, to Reblatha.

27 And the king of Babylon struck them, and put them to death, in Reblatha, in the land of Emath: and Juda was carried away captive out of his land.

28 This is the people whom Nabuchodonosor carried away captive: In the seventh year, three thousand and twenty-three Jews.

29 In the eighteenth year of Nabuchodonosor, eight hundred and thirty-two souls from Jerusalem.

30 In the three and twentieth year of Nabuchodonosor, Nabuzardan, the general, carried away of the Jews, seven hundred and forty-five souls. So all the souls were four thousand six hundred.

31 And it came to pass in the seven and thirtieth year of the captivity of Joachin, king of Juda, in the twelfth month, the five and twentieth day of the month, that Evilmerodach, king of Babylon, in the first year of his reign, lifted up the head of Joachin, king of Juda, and brought him forth out of prison.

32 And he spoke kindly to him, and he set his throne above the thrones of the kings that were with him in Babylon.

33 And he changed his prison-garments, and he eat bread before him always all the days of his life.

34 And for his diet a continual provision was allowed him by the king of Babylon, every day a portion, until the day of his death, all the days of his life.

C.—Grabe supplies all from, And Juda, v. 27, to 31. H.—Zuinglius observes that the Sept. have not a fragment of it, and that it has been added by some one to hide the ignominy of the Jews. It is interpolated in the Arab. of the Lond. Polyglot, and seems contrary to the true history. 4 K. xxiv 14. Kennicott, Diss. 2.

VER. 31. Joachin. He had been thrown into prison when 18 years old, and continued there 37 years. It is not probable that Jeremias wrote this. Evilmerodach had also been the same in prison.—Five: 4 K. has seven. Probably Nabuchodonosor died on the 25th, and his son then resolved to liberate Joachin; which he did on the 27th.

VER. 32. Kings, who had been conquered, and kept at court for parade. C.

THE

LAMENTATIONS OF JEREMIAS.

In these JEREMIAS laments in a most pathetic manner the miseries of his people, and the destruction of JERUSALEM and the temple, in Hebrew verses, beginning with different letters according to the order of the Hebrew alphabet. Ch.—In the first chapter the order is exactly observed, but in the three next psalms comes before ain, either for some mystery to us unknown, or by the derangement of transcribers, who perhaps thought that those verses were better connected, as they seem to be, (C.) though this is not very clear. H.—In such pieces the sentiments of a pensive heart are poured out without much connection. W.—The Greeks style this word θρῆνοι, and Heb. kinoth, or lamentations. H.—S. Jerom, (2 Par. xxxv. 25.) thinks it was the first composition of Jeremias, and sung at the death of Josias. W. S. Jer. in Zac. xii. 11.—The eulogy of the king seems to belong to him rather than to Sedecias. C. iv. 20. C.—Yet it might afterwards be applied to the latter, (H.) and to the ruin of Jerusalem. Eccl. xlix. 8. S. Jer. Pref. Theod. &c.—The city is represented standing, and sometimes in ruins. Chap. v. seems to have been written after the rest. v. 4, 18. C.—It is not acrostic like them. The prophet alludes to the wretched condition of the Jews, after the murder of their Messias; and hence the Church makes use of the lamentations on the anniversary of our Saviour's passion, inviting all sinners, both Jews and Gentiles, to repent: "Jerusalem, Jerusalem, be converted to the Lord thy God." W.—Many passages are applicable to a soul fallen into sin, as the commentary under the name of S. Jerom, (H.) compiled by Rabanus, (Du Pin) shews. H.

And it came to pass, after Israel was carried into captivity, and Jerusalem was desolate, that Jeremias, the prophet, sat weeping, and mourned with this lamentation over Jerusalem; and with a sorrowful mind, sighing and moaning, he said:

CHAP. I.

Aleph. HOW doth the city sit solitary that was full of people? how is the mistress of nations become as a widow; the princess of provinces made tributary?

2 Beth. *Weeping, she hath wept in the night, and her tears are on her cheeks: there is none to comfort her among all them that were dear to her: all her friends have despised her, and are become her enemies.

3 Ghimel. Juda hath removed her dwelling-place, because of her affliction, and the greatness of her bondage; she hath dwelt among the nations, and she hath found no rest; all her persecutors have taken her in the midst of straits.

4 Daleth. The ways of Sion mourn, because there are none that come to the solemn feast: all her gates are broken down; her priests sigh; her virgins are in affliction; and she is oppressed with bitterness.

5 He. Her adversaries are become her lords; her enemies are enriched; because the Lord hath spoken against her for the multitude of her iniquities; her children are led into captivity, before the face of the oppressor.

* Jer. xlii. 17.

Ans. &c. This preface was not written by Jeremias, but added by the seventy interpreters, to give the reader to understand upon what occasion the Lamentations were published. Ch.—The author is not known, (W.) and few assert with Grotius that it is canonical; as it is only a title, (C.) like those prefixed to the Psalms. H.—It is not found in Heb. Chal. Syr. or S. Jerom. C.

CHAP. I. VER. 1. City. David had conquered many. Jerusalem was long considered as the finest city in those parts.—Tributary. It had been so to the Assyrians, Egyptians, and Chaldeans. 4 K. xxiv. 1. From this and similar passages, it would seem that the city was still existing: yet in others it appears to have been demolished. Here then the prophet declares what it had been: (C.) unless he wrote part after the death of Josias. H.—The beholders are astonished at the change and misery of the city. W.

VER. 2. Night; privately, or without ceasing.—Friends, who had made a league with Sedecias. C. xxvii. 8. and xlviii. 26.

VER. 3. Rest. Many returned to join Godolias. C. xl. 7. C.—The Jews who beheld their brethren led away to Babylon, retired into Egypt, but were in misery. W.

VER. 4. Feast, thrice a-year. This was the most charming sight, when all the nation met to adore God, and to renew their friendship with one another. C.

VER. 5. Lords. Lit. "at the head," (H.) which Moses had threatened. Deut. xxvi. 1. and 48. C.—This would be most cutting. W

6 Vau. And from the daughter of Sion, all her beauty is departed; her princes are become like rams, that find no pastures; and they are gone away without strength before the face of the pursuer.

7 Zain. Jerusalem hath remembered the days of her affliction, and prevarication of all her desirable things which she had from the days of old, when her people fell in the enemy's hand, and there was no helper; the enemies have seen her, and have mocked at her sabbaths.

8 Heth. Jerusalem hath grievously sinned, therefore is she become unstable; all that honoured her, have despised her, because they have seen her shame; but she sighed, and turned backward.

9 Teth. Her filthiness is on her feet, and she hath not remembered her end; she is wonderfully cast down, not having a comforter: behold, O Lord, my affliction, because the enemy is lifted up.

10 Jod. The enemy hath put out his hand to all her desirable things; for she hath seen the Gentiles enter into her sanctuary, of whom thou gavest commandment that they should not enter into thy church.

11 Caph. All her people sigh, they seek bread; they have given all their precious things for food to relieve

VER. 6. Beauty; princes' palaces, but particularly the temple. v. 10. C.—Rams, fleeing from place to place to seek relief. W.

VER. 7. Of all. She compares her past happiness with her present chastisement.—Sabbaths, or days of rest. The pagans derided them as so much lost time. Ignava et partem vite non attigit ullam. Juv. v. Seneca ap. S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. vi. 11.—If none of their legislators thought of such an institution, it was because they had not the spirit of Moses: their feasts were dissolute. C.

VER. 8. Unstable. Heb. also, "removed," (H.) like a woman unclean. C.—Such were excluded from places of prayer, and were not allowed to touch a sacred book, or to pronounce God's name. Their husbands could not look at their face, nor give them any thing, but laid it down for them to take. Buxtorf. Syn. 31.—No condition could be more distressing. C.

VER. 9. End in her prosperity, to avert this misfortune. H.—Idolatry is a spiritual adultery, (W.) and one of the worst species of filth. H.

VER. 10. Church. Deut. xxxiii. 1. Ezech. xlv. 9. The Chaldees disregarded the ordinance.

VER. 11, 12. O. Heb. of the Masor. "It is." C.—Prot. "Is it nothing to you, all?" &c. H.—But the Vulg. is much clearer, and approved by many Protestants, tu being often used as an exclamation. Gen. xvii. 18. C.—Vintage He has plundered all. v. 22. H.—The king took a great deal, and his general the rest. 4 Kin. xxiv. and xxv. W the soul: see, O Lord, and consider, for I am become vile.

12 Lamed. O all ye that pass by the way, attend, and see if there be any sorrow like to my sorrow; for he hath made a vintage of me, as the Lord spoke in the day of his fierce anger.

13 Mem. From above he hath sent fire into my bones, and hath chastised me; he hath spread a net for my feet; he hath turned me back; he hath made me desolate, wasted with sorrow all the day long.

14 Nun. The yoke of my iniquities hath watched; they are folded together in his hand, and put upon my neck; my strength is weakened; the Lord hath delivered me into a hand, out of which I am not able to rise.

15 Samech. The Lord hath taken away all my mighty men out of the midst of me; he hath called against me the time, to destroy my chosen men; the Lord hath trodden the wine-press for the virgin daughter of Juda.

16 Ain. *Therefore do I weep, and my eyes run down with water, because the comforter, the relief of my soul, is far from me: my children are desolate, because the enemy hath prevailed.

17 Phe. Sion hath spread forth her hands, there is none to comfort her: the Lord hath commanded against Jacob, his enemies are round about him: Jerusalem is as a menstruous woman among them.

18 Sade. The Lord is just, for I have provoked his mouth to wrath; hear, I pray you, all ye people, and see my sorrow: my virgins, and my young men are gone into captivity.

19 Coph. I called for my friends, but they deceived me: my priests and my ancients pined away in the city, while they sought their food, to relieve their souls.

20 Res. Behold, O Lord, for I am in distress, my bowels are troubled; my heart is turned within me, for I am full of bitterness: abroad the sword destroyeth, and at home there is death alike.

21 Sin. They have heard that I sigh, and there is none to comfort me; all my enemies have heard of my evil, they have rejoiced that thou hast done it: thou hast brought a day of consolation, and they shall be like unto me.

22 Thau. Let all their evil be present before thee;

* Jer. xiv. 17.

VER. 13. Bones: fortresses. Theod.—I am like one in a burning fever. Ezec. xxiv. 4. C.—Chastised. Lit. "instructed." This is the good effect of affliction. H.

VER. 14. Watched. This metaphor is not too harsh. C. xxxi. 28. The Magarets prefer, (C.) "is bound by his hand." Prot. But niskad is explained (H.) by the Sept. &c. in the sense of the Vulg. God lays the yoke on my neck suddenly. My iniquities are like bands, and Nabuchodonosor has power over me.

VER. 15. Mighty. Heb. "magnificent" princes, (Lu. xxii. 25.) or warriors. —Tune of vengeance. All is animated. Heb. also, "a troop" of Chaldees. C. ii. 22. —Juda. God, as the first cause, punishes the Jews by war.

VER. 17. Then. They surround the city, to starve the inhabitants. v. 8.

VER. 19. Me. Egypt attempted to relieve Juda, to no purpose. v. 2. C.—It could not, or at least did not, prove of any service to the Jews. C. ii. 18. W.

VER. 20. Alike, by famine, &c. C. W.—Ubique pavor et plurima mortis imago. Eo. ii.

VER. 21. Done it. They conclude that I am cast off for ever. But when I shall be comforted, their turn will come; (C.) or rather they will feel the scourge soon after me.—Consolation. Heb. "which thou hast appointed." H. C. xlviii. 26. &c. Ezec. xxv. &c.

VER. 22. Let. He prays not for their ruin, but predicts it; and wishes rather that they would be converted. C.

CHAP. II. VER. 1. Obscurity. He continues to bewail the misery of Jerusalem—Heaven, the highest glory. Is. xiv. 12.—Stool; the temple, and the land.

and make vintage of them as thou hast made vintage of me for all my iniquities: for my sighs are many, and my heart is sorrowful.

CHAP. II.

Aleph. HOW hath the Lord covered with obscurity the daughter of Sion in his wrath! how hath he cast down from heaven to the earth the glorious one of Israel, and hath not remembered his footstool in the day of his anger.

2 Beth. The Lord hath cast down headlong, and hath not spared all that was beautiful in Jacob: he hath destroyed in his wrath the strong holds of the virgin of Juda, and brought them down to the ground: he hath made the kingdom unclean, and the princes thereof.

3 Ghimel. He hath broken, in his fierce anger, all the horn of Israel: he hath drawn back his right hand from before the enemy, and he hath kindled in Jacob, as it were a flaming fire, devouring round about.

4 Daleth. He hath bent his bow as an enemy; he hath fixed his right hand as an adversary; and he hath killed all that was fair to behold in the tabernacle of the daughter of Sion; he hath poured out his indignation like fire.

5 He. The Lord is become as an enemy: he hath cast down Israel headlong, he hath overthrown all the walls thereof: he hath destroyed his strong holds, and hath multiplied in the daughter of Juda the afflicted, both men and women.

6 Vau. And he hath destroyed his tent as a garden, he hath thrown down his tabernacle: the Lord hath caused feasts and sabbaths to be forgotten in Sion: and hath delivered up king and priest to reproach, and to the indignation of his wrath.

7 Zain. The Lord hath cast off his altar, he hath cursed his sanctuary: he hath delivered the walls of the towers thereof into the hand of the enemy: they have made a noise in the house of the Lord, as in the day of a solemn feast.

8 Heth. The Lord hath purposed to destroy the wall of the daughter of Sion: he hath stretched out his line, and hath not withdrawn his hand from destroying: and the bulwark hath mourned, and the wall hath been destroyed together.

9 Teth. Her gates are sunk into the ground: he hath

The ark fell not into the hands of the enemy. C.—The punishment which the Lord permits, is justly ascribed to Him. W.

VER. 2. Unclean, or treated it as such. C.—Sept. "he hath accounted profane the kings." H.—Joakim, Jechonias, Sedecias, and the royal family, were exposed to the greatest ignominy and sufferings. C.

VER. 3. Horn: beauty and power, (H.) the two kingdoms, the fortresses, (C.) and all their strength, denoted by horns. W.—Hand; refusing us protection, and aiding the Chaldees.

VER. 5. Women, suffering them to be abused. C. v. 11. 13.

VER. 6. Tent: the temple, with the same indifference as if it had been a hut, built to guard the fruit of a garden. Is. v. 5. Ps. lxxix. 13.—Sabbaths. The Jews rested, but could offer no sacrifices in captivity.—Priest. Saraias was slain, and Sedecias imprisoned, &c. C. lii. 10. C.

VER. 7. Cursed, or suffered it to be polluted, (W.) as he looked on it with horror, after it had been profaned by Achaz, &c.—Towers. Sept. "palaces;" Sapcew.—Feast. What a contrast! The temple used to resound with songs of praise and music: the Chaldees fill it with insolent shouts of victory.

VER. 8. Line, to level it with the ground, (Is. xxxiv. 11. C.) or to treat it with just severity. Theod.—Bulwark. Lit. "the first wall," (H.) or ditch, lined with palisades. Alexander ordered the towers to be levelled, and the horses' manes to be cut, when Hephæstion died, to denote the general sorrow.

VER. 9. Among, as slaves, or in prison.—Law has been neglected; and now it cannot be observed, as to the ceremonial part. There are no public instrucdestroyed, and broken her bars: her king and her princes are among the Gentiles: the law is no more, and her prophets have found no vision from the Lord.

10 Jod. The ancients of the daughter of Sion sit upon the ground, they have held their peace: they have sprinkled their heads with dust, they are girded with haircloth, the virgins of Jerusalem hang down their heads to the ground.

11 Caph. My eyes have failed with weeping, my bowels are troubled: my liver is poured out upon the earth, for the destruction of the daughter of my people, when the children, and the sucklings, fainted away in the streets of the city.

12 Lamed. They said to their mothers: Where is corn and wine? when they fainted away, as the wounded in the streets of the city: when they breathed out their souls in the bosoms of their mothers.

13 Mem. To what shall I compare thee? or to what shall I liken thee, O daughter of Jerusalem? to what shall I equal thee, that I may comfort thee, O virgin daughter of Sion? for great as the sea is thy destruction: who shall heal thee?

14 Nun. Thy prophets have seen false and foolish things for thee: and they have not laid open thy iniquity, to excite thee to penance: but they have seen for thee false revelations and banishments.

15 Samech. All they that passed by the way have clapped their hands at thee: they have hissed, and wagged their heads at the daughter of Jerusalem, saying: Is this the city of perfect beauty, the joy of all the earth?

16 Phe. All thy enemies have opened their mouth against thee: they have hissed, and gnashed with the teeth, and have said: We will swallow her up: lo, this is the day which we looked for: we have found it, we have seen it.

17 Ain. The Lord hath done that which he purposed, he hath fulfilled his word, which he commanded in the days of old: he hath destroyed, and hath not spared, and he hath caused the enemy to rejoice over thee, and hath set up the horn of thy adversaries.

18 Sade. Their heart cried to the Lord upon the walls of the daughter of Sion: ^bLet tears run down like a torrent day and night: give thyself no rest, and let not the apple of thy eye cease.

19 Coph. Arise, give praise in the night, in the beginning of the watches: pour out thy heart like water, before the face of the Lord: lift up thy hands to him for the life of thy little children, that have fainted for hunger at the top of all the streets.

20 Res. Behold, O Lord, and consider whom thou hast thus dealt with: shall women then eat their own fruit, their children of a span long: shall the priest, and the prophet be slain in the sanctuary of the Lord?

21 Sin. The child and the old man lie without on the ground: my virgins and my young men are fallen by the sword: thou hast slain them in the day of thy wrath: thou hast killed, and shewn them no pity.

22 Thau. Thou hast called, as to a festival, those that should terrify me round about, and there was none in the day of the wrath of the Lord that escaped and was left: those that I brought up, and nourished, my enemy hath consumed them.

CHAP. III.

Aleph. I AM the man that see my poverty by the rod of his indignation.

2 Aleph. He hath led me, and brought me into darkness, and not into light.

3 Aleph. Only against me he hath turned, and turned again his hand all the day.

4 Beth. My skin and my flesh he hath made old, he hath broken my bones.

5 Beth. He hath built round about me, and he hath compassed me with gall, and labour.

6 Beth. He hath set me in dark places, as those that are dead for ever.

7 Ghimel. He hath built against me round about, that I may not get out: he hath made my fetters heavy.

8 Ghimel. Yea, and when I cry, and entreat, he hath shut out my prayer.

9 Ghimel. He hath shut up my ways with square stones, he hath turned my paths upside down.

10 Daleth. He is become to me as a bear lying in wait: as a lion in secret places.

11 Daleth. He hath turned aside my paths, and hath broken me in pieces, he hath made me desolate.

12 Daleth. He hath bent his bow, and set me as a mark for his arrows.

13 He. He hath shot into my reins the daughters of his quiver.

64 Thau. Thou shalt render them a recompense, O Lord, according to the works of their hands.

65 Thau. Thou shalt give them a buckler of heart, thy labour.

66 Thau. Thou shalt persecute them in anger, and shalt destroy them from under the heavens, O Lord.

CHAP. IV.

Aleph. HOW is the gold become dim, the finest colour is changed, the stones of the sanctuary are scattered in the top of every street?

2 Beth. The noble sons of Sion, and they that were clothed with the best gold: how are they esteemed as earthen vessels, the work of the potter's hands?

3 Ghimel. Even the sea-monsters have drawn out the breast, they have given suck to their young, the daughter of my people is cruel, like the ostrich of the desert.

4 Daleth. The tongue of the sucking child hath stuck to the roof of his mouth for thirst: the little ones have asked for bread, and there was none to break it unto them.

5 He. They that were fed delicately have died in the streets: they that were brought up in scarlet, have embraced the dung.

6 Vau. And the iniquity of the daughter of my people is made greater than the sin of Sodom, which was overthrown in a moment, and hands took nothing in her.

7 Zain. Her Nazarites were whiter than snow, purer than milk, more ruddy than the old ivory, fairer than the sapphire.

Such is the condition of the Israelites. Theodoret.—The ostrich forsakes its eggs. W.—All are solicitous for themselves.

VER. 5. Scarlet. Lit. "yellow;" croceus. H.—Heb. means purple. Those who have been educated in the most delicate manner, are forced to feed on the most disgusting things. 4 K. vi. 25. and xviii. 27. Deut. xxviii. 54.

VER. 6. In her. Sodom was destroyed by God. Her temporal misery was short. H.—Jerusalem was exposed to greater afflictions (C.) here, (H.) and her ingratitude and abominations were greater. Eze. xvi. 46.

VER. 7. Old ivory. Whiteness shews its age. Pliny iii. 8.—As it grows old it turns yellow, and loses much of its value. But the ancients had the art of dyeing it scarlet. Æneid xii. Iliad iv. Ovid ii. Am. v. C.—Heb. poninin may signify (H.) "pearls," the shells of which are stained with a delicate red; though the epithet ruddy may mean "shining," in which sense purpureus is used, Hor. iv. Od. 1.—The complexion of the Nazarites was fair, with a mixture of red.

and they are not known in the streets: their skin hath stuck to their bones, it is withered, and is become like wood.

9 Teth. It was better with them that were slain by the sword, than with them that died with hunger: for these pined away, being consumed for want of the fruits of the earth.

10 Jod. The hands of the pitiful women have sodden their own children: they were their meat in the destruction of the daughter of my people.

11 Caph. The Lord hath accomplished his wrath, he hath poured out his fierce anger; and he hath kindled a fire in Sion, and it hath devoured the foundations thereof.

12 Lamed. The kings of the earth, and all the inhabitants of the world would not have believed, that the adversary and the enemy should enter in by the gates of Jerusalem.

13 Mem. For the sins of her prophets, and the iniquities of her priests, that have shed the blood of the just in the midst of her.

14 Nun. They have wandered as blind men in the streets, they were defiled with blood: and when they could not help walking in it, they held up their skirts.

15 Samech. Depart, you that are defiled, they cried out to them: Depart, get ye hence, touch not: for they quarrelled, and being removed, they said among the Gentiles: He will no more dwell among them.

16 Phe. The face of the Lord hath divided them, he will no more regard them: they respected not the persons of the priests, neither had they pity on the ancients.

17 Ain. While we were yet standing, our eyes failed, expecting help for us in vain, when we looked attentively towards a nation that was not able to save.

18 Sade. Our steps have slipped in the way of our streets, our end draweth near: our days are fulfilled, for our end is come.

VER. 9. For. Lit. "by the barrenness of the earth." H.—Such a death was no doubt, more painful than to perish quickly by the sword. C.

VER. 10. Pitiful. So their nature dictates. W.—But hunger made them the reverse. Some think they slew their children, to prevent them being exposed to more cruel torments, (C.) as the people of Colchis do their sick. Chardin.—Sodden: boiled or roasted; cocerunt, v. 5. Deut. xxviii. 55. At the last siege of Jerusalem, this barbarity was manifested. C. Jos. Bel. vii. 8. Gr. 21 See C. ii. 20.—Daughter. So cities are styled. W.

VER. 12. Believed. God had so often protected this city against Sennacherib, Holofernes, &c. H.—It had been also so strongly fortified. 2 K. v. 6. C.

VER. 13. Priests. They too generally favoured (H.) the false prophets. C. ii. 26. &c. They were judges, and condemned the innocent: or exposed (C.) the citizens to destruction, by not warning them to amend, (H.) and to submit to the Chaldees. C.—Impostors are called prophets, as they have the same outward appearance. W.

VER. 14. They. Sept. "Her guards have tottered in," &c.—When. Prot. "so that men could not touch their garments," as they were defiled. H.—These hypocrites were afraid of touching blood, as they observed external ceremonies, while they disregarded the spirit of religion.

VER. 15. Depart. They were not ashamed to speak thus to others, or the citizens address the priests contaminated with blood. Even the Chaldees looked upon the Jews with abhorrence, as an abandoned people.—For they. Heb. "but they understood not, and wandered about. They, (C.) the Gentiles, said." H.

VER. 16. They, the Jews; or rather the prophet thus describes the Chaldees. C. v. 12. Deut. xxviii. 50.

VER. 17. Sava. The Egyptians attempted it in vain. C. xxxiv. 8. and xxxvii. 10.

VER. 18. Streets. There were enemies within as well as without. C.

19 Coph. Our persecutors were swifter than the eagles of the air: they pursued us upon the mountains, they lay in wait for us in the wilderness.

20 Res. The breath of our month, Christ the Lord, is taken in our sins: to whom we said: Under thy shadow we shall live among the Gentiles.

21 Sin. Rejoice and be glad, O daughter of Edom, that dwellest in the land of Hus: to thee also shall the cup come, thou shalt be made drunk, and naked.

22 Thau. Thy iniquity is accomplished, O daughter of Sion, he will no more carry thee away into captivity: he hath visited thy iniquity, O daughter of Edom, he hath discovered thy sins.

CHAP. V.

THE PRAYER OF JEREMIAS, THE PROPHET.

REMEMBER, O Lord, what is come upon us: consider and behold our reproach.

2 Our inheritance is turned to aliens: our houses to strangers.

3 We are become orphans without a father: our mothers are as widows.

4 We have drunk our water for money: we have bought our wood.

5 We were dragged by the necks, we were weary, and no rest was given us.

6 We have given our hand to Egypt, and to the Assyrians, that we might be satisfied with bread.

7 Our fathers have sinned, and are not: and we have borne their iniquities.

VER. 20. Christ, &c. This, according to the letter, is spoken of their king, who is called the Christ; that is, the anointed of the Lord. But it also relates, in the spiritual sense, to Christ our Lord, suffering for our sins. Ch. Ia liii. 5. S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. xviii. 33.—It literally speaks of Josias, or of Sedecias. W.—Josias was slain by the Egyptians. S. Jer. in Zac. xii.—But Sedecias seems chiefly to be meant. The people were much attached to him, though he was wicked; and they expected that he would have rescued them from the power of the Chaldees, as his league with the neighbouring Gentiles (C.) seemed to insure, (H.) if they had proved faithful. C.—But all was useless against the Lord. H.

VER. 21. Rejoice. Edom had manifested her joy at the misfortunes of Juda. The prophet hints at this with a cutting irony. Pa. cxxxvi. 7. Abd. 11.—Come, as at a feast. Edom was visited five years after the Jews. C. xlix. 7.—Naked. Sept. "and shalt pour it out," (H.) or vomit. C. Grot.

VER. 22. Accomplished, and sufficiently punished by exile. C. I. 20. Is. xl. 2.—Discovered. Gen. xlv. 16. and 3 K. xvii. 18. C.—In vain wouldst thou hide them. H.

CHAP. V. VER. 1. The prayer, &c. This title is not in Heb. Sept. &c. Theodoret has passed over the chapter, as if he doubted of its authenticity. It does not follow the order of Heb. letters like the preceding, and seems to be a form of prayer for those who retired into Egypt. C.—Jeremias foresees what would happen, and prays as the people would do. W.

VER. 2. Aliens. The Idumeans seized and kept possession of the southern parts. C.

VER. 3. Father. Many had none surviving, and all had lost their king. W.

VER. 4. Water. Even this was not given for nothing.

VER. 6. Hand; engaged to serve Egyptians, Babylonians, (C.) or other nations, to procure sustenance. W.

VER. 7. Iniquities. This was the usual complaint of the Jews, (C. xxxi. 29.) as if they had committed no offence themselves. If any virtuous people were involved in the common ruin, they bore it with resignation, and acknowledged that they had deserved it. 1 Esd. ix. 6. and 2 Esd. i. 6. Est. xiv. 6. Dan. iii. 29.

8 Servants have ruled over us: there was none to redeem us out of their hand.

9 We fetched our bread at the peril of our lives, because of the sword in the desert.

10 Our skin was burnt as an oven, by reason of the violence of the famine.

11 They oppressed the women in Sion, and the virgins in the cities of Juda.

12 The princes were hanged up by their hand: they did not respect the persons of the ancients.

13 They abused the young men indecently: and the children fell under the wood.

14 The ancients have ceased from the gates: the young men from the choir of the singers.

15 The joy of our heart is ceased, our dancing is turned into mourning.

16 The crown is fallen from our head: woe to us, because we have sinned.

17 Therefore is our heart sorrowful, therefore are our eyes become dim.

18 For Mount Sion, because it is destroyed, foxes have walked upon it.

19 But thou, O Lord, shalt remain for ever, thy throne from generation to generation.

20 Why wilt thou forget us for ever? why wilt thou forsake us for a long time?

21 Convert us, O Lord, to thee, and we shall be converted: renew our days, as from the beginning.

22 But thou hast utterly rejected us, thou art exceedingly angry with us.

VER. 8. Servants. One had command over another. Mat. xxiv. 45. The Chaldees were like slaves, and the race of Cham was condemned to servitude. Gen. ix. 26. C.—The Jews had formerly dominion over Edom, &c. who now treated them so cruelly. M. Lyran.

VER. 9. Sword. Any one might kill us.

VER. 11. Oppressed. Heb. "afflicted." Brutal insolence prevailed. C.

VER. 12. Hand. Thus Leonidas was treated, after his head was cut off, by Xerxes. Herod. vii. 238.

VER. 13. Indecently, like the Sodomites. Heb. "they made the young men grind" at the mill, in their prison, (H.) as Samson (Judg. xvi. 21.) and Sedecias (according to the Sept. C. lii. 11.) were forced to do. To grind is often used in a bad sense; but it is not necessary to adopt it here. C. Amama.—The Chaldees treated their captives without pity or shame. H.—Wood; burdens, or stumbling-blocks, unless they were crucified: "roasted," if we admit a small alteration in the Heb. C. iv. 10. C.—They were forced to grind naked, and were beaten with staves. W.

VER. 14. Gates, where sentence was usually passed. H.—The Jews had judges at Babylon, (Dan. xiii. 5.) not at first, nor everywhere.

VER. 16. Crown, used at feasts; (C.) or, we have lost the sovereign power. W.

VER. 17. Din, the natural consequence of extreme want. 1 K. xiv. 27.

VER. 18. Foxes, which were very common. Judg. xv. 4. Thus, Horace says: Agros atque lares patrios, habitandaque fana Apri reliquet et edacibus lupis.—Epod. 16.

VER. 21. Convert. Thy grace must work upon our hearts, (C.) before we can expect redress, (H.) and an end of our banishment. T. Grot.—Beginning, when our fathers observed the law. S. Tho. M. See C. xxxi. 16. S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. ii. and iv. W.

VER. 22. Thou hast. We might read with an interrogation, (H.) in Heb. "Hast thou?" &c. The Jews superstitiously repeat the last verse, for fear of ending the book in an ominous manner, as they do at the end of Isaiah and Malachias. C.—Having treated us so severely, stop thy hand. W.—But I perceive it will be in vain to beg for redress till the seventy years be expired. M.

THE PROPHECY OF BARUCH.

BARUCH was a man of noble extraction, and learned in the law, secretary and disciple to the prophet Jeremias, and a sharer in his labours and persecutions; which is the reason why the ancient Fathers have considered this book as a part of the prophecy of Jeremias, and have usually quoted it under his name. Ch.—The frequent Heb. idioms shew it to have been originally in that language. Baruch wrote by inspiration of the Holy Ghost the letter comprising the five first chapters, which he carried to the Jews from their brethren at Babylon. The martyrologies place his death, Dec. 28. The sixth chapter contains a letter of Jeremias, to which allusion is clearly made 2 Mac. ii. 2. The Church still recites the works of Baruch under the name of Jeremias. Sab. Pent. proph. 6. C.—Many Fathers did so formerly, though they doubted not but Baruch was the author. See S. Iren. v. 35. S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. xviii. 33. &c. Others, with Origen (Prin. ii. 3.) specify the writer; and the Councils of Laodicea, Florence, and Trent, decide that it is canonical. S. Jerom alleged it not against the Jews, as they denied its authority. W.—See Jer. xxxii. 44. H.—In his preface on Jer. he testifies that “it contains many things relating to Christ and the latter times.” W.—Grotius in vain attempts to represent some parts as interpolated (C. iii. 38. &c. C.) and L. Cappellus has left some posthumous notes, which would represent the author as a stupid impostor, though he acknowledges his learning. Houbigant.

CHAP. I.

The Jews of Babylon send the book of Baruch, with money, to Jerusalem, requesting their brethren there to offer sacrifice, and to pray for the king and for them, acknowledging their manifold sins.

AND ^athese are the words of the book, which Baruch, the son of Nerias, the son of Maasias, the son of Sedecias, the son of Sedei, the son of Helcias, wrote in Babylonia.

2 In the fifth year, in the seventh day of the month, at the time that the Chaldeans took Jerusalem, and burnt it with fire.

3 And Baruch read the words of this book in the hearing of Jechonias, the son of Joakim, king of Juda, and in the hearing of all the people that came to hear the book.

4 And in the hearing of the nobles, the sons of the kings, and in the hearing of the ancients, and in the hearing of the people, from the least even to the greatest of them, that dwelt in Babylonia, by the river Sodi.

5 And when they heard it they wept, and fasted, and prayed before the Lord.

6 And they made a collection of money, according to every man's power.

7 And they sent it to Jerusalem, to Joakim, the priest, the son of Helcias, the son of Salom, and to the priests, and to all the people, that were found with him in Jerusalem:

8 At the time when he received the vessels of the temple of the Lord, which had been taken away out of the temple, to return them into the land of Juda, the tenth day of the month Sivan, the silver vessels, which Sedecias, the son of Josias, king of Juda, had made.

9 After that, Nabuchodonosor, the king of Babylon,

CHAP. I. VER. 1. Babylonia. Sept. “Babylon,” where Jechonias was in prison, (H.) now the 5th year. v. 2. Baruch accompanied his brother Saraias. Jer. ii. 59. C.—Cappel. supposes that the author confounded them together, which is not probable. Houb.

VER. 2. Month. in which the king was taken. C.—This was the fifth anniversary. H.—Fire: but soon extinguished. Usher.—The taking of the city was effected at intervals, (H.) during eleven years, in the fifth of which this book was written. Jerusalem was at last reduced to ashes. As yet there were priests, a temple, &c. v. 7, 14. W. C.

VER. 3. Jechonias. He was in prison, where the Jews met to hear the words of Jeremias; (li. 59. &c. C.) or the king might hear the letter in private. Houbig.

VER. 4. Sodi. Heb. zud, (H.) means “pride,” and probably denotes the great river Euphrates. C.—Bochart reads Sur, (Houb.) or Sori. The city Sura was there. C.

VER. 7. Joakim, or Eliacim, high priest under Manasses, &c. Is. xxii. 20. C.—The text only says that he was priest, and Cappel. asserts there was no pontiff then. Houbigant.

VER. 8. Sivan; a Syriac month, corresponding with our May. M.—Vessels; or, “the vessels were of silver.” H.—By retrenching it, which, it would seem that they asked for the golden vessels. Sedecias had made silver ones to supply their had carried away Jechonias, and the princes, and all the powerful men, and the people of the land from Jerusalem, and brought them bound to Babylon.

10 And they said: Behold we have sent you money, buy with it holocausts, and frankincense, and make meat-offerings, and offerings for sin at the altar of the Lord our God:

11 And pray ye for the life of Nabuchodonosor, the king of Babylon, and for the life of Baltassar, his son, that their days may be upon earth as the days of heaven:

12 And that the Lord may give us strength, and enlighten our eyes, that we may live under the shadow of Nabuchodonosor, the king of Babylon, and under the shadow of Baltassar, his son, and may serve them many days, and may find favour in their sight.

13 And pray ye for us to the Lord our God: for we have sinned against the Lord our God, and his wrath is not turned away from us even to this day.

14 And read ye this book, which we have sent to you to be read in the temple of the Lord, on feasts, and proper days.

15 ^bAnd you shall say: To the Lord our God belongeth justice, but to us confusion of our face: as it is come to pass at this day to all Juda, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, 16 To our kings, and to our princes, and to our priests, and to our prophets, and to our fathers.

17 ^cWe have sinned before the Lord our God, and have not believed him, nor put our trust in him:

18 And we were not obedient to him, and we have not hearkened to the voice of the Lord our God, to walk in his commandments which he hath given us.

place. These also might have been taken away. C.—Baltassar had still those of gold, (Dan. v. 2. M.) or at least some of them. H.—Sedecias, now in favour only asked for what he had made while a private man. Houbig.

VER. 9. All. Cunctos should be vinctos, according to the Gr. “prisoners.” O.

VER. 10. Meat. Lit. “manna,” as Sept. express Heb. manca; (H.) or as it is pointed, mincha; which properly means an “oblation” (Jer. xvii. 26. M.) of bread, wine, &c. C.—And offerings. Lit. “offer.”—Gr. has for sin before frankincense. H.

VER. 11. King. Gratitude and duty prompted them. Jer. xxix. 7. and 1 Tim. ii. 2.—Baltassar. Evilmerodac, his elder brother, was in disgrace. Lyran. Jer. lii. 31. C.—Heaven, as long and prosperous as possible. H.—It was a customary salutation to say, O king, live for ever. Dan. ii. 4. Ps. lxxxviii. 30. C.—Cappel. says Baltassar was not yet born. But how does he know this! It might be the title of the heir apparent, (H.) or of the king's sons. We need not decide in a point of such antiquity. Houbig.

VER. 12. Eyes. putting an end to our captivity, (Badwell) or causing us to detest our sins. C.—Days. This they knew was God's decree, and they submit. H.—They prefer serving the Chaldees before other foreign nations. W.

VER. 14. Proper festival days. C.—Heb. mohed, or muad. They were still observed (H.) in the temple.

19 From the day that he brought our fathers out of the land of Egypt, even to this day, we were disobedient to the Lord our God: and going astray we turned away from hearing his voice.

20 "And many evils have cleaved to us, and the curses which the Lord foretold by Moses, his servant: who brought our fathers out of the land of Egypt, to give us a land flowing with milk and honey, as at this day.

21 And we have not hearkened to the voice of the Lord our God, according to all the words of the prophets whom he sent to us:

22 And we have gone away every man after the inclination of his own wicked heart, to serve strange gods, and to do evil in the sight of the Lord our God.

CHAP. II.

A further confession of the sins of the people, and of the justice of God.

WHEREFORE the Lord our God hath made good his word, that he spoke to us, and to our judges that have judged Israel, and to our kings, and to our princes, and to all Israel and Juda:

2 That the Lord would bring upon us great evils, such as never happened under heaven, as they have come to pass in Jerusalem, ^baccording to the things that are written in the law of Moses:

3 That a man should eat the flesh of his own son, and the flesh of his own daughter.

4 And he hath delivered them up to be under the hand of all the kings that are round about us, to be a reproach, and desolation among all the people, among whom the Lord hath scattered us.

5 And we are brought under, and are not uppermost: because we have sinned against the Lord our God, by not obeying his voice.

6 "To the Lord our God belongeth justice: but to us, and to our fathers, confusion of face, as at this day.

7 For the Lord hath pronounced against us all these evils that are come upon us:

8 And we have not entreated the face of the Lord our God, that we might return every one of us from our most wicked ways.

9 And the Lord hath watched over us for evil, and hath brought it upon us: for the Lord is just in all his works which he hath commanded us:

10 And we have not hearkened to his voice, to walk in the commandments of the Lord, which he hath set before us.

CHAP. II. VER. 2. Heaven. After the death of Josias, the nation was exposed to the greatest misery. Its kings were imprisoned by the Egyptians, and then by the Chaldees; and surprising changes took place, all during the space of eight or nine years.

VER. 3. Daughter. This is not mentioned in sacred history to have happened when this was written, (C.) except in the siege of Samaria. Some of the captives of Israel might be now at Babylon, as the places to which they had been sent were under the same king; and they confess their common transgressions and chastisements. All distinction of the kingdoms was now at an end. Some might also have been reduced to this extremity, when Joakim or Jehonias were besieged and taken. H.—We should not know that a similar distress prevailed under Sedecias, if it had not been specified Lam. ii. 20. and iv. 10. This prayer greatly resembles that of Dan. ix. 4.

VER. 9. Watched, to punish. When he spares, he seems to slumber. Jer. xlv. 27. C.

11 "And now, O Lord God of Israel, who hast brought thy people out of the land of Egypt with a strong hand, and with signs, and with wonders, and with thy great power, and with a mighty arm, and hast made thee a name as at this day.

12 We have sinned, we have done wickedly, we have acted unjustly, O Lord our God, against all thy justices.

13 Let thy wrath be turned away from us: for we are left a few among the nations, where thou hast scattered us.

14 Hear, O Lord, our prayers, and our petitions, and deliver us for thy own sake: and grant that we may find favour in the sight of them that have led us away.

15 That all the earth may know that thou art the Lord our God, and that thy name is called upon Israel, and upon his posterity.

16 "Look down upon us, O Lord, from thy holy house, and incline thy ear, and hear us.

17 "Open thy eyes, and behold: "for the dead that are in hell, whose spirit is taken away from their bowels, shall not give glory and justice to the Lord:

18 But the soul that is sorrowful for the greatness of evil she hath done, and goeth bowed down, and feeble, and the eyes that fail, and the hungry soul giveth glory and justice to thee, the Lord.

19 For it is not for the justices of our fathers that we pour out our prayers, and beg mercy in thy sight, O Lord our God.

20 But because thou hast sent out thy wrath, and thy indignation upon us, as thou hast spoken by the hand of thy servants, the prophets, saying:

21 Thus saith the Lord: Bow down your shoulder, and your neck, and serve the king of Babylon: and you shall remain in the land which I have given to your fathers.

22 But if you will not hearken to the voice of the Lord your God, to serve the king of Babylon: I will cause you to depart out of the cities of Juda, and from without Jerusalem.

23 And I will take away from you the voice of mirth, and the voice of joy, and the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride, and all the land shall be without any footstep of inhabitants.

24 And they hearkened not to thy voice, to serve the king of Babylon: and thou hast made good thy

VER. 18. Of evil is not in Greek. A soul which bears grandeur with pain, like Esther, and humbles itself before God, is most graciously received. H.—Faith, by fasting. Such are the dispositions required for prayer. Ps. lxxviii. 3.

VER. 19. Fathers. Gr. adds, "and kings."—Prayers. Gr. "mercy." We boast not of our good works. H.—Mercy may denote prayer or humiliation. Theodoret gives a better sense: (C.) "We trust not in the just works of our fathers, or of ourselves, to receive any pity." H.

words, which thou spokest by the hands of thy servants, the prophets, that the bones of our kings, and the bones of our fathers, should be removed out of their place:

25 And behold they are cast out to the heat of the sun, and to the frost of the night: and they have died in grievous pains, by famine, and by the sword, and in banishment.

26 And thou hast made the temple, in which thy name was called upon, as it is at this day, for the iniquity of the house of Israel, and of the house of Juda.

27 And thou hast dealt with us, O Lord our God, according to all thy goodness, and according to all that great mercy of thine:

28 As thou spokest by the hand of thy servant, Moses, in the day when thou didst command him to write thy law before the children of Israel,

29 Saying: "If you will not hear my voice, this great multitude shall be turned into a very small number among the nations, where I will scatter them:

30 For I know that the people will not hear me, for they are a people of a stiff neck: but they shall turn to their heart in the land of their captivity:

31 And they shall know that I am the Lord their God: and I will give them a heart, and they shall understand: and ears, and they shall hear.

32 And they shall praise me in the land of their captivity, and shall be mindful of my name.

33 And they shall turn away themselves from their stiff neck, and from their wicked deeds: for they shall remember the way of their fathers, that sinned against me.

34 And I will bring them back again into the land which I promised with an oath to their fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and they shall be masters thereof: and I will multiply them, and they shall not be diminished.

35 And I will make with them another covenant that shall be everlasting, to be their God, and they shall be my people: and I will no more remove my people, the children of Israel, out of the land that I have given them.

CHAP. III.

They pray for mercy, acknowledging that they are justly punished for forsaking true wisdom. A prophecy of Christ.

AND now, O Lord Almighty, the God of Israel, the soul in anguish, and the troubled spirit, crieth to thee:

CHAP. III. VER. 8. Everlastingly. Is such a short-lived creature an object worthy of thy eternal wrath? Job xii. 25. and xiv. 1. Ps. cii. 13.

VER. 4. Dead; banished, (v. 11. Ezec. xxxvii. 5.) or of the ancient patriarchs. This motive is frequently urged. Ex. xxxii. 13. Lev. xxvi. 41. Deut. ix. 27. Dan. iii. 35. Jer. xv. 1. C.—People in sin and misery seem dead, (v. 11.) yet may revive by grace. W.

VER. 5. Hand. Save us by thy power, and for thy own name's sake. Jos. vii. 2

2 Hear, O Lord, and have mercy, for thou art a merciful God, and have pity on us: for we have sinned before thee.

3 For thou remainest for ever, and shall we perish everlastingly?

4 O Lord Almighty, the God of Israel, hear now the prayer of the dead of Israel, and of their children, that have sinned before thee, and have not hearkened to the voice of the Lord their God, wherefore evils have cleaved fast to us.

5 Remember not the iniquities of our fathers, but think upon thy hand, and upon thy name at this time:

6 For thou art the Lord our God, and we will praise thee, O Lord:

7 Because for this end thou hast put thy fear in our hearts, to the intent that we should call upon thy name, and praise thee in our captivity, for we are converted from the iniquity of our fathers, who sinned before thee.

8 And behold we are at this day in our captivity, whereby thou hast scattered us to be a reproach, and a curse, and an offence, according to all the iniquities of our fathers, who departed from thee, O Lord our God.

9 Hear, O Israel, the commandments of life: give ear, that thou mayst learn wisdom.

10 How happeneth it, O Israel, that thou art in thy enemies' land?

11 Thou art grown old in a strange country, thou art defiled with the dead: thou art counted with them that go down into hell.

12 Thou hast forsaken the fountain of wisdom:

13 For if thou hadst walked in the way of God, thou hadst surely dwelt in peace for ever.

14 Learn where is wisdom, where is strength, where is understanding: that thou mayst know also where is length of days and life, where is the light of the eyes, and peace.

15 Who hath found out her place? and who hath gone into her treasures?

16 Where are the princes of the nations, and they that rule over the beasts that are upon the earth?

17 That take their diversion with the birds of the air,

18 That hoard up silver and gold, wherein men trust, and there is no end of their getting? who work in silver, and are solicitous, and their works are unsearchable?

19 They are cut off, and are gone down to hell, and others are risen up in their place.

VER. 8. Offence. Gr. "debt." Parents might sell their children. Mat. xviii. 25. God threatens his rebellious people, that they shall be forced to borrow. Deut. xxviii. 44. C.

VER. 9. Hear. God replies. H.—The Church has long read this as holy scripture, on the eves of Easter and Pentecost. W.—This second part contains an instruction respecting true wisdom; which is to be found in God alone, (C.) and in the people to whom he is pleased to communicate it. H.

VER. 11. Grown. Houbigant, "growing." Five years had not elapsed (Cappel.) yet they knew their captivity would be long.—Dead. Some might yield to idolatry. Dan. iii. 7. 12. H.—They were in a manner buried, (Pa. lxxxvii. 5.) and forced to dwell among people where they were exposed to many defilements, as if they had been near a dead body. Lev. xi. 25.

VER. 13. Peace. There is none for the wicked; but only for the observers of the law.—For ever. Many read, "upon the land," conformably to the Greek.

VER. 15. Treasures? How few are truly wise and virtuous! The great men of the world have missed their aim. Israel has received the law. Yet where is the fruit of it? This is developed in the sequel.

VER. 16. Nations of Assyria! &c. They esteemed themselves as lords of nature, and delighted in hunting. The beasts and birds are subject to them. Gen. i. 26. Jer. xxvii. 6. Dan. ii. 38. C.

VER. 18. Unsearchable? Shall they not find the fruit of their works? W.

20 Young men have seen the light, and dwelt upon the earth: but the way of knowledge they have not known,

21 Nor have they understood the paths thereof, neither have their children received it, it is far from their face.

22 It hath not been heard of in the land of Chanaan, neither hath it been seen in Theman.

24 O Israel, how great is the house of God, and how vast is the place of his possession!

25 It is great, and hath no end: it is high and immense.

26 There were the giants, those renowned men that were from the beginning, of great stature, expert in war.

27 The Lord chose not them, neither did they find the way of knowledge: therefore did they perish.

28 And because they had not wisdom, they perished through their folly.

29 Who hath gone up into heaven, and taken her, and brought her down from the clouds?

30 Who hath passed over the sea, and found her, and brought her preferably to chosen gold?

31 There is none that is able to know her ways, nor that can search out her paths:

32 But he that knoweth all things, knoweth her, and hath found her out with his understanding: he that prepared the earth for evermore, and filled it with cattle and four-footed beasts:

33 He that sendeth forth light, and it goeth: and hath called it, and it obeyeth him with trembling.

34 And the stars have given light in their watches, and rejoiced:

35 They were called, and they said: Here we are: and with cheerfulness they have shined forth to him that made them.

36 This is our God, and there shall no other be accounted of in comparison of him.

CHAP. IV.

The prophet exhorts to the keeping of the law of wisdom: and encourages the people to be patient, and to hope for their deliverance.

THIS is the book of the commandments of God, and the law, that is for ever: all they that keep it, shall come to life: but they that have forsaken it, to death.

2 Return, O Jacob, and take hold of it, walk in the way by its brightness, in the presence of the light thereof.

3 Give not thy honour to another, nor thy dignity to a strange nation.

4 We are happy, O Israel: because the things that are pleasing to God are made known to us.

5 Be of good comfort, O people of God, the memorial of Israel:

6 You have been sold to the Gentiles, not for your destruction: but because you provoked God to wrath, you are delivered to your adversaries.

7 For you have provoked him who made you, the eternal God, offering sacrifice to devils, and not to God.

8 For you have forgotten God, who brought you up, and you have grieved Jerusalem, that nursed you.

9 For she saw the wrath of God coming upon you, and she said: Give ear, all you that dwell near Sion, for God hath brought upon me great mourning:

10 For I have seen the captivity of my people, of my sons, and my daughters, which the Eternal hath brought upon them.

11 For I nourished them with joy: but I sent them away with weeping and mourning.

12 Let no man rejoice over me, a widow, and desolate: I am forsaken of many for the sins of my children, because they departed from the law of God.

13 And they have not known his justices, nor walked by the ways of God's commandments, neither have they entered by the paths of his truth and justice.

14 Let them that dwell about Sion come, and remember the captivity of my sons and daughters, which the Eternal hath brought upon them.

15 For he hath brought a nation upon them from afar, a wicked nation, and of a strange tongue:

16 Who have neither revered the ancient, nor pitied children, and have carried away the beloved of the widow, and have left me all alone without children.

phets often speak of things to come as if they were past, to express the certainty of the event of the things foretold. Ch. C.—Most of the Fathers prove Christ's divinity from this text. W. See Tert. c. Prax. 6. S. Cyp. c. Jud. ii. 5. Eus. Dem. vi. 19.—If we explain it of wisdom, it comes to the same purpose, as Christ is the wisdom of God. 1 Cor. i. 30. Compare Prov. viii. 30. Eccl. xxiv. 12. Wisd. ix. 10. which no one ever suspected to be interpolated. C. Pref.

CHAP. IV. VER. 1. Ever. True wisdom may be found in the law. It constitutes the happiness of Israel. Deut. iv. 7. Christ perfected and fulfilled it. Mat. v. 17.—Life. Moses promised temporal blessings; (C. iii. 14. Deut. xxx. 15.) yet the faithful would be rewarded eternally. C.—Wisdom is the law of God. C. iii. 12. W.

VER. 3. Nation. Be faithful, lest another take thy place. This Christians have done. Deut. xxxii. 21. C.

VER. 5. Memorial. Gr. lit. "O memorable Israel." H.—Ye are left to support and restore the nation. This part of the letter is for their comfort.

VER. 6. Sold, like slaves, or people taken in war. C.

VER. 8. God. Lit. "Him." Gr. "the Eternal." H.—This is taken from Deut. xxxii. 15. C.—Nursed you. The city is beautifully personified as a widow. v. 12. H.

VER. 9. Near. Heb. would be "daughters of Sion." v. 14.

VER. 15. Tongue. So the Chaldees are described, Deut. xxviii. 49. Is. xxxiii. 19. C.

VER. 16. Children. Gr. "daughters." H.—Many of both sexes were taken with Jechonias. C.—Jerusalem comforts her children, and assures them of God's mercy. W.

17 But as for me, what help can I give you?

18 But he that hath brought the evils upon you, he will deliver you out of the hands of your enemies.

19 Go your way, my children, go your way: for I am left alone.

20 I have put off the robe of peace, and have put upon me the sackcloth of supplication, and I will cry to the most High in my days.

21 Be of good comfort, my children, cry to the Lord, and he will deliver you out of the hand of the princes, your enemies.

22 For my hope is in the Eternal, that he will save you: and joy is come upon me from the holy One, because of the mercy which shall come to you from our everlasting Saviour.

23 For I sent you forth with mourning, and weeping: but the Lord will bring you back to me with joy and gladness for ever.

24 For as the neighbours of Sion have now seen your captivity from God, so shall they also shortly see your salvation from God, which shall come upon you with great honour, and everlasting glory.

25 My children, suffer patiently the wrath that is come upon you: for thy enemy hath persecuted thee, but thou shalt quickly see his destruction: and thou shalt get up upon his neck.

26 My delicate ones have walked rough ways, for they were taken away as a flock made a prey by the enemies.

27 Be of good comfort, my children, and cry to the Lord: for you shall be remembered by him that hath led you away.

28 For as it was your mind to go astray from God; so when you return again, you shall seek him ten times as much.

29 For he that hath brought evils upon you, shall bring you everlasting joy again with your salvation.

30 Be of good heart, O Jerusalem: for he exhorteth thee, that named thee.

31 The wicked that have afflicted thee, shall perish: and they that have rejoiced at thy ruin, shall be punished.

32 The cities which thy children have served, shall be punished: and she that received thy sons.

33 For as she rejoiced at thy ruin, and was glad of thy fall: so shall she be grieved for her own desolation.

CHAP. V. VER. 2. Garment. Heb. "cloak," (Sanct.) such as were worn by people under no disgrace. C. iv. 20. Tamar had one very costly. 2 K. xiii. 16. C.—Justice, or mercy. God is bound to fulfil his gracious promises. W.

VER. 3. His. Gr. "thy." Christ, the sun of justice, would effect this. Is. lx. 1.

34 And the joy of her multitude shall be cut off, and her gladness shall be turned to mourning.

35 For fire shall come upon her from the Eternal, long to endure, and she shall be inhabited by devils for a great time.

36 "Look about thee, O Jerusalem, towards the east, and behold the joy that cometh to thee from God.

37 For behold thy children come, whom thou sentest away scattered, they come gathered together from the east even to the west, at the word of the holy One, rejoicing for the honour of God.

CHAP. V.

Jerusalem is invited to rejoice, and behold the return of her children out of their captivity.

PUT off, O Jerusalem, the garment of thy mourning, and affliction: and put on the beauty, and honour of that everlasting glory which thou hast from God.

2 God will clothe thee with the double garment of justice, and will set a crown on thy head of everlasting honour.

3 For God will shew his brightness in thee, to every one under heaven.

4 For thy name shall be named to thee by God for ever: the peace of justice, and honour of piety.

5 Arise, O Jerusalem, and stand on high: ^band look about towards the east, and behold thy children gathered together from the rising to the setting sun, by the word of the holy One, rejoicing in the remembrance of God.

6 For they went out from thee on foot, led by the enemies: but the Lord will bring them to thee, exalted with honour, as children of the kingdom.

7 For God hath appointed to bring down every high mountain, and the everlasting rocks, and to fill up the valleys, to make them even with the ground: that Israel may walk diligently to the honour of God.

8 Moreover, the woods, and every sweet-smelling tree, have overshadowed Israel, by the commandment of God.

9 For God will bring Israel with joy in the light of his majesty, with mercy, and justice, that cometh from him.

VER. 8. Woods. This is a poetical description. They shall pass through the sands of Arabia, as if they were under a delightful shade.

CHAP. VI. A copy. Sept. place this after the Lamentations, which follow Baruch. H.—Jeremias wrote it before the captives departed. Baruch read it to them at Babylon, and it was sent back to Jerusalem. W.—It might be delivered to the captives at Reblatha. We have it not entire, as another circumstance respecting the ark is mentioned. 2 Mac. ii. 5. C.

VER. 2. Seven generations; that is, seventy years. Ch.—A generation some times consisted of seven, ten, fifteen, thirty, thirty-five, fifty, or a hundred years (1031) by the king of Babylon, to declare to them according to what was commanded him by God.

1 *FOR the sins that you have committed before God, you shall be carried away captives into Babylon by Nabuchodonosor, the king of Babylon.

2 And when you are come into Babylon, you shall be there many years, and for a long time, even to seven generations; and after that I will bring you away from thence with peace.

3 ^bBut now, you shall see in Babylon gods of gold, and of silver, and of stone, and of wood, borne upon shoulders, causing fear to the Gentiles.

4 Beware, therefore, that you imitate not the doings of others, and be afraid, and the fear of them should seize upon you.

5 But when you see the multitude behind, and before, adoring them, say you in your hearts: Thou oughtest to be adored, O Lord.

6 For my angel is with you: And I myself will demand an account of your souls.

7 For their tongue that is polished by the craftsman, and themselves laid over with gold and silver, are false things, and they cannot speak.

8 And as if it were for a maiden that loveth to go gay: so do they take gold and make them up.

9 Their gods have golden crowns upon their heads: whereof the priests secretly convey away from them gold, and silver, and bestow it on themselves.

10 Yea, and they give thereof to prostitutes, and they dress out harlots: and again when they receive it of the harlots, they adorn their gods.

11 And these gods cannot defend themselves from the rust, and the moth.

12 But when they have covered them with a purple garment, they wipe their face, because of the dust of the house, which is very much among them.

13 This holdeth a sceptre as a man, as a judge of the country, but cannot put to death one that offendeth him.

14 And this hath in his hand a sword, or an axe, but cannot save himself from war, or from robbers, whereby be it known to you, that they are not gods.

15 Therefore, fear them not. For as a vessel that a man uses when it is broken becometh useless, even so are their gods:

16 When they are placed in the house, their eyes are full of dust by the feet of them that go in.

17 And as the gates are made sure on every side upon one that hath offended the king, or like a dead man carried to the grave, so do the priests secure the doors with bars and locks, lest they be stripped by thieves.

18 They light candles to them, and in great number, of which they cannot see one: but they are like beams in the house.

19 And they say that the creeping things which are of the earth, gnaw their hearts, while they eat them and their garments, and they feel it not.

20 Their faces are black with the smoke that is made in the house.

21 Owls, and swallows, and other birds, fly upon their bodies, and upon their heads, and cats in like manner.

22 Whereby you may know that they are no gods. Therefore fear them not.

23 The gold also which they have, is for shew, but except a man wipe off the rust, they will not shine: for neither when they were molten, did they feel it.

24 Men buy them at a high price, whereas there is no breath in them.

25 * And having not the use of feet, they are carried upon shoulders, declaring to men how vile they are. Be they confounded also that worship them.

26 Therefore if they fall to the ground, they rise not up again of themselves, nor if a man set them upright, will they stand by themselves, but their gifts shall be set before them, as to the dead.

27 The things that are sacrificed to them, their priests sell and abuse: in like manner also their wives take part of them, but give nothing of it either to the sick, or to the poor.

28 The child-bearing and menstruous women touch their sacrifices: knowing, therefore, by these things that they are not gods, fear them not.

29 For how can they be called gods? because women set offerings before the gods of silver, and of gold, and of wood:

30 And priests sit in their temples, having their garments rent, and their heads and beards shaven, and nothing upon their heads.

VER. 8. Gay. Nothing could be more despicable. C.

VER. 10. The harlots. Their hire was rejected by the Lord. But idols suffered themselves to be despoiled or adorned at pleasure. Gr. "But they will give of them even to harlots under the same roof, while they adorn them (idols) like men with garments, gods of gold, silver, and wood." H.

VER. 12. Them, on account of the many votaries, v. 16. Arnobius (6) ridicules such gods. C.—Prot. adopt similar arguments against the real presence as if we believed that Christ was hurt when the sacramental species were broken or devoured by vermin. A little more boldness will prompt them to reject the divinity of Christ, who was pleased to give up his body to those who treated him shamefully. Almost every argument which is levelled against Christ's real presence in the blessed Eucharist, may be turned against the incarnation; and hence so many now become Socinians, being unwilling to submit their understanding to the mysteries of religion. To apply these texts to holy pictures, would be nugatory. See Ia. xl. 18. H.—The absurdities here specified, shew how foolish are those who serve idols or take any images to be gods. W.—Calvin represents the pagans as adoring God under the images, as if they used them in the same light as Catholics do; which is contrary to this epistle, &c. T.

VER. 13. Judge, or ruler. C.—The sceptre and spear were badges of power. Eustath.—Mars had a sword, Hercules a club. We know little of the idols of Babylon.

VER. 15. Vessel; armour, or any utensil. C.

VER. 18. Candles. Lit. "lamps." H.—Some temples in Egypt were famous for their numbers. Herod. ii. 62.—The Lord prescribed them to be used. But who ever imagined that he stood in need of them to see, as the idolaters supposed their idols did!

VER. 24. Price, foolishly believing that they have divine power. W.

VER. 26. Gifts. The Chaldees supposed that Bel could eat. Dan. xiv.—Dead. Food was placed on the tombs. S. Aug. abolished this custom in Africa.

VER. 27. Take. Gr. "salt." They give none to the poor, for fear of their impotence being detected, though they allow even the unclean to eat. v. 28. Lev. xii. 2. Deut. xiv. 29.

VER. 29. Women. They make gods. C.—Qui rogat, ille facit. Mart. viii. 24.

31 And they roar and cry before their gods, as men do at the feast when one is dead.

32 The priests take away their garments, and clothe their wives and their children.

33 And whether it be evil that one doth unto them, or good, they are not able to recompense it: neither can they set up a king, nor put him down:

34 In like manner they can neither give riches, nor requite evil. If a man make a vow to them, and perform it not: they cannot require it.

35 They cannot deliver a man from death, nor save the weak from the mighty.

36 They cannot restore the blind man to his sight: nor deliver a man from distress.

37 They shall not pity the widow, nor do good to the fatherless.

38 Their gods, of wood, and of stone, and of gold, and of silver, are like the stones that are hewn out of the mountains: and they that worship them shall be confounded.

39 How then is it to be supposed, or to be said, that they are gods?

40 Even the Chaldeans themselves dishonour them: who when they hear of one dumb that cannot speak, they present him to Bel, entreating him, that he may speak.

41 As though they could be sensible that have no motion themselves: and they, when they shall perceive this, will leave them: for their gods themselves have no sense.

42 The women also, with cords about them, sit in the ways, burning olive-stones.

43 And when any one of them, drawn away by some passenger, lieth with him, she upbraideth her neighbour, that she was not thought as worthy as herself, nor her cord broken.

44 But all things that are done about them, are false: how is it then to be thought, or to be said, that they are gods?

45 And they are made by workmen, and by goldsmiths. They shall be nothing else but what the priests will have them to be.

46 For the artificers themselves that make them, are of no long continuance. Can those things then that are made by them, be gods?

47 But they have left false things and reproach to them that come after.

VER. 30. Shaven, as in mourning, contrary to the custom of Israel. Lev. xxi. 10. C.—Heads. The Jewish priests wore mitres or caps.

VER. 31. Dead, even of Adonis, (H.) whose worship is here ridiculed. C.—At Biblos people bewailed his death, and the next day proclaimed that he was alive. All cut off their hair, as the Egyptians do for Apis, except such as submitted to prostitute themselves to strangers. The hire they consecrated to Venus. Lucian, Dea Syra.—At funerals a feast was usually made, as is still the custom in Syria, (Roger. ii. 14.) and near Bagdad. Chardin. ii. 7.

VER. 34. Requite. Gr. "brass," much less gold. H.

VER. 40. Chaldeans. The priests themselves despise the idols most, (C.) and expose them to contempt, by pretending that they work miracles. H.—"Those who first set up representations of the gods, deprived cities of reverential awe, and increased the error," said Varro; "prudently supposing that gods might easily be contemned, when like stupid images." In simulacrorum stoliditate. S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. iv. 26.

VER. 41. They. Gr. "he could perceive. And they reflecting on this, cannot still abandon them; for they have no sense." H.—They are so stupid, that they will not quit such impotent idols. C.

VER. 42. Women. Aristophanes calls harlots, "corded bodies." Eccles. Act. i. The women of Babylon "prostituted themselves once, in honour of Venus, (H. Mylitta. C.) sitting with crowns on their heads in the temple, till some stranger selected them, and took them from their partition, made with cords," (H.) to some more secret place, where they broke their bands. Herod. i. 199.

48 For when war cometh upon them, or evils: the priests consult with themselves, where they may hide themselves with them.

49 How then can they be thought to be gods, that can neither deliver themselves from war, nor save themselves from evils?

50 For seeing they are but of wood, and laid over with gold, and with silver, it shall be known hereafter that they are false things, by all nations, and kings: and it shall be manifest that they are no gods, but the work of men's hands, and that there is no work of God in them.

51 Whence, therefore, is it known that they are not gods, but the work of men's hands, and no work of God is in them?

52 They cannot set up a king over the land, nor give rain to men.

53 They determine no causes, nor deliver countries from oppression: because they can do nothing, and are as daws between heaven and earth.

54 For when fire shall fall upon the house of these gods of wood, and of silver, and of gold, their priests indeed will flee away, and be saved: but they themselves shall be burnt in the midst like beams.

55 And they cannot withstand a king and war. How then can it be supposed, or admitted, that they are gods?

56 Neither are these gods of wood, and of stone, and laid over with gold, and with silver, able to deliver themselves from thieves or robbers: they that are stronger than them,

57 Shall take from them the gold, and silver, and the raiment wherewith they are clothed, and shall go their way, neither shall they help themselves.

58 Therefore it is better to be a king that sheweth his power: or else a profitable vessel in the house, with which the owner thereof will be well satisfied: or a door in the house, to keep things safe that are therein, than such false gods.

59 The sun, and the moon, and the stars being bright, and sent forth for profitable uses, are obedient.

60 In like manner the lightning, when it breaketh forth, is easy to be seen: and after the same manner the wind bloweth in every country.

61 And the clouds, when God commandeth them to go over the whole world, do that which is commanded them.

C.—That some deluded women, led by various desires, should think thus to honour that impure deity, by an action which some modern casuists have not scrupled to rank among simple venial sins, cannot excite our astonishment so much, when we reflect on the tenets of the ancient Gnostics, and of Antinomians at the present day, whom J. Wesley, the late founder of the Methodists, applauded and followed even in the meridian of the gospel light! See Deut. xvi. 22. and xxiii. 17. Yet these men read and perhaps distributed the Bible!—Stones. Lit. "bones;" (H.) or the refuse of what had been crushed, (παραπότα. Athen. ii. 14.) to excite impure love. M. T.—Theocritus (Phar.) represents a witch doing the like; and Sanchez tells us, that some were taken in the fact in Spain. C.—Fumigation, used by the Babylonians after marriage, (Herod. i. 198.) may be insinuated. Grotius.

VER. 45. To be. Is. xlv. 14. Horace (i. Sat. 8.) introduces Priapus thus ridiculously explaining his origin; "I was formerly an useless piece of a fig-tree; when the workman, not knowing whether to make a bench or a Priapus, chose rather that I should be a god. Hence I am a god, the greatest terror of thieves and birds." Sept. "they are nothing but what the workmen wish to form." H.

VER. 51. Them. Gr. has simply, (C.) "Who then knows not that they are no gods?" H.

VER. 53. Daws. They have no greater influence (C.) than jackdaws.

VER. 58. Gods. Sept. repeat this after satisfied, or "will use;" and here add, "or a pillar of wood in palaces, than," &c. H.

62 The fire also being sent from above to consume mountains, and woods, doth as it is commanded. But these neither in shew, nor in power, are alike to any one of them.

63 Wherefore it is neither to be thought, nor to be said, that they are gods: since they are neither able to judge causes, nor to do any good to men.

64 Knowing, therefore, that they are not gods, fear them not.

65 For neither can they curse kings, nor bless them.

66 Neither do they shew signs in the heaven to the nations, nor shine as the sun, nor give light as the moon.

67 Beasts are better than they, which can fly under a covert, and help themselves.

VER. 59. Obedient to God. They were appointed to mark out the seasons, &c. (Gen. i. 11.) and if any creature were worthy of adoration, they would. C.—The Babylonians adored them as well as statues, and therefore their proper destination is specified here and by Moses.

VER. 69. Scarecrow. Priapus answered this glorious purpose. v. 45. H.—When birds become accustomed to such things, they mind them not. C.

68 Therefore there is no manner of appearance that they are gods: so fear them not.

69 For as a scarecrow in a garden of cucumbers keepeth nothing, so are their gods of wood, and of silver, and laid over with gold.

70 They are no better than a white thorn in a garden, upon which every bird sitteth. In like manner also their gods of wood, and laid over with gold, and with silver, are like to a dead body cast forth in the dark.

71 By the purple also and the scarlet which are moth-eaten upon them, you shall know that they are not gods. And they themselves at last are consumed, and shall be a reproach in the country.

72 Better, therefore, is the just man that hath no idols: for he shall be far from reproach.

VER. 71. Scarlet. Gr. "marble" coloured wood. Grotius would substitute μαργαρον, "a pearl," which decays through age. C.—Gr. also, "From the purple, which also shines upon them rotting, you shall," &c. μαργαρον means, "of marble or shining."

VER. 72. Reproach, provided he also avoid the idols of the mind and of the heart. H.

THE PROPHECY OF EZECHIEL.

EZECHIEL, whose name signifies the strength of God, was of the priestly race, and of the number of the captives that were carried away to Babylon with king Joachin. He was cotemporary with Jeremias, and prophesied to the same effect in Babylon as Jeremias did in Jerusalem; and is said to have ended his days in like manner, by martyrdom. Ch.—He strove to comfort the captives, who began to repine that they had listened too readily to Jeremias, exhorting them to submit to the king of Babylon. Some think that part of his prophecies is lost, as Josephus mentions two books: but the nine last chapters, regarding the new city and temple, might form the second division. The Jews hesitated whether to allow his works to be canonical, as they seemed to differ from Moses, and from the dimensions given of Solomon's temple. But the same God might surely suggest some improvements, and the morality of the prophet is most excellent. C.—His style may be compared to that of Homer (Grot.) and Alcæus. Many have thought that (C.) Pythagoras was his disciple; (Eus. prep. xiii.) yet the latter seems to have lived after the prophet, who was led into captivity with Jeconias, A. 3410, and prophesied twenty years. He dates from this period, (C.) and from the renewal of the covenant under Josias, (C. i. 1. H.) when the captivity was first announced. W.—The Jews allowed none to read the first and the nine (H.) last chapters, nor the beginning of Gen. nor the Cant. before they were thirty years old; and they never attempted to explain the vision nor the building of the temple, supposing it to be above the power of man. St. Jerom.

CHAP. I.

The time of Ezekiel's prophecy: he sees a glorious vision.

NOW it came to pass in the thirtieth year, *in the fourth month, on the fifth day of the month, when I was in the midst of the captives, ^bby the river Chobar, the heavens were opened, and I saw the visions of God.

2 On the fifth day of the month, the same was the fifth year of the captivity of king Joachin,

3 The word of the Lord came to Ezekiel, the priest, the son of Buzi, in the land of the Chaldeans, by the CHAP. I. VER. 1. And is either superfluous, as at the beginning of most of the sacred books, (C.) or shews the connection of what is written with what the prophet saw or heard internally. S. Aug. in Ps. iv. S. Greg. W.—Year: either of the age of Ezekiel, or (as others will have it) from the solemn covenant made in the eighteenth year of Josias; (4 K. xxiii. Ch. W. C.) or he alludes to the era of Nabopolassar, used at Babylon, (M.) or to the last jubilee. See Sanct. The thirtieth year, from the prediction of Holda to Josias, (H.) concurs with the fifth of the prophet's captivity. C. xvii. 12. Usber, A. 3410.—Fourth of the sacred year, (C.) on Friday, 24th July, (Usher) or in Jan. S. Jer.—Chobar, or Aboras, which runs westward into the Euphrates, above Thapsacus. Strabo.—The captives were in those parts, though not present. C.—Opened, in spirit, (H.) by faith. S. Jerom.—The prophet fell prostrate. C. ii. 1. H.

VER. 2. Captivity. Lit. "transmigration," (H.) which is more agreeable to the Heb. &c. Jeconias delivered himself up. Six years after this, Sedecias was taken. S. Jerom.

VER. 3. Hand; power, energy of the Holy Spirit. Theod.

VER. 4. North, denoting the invasion of Judea by the Chaldeans. Is. xiv. 31. Sanct.—The Jews thought the following vision inexplicable, and deliberated about rejecting the book, when Ananias offered to answer every difficulty. They river Chobar: and the hand of the Lord was there upon him.

4 And I saw, and behold a whirlwind came out of the north: and a great cloud, and a fire infolding it, and brightness was about it: and out of the midst thereof, that is, out of the midst of the fire, as it were the resemblance of amber:

5 And in the midst thereof the likeness of four living creatures: and this was their appearance: there was the likeness of a man in them.

assigned him three hundred barrels of oil to light his lamp, while he performed the task. Rabbins.—This hyperbole shews their idea of its obscurity. C.—Amber (electri) a compound of four parts of gold and one of silver, (Pliny xxxiii. 4.) more precious than either. S. Jer.—It may also mean orichalcum, or a mixture of gold and brass, (Bochart, anim. 2 b. vi. 18.) which was also preferred before gold alone, as it had the hardness of brass. Lucret. Serv. in xii. Æneid.

alboque orichalcho

Circumdat lorica humeri.

—Two vessels are mentioned, probably of this composition. 1 Esd. viii. 27. C.

VER. 5. Living creatures. Cherubims, (as appears from Eccles. xlix. 10.) represented to the prophet under these mysterious shapes, as supporting the throne of God, and as it were drawing his chariot. All this chapter appeared so obscure and full of mysteries to the ancient Hebrews, that, as we learn from S. Jerom. (ep. ad Paulin.) they suffered none to read it before they were thirty years old. Ch.—The pagans had many such compound figures as are here represented. Parkhurst, p. 411. H.—Sanchoniathon (ap. Eus. prep. 2.) seems to have borrowed his description from this place.—In them. They stood upright, and had some parts of the human figure. C.—Indeed, it seems to have been predominant. H.

6 Every one had four faces, and every one four wings

7 Their feet were straight feet, and the sole of their foot was like the sole of a calf's foot, and they sparkled like the appearance of glowing brass.

8 And they had the hands of a man under their wings on their four sides: and they had faces, and wings on the four sides.

9 And the wings of one were joined to the wings of another. They turned not when they went: but every one went straight forward.

10 And as for the likeness of their faces: there was the face of a man, and the face of a lion, on the right side of all the four: and the face of an ox, on the left side of all the four: and the face of an eagle over all the four.

11 And their faces, and their wings, were stretched upward: two wings of every one were joined, and two covered their bodies:

12 And every one of them went straight forward: whither the impulse of the spirit was to go, thither they went: and they turned not when they went.

13 And as for the likeness of the living creatures, their appearance was like that of burning coals of fire, and like the appearance of lamps. This was the vision running to and fro in the midst of the living creatures, a bright fire, and lightning going forth from the fire.

14 And the living creatures ran, and returned like flashes of lightning.

15 Now, as I beheld the living creatures, there appeared upon the earth by the living creatures one wheel with four faces.

16 And the appearance of the wheels, and the work of them, was like the appearance of the sea: and the four had all one likeness: and their appearance and their work was as it were a wheel in the midst of a wheel.

17 When they went, they went by their four parts: and they turned not when they went.

18 The wheels had also a size, and a height, and a dreadful appearance: ^aand the whole body was full of eyes round about all the four.

19 And when the living creatures went, the wheels also went together by them: and when the living creatures were lifted up from the earth, the wheels also were lifted up with them.

20 Whithersoever the spirit went, thither as the spirit went the wheels also were lifted up withal, and followed it: for the spirit of life was in the wheels.

21 When those went these went, and when those stood these stood, and when those were lifted up from the earth, the wheels also were lifted up together, and followed them: for the spirit of life was in the wheels.

22 And over the heads of the living creatures was the likeness of the firmament, as the appearance of crystal, terrible to behold, and stretched out over their heads above.

23 And under the firmament were their wings straight, the one toward the other, every one with two wings covered his body, and the other was covered in like manner.

24 And I heard the noise of their wings, like the noise of many waters, as it were the voice of the most high God: when they walked, it was like the voice of a multitude, like the noise of an army, and when they stood, their wings were let down.

25 For when a voice came from above the firmament, that was over their heads, they stood, and let down their wings.

26 And above the firmament, that was over their heads, was the likeness of a throne, as the appearance of the sapphire-stone, and upon the likeness of the throne, was a likeness as of the appearance of a man above upon it.

27 And I saw as it were the resemblance of amber, as the appearance of fire within it round about: from his loins and upward, and from his loins downward, I saw as it were the resemblance of fire shining round about.

^a Infra x. 12.

VER. 6. Faces. This sometimes means shapes; and Pererius supposes that the animal had the head of a man, and the breast covered with lions' hair, the feet or round cloven hoofs of an ox, and the wings of an eagle. But it had rather four faces as well as wings, the faces of the man and lion being to the right, and the other two to the left; (C. T.) or the eagle was behind (H.) or above the head of the man, and the lion and ox at his right and left. Corn. a. laide. M.

VER. 7. Straight. Heb. "a straight foot." Prot. prefer "feet." H.—Of a calf. Aquila reads to the same import hagol, "round," instead of hegel, (H.) "a calf." Sym. has "winged feet," like Mercury. C.—Sept. omit this, says S. Jerom, though we have his version of Sym. as if it belonged to the Sept.; and it occurs in Grabe as genuine.—Brass. Sept. add, "and their feathers were very light." H.

VER. 8. Wings. Their arms were covered with feathers, and the hand appeared at the extremity; or they had four arms under the wings. C. x. 8. They all came from the shoulders, so as to correspond with the four faced animal, v. 6. C.—Others believe that each face had four wings, so that the animal would have sixteen. Maldonat.—In Is. ix. 2. the cherub has six wings. The form was variable, as there was nothing in nature similar. They were perhaps designed to represent the eternity and dominion of God over the whole creation. v. 28. H.

VER. 9. Another. Two above were extended so as to support the throne, which seemed to rest on these eight wings connected together. The others were joined so as perfectly to cover what was below the breast. C.—Sept. "And the wings of those four were touching each other, and their faces (Calmet reads with Chal. and Heb. wings) turned not," &c. H.—The wings did not imitate those of birds, going to and fro, but were constantly in the same direction; or the animals did not change their respective situations: as they had four faces, there was always one of them turned to the opposite quarters of the world. C.—They turned not about, (v. 12.) but having faces on every side, were ready to go any way. W.

VER. 10. Over. This is not specified in Heb. Chal. Sept. or S. Jer. C.—"The face of an eagle for all the four." It must have been above or behind the man, as the situation of the other two faces is here determined. v. 6. H.

VER. 11. Faces. Sept. "wings:" and indeed it does not appear how their faces were stretched upwards, (C.) unless they looked earnestly that way; though, out of respect, they covered their faces with two wings.

VER. 14. Flashes. Heb. Bazak. H.—Theodotion retains the original. His version seems to have been inserted in the Sept. (C.) who omitted this verse, as seeming to contradict v. 9. and 12. S. Jer.—Yet it only signifies that the motion was quick as lightning, though they did not alter their situation with respect to each other.

VER. 15. Faces. One wheel crossed another at right angles, so that it was ready to move in any direction, (v. 17. C.) like a globe. H.

VER. 16. Sea: sky blue. Heb. "Tharsis," which Sym. renders "the hyacinth;" a precious stone. Ex. xxviii. 20. C.—Midst. The evangelists and New Testament agree perfectly with the Old. S. Greg. hom. vi. W.

VER. 17. Parts. When they went, they went by their four parts. That is, indifferently to any of their sides, either forward or backward, to the right or to the left. Ch.—Their motion was connected with the chariot. v. 20. C.

VER. 18. Eyes, like Argus, or the tail of a peacock. C.—The eye is sometimes put for a colour. Grot.

VER. 20. Life. They were moved like the rest by the whirlwind, or by living creatures. They seemed to be animated, as Homer describes Vulcan's tripods.

VER. 22. Crystal, or sapphire. v. 26. C. x. 1. This shining sky was like the footstool of the Lord, and rested on eight wings. v. 9, 23.

VER. 24. Voice. The motion of the wings made a noise like a torrent, or thunder.—God. Heb. "self-sufficient," as Sept. &c. render it, keavov. C.—Prot. "like the voice of the Almighty." H.—Down; or rather ceased to make such a noise. v. 25. C.

VER. 26. Upon it. This might be omitted, as the Vulg. has only desuper, above. H.—God was pleased to assume the shape of man, seated on the throne.

VER. 27. Amber, or orichalcum. v. 4.

VER. 28. Rainbow, encircling the sky blue throne and the flame. Nothing could be more dazzling, nor better manifest the subjection of man. C.—The prophet saw four visions at once; the whirlwind, (v. 4.) the living creatures.

28 As the appearance of the rainbow when it is in a cloud on a rainy day: this was the appearance of the brightness round about.

CHAP. II.

The prophet receives his commission.

THIS "was the vision of the likeness of the glory of the Lord. And I saw, and I fell upon my face, and I heard the voice of one that spoke. And he said to me: Son of man, stand upon thy feet, and I will speak to thee.

2 And the spirit entered into me after that he spoke to me, and he set me upon my feet: and I heard him speaking to me,

3 And saying: Son of man, I send thee to the children of Israel, to a rebellious people, that hath revolted from me: they, and their fathers, have transgressed my covenant even unto this day.

4 And they to whom I send thee are children of a hard face, and of an obstinate heart: and thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord God:

5 If so be they at least will hear, and if so be they will forbear, for they are a provoking house: and they shall know that there hath been a prophet in the midst of them.

6 And thou, O son of man, fear not, neither be thou afraid of their words: for thou art among unbelievers and destroyers, and thou dwellest with scorpions. Fear not their words, neither be thou dismayed at their looks: for they are a provoking house.

7 And thou shalt speak my words to them, if perhaps they will hear, and forbear: for they provoke me to anger.

8 But thou, O son of man, hear all that I say to thee: and do not thou provoke me, as that house provoketh me: open thy mouth, and eat what I give thee.

9 And I looked, and behold, a hand was sent to me, wherein was a book rolled up: and he spread it before me, and it was written within and without: and there were written in it lamentations, and canticles, and woe.

CHAP. III.

The prophet eats the book, and receives further instructions: the office of a watchman.

AND "he said to me: Son of man, eat all that thou shalt find: eat this book, and go speak to the children of Israel.

The wisdom of Providence is denoted by the name of the cherubim, the connection of causes by the four wheels, &c. M.—God appears in his chariot going to war. He denounces vengeance on the guilty. C. ii. and xliii. See Corn. a Lapide. H.

CHAP. II. VER. 1. Face, to adore God. M.—Son of man. Our Saviour, out of humility, takes this title, which no other gave him; as the angel does commonly to this prophet, who was his figure: few else have received it, (Dan. viii. 17.) but the reason is not known. W.—God here teaches Ezechiel not to boast of the honour shewn to him, since he must always remember that he is but a feeble mortal. C.

VER. 3. Israel. His commission was chiefly to them. C.

VER. 5. Forbear to sin. H.—He thus insinuates free-will. S. Jer.—If they refuse to hear my prophet, they will at least perceive that they are inexcusable. C.

VER. 6. Scorpions. This people is no less destructive (H.) and hardened. Ps. cxvii. 12.—For might be better rendered, "though." C.

VER. 8. Eat. "If we do not eat the open book, we cannot teach." S. Jer.

2 And I opened my mouth, and he caused me to eat that book:

3 And he said to me: Son of man, thy belly shall eat, and thy bowels shall be filled with this book, which I give thee. ^aAnd I did eat it: and it was sweet as honey in my mouth.

4 And he said to me: Son of man, go to the house of Israel, and thou shalt speak my words to them.

5 For thou art not sent to a people of a profound speech, and of an unknown tongue, but to the house of Israel:

6 Nor to many nations of a strange speech, and of an unknown tongue, whose words thou canst not understand: and if thou wert sent to them, they would hearken to thee.

7 But the house of Israel will not hearken to thee: because they will not hearken to me: for all the house of Israel are of a hard forehead, and an obstinate heart.

8 Behold I have made thy face stronger than their faces, and thy forehead harder than their foreheads.

9 I have made thy face like an adamant and like flint: fear them not, neither be thou dismayed at their presence: for they are a provoking house.

10 And he said to me: Son of man, receive in thy heart, and hear with thy ears, all the words that I speak to thee:

11 And go get thee into them of the captivity, to the children of thy people, and thou shalt speak to them, and shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord: If so be they will hear, and will forbear.

12 And the spirit took me up, and I heard behind me the voice of a great commotion, saying: Blessed be the glory of the Lord, from his place.

13 And the noise of the wings of the living creatures striking one against another, and the noise of the wheels following the living creatures, and the noise of a great commotion.

14 The spirit also lifted me, and took me up: and I went away in bitterness, in the indignation of my spirit: for the hand of the Lord was with me, strengthening me.

15 And I came to them of the captivity, to the heap of new corn, to them that dwelt by the river Chobar, and I sat where they sat: and I remained there seven days mourning in the midst of them.

of the penitent, of the blessed, and of the damned. W.—The canticles were of a mournful nature, and the prophet had sorrows to announce. C.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. Eat this book, and go speak to the children of Israel. By this eating of the book, was signified the diligent attention and affection with which we are to receive and embrace the word of God; and to let it, as it were, sink into our interior by devout meditation. Ch.—The revelation came from God. v. 10. W.

VER. 3. Mouth. I readily accepted the commission, but soon found the difficulties to which it would expose me. v. 12. Jer. xv. 16. Apoc. x. 10.

VER. 6. Unknown. Heb. "heavy." C.—Prot. "hard." H.—It is not above thy strength. Deut. xxx. 12.—To thee. He insinuates that the Gentiles would obey the apostles. S. Jer.—But the time was not yet come. C.—From this text and Mat. xi. 21. it appears that "the same grace" is accepted by some and rejected by others, as "more grace is added to the former, which was sufficient before, and by this . . . is made effectual" through God's mercy. Rom. ix. W.—Those who reject the first grace, can blame only themselves, if they receive no more. The same grace falling on a heart better prepared by God, like seed on good soil, is more fruitful.

VER. 7. Hard. Lit. "rubbed" like a stone, or brass; attritâ. H.—God's ambassadors (Eph. vi. 20. C.) must do their utmost. H.—The success must not puff them up, nor the failure too much depress them, as all regards God, (Mat. x. 40.) who will know how to make things conduce to his own glory. They

16 And at the end of seven days the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

17 "Son of man, I have made thee a watchman to the house of Israel: and thou shalt hear the word out of my mouth, and shalt tell it them from me.

18 If, when I say to the wicked, Thou shalt surely die: thou declare it not to him, nor speak to him, that he may be converted from his wicked way, and live: the same wicked man shall die in his iniquity, but I will require his blood at thy hand.

19 But if thou give warning to the wicked, and he be not converted from his wickedness, and from his evil way: he indeed shall die in his iniquity, but thou hast delivered thy soul.

20 Moreover, if the just man shall turn away from his justice, and shall commit iniquity: I will lay a stumbling-block before him, he shall die, because thou hast not given him warning: he shall die in his sin, and his justices, which he hath done, shall not be remembered: but I will require his blood at thy hand.

21 But if thou warn the just man, that the just may not sin, and he doth not sin: living he shall live, because thou hast warned him, and thou hast delivered thy soul.

22 And the hand of the Lord was upon me, and he said to me: Rise, and go forth into the plain, and there I will speak to thee.

23 And I rose up, and went forth into the plain: and behold the glory of the Lord stood there, like the glory which I saw by the river Chobar: and I fell upon my face.

must only bewail the blindness of sinners. C.—The care of them, and not the cure, will be required at their hands. v. 19. H.

VER. 8. Harder. If they will not blush, thou shalt not be ashamed to lay their disorders before their eyes, though they be such as ought not to be mentioned, as becomes saints. H. See C. xvi. and xxii. C.

VER. 12. Spirit; wind (Hugo) or angel, took me through the air; (Prado.) or, I went willingly. S. Jer. Commotion, like an earthquake, (Heb. Sept.) occasioned by the motion of the chariot, or the voice of the cherubin. v. 13.

VER. 14. Spirit, resolved to rebuke (C) sinners. Sept. "the spirit of the Lord also lifted me . . . and I went aloft (like a meteor; peruipus) by the impulse of my spirit; for the hand of the Lord upon me was strong; and I went aloft, to the captivity, and passed through them . . . conversing in the midst of them." H.

VER. 15. The heap of new corn. It was the name of a place; in Hebrew, Tilhil, (Ch.) as the Chal. leaves it (M) with the three Greek interpreters. C.—Til means "a heap," and ahil "new corn." H.—There was no new wheat in the fourth month, but rather in May or June. C. i. l. Ptolemy places Thelda near the Chaboras. Mourning; or Prot. "astonished," like Job's friends, for people dead in sin. H.—Many suppose that he never spoke. Yet this is not certain, (v. 11. C.) though probable from v. 16. H.

VER. 17. Watchman: the usual title of those placed over others. C. xxxiii. 2. Is xxi. 6. Let none perish through thy neglect. C.—"He (the pastor) kills the man whom he delivers up to death by silence." S. Greg. hom. xi. 2.

VER. 20. Iniquity, for want of thy instruction; (H.) or, if thou neglect to reclaim him, (C.) and he perish, or owe his conversion to another, when duty requires thee to take care of him, thou shalt answer for the possible bad consequences. Thy sin is great, whatever become of him. But if he be damned, though he must blame himself chiefly, yet the blood of his soul shall cry for vengeance more than Abel's. H.—Before him, taking away my grace in punishment of his revolt. W.—If thou neglect to attempt reclaiming him, thou shalt perish with him; (S. Greg.) or if he be exposed to trial, and thou abandon him, (Vat.) or if thou neglect to husband well the precious moments, when I open his eyes, and fill him with apprehensions of his dangerous state, I will require, &c. Orig. S. Jer.—Remembered. Ingratitude causes the fruits of virtue to decay, and former crimes to revive, in some sense. S. Tho. iii. p. q. 88. a. 1. Mat. v. 26. C.

VER. 21. Warn. It is the duty of a pastor to warn the just as well as sinners. W.—It will not suffice to do this publicly: sometimes we must go from house to house, like S. Paul, and compel those who are in the hedges to enter the marriage feast, by the most persuasive arguments. H.

25 And thou, O son of man, behold they shall put bands upon thee, and they shall bind thee with them: and thou shalt not go forth from the midst of them.

26 And I will make thy tongue stick fast to the roof of thy mouth, and thou shalt be dumb, and not as a man that reproveth: because they are a provoking house.

27 But when I shall speak to thee, I will open thy mouth, and thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord God: He that heareth, let him hear: and he that forbeareth, let him forbear: for they are a provoking house.

CHAP. IV.

A prophetic description of the siege of Jerusalem, and the famine that shall reign there.

AND thou, O son of man, take thee a tile, and lay it before thee, and draw upon it the plan of the city of Jerusalem.

2 And lay siege against it, and build forts, and cast up a mount, and set a camp against it, and place battering rams round about it.

3 And take unto thee an iron pan, and set it for a wall of iron between thee and the city: and set thy face resolutely against it, and it shall be besieged, and thou shalt lay siege against it: it is a sign to the house of Israel.

4 And thou shalt sleep upon thy left side, and shalt lay the iniquities of the house of Israel upon it, according to the number of the days that thou shalt sleep upon it, and thou shalt take upon thee their iniquity.

5 And I have laid upon thee the years of their iniquity, according to the number of the days, three hundred and ninety days; and thou shalt bear the iniquity of the house of Israel.

* A. M. 3409.

VER. 25. Bands. It is uncertain whether by his order, or they supposed he was deranged, as our Saviour's brethren meant to treat him. Mar. iii. 21. The Chal. explains it figuratively of God's order, attaching the prophet to his service. C.—But real chains would more forcibly shew the future captivity of Juda (H.) which the prophet declared both by words and actions. C.

VER. 26. House. "When there is a multitude of sins, (or sinners; peccatorum) the offenders are unworthy of being corrected by the Lord." S. Jer.—The prophet's silence might suffice to admonish them. C.—He heard the Lord's commands to C. xi. 24. before he spoke to the people. M.

VER. 27. Forbeareth. Sept. "disbelieveth, let him disbelieve." So we read, He that is unjust, let him be unjust still; (Apoc. xxi. 11.) which denotes the most desperate condition. H.—Aquila (2 edit.) has, "he who abandons, shall be abandoned." S. Jer.—The man who makes good use of grace shall receive more; but he who despises the offers of God, shall be justly deprived of them in his greatest need. C.

CHAP. IV. VER. 1. Tile, pretty large. C.—Those of Italy were two feet long and one broad. Pallad.—This might be soft clay; (Grot. M.) or the siege might be marked out upon it with chalk or a sharp stile. C.

VER. 2. Cast up. The ditch would be about three feet deep, and the earth being thrown up, people might approach the town with less danger. W.—The besieged were thus also prevented from going out. 4 K. xxv. 1. Forts or towers were erected to overlook and clear the walls.—Rams. This is the first time we find them mentioned. Homer is silent about them; (C.) and the ancient sieges lasted so long, because people had not found out the art of demolishing the walls. Diod. ii.

VER. 3. Pan, or plate, on which bread was usually baked. This was to represent the walls of the city. C.

VER. 4. Sleep. Heb. "lie down." M.—He eat at intervals. C.—Iniquities, or punishments. H.

VER. 5. Three, &c. S. Jerom says some "Vulgate," (H.) Latin, (C.) or rather incorrect Greek (H.) copies read 100, others 150. See Origen, &c. C.—The Alex. copy has the former, (H.) the Rom. edit the latter number; and is followed by Theodoret and Maldonat. C.—But the more accurate Sept. agrees with the Heb. &c. The captivity of Israel must be dated from Phacee, (4 K. xv. 29.) to the end of the reign of Darius Memnon, who espoused Esther, and granted liberty "to all the Jews;" or rather from Manahem, (4 K. xv. 19.) to the 28th of the same king Assuerus. Thus God's "grace, we think, and we may so speak without arrogance, has enabled us to explain this difficulty, which no other has done." S. Jer.—Many confound the duration of the iniquity of Israel with that

6 And when thou hast accomplished this, thou shalt sleep again upon thy right side: and *thou shalt take upon thee the iniquity of the house of Juda forty days: a day for a year, yea, a day for a year I have appointed to thee.^b

7 And thou shalt turn thy face to the siege of Jerusalem, and thy arm shall be stretched out: and thou shalt prophesy against it.

8 Behold I have encompassed thee with bands: and thou shalt not turn thyself from one side to the other, till thou hast ended the days of thy siege.

9 And take to thee wheat and barley, and beans, and lentils, and millet, and fitches: and put them in one vessel, and make thee bread thereof, according to the number of the days that thou shalt lie upon thy side: three hundred and ninety days shalt thou eat thereof.

10 And thy meat that thou shalt eat, shall be in weight twenty staters a-day: from time to time thou shalt eat it.

11 And thou shalt drink water by measure, the sixth part of a hin: from time to time thou shalt drink it.

12 And thou shalt eat it as barley-bread baked under the ashes: and thou shalt cover it, in their sight, with the dung that cometh out of a man.

13 And the Lord said: So shall the children of Israel *eat their bread, all filthy, among the nations whither I will cast them out.

14 And I said: Ah, ah, ah, O Lord God, behold my soul hath not been defiled, and from my infancy even till now, I have not eaten any thing that died of itself, of Juda, forming 430 years; and they explain it of the time during which the nation had perverted. But this seems unnatural. We may rather conclude, that the prophet speaks of a separate punishment, and dates from the destruction of Samaria and of Jerusalem. The former city was taken A. 8283. If we add 390 years, we shall find A. 3673 the very year when Alexander overcame Darius, and soon after granted the Jews full liberty to return, or live according to their own laws. This he granted to those in Babylon, and to the Israelites (C.) in Media. Jos. Ant. xi. ult. & c. Ap. i.—Philadelphus afterwards liberated many in Egypt, (Jos. Ant. xii. 2.) as Osee (xi. 11.) had foretold. The chastisement of Juda must be dated from the destruction of Jerusalem under Sedecias, till Darius, the Mede, favoured the Jews about forty years afterwards. C.—S. Jerom only allows forty years to have elapsed from the first of Jehonias till the first of Cyrus. The want of an exact chronology gives rise to many such difficulties. H.—It is very hard to explain how the ten tribes were 390 and the two tribes 40 years in captivity, as it is certain that the latter were seventy years banished from their own country. W.—Perhaps during the last thirty their condition was greatly ameliorated, after the decree of Cyrus, though the liberation was only perfect under Hystaspes and Esther. H.—The iniquity of Israel, from Solomon to Salmanasar, lasted 390 years; and that of Juda, under the reign of Manasses, was most abominable for the space of forty years; (Tournefine) or it continued so long from the 18th of Josias till the 4th, after the city was destroyed, and the land became a desert. Usher A. 3380 to 3420.—But how shall the reign of the virtuous Josias be included in this period? H.—The action of the prophet lying 430 days, denoted the length of the siege of Jerusalem, during which extreme scarcity should be felt, and also the captivity of the people. Some have thought that he could not remain 390 days on one side, and that all passed in spirit. But what impression would that make upon the people? He was chained down, (C.) to represent their miserable condition. H.—Prædo saw a fool who lay tied in one posture for above fifteen years. C.—The remaining so long in one posture must have been painful to the prophet. T.

VER. 7. Siege, which shall be most terrible; (H.) 390 days; the pillage shall last other forty. T.—So many years have the people transgressed.—Out. Heb. "naked." Thus various barbarians fight.—Prophesy, not by words, (C. viii. 26.) but by actions. M.

VER. 10. Statens, or sicles, each being equal to 9 dwt. 2.57 gr. Eng. The hin contained 1 gal. 2 pints. Arbuthnot. H.—He had an allowance of ten ounces a-day. C. T.

VER. 12. Barley, the worst or usual food of the poor. H.—Ashes, to denote hurry. C.—Dung with hot ashes, (H.) formed of dry excrements. C.—That of oxen is still used in Egypt, (Val. ep. xi.) and in some parts of England, by the poor people. Hooke.—This was more tolerable, (C.) and God agrees to substitute it. v. 15. Heb. "Thou shalt eat it as barley cakes, and shalt bake." (Prot.) or "hide it," &c. Sept. H.—"The law itself, which the Jews read and do not or was torn by beasts, and no unclean flesh hath entered into my mouth.

15 And he said to me: Behold I have given thee neat's dung for man's dung, and thou shalt make thy bread therewith.

16 And he said to me: Son of man: *Behold I will break in pieces the staff of bread in Jerusalem: and they shall eat bread by weight, and with care: and they shall drink water by measure, and in distress.

17 So that when bread and water fail, every man may fall against his brother, and they may pine away in their iniquities.

CHAP. V.

The judgments of God upon the Jews are foreseen under the type of the prophet's hair.

AND *thou, son of man, take thee a sharp knife, that shaveth the hair, and cause it to pass over thy head, and over thy beard; and take thee a balance to weigh in, and divide the hair.

2 A third part thou shalt burn with fire in the midst of the city, according to the fulfilling of the days of the siege; and thou shalt take a third part, and cut it in pieces with the knife all round about; and the other third part thou shalt scatter in the wind, and I will draw out the sword after them.

3 And thou shalt take thereof a small number; and thou shalt bind them in the skirt of thy cloak.

4 And thou shalt take of them again, and shalt cast them in the midst of the fire, and shalt burn them with fire; and out of it shall come forth a fire into all the house of Israel.

understand, is this ember cake covered with human dung." Phil. iii. 8.—"They adore not idols, but do all for the belly and for earthly goods." S. Jer.

VER. 13. Filthy. Israel was less careful to avoid uncleanness than Juda. Hence the prophet eats only during 390 days. Osee ix. 3. C.—While the city was pillaged for forty days, the prisoners would procure better food. v. 7. H.

VER. 14. Ah. He makes the same exclamation as Jeremias. i. 6. Heb. aha. Theodot. "Oh!" Sept. and Sym. "by no means." H.—God forbid. Excrements made a person legally unclean. Deut. xxiii. 12. C.

VER. 15. Neats, or "oxen;" dung. Prot. "cow's dung." H.—God allows him to bake his bread under such ashes. C.—So great is his condescension towards his friends! T.

VER. 16. Staff. As this supports the weak, so bread nourishes all men, (W.) particularly the bread of life. S. Jer.—Very little food, (C.) and that of a nauseous kind, (H.) would be found during the siege. C.

VER. 17. When. Prot. "they may want bread and water, and be astonished one with another, and consume away for their iniquity." H.

CHAP. V. VER. 1. That. Heb. "the scissors of clippers." The same term is used for clipping sheep as for cutting hair. Shaving was not probably then in use.—Beard, as in mourning or for ignominy. 2 K. x. 4. Jer. xlvii. 5.—Balance, to shew that God does nothing unjustly. C.—The hair. Lit. "them." H.—This was to be done before he lay down. He was to burn, cut, and divide the hair as the siege represented on the tile advanced, to denote that some should perish in the city by famine, others by the sword, while a few should be scattered among the nations: yet of these a small number should be gathered round Godelias, and perish with him, or in Egypt, &c. and the rest be thence led captive to Babylon.

VER. 2. Third. Sept. and Theod. read "a fourth," as also v. 12. (C.) thus assigning half to be burnt by death (pestilence) and famine. The other half of the people falls a prey to the sword and to captivity. The pestilence, famine, and the sword, were the three usual scourges left to David's choice, (2 K. xxiv.) which here destroy each a fourth part, while the rest become captives. Yet even of this third or fourth part, many engage in civil broils, and perish. S. Jerom hints that the Sept. is interpolated from Theodotion, v. 12, and that their version only comprised the pentateuch. But the other books went at least under the same title; and there must be some mistake in the words asterisked, since they occur in the Heb. Vulg. &c. third being only substituted for fourth: "And a fourth part of thee shall fall by the sword." The Heb. is rather less degrading to the Jews, as there would be thus at most one-third preserved, instead of a part only of one-fourth. See Deut. xxvii. 4. Jer. lii. 28.—Take. Sept. add here, "a fourth part; and shalt burn it in the midst of it; and a fourth thou shalt cut" &c. H.—He was thus to deal with a part of the hair during 390 days, (M.) or at the end of them. R. Salom.—Round, in the cities near Jerusalem, (W.) or round the picture of it. C. iv. 1.

5 Thus saith the Lord God: This is Jerusalem; I have set her in the midst of the nations, and the countries round about her.

6 And she hath despised my judgments, so as to be more wicked than the Gentiles; and my commandments, more than the countries that are round about her; for they have cast off my judgments, and have not walked in my commandments.

7 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: Because you have surpassed the Gentiles that are round about you, and have not walked in my commandments, and have not kept my judgments, and have not done according to the judgments of the nations that are round about you:

8 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: Behold I come against thee, and I myself will execute judgments in the midst of thee in the sight of the Gentiles.

9 And I will do in thee that which I have not done: and the like to which I will do no more, because of all thy abominations.

10 Therefore, the fathers shall eat the sons in the midst of thee, and the sons shall eat their fathers: and I will execute judgments in thee, and I will scatter thy whole remnant into every wind.

11 Therefore, as I live, saith the Lord God: Because thou hast violated my sanctuary with all thy offences, and with all thy abominations: I will also break thee in pieces, and my eye shall not spare, and I will not have any pity.

12 A third part of thee shall die with the pestilence, and shall be consumed with famine in the midst of thee: and a third part of thee shall fall by the sword round about thee: and a third part of thee will I scatter into every wind, and I will draw out a sword after them.

13 *And I will accomplish my fury, and will cause my indignation to rest upon them, and I will be comforted; and they shall know, that I the Lord have spoken it in my zeal, when I shall have accomplished my indignation in them.

14 And I will make thee desolate, and a reproach among the nations that are round about thee, in the sight of every one that passeth by.

15 And thou shalt be a reproach, and a scoff, an example, and an astonishment amongst the nations that are round about thee, when I shall have executed judgments in thee in anger, and in indignation, and in wrathful rebukes.

17 And I will send in upon you famine, and evil beasts, unto utter destruction: and pestilence, and blood shall pass through thee, and I will bring in the sword upon thee. I, the Lord, have spoken it.

The punishment of Israel, for their idolatry: a remnant shall be blessed.

AND ^cthe word of the Lord came to me, saying:

2 Son of man, set thy face towards the mountains of Israel, and prophesy against them,

3 And say: ^dYe mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord God: Thus saith the Lord God to the mountains, and to the hills, and to the rocks, and the valleys: Behold, I will bring upon you the sword, and I will destroy your high places.

4 And I will throw down your altars, and your idols shall be broken in pieces: and I will cast down your slain before your idols.

5 And I will lay the dead carcasses of the children of Israel before your idols: and I will scatter your bones round about your altars,

6 In all your dwelling-places. The cities shall be laid waste, and the high places shall be thrown down, and destroyed, and your altars shall be abolished, and shall be broken in pieces; and your idols shall be no more, and your temples shall be destroyed, and your works shall be defaced.

7 And the slain shall fall in the midst of you; and you shall know that I am the Lord.

8 And I will leave in you some that shall escape the sword among the nations, when I shall have scattered you through the countries.

9 And they that are saved of you shall remember me amongst the nations to which they are carried captives: because I have broken their heart that was faithless, and revolted from me: and their eyes that went a fornicating after their idols: and they shall be displeased with themselves, because of the evils which they have committed in all their abominations.

10 And they shall know that I, the Lord, have not spoken in vain that I would do this evil to them.

CHAP. VIII.

The prophet sees, in a vision, the abominations committed in Jerusalem, which determine the Lord to spare them no longer.

AND *it came to pass in the sixth year, in the sixth month, in the fifth day of the month, as I sat in my house, and the ancients of Juda sat before me, that the hand of the Lord God fell there upon me.

2 And I saw, and behold a likeness as the appearance of fire: from the appearance of his loins, and downward, fire: and from his loins, and upward, as the appearance of brightness, as the appearance of amber.

3 ^b And the likeness of a hand was put forth, and took me by a lock of my head: and the spirit lifted me up between the earth and the heaven, and brought me in the vision of God into Jerusalem, near the inner gate, that looked towards the north, where was set the idol of jealousy to provoke to jealousy.

4 And behold the glory of the God of Israel was there, according to the vision which I had seen in the plain.

5 And he said to me: Son of man, lift up thy eyes towards the way of the north. And I lifted up my eyes towards the way of the north: and behold on the north side of the gate of the altar the idol of jealousy in the very entry.

6 And he said to me: Son of man, dost thou see, thinkest thou, what these are doing, the great abominations that the house of Israel committeth here, that I should depart far off from my sanctuary? and turn

W.—He was stationed in spirit at the northern gate leading to the court of the priests, and beheld the glory of God and the idol of jealousy. He saw the people, men and women, adoring idols, and priests worshipping the sun. C. ix. God orders the man clothed in linen to take coals from the cherubim, and sprinkle them through the city. The throne goes to receive the Lord. C. xi. Ezechiel prophesies against many, at the eastern gate; and God informs him that the former captives shall return, but that the wicked at Jerusalem shall perish. His chariot then rests on the mountain to the east of the city. Thus his reasons for punishing the people become evident.

thee yet again, and thou shalt see greater abominations.

7 And he brought me into the door of the court: and I saw, and behold a hole in the wall.

8 And he said to me: Son of man, dig in the wall. And when I had digged in the wall, behold a door.

9 And he said to me: Go in, and see the wicked abominations which they commit here.

10 And I went in and saw, and behold every form of creeping things, and of living creatures, the abomination, and all the idols of the house of Israel were painted on the wall all round about.

11 And seventy men of the ancients of the house of Israel, and Jezonias, the son of Saphan, stood in the midst of them, that stood before the pictures: and every one had a censer in his hand: and a cloud of smoke went up from the incense.

12 And he said to me: Surely thou seest, O son of man, what the ancients of the house of Israel do in the dark, every one in private in his chamber: for they say: The Lord seeth us not, the Lord hath forsaken the earth.

13 And he said to me: If thou turn thee again, thou shalt see greater abominations which these commit.

14 And he brought me in by the door of the gate of the Lord's house, which looked to the north: and behold women sat there mourning for Adonis.

15 And he said to me: Surely thou hast seen, O son of man: but turn thee again, and thou shalt see greater abominations than these.

16 And he brought me into the inner court of the house of the Lord: and behold at the door of the temple of the Lord, between the porch and the altar, were about five and twenty men, having their backs towards the temple of the Lord, and their faces to the east: and they adored towards the rising of the sun.

17 And he said to me: Surely thou hast seen, O son of man: Is this a light thing to the house of Juda, that they should commit these abominations which they have committed here: because they have filled the land with iniquity, and have turned to provoke me to anger? and behold they put a branch to their nose.

This idol, which the Egyptians called Osiris, was placed in a coffin, and bewailed till it was pretended he was come to life, when rejoicings took place. CHAP. IX.

All are ordered to be destroyed that are not marked in their foreheads. God will not be entreated for them.

AND ^ahe cried in my ears with a loud voice, saying: The visitations of the city are at hand, and every one hath a destroying weapon in his hand.

2 And behold six men came from the way of the upper gate, which looketh to the north: and each one had his weapon of destruction in his hand: and there was one man in the midst of them clothed with linen, with a writer's inkhorn at his reins: and they went in, and stood by the brazen altar.

3 And the glory of the Lord of Israel went up from the cherub, upon which he was, to the threshold of the house: and he called to the man that was clothed with linen, and had a writer's inkhorn at his loins.

4 And the Lord said to him: Go through the midst of the city, through the midst of Jerusalem: ^band mark Thau upon the foreheads of the men that sigh, and mourn for all the abominations that are committed in the midst thereof.

5 And to the others he said in my hearing: Go ye after him through the city, and strike: let not your eye spare, nor be ye moved with pity.

6 Utterly destroy old and young, maidens, children, and women: but upon whomsoever you shall see Thau, kill him not, and begin ye at my sanctuary. So they began at the ancient men, who were before the house.

7 And he said to them: Defile the house, and fill the courts with the slain: go ye forth. And they went forth, and slew them that were in the city.

8 And the slaughter being ended, I was left: and I fell upon my face, and crying, I said: Alas, alas, alas, O Lord God, wilt thou then destroy all the remnant of Israel, by pouring out thy fury upon Jerusalem?

9 And he said to me: The iniquity of the house of Israel, and of Juda, is exceedingly great, and the land is filled with blood, and the city is filled with perverseness: for they have said: The Lord hath forsaken the earth, and the Lord seeth not.

VER. 4. Mark Thau. Thau, or Tau, is the last letter in the Hebrew alphabet, and signifies a sign or a mark: which is the reason why some translators render this place set a mark, or mark a mark, without specifying what this mark was. But S. Jerom, and other interpreters, conclude it was the form of the letter thau, which, in the ancient Hebrew character, was the form of a cross. Ch.—Of this many inscriptions still extant bear witness. Montfaucon.—Some Rabbins allow that the last letter was used but in honour of "the law," Thorah. The cross is supposed to be the hieroglyphic of a future life, (Hist. Rufini. ii. 29.) and found frequently in the pictures or (H.) in the tables of Isia. But it rather represents a key. Soldiers who were acquitted received the letter T, and those who were sentenced to die had Θ, (C.) alluding to Θavatos, "death." H.—We may, however, suppose that if God designated any letter, it would be some letter of the Heb. alphabet, and accordingly the last had formerly the figure of †, x though this text may signify "a sign" in general. The virtuous would be discriminated from the guilty, as if they were marked. C.—The door-posts of the Hebrews were stained with blood, in Egypt, to shew that all should be redeemed by that of Christ; and here those who shall be saved, receive the mark of his cross. This sign has always been held in veneration among Christians, (W.) and used in conferring baptism, consecrating the blessed Eucharist, &c. S. Chrys. hom. lv. in Mat. and lxxxiv. in Jo. S. Fire is taken from the midst of the wheels under the cherubims, and scattered over the city. A description of the cherubims.

AND ^aI saw, and behold in the firmament that was over the heads of the cherubims, there appeared over them as it were the sapphire-stone, as the appearance of the likeness of a throne.

2 And he spoke to the man that was clothed with linen, and said: Go in between the wheels that are under the cherubims, and fill thy hand with the coals of fire that are between the cherubims, and pour them out upon the city. And he went in, in my sight:

3 And the cherubims stood on the right side of the house, when the man went in, and a cloud filled the inner court.

4 And the glory of the Lord was lifted up from above the cherub to the threshold of the house: and the house was filled with the cloud, and the court was filled with the brightness of the glory of the Lord.

5 And the sound of the wings of the cherubims was heard even to the outward court, as the voice of God Almighty speaking.

6 And when he had commanded the man that was clothed with linen, saying: Take fire from the midst of the wheels that are between the cherubims: he went in and stood beside the wheel.

7 And one cherub stretched out his arm from the midst of the cherubims to the fire that was between the cherubims: and he took, and put it into the hands of him that was clothed with linen: who took it and went forth.

8 And there appeared in the cherubims the likeness of a man's hand under their wings.

9 And I saw, and behold there were four wheels by the cherubims: one wheel by one cherub, and another wheel by another cherub: and the appearance of the wheels was to the sight like the chrysolite-stone:

12 And their whole body, and their necks, and their hands, and their wings, and the circles were full of eyes, round about the four wheels.

13 And these wheels he called voluble, in my hearing.

5 And the Spirit of the Lord fell upon me, and said to me: Speak: Thus saith the Lord: Thus have you spoken, O house of Israel, for I know the thoughts of your heart.

6 You have killed a great many in this city, and you have filled the streets thereof with the slain.

7 Therefore thus saith the Lord God: Your slain, whom you have laid in the midst thereof, they are the flesh, and this is the cauldron: and I will bring you forth out of the midst thereof.

I shall have dispersed them among the nations, and scattered them in the countries.

16 And I will leave a few men of them from the sword, and from the famine, and from the pestilence: that they may declare all their wicked deeds among the nations whither they shall go: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

17 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

18 Son of man, eat thy bread in trouble: and drink thy water in hurry and sorrow.

19 And say to the people of the land: Thus saith the Lord God to them that dwell in Jerusalem, in the land of Israel: They shall eat their bread in care, and drink their water in desolation: That the land may become desolate from the multitude that is therein, for the iniquity of all that dwell therein.

20 And the cities that are now inhabited, shall be laid waste, and the land shall be desolate: and you shall know that I am the Lord.

21 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

22 Son of man, what is this proverb that you have in the land of Israel? saying: The days shall be prolonged, and every vision shall fail.

23 Say to them, therefore: Thus saith the Lord God: I will make this proverb to cease, neither shall it be any more a common saying in Israel: and tell them that the days are at hand, and the effect of every vision.

24 For there shall be no more any vain visions, nor doubtful divination in the midst of the children of Israel.

25 For I the Lord will speak: and what word soever I shall speak, it shall come to pass, and shall not be prolonged any more: but in your days, ye provoking house, I will speak the word, and will do it, saith the Lord God.

26 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

27 Son of man, behold the house of Israel, they that say: The vision that this man seeth, is for many days to come: and this man prophesieth of times afar off.

28 Therefore say to them: Thus saith the Lord God: Not one word of mine shall be prolonged any more: the word that I shall speak shall be accomplished, saith the Lord God.

VER. 22. Proverb, or common saying. W.—Prolonged. They took occasion from God's long suffering to become more wicked, (C.) and even asserted that the prophets told nothing but lies, (Theod.) and spoke of events at a great distance, that they might not be detected. If what they announced came to pass, they attributed it to chance; (C.) if it did not, being only conditional, they ridiculed this idea as a mere subterfuge. H.—As the prophets had long before foretold the captivity, and it had not yet taken place, (W.) in general, though many were already in exile, (H.) they concluded that it would never be realized. Thus heretics deny the general judgment. 1 Pet. iii. W.—Every vision, on this head. v. 28. Many events were revealed that regarded the times of Christ. Dan. ix. &c. H.

CHAP. XIII. VER. 2. Heart; what pleases them, (H.) without being inspired. There were always such impostors. These deluded the people at Jerusalem, (C.) or at Babylon. v. 9. Sanct.—They might be distinguished by the sincere: yet caused irreparable injury to the ignorant people. H.

phets of Israel that prophesy: and thou shalt say to them that prophesy out of their own heart: Hear ye the word of the Lord:

3 Thus saith the Lord God: "Woe to the foolish prophets that follow their own spirit, and see nothing.

4 Thy prophets, O Israel, were like foxes in the deserts.

5 You have not gone up to face the enemy, nor have you set up a wall for the house of Israel, to stand in battle in the day of the Lord.

6 They see vain things, and they foretell lies, saying: The Lord saith: whereas the Lord hath not sent them: and they have persisted to confirm what they have said.

7 Have you not seen a vain vision, and spoken a lying divination: and you say: The Lord saith: whereas I have not spoken.

8 Therefore thus saith the Lord God: Because you have spoken vain things, and have seen lies: therefore, behold I come against you, saith the Lord God.

9 And my hand shall be upon the prophets that see vain things, and that divine lies: they shall not be in the counsel of my people, nor shall they be written in the writing of the house of Israel, neither shall they enter into the land of Israel: and you shall know that I am the Lord God.

10 Because they have deceived my people, saying: Peace, and there is no peace: and the people built up a wall, and they daubed it with dirt without straw.

11 Say to them that daub without tempering, that it shall fall: for there shall be an overflowing shower, and I will cause great hailstones to fall violently from above, and a stormy wind to throw it down.

12 Behold, when the wall is fallen, shall it not be said to you: Where is the daubing wherewith you have daubed it?

13 Therefore thus saith the Lord God: Lo, I will cause a stormy wind to break forth in my indignation, and there shall be an overflowing shower in my anger: and great hailstones in my wrath to consume.

14 And I will break down the wall that you have daubed with untempered mortar: and I will make it even with the ground, and the foundation thereof shall be laid bare: and it shall fall, and shall be consumed in the midst thereof: and you shall know that I am the Lord.

VER. 5. Enemy. You do not admonish sinners of their evil ways, nor strive to avert God's indignation, in imitation of true prophets, (Ex. xxxii. 10.) but rather undermine the wall like foxes.

VER. 9. Upon, to punish.—Counsel. They shall not be consulted, or have any credit.—Writing. They shall perish in the city, or in banishment. C.—Their works shall not be accounted canonical. Sixt. Bib. ii. 2.

VER. 10. Straw. Iniquity ruins my people, (C.) and these do not endeavour to reform their manners. H.—They ought to demolish such a work, and not daub it over. Theod.—One false prophet builds, and another strives to support his authority; (Jun.) or God has given the people his law, but these people corrupt it. S. Jer.—A wall built without proper mortar, will easily be washed down: so vain hopes of security, without amendment, deceive the people. W.

VER. 11. Hailstones. Lit. "stones," like those which fell on the enemies of Josue, (x. 11. H.) or thunderbolts. Grot. C.—Such will be the fate of all the buildings of the wicked. Mat. vii. 27. H.—None can resist the judgments of God, who will employ the Chaldeans. M.

mortar, and I will say to you: The wall is no more, and they that daub it are no more.

16 Even the prophets of Israel that prophesy to Jerusalem, and that see visions of peace for her: and there is no peace, saith the Lord God.

17 And thou, son of man, set thy face against the daughters of thy people that prophesy out of their own heart: and do thou prophesy against them.

18 And say: Thus saith the Lord God: Woe to them that sew cushions under every elbow: and make pillows for the heads of persons of every age to catch souls: and when they caught the souls of my people, they gave life to their souls.

19 And they violated me among my people, for a handful of barley, and a piece of bread, to kill souls which should not die, and to save souls alive which should not live, telling lies to my people that believe lies.

20 Therefore thus saith the Lord God: Behold I declare against your cushions, wherewith you catch flying souls: and I will tear them off from your arms; and I will let go the souls that you catch, the souls that should fly.

21 And I will tear your pillows, and will deliver my people out of your hand, neither shall they be any more in your hands to be a prey: and you shall know that I am the Lord.

22 Because with lies you have made the heart of the just to mourn, whom I have not made sorrowful; and have strengthened the hands of the wicked, that he should not return from his evil way, and live.

23 Therefore, you shall not see vain things, nor divine divinations any more, and I will deliver my people out of your hand; and you shall know that I am the Lord.

VER. 17. Daughters: so the false prophets are styled in scorn, (Vat.) or witches; (Rabbins) though it seems rather that there were false prophetesses as well as true ones. Such were Prisca and Maximilla among the Montanists. Women have commonly fostered heresies. C.—These pretended to be illuminated, like Debora and Hoida; but flattered the people in their sins, instead of reprimanding them. W.

VER. 18. Cushions, by making people easy in their sins, and promising them impunity, (Ch.) by disguising the truth, or not admonishing people of their danger. C. iii. 17. C.—Souls. That is, they flattered them with promises of life, peace, and security. Ch. W.—People are often said to do what they only announce. Lev. xiii. 11. These impostors pretended to save, while they really destroyed. They shewed a cruel mercy, detaining the people in captivity, or rather Heb. "shall you catch!" &c. Do you expect to pass unpunished? C.—We might read the Vulg. "Did they give?" &c. Prot. "Will ye save the souls alive that come unto you?" H.

VER. 19. Violated me. That is, dishonoured and discredited me. Ch.—Prot. "and will ye pollute?" &c. H.—They employed the name of God to give credit to their lies, for the smallest advantage.—Souls, &c. That is, to sentence souls to death, which are not to die; and to promise life to them who are not to live. Ch.—They contradicted Jeremias, who exhorted the people to surrender. C.

VER. 20. Catch. Heb. also, "hunt the souls to make them into gardens, (H.) or flourishing." Sept. "you gather souls there." The original seems to be incorrect. v. 18.

VER. 22. Just. Jeremias, or any other, particularly the more simple, who were easily seduced and filled with apprehensions. You shall therefore die, (v. 23.) and your imposture shall be made known. C.

2 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

3 Son of man, these men have placed their uncleanness in their hearts, and have set up before their face the stumbling-block of their iniquity; and shall I answer when they inquire of me?

4 Therefore, speak to them, and say to them: Thus saith the Lord God: Every man of the house of Israel, that shall place his uncleanness in his heart, and set up the stumbling-block of his iniquity before his face, and shall come to the prophet, enquiring of me by him: I the Lord will answer him, according to the multitude of his uncleannesses.

5 That the house of Israel may be caught in their own heart, with which they have departed from me through all their idols.

6 Therefore, say to the house of Israel: Thus saith the Lord God: Be converted, and depart from your idols, and turn away your faces from all your abominations.

7 For every man of the house of Israel, and every stranger among the proselytes in Israel, if he separate himself from me, and place his idols in his heart, and set the stumbling-block of his iniquity before his face, and come to the prophet to enquire of me by him: I the Lord will answer him by myself.

8 And I will set my face against that man, and will make him an example, and a proverb, and will cut him off from the midst of my people; and you shall know that I am the Lord.

9 ^b And when the prophet shall err, and speak a word, I the Lord have deceived that prophet; and I will stretch forth my hand upon him, and will cut him off from the midst of my people Israel.

10 And they shall bear their iniquity; according to the iniquity of him that inquireth, so shall the iniquity of the prophet be.

11 That the house of Israel may go no more astray from me, nor be polluted with all their transgressions: but may be my people, and I may be their God, saith the Lord of hosts.

CHAP. XIV. VER. 8. Uncleannesses. That is, their filthy idols, upon which they have set their hearts: and which are a stumbling-block to their souls. Ch.—They came, it seems, to tempt the prophet, (C.) as God shewed him. Thus worldlings consult Catholic priests; yet are resolved to join with heretics. W.

VER. 4. According. Heb. "in (C.) the multitude of his idols." H.—I will still disclose the truth; (Chal.) or a false prophet is here spoken of, whom God will suffer to deceive those who wish to be deluded. He will not have his own prophets to speak an untruth. See 3 K. xxii. 10. Christ evaded the insidious questions of his enemies. Mat. xxi. 23. C.

VER. 5. The. Sept. "he may ensnare the house," (H.) or "to bring" unto repentance. Chal. C.

VER. 6. Turn. Such people must first be admonished to relinquish idols, heresy, &c. that they may come to God. W.

VER. 7. By myself, or on my own account. God does not encourage falsehood. C.

VER. 9. Err. He speaks of false prophets, answering out of their own heads, and according to their own corrupt inclinations.—Deceived, &c. God Almighty deceives false prophets, partly by withdrawing his light from them; and abandoning them to their own corrupt inclinations, which push them on to prophesy such things as are agreeable to those that consult them: and partly by disappointing them, and causing all things to happen contrary to what they have said. Ch.—God permits the deception, to punish both the impostor and his hearers. W.—Thus was Balaam treated. C. Num. xxii. H.—He could do nothing of himself. S. Jer. 2 K. xxii. 22. C.—Here also an interrogation might be used (H.) in Heb. "have I?" &c. Feiffer dub. cent. 4. b. lviii.—I have manifested the deceit. C. xiii. 18.

13 Son of man, when a land shall sin against me, so as to transgress grievously, I will stretch forth my hand upon it, *and will break the staff of the bread thereof: and I will send famine upon it, and will destroy man and beast out of it.

14 And if these three men, Noe, Daniel, and Job, shall be in it: they shall deliver their own souls by their justice, saith the Lord of hosts.

15 And if I shall bring mischievous beasts also upon the land to waste it; and it be desolate, so that there is none that can pass because of the beasts:

16 If these three men shall be in it, as I live, saith the Lord, they shall deliver neither sons nor daughters: but they only shall be delivered, and the land shall be made desolate.

17 Or if I bring the sword upon that land, and say to the sword: Pass through the land: and I destroy man and beast out of it:

18 And these three men be in the midst thereof: as I live, saith the Lord God, they shall deliver neither sons nor daughters, but they themselves alone shall be delivered.

19 Or if I also send the pestilence upon that land, and pour out my indignation upon it in blood, to cut off from it man and beast:

20 And Noe, and Daniel, and Job, be in the midst thereof: as I live, saith the Lord God, they shall deliver neither son nor daughter: but they shall only deliver their own souls by their justice.

21 For thus saith the Lord: Although I shall send in upon Jerusalem my four grievous judgments, the sword and the famine, and the mischievous beasts, and the pestilence, to destroy out of it man and beast:

22 Yet there shall be left in it some that shall be saved, who shall bring away their sons and daughters: behold they shall come among you, and you shall see their way, and their doings: and you shall be comforted concerning the evil that I have brought upon Jerusalem, in all things that I have brought upon it.

23 And they shall comfort you, when you shall see their ways, and their doings: and you shall know that I have not done without cause all that I have done in it, saith the Lord God.

God is resolved to treat all with rigour, he will save only the just. They shall not be able to protect even their children. But Jerusalem shall not experience such severity. v. 21. C.—Noe could not avert the deluge, nor Job the death of his children, neither could Daniel rescue his people from captivity. S. Jer.—The first denotes pastors, the second fathers of families, and Daniel such as live continent. S. Aug.—All three had been very merciful. S. Chrys. hom. xlii. in Gen.—Job is placed for holy laymen, and Daniel for people of religious orders. S. Greg. Mor. i. 13. W.—Hence perhaps Job is placed last, though cotemporary with Moses, as most people suppose. He is not therefore a fabulous personage. H. VER. 19. Pestilence. Sept. "death," as v. 21. VER. 22. Left. Pastors will always remain to instruct God's children. W.—Doings. Their words (C.) and conduct even in captivity, will evince that they have not been punished unjustly. S. Jer.—From them you may judge what sort of men their fathers were; or, as they have been spared for their virtue, you may conclude that the rest would not have perished, if they had been innocent. H.

CHAP. XV. VER. 2. Wood. Small branches or tendrils. The vines of that country were probably small. C.—The wild vine (Sanct.) grows very large, and the wood is durable, so that statues, pillars, and ladders were formed of it. Pliny xiv. 1.—Strabo (ii. and xi.) mentions the trunk of a vine which two men could hardly clasp, and the bunch of grapes was two cubits high. But the prophet speaks of the small branches, which are fit only for the fire. C.—God's Church is often compared to a vine on account of its fruit, and the branches separated from her resemble the useless cuttings. S. Aug. tr. lxxxi. in Ja. W.—

CHAP. XV.

As a vine cut down is fit for nothing but the fire: so it shall be with Jerusalem, for her sins.

AND ^b the word of the Lord came to me, saying: 2 Son of man, what shall be made of the wood of the vine, out of all the trees of the woods that are among the trees of the forests?

3 Shall wood be taken of it, to do any work, or shall a pin be made of it, for any vessel to hang thereon?

4 Behold it is cast into the fire for fuel; the fire hath consumed both ends thereof, and the midst thereof is reduced to ashes: shall it be useful for any work?

5 Even when it was whole it was not fit for work, how much less, when the fire hath devoured, and consumed it, shall any work be made of it?

6 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: As the vine-tree among the trees of the forests which I have given to the fire to be consumed, so will I deliver up the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

7 And I will set my face against them: they shall go out from fire, and fire shall consume them: and you shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have set my face against them.

8 And I shall have made their land a wilderness, and desolate, because they have been transgressors, saith the Lord God.

4 And when thou wast born, in the day of thy nativity thy navel was not cut, neither wast thou washed with water for thy health, nor salted with salt, nor swaddled with clouts.

CHAP. XVI. VER. 3. Cethite, or "Hethite." These two were probably the most abandoned of Chanaan. Daniel (xiii. 56.) gives the infamous judges the like appellation; and Isaias (i. 10.) calls the Jews princes of Sodom. C.—So Dido says to Eneas:

6 And passing by thee, I saw that thou wast trodden under foot in thy own blood: and I said to thee when thou wast in thy blood: Live: yes, I said to thee: Live in thy blood.

7 I caused thee to multiply as the bud of the field: and thou didst increase and grow great, and advancedst, and camest to woman's ornament: thy breasts were fashioned, and thy hair grew: and thou wast naked, and full of confusion.

8 And I passed by thee, and saw thee: and behold thy time was the time of lovers: and I spread my garment over thee, and covered thy ignominy. And I swore to thee, and I entered into a covenant with thee, saith the Lord God: and thou becamest mine.

9 And I washed thee with water, and cleansed away thy blood from thee: and I anointed thee with oil.

10 And I clothed thee with embroidery, and shod thee with violet-coloured shoes: and I girded thee about with fine linen, and clothed thee with fine garments.

11 I decked thee also with ornaments, and put bracelets on thy hands, and a chain about thy neck.

12 And I put a jewel upon thy forehead, and earrings in thy ears, and a beautiful crown upon thy head.

13 And thou wast adorned with gold, and silver, and wast clothed with fine linen, and embroidered work, and many colours: thou didst eat fine flour, and honey, and oil, and wast made exceedingly beautiful: and wast advanced to be a queen.

14 And thy renown went forth among the nations for thy beauty: for thou wast perfect through my beauty, which I had put upon thee, saith the Lord God.

15 But trusting in thy beauty, thou playedst the harlot because of thy renown, and thou hast prostituted thyself to every passenger, to be his.

16 And taking off thy garments thou hast made thee

17 And thou tookest thy beautiful vessels, of my gold, and my silver, which I gave thee, and thou madest thee images of men, and hast committed fornication with them.

18 And thou tookest thy garments of divers colours, and coveredst them: and settest my oil and my sweet incense before them.

19 And my bread which I gave thee, the fine flour, and oil, and honey, wherewith I fed thee, thou hast set before them for a sweet odour; and it was done, saith the Lord God.

20 And thou hast taken thy sons, and thy daughters, whom thou hast borne to me: and hast sacrificed the same to them to be devoured. Is thy fornication small?

21 Thou hast sacrificed and given my children to them, consecrating them by fire.

22 And after all thy abominations, and fornications, thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, when thou wast naked, and full of confusion, trodden under foot in thy own blood.

23 And it came to pass after all thy wickedness, (wo, wo to thee, saith the Lord God)

24 That thou didst also build thee a common stew, and madest thee a brothel house in every street.

25 At every head of the way thou hast set up a sign of thy prostitution: and hast made thy beauty to be abominable: and hast prostituted thyself to every one that passed by, and hast multiplied thy fornications.

26 And thou hast committed fornication with the Egyptians thy neighbours, men of large bodies, and hast multiplied thy fornications to provoke me.

Ut nudam.—Hor. i. Sat. ii.

Gen. Ben. vii. 9.—Sept. τριχάρτω, according to Hesyc. &c. denotes "a silk ribbon for the hair;" (C.) a robe as delicate as hair, (S. Jer.) or a transparent veil for the head. Theod.—Such are still worn in the East. Hair is used in the veil opposite to the eyes, that the ladies may see without being seen. C.

VER. 12. Forehead. Lit. "mouth." Heb. "nose." H.—Women wore rings where spectacles are placed, and had others hung at their noses, so as to touch the mouth. People who are not acquainted with this odd custom, which is still prevalent in Africa and Asia, suppose that the ornament hung upon the forehead, as S. Jerom does. See Gen. xxiv. 22. C.

VER. 13. Linens. Heb. mossi. v. 11. H.—Chal. understands these ornaments to pertain to the tabernacle, which was set up in the wilderness.—Oil, enjoying a most fertile country, (C.) and the noblest sacrifices. H.—And wast, &c. The kingdom had subsisted 1500 years. C.—Sept. omit this, for fear of giving umbrage to the Egyptians, according to S. Jerom, as if they could be ignorant of this circumstance. C.—Grabe supplies, "thou wast directed to the kingdom." H.

VER. 15. Renown, or name; thus dishonouring me, thy husband. Is. iv. 1.

VER. 16. Places: pavilions, (A. Lap. 4 K. xvii. 30. C.) or idols stuffed, (S. Jer. Theod.) and outwardly adorned. Such might easily be procured or removed. 1 K. xix. 13.—Hereafter, with impunity. The Jews were guilty of greater ingratitude than other nations.

VER. 17. My gold, for the temple, or thy most precious ornaments, which were sacrificed to gratify thy lubricity, (C.) or to form the golden calf, &c. Ex. xxxii. H.—Obscene representations were also used in the worship of Osiris. Hierod. ii. 48.

VER. 18. Oil, or perfume, which no man was allowed to use. Ex. xxx. 9. 38.

VER. 20. Thy sons: so he calls them to shew his indignation, though he acknowledges them for his, (v. 21.) to enhance the crime. Who could have thought that such cruel sacrifices would ever take place! 4 K. xxiii. C.—Adulteresses bring in the children of others; but the Jews sacrifice their own to idols. 4 K. xvi. &c. W.

VER. 25. Sign; altars of idols. H.—She makes no secret of her apostasy. The Greeks and Romans marked the houses of prostitutes, that honest men might avoid them. "They deemed the profession of such a crime a sufficient punishment to repress impure women." Tacit. Annal.

VER. 26. Bodies. Lit. "flesh." H. Juv. ix. 24. M.—The Egyptians are tall, but meagre. Valle. Ep. xi.—They were the most dissolute in their worship, and corrupted most other nations as well as the Jews. C. xx. 8. and xxiii. 3.

VER. 27. Justification; law, &c. Heb. "thy right," or allowance. Ex. xxi. 10.—Hate thee. To be abandoned to the will of a rival, is most dreadful for a woman. The Jews were subjected to the nations which they had despised, as they are still to Christians. Even other less favoured idolaters were astonished (C.) at their apostasy. H.

28 Thou hast also committed fornication with the Assyrians, because thou wast not yet satisfied: and after thou hadst played the harlot with them, even so thou wast not contented.

29 Thou hast also multiplied thy fornications in the land of Chanaan with the Chaldeans: and neither so wast thou satisfied.

30 Wherein shall I cleanse thy heart, saith the Lord God: seeing thou dost all these the works of a shameless prostitute?

31 Because thou hast built thy brothel house at the head of every way, and thou hast made thy high place in every street: and wast not as a harlot that by disdain enhanceth her price,

32 But as an adulteress, that bringeth in strangers over her husband.

33 Gifts are given to all harlots: but thou hast given hire to all thy lovers, and thou hast given them gifts to come to thee from every side, to commit fornication with thee.

34 And it hath happened in thee contrary to the custom of women in thy fornications, and after thee there shall be no such fornication: for in that thou gavest rewards, and didst not take rewards, the contrary hath been done in thee.

35 Therefore, O harlot, hear the word of the Lord.

36 Thus saith the Lord God: Because thy money hath been poured out, and thy shame discovered through thy fornications with thy lovers, and with the idols of thy abominations by the blood of thy children whom thou gavest them:

37 Behold, I will gather together all thy lovers with whom thou hast taken pleasure, and all whom thou hast loved, with all whom thou hast hated: and I will gather them together against thee on every side, and will discover thy shame in their sight, and they shall see all thy nakedness.

38 And I will judge thee as adulteresses, and they that shed blood are judged: and I will give thee blood in fury and jealousy.

39 And I will deliver thee into their hands, and they shall destroy thy brothel house, and throw down thy stews: and they shall strip thee of thy garments, and shall take away the vessels of thy beauty: and leave thee naked, and full of disgrace.

40 And they shall bring upon thee a multitude, and they shall stone thee with stones, and slay thee with their swords.

41 And they shall burn thy houses with fire, and shall execute judgments upon thee in the sight of many women: and thou shalt cease from fornication, and shalt give no hire any more.

42 And my indignation shall rest in thee: and my jealousy shall depart from thee, and I will cease and be angry no more.

43 Because thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, but hast provoked me in all these things: wherefore I also have turned thy ways upon thy head, saith the Lord God, and I have not done according to thy wicked deeds in all thy abominations.

44 Behold, every one that useth a common proverb, shall use this against thee, saying: As the mother was, so also is her daughter.

45 Thou art thy mother's daughter, that cast off her husband, and her children: and thou art the sister of thy sisters, who cast off their husbands, and their children: your mother was a Cethite, and your father an Amorrite.

46 And thy elder sister is Samaria, she and her daughters that dwell at thy left hand: and thy younger sister that dwelleth at thy right hand is Sodom, and her daughters.

47 But neither hast thou walked in their ways, nor hast thou done a little less than they according to their wickednesses: thou hast done almost more wicked things than they in all thy ways.

48 As I live, saith the Lord God, thy sister Sodom herself, and her daughters, have not done as thou hast done, and thy daughters.

49 Behold this was the iniquity of Sodom thy sister, pride, fulness of bread, and abundance, and the idleness of her, and of her daughters: and they did not put forth their hand to the needy, and to the poor.

50 And they were lifted up, and committed abominations before me: and I took them away as thou hast seen.

VER. 28. Assyrians, adoring the sun, Baal, &c. C.

VER. 31. Price, before she will yield, (H.) or who follow such practices for a livelihood. C.—Heb. "in that thou scornest hire." Prot. Sept. "gathering rewards." The difference consisted in Jerusalem's sinning through mere wantonness, and even to her loss.

VER. 34. Fornication unpunished, or comparable with thine. v. 16. H.—All such actions are abominable; but still more so, when the woman solicits. W.

VER. 36. Money. Lit. "brass," (H.) to adorn idols. C.—Prot. "thy filthiness;" (H.) virtus. Pagn. &c. C.

VER. 37. Nakedness. Friends and enemies (H.) saw that idols afforded no protection. C. vi. 3. Jer. xiii. 26.

VER. 38. Judge; punish thee by stoning to death. Lev. xx. 10. The walls of the Jews were battered to the ground.

VER. 39. House; the temple, which thou hast profaned, and the high places. The idols shall be plundered, in which thou hast trusted.

VER. 41. Women: nations assembled against Jerusalem.

VER. 42. No more. I will entirely repudiate thee, so as to observe thy conduct no longer, (C.) with the eye of an husband. H.—This is the most terrible effect of God's wrath, (C.) when the sinner is left to himself. Osee iv. 14. S. Jerom.

VER. 43. Youth, when thou wast destitute, (v. 4.) and more grateful for my favours. Jer. ii. 2.—Head. I have punished thee, yet not as thy deeds require. H.

VER. 44. Daughter. They too commonly (C.) follow bad parents. Juv. vi. 239. and xiv. 25.—Jerusalem is more wicked than the Cethite, (H.) her mother, v. 3. C.—Even this nation had once received the principles of true religion from the patriarchs, but cast them off to embrace idolatry, and to destroy her children. H.—Jerusalem was formerly and is still wicked. W.

VER. 46. Right: southward.—Sodom. The city was more ancient than Jerusalem. Hence it here designates Ruben, (H.) and the Jews east of the Jordan; (Prado) or rather Moab and Ammon, (v. 55. C.) and the rest of the Gentiles. H.—Samaria shewed Jerusalem the road to idolatry, and therefore is called her elder sister. The number of the ten tribes was also greater than that of the kingdom of Juda, which became corrupt as Sodom, only by degrees. Theod.

VER. 47. Ways, but hast done even worse.—Almost. He seems to diminish their crimes, (C.) as if it could hardly be believed that Jerusalem should be more abandoned. Heb. and Sept. "that would be but little: yea, thou hast done more," &c. H.

VER. 49. Sodom, &c. That is, these were the steps by which the Sodomites came to fall into those abominations for which they were destroyed. For pride, gluttony, and idleness, are the high road to all kinds of lust; especially when they are accompanied with a neglect of the works of mercy. Ch.—These crimes alone are great enough; (Lu. xvi. 19.) and the prophets never accuse the Jews of unnatural lust. Hence Ezechiel takes no notice of it here, as he probably refers to the manners of the Moabites, &c. who were then living. Is. xvi. 6. C.—Abundance and idleness produce crimes; temperance and labour bring forth good fruit. W.

VER. 50. Seen. This would seem to allude to the Israelites beyond the Jordan, who had been led away into Assyria. The Moabites, &c. beheld the down fall of Jerusalem, (H.) and were treated in like manner, only five years later. Jos. Jer. xlviii. &c.

51 And Samaria committed not half thy sins: but thou hast surpassed them with thy crimes, and hast justified thy sisters by all thy abominations which thou hast done.

52 Therefore do thou also bear thy confusion, thou that hast surpassed thy sisters with thy sins, doing more wickedly than they: for they are justified above thee: therefore be thou also confounded, and bear thy shame, thou that hast justified thy sisters.

53 And I will bring back and restore them by bringing back Sodom with her daughters, and by bringing back Samaria, and her daughters: and I will bring those that return of thee in the midst of them.

54 That thou mayst bear thy shame, and mayst be confounded in all that thou hast done, comforting them.

55 And thy sister Sodom, and her daughters shall return to their ancient state: and Samaria and her daughters shall return to their ancient state: and thou, and thy daughters shall return to your ancient state.

56 And Sodom, thy sister, was not heard of in thy mouth, in the day of thy pride, 57 Before thy malice was laid open: as it is at this time, making thee a reproach of the daughters of Syria, and of all the daughters of Palestine round about thee, that encompass thee on all sides.

58 Thou hast borne thy wickedness, and thy disgrace, saith the Lord God.

59 For thus saith the Lord God: I will deal with thee, as thou hast despised the oath, in breaking the covenant:

60 And I will remember my covenant with thee in the days of thy youth: and I will establish with thee an everlasting covenant.

61 And thou shalt remember thy ways, and be ashamed: when thou shalt receive thy sisters thy elder and thy younger: and I will give them to thee for daughters, but not by thy covenant.

62 And I will establish my covenant with thee: and thou shalt know that I am the Lord, 63 That thou mayst remember, and be confounded, and mayst no more open thy mouth because of thy confusion, when I shall be pacified towards thee for all that thou hast done, saith the Lord God.

VER. 51. Justified, as they are comparatively innocent. S. Aug. c. Faust. xxii. 61.—They had not the like advantages, (Mat. xi. 23.) nor the example of others' punishment to open their eyes. Thou hast pleaded for or with them, and hast lost thy cause. C.

VER. 53. Back, &c. This relates to the conversion of the Gentiles out of all nations, and of many of the Jews, to the Church of Christ. Ch.—Cyrus also liberated the tribes on the east as well as on the west of the Jordan, (II.) and in general all the captive nations. C.—And restore. Heb. "the captivity, even the captivity of Sodom." Sept. "I will turn away their aversions, the," &c. I will give them a more docile spirit. H.

VER. 54. Them. It affords some consolation to have partners in misery. C.

VER. 55. Ancient state. That is, to their former state of liberty, and their ancient possessions. In the spiritual sense, to the true liberty and the happy inheritance of the children of God, through faith in Christ. Ch.—All will be treated alike, whether Jew or Gentile. H.—When Sodom or the Gentiles shall have embraced the gospel, then also will the Jews. Rom. x. W.

VER. 56. Pride. Thou scornedst to mention her, (Pa. xv. 4. C.) or wouldst not take warning. S. Jerom.

VER. 60. Covenant. After punishing thee I will fulfil my promises, as we see was done (C.) after the captivity, and (H.) in the Christian Church. C.—All shall be converted, not by the Jewish but by the evangelical covenant. W.

VER. 61. Daughters. The countries were conquered by the Machabees. All nations embrace the gospel.—Covenant. It is broken. I will, out of pity, re-establish it, or a better, to last for ever under Christ, free from the servitude and fear of the old law. C.

CHAP. XVII.

The parable of the two eagles and the vine. A promise of the cedar of Christ and his church.

AND "the word of the Lord came to me, saying: A 2 Son of man, put forth a riddle, and speak a parable to the house of Israel,

3 And say: Thus saith the Lord God: A large eagle with great wings, long-limbed, full of feathers, and of variety, came to Libanus, and took away the marrow of the cedar.

4 He cropt off the top of the twigs thereof: and carried it away into the land of Chanaan, and he set it in a city of merchants.

5 And he took of the seed of the land, and put it in the ground for seed, that it might take a firm root over many waters: he planted it on the surface of the earth.

6 And it sprung up and grew into a spreading vine of low stature, and the branches thereof looked towards him: and the roots thereof were under him. So it became a vine, and grew into branches, and shot forth sprigs.

7 And there was another large eagle, with great wings, and many feathers: and behold this vine, bending as it were her roots towards him, stretched forth her branches to him, that he might water it by the furrows of her plantation.

8 It was planted in a good ground upon many waters, that it might bring forth branches, and bear fruit, that it might become a large vine.

9 Say thou: Thus saith the Lord God: Shall it prosper then? shall he not pull up the roots thereof, and strip off its fruit, and dry up all the branches it hath shot forth, and make it wither: and this without a strong arm, or many people, to pluck it up by the root?

10 Behold, it is planted: shall it prosper then? shall it not be dried up when the burning wind shall touch it, and shall it not wither in the furrows where it grew?

11 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

12 Say to the provoking house: Know you not what these things mean? Tell them: Behold, the king of Babylon cometh to Jerusalem: and he shall take away

• A. M. 8411.

CHAP. XVII. VER. 2. Riddle. Thus the prophets and Christ often delivered their doctrine. C.

VER. 3. A large eagle. Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon. Ch.—The multitude of his subjects, and his rapid and cruel conquests, are designated. C.—He spoils the vineyard of Jerusalem, notwithstanding the Jews had applied to another eagle, the king of Egypt. v. 12. W.—Libanus. That is, Jerusalem; (Ch.) or invaded the country. (C.) entering by Libanus. H.—Cedar. King Jechonias. (Ch.) and his nobles, (4 Kin. xxiv. 11.) with the most precious effects.

VER. 4. Twigs. The young king and his officers, who had scarcely got established. C.—Chanaan. This name, which signifies traffic, is not taken here for Palestine, but for Chaldea; and the city of merchants here mentioned is Babylon. Ch.—It was so corrupt as to deserve this appellation, as Rome was afterwards styled Babylon. Its situation was very favourable to traffic, and its dominions were very extensive. C.

VER. 5. Land. Sedecias, whom he made king. Ch.—He was brother of the dethroned king, and had every prospect of reigning long, if he had proved faithful. C.

VER. 6. Towards him. Nabuchodonosor, to whom Sedecias swore allegiance. Ch.—Lit. "to it," eam, the eagle. H.—The dominions of Sedecias were extensive, but weak, and dependant on a foreign king.

VER. 7. Eagle. The king of Egypt, (Ch.) Vaphres, who came at the request of Sedecias, to oppose the Chaldeans, was routed; and they returned to the siege of Jerusalem. Jer. xxxvii. 4.—Plantation, as the waters of the Nile were conducted to different parts by ditches. Deut. xi. 10.

VER. 9. Prosper. Will God countenance perfidy! C.—"Faith must be kept even with enemies." S. Jer.—Arm. The conquest did not cost the Chaldeans much. Sedecias fled by night, but was soon taken. 4 K. xxv. 6. C.

the king and the princes thereof, and carry them with him to Babylon.

13 And he shall take one of the king's seed, and make a covenant with him, and take an oath of him. Yea, and he shall take away the mighty men of the land.

14 That it may be a low kingdom, and not lift itself up, but keep his covenant and observe it.

15 But he hath revolted from him and sent ambassadors to Egypt, that it might give him horses and much people. And shall he that hath done thus prosper, or be saved? and shall he escape that hath broken the covenant?

16 As I live, saith the Lord God: In the place where the king dwelleth that made him king, whose oath he hath made void, and whose covenant he broke, even in the midst of Babylon shall he die.

17 And not with a great army, nor with much people shall Pharaoh fight against him: when he shall cast up mounts, and build forts, to cut off many souls.

18 For he had despised the oath, breaking his covenant, and behold he hath given his hand: and having done all these things, he shall not escape.

19 Therefore thus saith the Lord God: As I live, I will lay upon his head the oath he hath despised, and the covenant he hath broken.

20 And I will spread my net over him, and he shall be taken in my net: and I will bring him into Babylon, and will judge him there for the transgression by which he hath despised me.

21 And all his fugitives with all his bands shall fall by the sword: and the residue shall be scattered into every wind: and you shall know that I the Lord have spoken.

22 Thus saith the Lord God: I myself will take of the marrow of the high cedar, and will set it: I will crop off a tender twig from the top of the branches thereof, and I will plant it on a mountain high and eminent.

23 On the high mountains of Israel will I plant it, and it shall shoot forth into branches, and shall bear fruit, and it shall become a great cedar: and all birds shall dwell under it, and every fowl shall make its nest under the shadow of the branches thereof.

24 And all the trees of the country shall know that I the Lord have brought down the high tree, and exalted the low tree: and have dried up the green tree, and have caused the dry tree to flourish. I the Lord have spoken, and have done it.

CHAP. XVIII.

One man shall not bear the sins of another, but every one his own: if a wicked man truly repent, he shall be saved: and if a just man leave his justice, he shall perish.

AND the word of the Lord came to me, saying: What is the meaning

2 That you use among you this parable as a proverb in the land of Israel, saying: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the teeth of the children are set on edge?"

3 As I live, saith the Lord God, this parable shall be no more to you a proverb in Israel.

4 Behold all souls are mine: as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine: the soul that sinneth, the same shall die.

5 And if a man be just, and do judgment and justice,

6 And hath not eaten upon the mountains, nor lifted up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel: and hath not defiled his neighbour's wife, nor come near to a menstruous woman:

7 And hath not wronged any man: but hath restored the pledge to the debtor, hath taken nothing away by violence: hath given his bread to the hungry, and hath covered the naked with a garment:

8 Hath not lent upon usury, nor taken any increase: hath withdrawn his hand from iniquity, and hath executed true judgment between man and man:

9 Hath walked in my commandments, and kept my judgments, to do truth: he is just, he shall surely live, saith the Lord God.

10 And if he beget a son that is a robber, a shedder of blood, and that hath done some one of these things:

11 Though he doth not all these things, but that eateth upon the mountains, and that defileth his neighbour's wife:

VER. 20. Net. C. xii. 18. C.—Judge, punish. H.—His sentence was pronounced at Beblintha. 4 Kin. xxv. 7. C.

VER. 22. Cedar. Of the Royal stock of David.—Twig. Jesus Christ, whom God hath planted in Mount Zion, that is, the high mountain of his Church, to which all nations flow. Ch.—The Jews in vain apply this to Zorobabel or to the Machabees. Their power was never great enough to verify these expressions. C.—But Christ has united in his Church all the birds, or those who have strength enough to raise themselves above earthly things. S. Jer. Theod. &c.—The kingdom of Sedecias and that of Nabuchodonosor prospered not, or was soon at an end: Christ remains for ever. W.

VER. 24. High and green denote Sedecias; low and dry Jechonias, who was exalted at Babylon, while his rival was hurled down from his present high estate. The prophets speak of that as past, which God has decreed. See Jer. xxxi. 30. C.

CHAP. XVIII. VER. 2. Edge. Those in captivity would not allow that they were punished for their own sins: God convinces them of the contrary. W.—They knew that he often visited the sins of the fathers upon the children, (Ex. xx. 5. and xxiv. 5. C.) when they also hated him, (H.) and that many had suffered for their parents' faults, like those of Saul, David, &c. C.—But these were all guilty of original sin at least, and death is not always a real misfortune. H.—God seems to allow that the complaints had hitherto had some grounds, (Jer. xxxi.) but that they should be removed after the captivity, and still more effectually by the death of Christ, who came to redeem sinners, and rejected none. By baptism he cancels original sin, the sour grape, and those who cannot receive it are not innocent. C.—God chastises the body, but not the soul of children, for their parents' faults: (M.) and this conduct is a trial for them, which may increase their glory. H.

VER. 4. Mine. He insinuates the vocation of the Gentiles and the general redemption. All will be treated according to their works. C.

VER. 6. Mountains: of the sacrifices there offered to idols; (Ch.) or partaken in their usual feasts. Some irregularly worshipped God in these high places, under many pious kings; and were tolerated, (C.) though condemned for so doing. H.—Woman. The pagans abstained by the light of reason. C.—The contrary practice, "it is said," would give rise to lepers or monsters, (S. Jer.) as experience evinces. C.—It was forbidden in the Christian Church. S. Aug. q. 64. in Lev. xx. 18. S. Greg. resp. 10. ad Aug. C.—But no such questions are now asked. The prophet insists on this no more. v. 11, 13.

VER. 7. Wronged. Lit. "contristated." H.—Heb. "oppressed," maliciously

VER. 8. Increase more than what he lent, on any pretext. S. Jer. C.

VER. 10. Robber. Heb. "breaker;" rude and lawless. Sept. "pestilent."

VER. 12. Abomination. This refers to the woman, (v. 6.) or to idolatry.

12 That grieveth the needy and the poor, that taketh away by violence, that restoreth not the pledge, and that lifteth up his eyes to idols, that committeth abomination :

13 That giveth upon usury, and that taketh an increase : shall such a one live ? he shall not live. Seeing he hath done all these detestable things, he shall surely die, his blood shall be upon him.

14 But if he beget a son, who seeing all his father's sins, which he hath done, is afraid, and shall not do the like to them :

15 That hath not eaten upon the mountains, nor lifted up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, and hath not defiled his neighbour's wife :

16 And hath not grieved any man, nor withholden the pledge, nor taken away with violence, but hath given his bread to the hungry, and covered the naked with a garment :

17 That hath turned away his hand from injuring the poor, hath not taken usury and increase, but hath executed my judgments, and hath walked in my commandments : this man shall not die for the iniquity of his father, but living he shall live.

18 As for his father : because he oppressed, and offered violence to his brother, and wrought evil in the midst of his people, behold he is dead in his own iniquity.

19 And you say : Why hath not the son borne the iniquity of his father ? Verily, because the son hath wrought judgment and justice, hath kept all my commandments, and done them, living he shall live.

20 *The soul that sinneth, the same shall die : the son shall not bear the iniquity of the father, and the father shall not bear the iniquity of the son : the justice of the just shall be upon him, and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon him.

21 But if the wicked do penance for all his sins which he hath committed, and keep all my commandments, and do judgment, and justice, living he shall live, and shall not die.

22 I will not remember all his iniquities that he hath done : in his justice which he hath wrought, he shall live.

23 ^bIs it my will that a sinner should die, saith the Lord God, and not that he should be converted from his ways, and live ?

24 But if the just man turn himself away from his justice, and do iniquity according to all the abominations which the wicked man useth to work, shall he live ? all his justices which he had done, shall not be remembered : in the prevarication, by which he hath prevaricated, and in his sin which he hath committed, in them he shall die.

25 And you have said : *The way of the Lord is not right. Hear ye, therefore, O house of Israel : Is it my way that is not right, and are not rather your ways perverse ?

26 For when the just turneth himself away from his justice, and committeth iniquity, he shall die therein : in the injustice that he hath wrought he shall die.

27 And when the wicked turneth himself away from his wickedness, which he hath wrought, and doth judgment, and justice : he shall save his soul alive.

28 Because he considereth and turneth away himself from all his iniquities which he hath wrought, he shall surely live, and not die.

29 And the children of Israel say : The way of the Lord is not right. Are not my ways right, O house of Israel, and are not rather your ways perverse ?

30 Therefore will I judge every man according to his ways, O house of Israel, saith the Lord God.^a Be converted, and do penance for all your iniquities : and iniquity shall not be your ruin.

31 Cast away from you all your transgressions, by which you have transgressed, and make to yourselves a new heart, and a new spirit : and why will you die, O house of Israel ?

32 *For I desire not the death of him that dieth, saith the Lord God, return ye, and live.

CHAP. XIX.

The parable of the young lions ; and of the vine that is wasted.

MOREOVER 'take thou up a lamentation for the princes of Israel,

2 And say : Why did thy mother, the lioness, lie down among the lions, and bring up her whelps in the midst of young lions ?

3 And she brought out one of her whelps, and he became a lion : and he learned to catch the prey, and to devour men.

4 And the nations heard of him, and took him, but not without receiving wounds : and they brought him in chains into the land of Egypt.

5 But she seeing herself weakened, and that her hope was lost, took one of her young lions, and set him up for a lion.

VER. 13. Him. He alone is answerable, and shall suffer.
VER. 20. Sinneth. God never acted otherwise, though the Jews seem to have thought so. Temporal afflictions are the source of merit, and generally fall to the share of the saints, particularly under the new law.
VER. 21. Penance. The end determines all. If a person be then found just or unjust at his departure, he will be treated accordingly. W.
VER. 23. Will. God sincerely wishes that the sinner should be converted. If he refuse grace, it is only in punishment of former transgressions. S. Aug. ep. 217.—He will antecedently their salvation, (1 Tim. ii. 4.) though he has a consequent will to punish them, as they speak in the schools, because they themselves will not be saved. Sanct. C.—God's absolute will is always fulfilled, not that which is conditional. S. Jo. Dam. (Fide ii. 29.) S. Tho. p. 1. q. 19. a. 6.—He does enough by offering his graces and the death of Christ, to shew that his will is sincere ; though by a consequent will his justice punishes the impenitent. Thus a virtuous judge would have all to observe the laws and live : but finding some transgress, so as to become pernicious, he punishes them with death. W.
VER. 24. Remembered, to procure him pardon ; yet he will suffer less than if he had never done any good. C.

VER. 25. Not right, in thus punishing or rewarding for the last act ; (Theod.) or rather, God shews that those who complain are guilty.
VER. 27. Alive. Mortal sin destroys that life of grace. C.
VER. 30. Do penance. This is requisite, as well as a change of conduct. W.
VER. 31. New. We can do no good of ourselves : but we are admonished of our free-will, that we may do what we can, and ask for grace. Trid. Ses. vi. 5. 11. Jam. i. 5. and 2 Cor. iii. 5. S. Aug. &c. C.
CHAP. XIX. VER. 1. Princes : sons of Josias, who were so wretched. The latter part of this beautiful canticle, or allegory, (v. 10.) regards Sedecias. C.
VER. 2. Lioness ; Jerusalem, (Ch.) which made alliances with the lions, or nations. C.
VER. 3. Whelps ; Joachaz, or Sellum, (Ch.) who reigned only three months like his brother Jehonias. H.—The four last kings were all cruel. W.
VER. 4. But. Heb. "he was taken in their pit." (Prot. H.) as also v. 8. Sept. "in his or their corruption." We do not read that Joachaz fought, (C.) though this passage insinuates as much. Sanct. 4 K. xxiii. 30. &c.
VER. 5. Lions : Joakim. Ch.—He reigned eleven years ; but was such a monster, that the prophet does not speak of him or bewail his fate. 4 K. xxiii.

6 And he went up and down among the lions, and became a lion: and he learned to catch the prey, and to devour men.

7 He learned to make widows, and to lay waste their cities: and the land became desolate, and the fulness thereof, by the noise of his roaring.

8 And the nations came together against him on every side out of the provinces, and they spread their net over him, in their wounds he was taken.

9 And they put him into a cage, they brought him in chains to the king of Babylon: and they cast him into prison, that his voice should no more be heard upon the mountains of Israel.

10 Thy mother is like a vine in thy blood, planted by the water: her fruit and her branches have grown out of many waters.

11 And she had strong rods, to make sceptres for them that bear rule, and her stature was exalted among the branches: and she saw her height in the multitude of her branches.

12 But she was plucked up in wrath, and cast on the ground: and the burning wind dried up her fruit: her strong rods are withered and dried up: the fire hath devoured her.

13 And now she is transplanted into the desert, in a land not passable, and dry.

14 And a fire is gone out from a rod of her branches, which hath devoured her fruit: so that she now hath no strong rod, to be a sceptre of rulers. This is a lamentation, and it shall be for a lamentation.

CHAP. XX.

God refuses to answer the ancients of Israel, inquiring by the prophet: but by him setteth his benefits before their eyes, and their heinous sins: threatening yet greater punishments, but still mixt with mercy.

AND ^b it came to pass in the seventh year, in the fifth month, the tenth day of the month, there came men of the ancients of Israel to inquire of the Lord; and they sat before me.

2 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

3 Son of man, speak to the ancients of Israel, and say to them: Thus saith the Lord God: Are you come to inquire of me? As I live, I will not answer you, saith the Lord God.

VER. 8. Nations: rovers of Chaldaea, Syria, &c. 4 K. xxiv. 2. W.—Wounds. Heb. "pit." He was besieged, (4 K. xxiv. 11. C.) and gave himself up. H.

VER. 10. Blood. She has given birth to many kings. M.—The original may be inaccurate, and perhaps should be, "a vine-tree or branch:" (C.) cormoc instead of bedannecha. Sept. read kerimmon, "like a rose-flower," planted, &c. H.—He speaks of Sedecias more obscurely. C.—The kingdom had flourished under David and Solomon. It afterwards lost its splendour under wicked kings, and all the tribes were removed. W.

VER. 13. Dry. unfit for vine-trees. He speaks of the prison of Babylon. C.—The country was naturally wet. H.

VER. 14. Fire. Ismael, who slew Godolias, was of the royal family. Jer. xli. &c. C.

CHAP. XX. VER. 1. Month: A. 3411, Aug. 27. Usher.—Ezekiel had prophesied in the fourth year; then was silent a year and two months, or 430 days. He opened his mouth again in the sixth year, (C. viii. 1.) and now in the seventh year he is ordered not to answer. W.—We know not what the ancients wanted to know; but their design was evil. C.

VER. 4. Judgeth them; or, if thou wilt enter into the cause, and plead against them. Ch.—Lay before them the iniquities of their fathers, and their own, which bring on the reprobation of the greatest part. God will form his Church out of 4 If thou judgest them, if thou judgest, O son of man, declare to them the abominations of their fathers.

5 And say to them: Thus saith the Lord God: In the day when I chose Israel, and lifted up my hand for the race of the house of Jacob: and appeared to them in the land of Egypt, and lifted up my hand for them, saying: I am the Lord your God:

6 In that day I lifted up my hand for them, to bring them out of the land of Egypt, into a land which I had provided for them, flowing with milk and honey, which excelleth amongst all lands.

7 And I said to them: Let every man cast away the scandals of his eyes, and defile not yourselves with the idols of Egypt: I am the Lord your God.

8 But they provoked me, and would not hearken to me: they did not every man cast away the abominations of his eyes, neither did they forsake the idols of Egypt: and I said I would pour out my indignation upon them, and accomplish my wrath against them, in the midst of the land of Egypt.

9 But I did otherwise for my name's sake, that it might not be violated before the nations, in the midst of whom they were, and among whom I made myself known to them, to bring them out of the land of Egypt.

10 Therefore I brought them out from the land of Egypt, and brought them into the desert.

11 ^a And I gave them my statutes, and I shewed them my judgments, which if a man do, he shall live in them.

12 ^a Moreover, I gave them also my sabbaths, to be a sign between me and them: and that they might know that I am the Lord that sanctify them.

13 But the house of Israel provoked me in the desert: they walked not in my statutes, and they cast away my judgments, which if a man do he shall live in them: and they grievously violated my sabbaths. I said, therefore, that I would pour out my indignation upon them in the desert, and would consume them.

14 But I spared them for the sake of my name, lest it should be profaned before the nations, from which I brought them out in their sight.

15 So I lifted up my hand over them in the desert, not to bring them into the land which I had given a few of them and of the Gentiles. The return of a small number from captivity is also inuinated.

VER. 6. Excelleth. Heb. "is beauty or a desire." Sept. "a honeycomb." C.

VER. 7. Scandals, &c. (offensiones) that is, the abominations or idols, to the worship of which they were allured by their eyes. Ch.—Moses found them in this condition in Egypt, and he could not entirely reclaim them. C.—Many still secreted their idols. C. xxiii. 1. Acts vii. 42. H.

VER. 8. Egypt. Their disorders called for such severity. But God was restrained by the dangers (C.) of blasphemy, &c. to which the faithful and idolaters would thus have been exposed. M.—He saved them as he had promised, though they did not deserve it. W.

VER. 10. Brought. Lit. "cast," (H.) as if they had been reluctant.

VER. 11. Live, and enjoy temporal felicity, which was chiefly promised, though the faithful observers of the law would obtain an eternal reward.

VER. 12. Sign, as also to promote piety and instruction.

VER. 13. Sabbaths. We only read of one man gathering sticks, and the people manna once on those days. Ex. xv. and xvi. But Moses does not mention all. C.—Sabbath often denotes the whole law, which they transgressed; and as long as they retained an affection for idols, they could not observe the sabbaths so as to please God.

VER. 14. But. Lit. "And I did for," &c. This motive caused me to spare them. H.—I punished only the most guilty adorers of the calf, and murderers, &c. Num. xiv. 23. C.—Some were always preserved for a succession. v. 9 22. W.

them, flowing with milk and honey, the best of all lands.

16 Because they cast off my judgments, and walked not in my statutes, and violated my sabbaths: for their heart went after idols.

17 Yet my eye spared them, so that I destroyed them not: neither did I consume them in the desert.

18 And I said to their children in the wilderness: Walk not in the statutes of your fathers, and observe not their judgments, nor be ye defiled with their idols:

19 I am the Lord your God: walk ye in my statutes, and observe my judgments, and do them.

20 And sanctify my sabbaths, that they may be a sign between me and you: and that you may know that I am the Lord your God.

21 But their children provoked me, they walked not in my commandments, nor observed my judgments, to do them, which if a man do, he shall live in them: and they violated my sabbaths: and I threatened to pour out my indignation upon them, and to accomplish my wrath in them in the desert.

22 But I turned away my hand, and wrought for my name's sake, that it might not be violated before the nations, out of which I brought them forth in their sight.

23 Again I lifted up my hand upon them in the wilderness, to disperse them among the nations, and scatter them through the countries:

24 Because they had not done my judgments, and had cast off my statutes, and had violated my sabbaths, and their eyes had been after the idols of their fathers.

25 Therefore I also gave them statutes that were not good, and judgments, in which they shall not live.

26 And I polluted them in their own gifts, when they offered all that opened the womb, for their offences: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

27 Wherefore speak to the house of Israel, O son of man, and say to them: Thus saith the Lord God: Moreover, in this also your fathers blasphemed me, when they had despised and contemned me:

28 And I had brought them into the land, for which I lifted up my hand to give it them: they saw every high hill, and every shady tree, and there they sacrificed their victims, and there they presented the provocation of their offerings, and there they set their sweet odours, and poured forth their libations.

29 And I said to them: What meaneth the high place to which you go? and the name thereof was called high-place even to this day.

30 Wherefore say to the house of Israel: Thus saith the Lord God: Verily, you are defiled in the way of your fathers, and you commit fornication with their abominations.

31 And you defile yourselves with all your idols unto this day, in the offering of your gifts, when you make your children pass through the fire: and shall I answer you, O house of Israel? As I live, saith the Lord God, I will not answer you.

32 Neither shall the thought of your mind come to pass, by which you say: We will be as the Gentiles, and as the families of the earth, to worship stocks and stones.

33 As I live, saith the Lord God, I will reign over you with a strong hand, and with a stretched out arm, and with fury poured out.

34 And I will bring you out from the people, and I will gather you out of the countries, in which you are scattered, I will reign over you with a strong hand, and with a stretched out arm, and with fury poured out.

35 And I will bring you into the wilderness of people, and there will I plead with you face to face.

36 As I pleaded against your fathers in the desert of the land of Egypt: even so will I judge you, saith the Lord God.

37 And I will make you subject to my sceptre, and will bring you into the bands of the covenant.

38 And I will pick out from among you the transgressors, and the wicked, and will bring them out of the land where they sojourn, and they shall not enter into the land of Israel; and you shall know that I am the Lord.

39 And as for you, O house of Israel: thus saith the Lord God: Walk ye every one after your idols, and serve them. But if in this also you hear me not, but defile my holy name any more with your gifts, and with your idols.

40 In my holy mountain, in the high mountain of VER. 23. Again, or also. H.—Four times are specified v. 18, 15, 21, which may allude to the adoration of the calf, the graves of concupiscence, the murmuring, and converse with the women and idols of Moab. Ex. xxiii. Num. x. and xiv. and xxv. C.

VER. 25. Not good. The laws and ordinances of their enemies: or those imposed upon them by that cruel tyrant the devil, to whose power they were delivered up for their sins; (Ch.) which may be styled the statutes of your fathers, &c. v. 18. H.—God is often said to do what he only permits. C.—He abandoned them to their own perversity. S. Jer. Deut. xxxii. 21. 37.—If God had spoken of the Decalogue, &c. would he say such laws were not good, after he had testified that the observers shall live in them? v. 11. He established the ceremonial law, at the same time. See Kimchi. M. &c. Chal. "I have given them up to their foolish desires. They have established bad statutes and laws which will not give them life." This seems the best explanation. C.—Heb. "Have I given . . . (26) and have I polluted them?" &c. Manasse Ben. Israel. The precepts had also a bad effect, and were given in condescension to the weakness of the people, (Orig.) particularly the ceremonial part. S. Just. S. Chrys. S. Jer. &c.—They did not justify, (S. Aug.) and were not good, compared with those of the new law. S. Greg. mor. xxviii. 9.—Thus Solon gave the Athenians "the best laws that they would receive," (Plut.) though others more perfect might have been devised. C.

VER. 26. I polluted them, &c. That is, I gave them up to such blindness, in punishment of their offences, as to pollute themselves with the blood of all their first-born, whom they offered up to their idols in compliance with their wicked devices. Ch. M. Lev. xviii. 21. and 4 Kin. iii. ult. and xxi. 6. C.—Offered. Prot. "caused to pass through the fire all, &c. C. xvi. 21.—For their. Prot. "that I might make them desolate to the end, that," &c.

VER. 29. Called high. Heb. "Bamah," (H.) out of contempt. C.—The Jews were so much attached to the high places, that they called the altar of the Lord by the same name. Thus heretics are convicted by the very names they use, calling sacrifice service, &c. W.

VER. 32. Stones. This was the secret intention of the ancients, (v. 1. H.) and of many in captivity, who were only praise-worthy compared with those at Jerusalem. C. xi. 15.

VER. 33. Out. I will not allow you to follow idols with impunity. C.

VER. 35. Of people. That is, a desert, in which there are no people; (Ch.) meaning Judea, to which they should return.

VER. 37. Covenant of the gospel, by the powerful attractions of grace. Lu. xiv. 24. Jo. vi. 69. and vii. 46. and 2 Cor. x. 4.

VER. 38. Israel. They shall continue in exile; or the rebel Jews who will not believe in Christ, shall be cast off. C.

VER. 39. Walk, &c. It is not an allowance, much less a commandment to serve idols; but a figure of speech, by which God would have them to understand, that if they would walk after their idols, they must not pretend to serve him at the same time: for that he would by no means suffer such a mixture of worship. Ch. S. Jer.—Continue, if you dare, to serve idols. I will still bring you back. C.—Sept. "take away each your devices; and then if you hear me, (Grabe's copy adds, not) and defile not my," &c. H.—God would rather have idolaters leave him wholly, than halt between two, (3 K. xviii.) neither hot nor cold; (Apoc. iii.) for such dishonour God's name the most. Rom. ii. 24. W.

VER. 40. Mountain. The foregoing verse, to make the sense complete, must be understood so as to condemn and reject that mixture of worship which the Jews then followed. In this verse God promises to the true Israelites, especially to those of the Christian Church, that they should serve him in another man-

Israel, saith the Lord God, there shall all the house of Israel serve me: all of them, I say, in the land in which they shall please me, and there will I require your first fruits, and the chief of your tithes, with all your sanctifications.

41 I will accept of you for an odour of sweetness, when I shall have brought you out from the people, and shall have gathered you out of the lands into which you are scattered, and I will be sanctified in you in the sight of the nations.

42 And you shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have brought you into the land of Israel, into the land for which I lifted up my hand to give it to your fathers.

43 And there you shall remember your ways, and all your wicked doings with which you have been defiled: and you shall be displeased with yourselves in your own sight, for all your wicked deeds which you committed.

44 And you shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have done well by you for my own name's sake, and not according to your evil ways, nor according to your wicked deeds, O house of Israel, saith the Lord God.

45 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

46 Son of man, set thy face against the way of the south, and drop towards the south, and prophesy against the forest of the south field.

47 And say to the south forest: Hear the word of the Lord: Thus saith the Lord God: Behold I will kindle a fire in thee, and will burn in thee every green tree, and every dry tree: the flame of the fire shall not be quenched: and every face shall be burned in it, from the south even to the north.

48 And all flesh shall see, that I the Lord have kindled it, and it shall not be quenched.

49 And I said: Ah, ah, ah, O Lord God: they say of me: Doth not this man speak by parables?

VER. 43. Committed. This is a picture of the converts to Christianity. C.

VER. 46. Of the south. Jerusalem lay towards the south of Babylon, where the prophet then was, and is here called the forest of the south field, and is threatened with utter desolation. Ch. See C. xxi. C.—In Jerusalem there were good and bad. W.

VER. 49. Parables. They were easy enough to understand, but the Jews would not comprehend them no more than our Saviour's words, John x. 24. C.—Much of this prophecy was so hard, that all seemed to be parables. W.

CHAP. XXI. VER. 3. Just. But had not God declared the contrary, C. xviii. 1. The time was not yet arrived; or, he rescued the just from death, though he permitted them to experience the other common miseries. C.—He preserved them from eternal death. VER. 6. Bitterness. Sept. "pains," like those of child-bearing. Is. xxi. 3.

3 And say to the land of Israel: Thus saith the Lord God: Behold I come against thee, and I will draw forth my sword out of its sheath, and will cut off in thee the just, and the wicked.

4 And forasmuch as I have cut off in thee the just, and the wicked, therefore shall my sword go forth out of its sheath against all flesh, from the south even to the north.

5 That all flesh may know that I the Lord have drawn my sword out of its sheath, not to be turned back.

6 And thou, son of man, mourn with the breaking of thy loins, and with bitterness sigh before them.

7 And when they shall say to thee: Why mournest thou? thou shalt say: For that which I hear: because it cometh, and every heart shall melt, and all hands shall be made feeble, and every spirit shall faint, and water shall run down every knee: behold it cometh, and it shall be done, saith the Lord God.

8 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

9 Son of man, prophesy, and say: Thus saith the Lord God: Say: The sword, the sword is sharpened, and furbished.

10 It is sharpened to kill victims: it is furbished that it may glitter: thou removest the sceptre of my son, thou hast cut down every tree.

11 And I have given it to be furbished, that it may be handled: this sword is sharpened, and it is furbished, that it may be in the hand of the slayer.

12 Cry, and howl, O son of man, for this sword is upon my people, it is upon all the princes of Israel, that are fled: they are delivered up to the sword with my people; strike, therefore, upon thy thigh,

13 Because it is tried: and that, when it shall overthrow the sceptre, and it shall not be, saith the Lord God:

14 Thou, therefore, O son of man, prophesy, and strike thy hands together, and let the sword be doubled, and let the sword of the slain be tripled: this is the sword of a great slaughter, that maketh them stand amazed,

15 And languish in heart, and that multiplieth ruins. In all their gates I have set the dread of the sharp sword, the sword that is furbished to glitter, that is made ready for slaughter.

16 Be thou sharpened, go to the right hand, or to the left, which way soever thou hast a mind to set thy face.

VER. 7. Melt. Lit. "decay." Jos. vii. &c.—Knee. C. vii. 17. H.

VER. 10. My son. He speaks, according to S. Jerom, to the sword of Nabuchodonosor; which was about to remove the sceptre of Israel, whom God here calls his son. Ch.—This title belonged to all Israel. Ex. iv. 22. W.—The Heb. seems to be corrupt, and we may adhere to the Vulg. or to the Sept. (C.) which has, (9.) "Sword be sharp, and raging to slay victims; be sharp to shine, ready for destruction; cut, reduce to nothing, remove all wood." H.—Syr. "be ready to scatter the race of my son," &c. Heb. "Where shall we rejoice, sceptre of my son, thou sword which despisest every tree?" C.—Prot. "It contemneth the rod of my son as every tree!" H.

VER. 11. Slayer. He had conquered many nations before he attacked Israel. Let none boast of being the scourges of the Lord.

VER. 12. Fled, with Sedecias, by night.—Thigh, in surprise and grief. v. 17.

VER. 13. God. Perhaps you will say it is only a trial: but what will be your sentiments, when you behold the king and his people led away? C.—Prot. "Because it is a trial; and what if the sword condemn even the rod? it shall be no more, saith." H.

VER. 14. Tripled. Let the war be very bloody. Nabuchodonosor often invaded Judea. C.—He raised the siege, but returned. Vat.

VER. 15. Ready. Lit. "covered," (an icti. H.) in the scabbard, and quite new and sharp.

17 And I will clap my hands together, and will satisfy my indignation: I the Lord have spoken.

18 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

19 And thou, son of man, set thee two ways, for the sword of the king of Babylon to come: both shall come forth out of one land: and with his hand he shall draw lots, he shall consult at the head of the way of the city.

20 Thou shalt make a way, that the sword may come to Rabbath of the children of Ammon, and to Juda, unto Jerusalem, the strong city.

21 For the king of Babylon stood in the highway, at the head of two ways, seeking divination, shuffling arrows: he enquired of the idols, and consulted entrails.

22 On his right hand was the divination for Jerusalem, to set battering rams, to open the mouth in slaughter, to lift up the voice in howling, to set engines against the gates, to cast up a mount, to build forts.

23 And he shall be in their eyes as one consulting the oracle in vain, and imitating the leisure of sabbaths: but he will call to remembrance the iniquity, that they may be taken.

24 Therefore thus saith the Lord God: Because you have remembered your iniquity, and have discovered your prevarications, and your sins have appeared in all your devices: because, I say, you have remembered, you shall be taken with the hand.

25 But thou profane wicked prince of Israel, whose day is come that hath been appointed in the time of iniquity:

26 Thus saith the Lord God: Remove the diadem, take off the crown: is it not this that hath exalted the low one, and brought down him that was high?

27 I will shew it to be iniquity, iniquity, iniquity: but this was not done, till he came to whom judgment belongeth, and I will give it him.

28 *And thou son of man prophesy, and say: Thus saith the Lord God concerning the children of Ammon, and concerning their reproach, and thou shalt say: O sword, O sword, come out of the scabbard to kill, be furnished to destroy, and to glitter.

29 Whilst they see vain things in thy regard, and they divine lies; to bring thee upon the necks of the wicked that are wounded, whose appointed day is come in the time of iniquity.

30 Return into thy sheath. I will judge thee in the place wherein thou wast created, in the land of thy nativity.

31 And I will pour out upon thee my indignation: in the fire of my rage will I blow upon thee, and will give thee into the hands of men that are brutish and contrive thy destruction.

32 Thou shalt be fuel for the fire, thy blood shall be in the midst of the land, thou shalt be forgotten; for I, the Lord, have spoken it.

5 Those that are near, and those that are far from thee, shall triumph over thee: thou filthy one, infamous, great in destruction.

6 Behold the princes of Israel, every one hath employed his arm in thee, to shed blood.

7 They have abused father and mother in thee; they have oppressed the stranger in the midst of thee; they have grieved the fatherless and widow in thee.

VER. 20. Rabbath. They had formed a league with Sedecias, and Nabuchodonosor thought of punishing them first. H.—But they joined his forces. Jer. xii. 6. and xxvii. 8.

VER. 21. Shuffling. Heb. “polishing.” Syr. &c. “shooting an arrow upwards.” He was undetermined which to attack first, and perhaps wrote Jerusalem on one and Rabbath on another arrow; (S. Jer. &c. The devil pushed the Chaldeans forward, lest the Jews might be converted. C.—If they had attacked Rabbath first, they would probably have succeeded, as they did five years after. But the time of vengeance was come for Jerusalem, (H.) and they were directed to assault it. W.—Voice: the din of war, (H.) or of soldiers, trumpets, &c.

they have eaten upon the mountains in thee, they have committed wickedness in the midst of thee.

10 They have discovered the nakedness of their father in thee, they have humbled the uncleanness of the menstruous woman in thee.

11 *And every one hath committed abomination with his neighbour's wife, and the father-in-law hath wickedly defiled his daughter-in-law, the brother hath oppressed his sister, the daughter of his father, in thee.

12 They have taken gifts in thee to shed blood; thou hast taken usury and increase, and hast covetously oppressed thy neighbours; and thou hast forgotten me, saith the Lord God.

13 Behold, I have clapped my hands at thy covetousness, which thou hast exercised; and at the blood that hath been shed in the midst of thee.

14 Shall thy heart endure, or shall thy hands prevail, in the days which I will bring upon thee? I, the Lord, have spoken, and will do it.

15 And I will disperse thee in the nations, and will scatter thee among the countries, and I will put an end to thy uncleanness in thee.

16 And I will possess thee in the sight of the Gentiles: and thou shalt know that I am the Lord.

17 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

18 Son of man, the house of Israel is become dross to me: all these are brass, and tin, and iron, and lead, in the midst of the furnace: they are become the dross of silver.

19 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: Because you are all turned into dross, therefore, behold, I will gather you together in the midst of Jerusalem,

20 As they gather silver, and brass, and tin, and iron, and lead, in the midst of the furnace, that I may kindle a fire in it to melt it: so will I gather you together in my fury and in my wrath, and will take my rest: and I will melt you down.

21 And I will gather you together, and will burn you in the fire of my wrath, and you shall be melted in the midst thereof.

22 As silver is melted in the midst of the furnace, so shall you be in the midst thereof: and you shall know that I am the Lord, when I have poured out my indignation upon you.

23 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

27 *Her princes in the midst of her, are like wolves ravening the prey to shed blood, and to destroy souls, and to run after gains, through covetousness.

28 And her prophets have daubed them without tempering the mortar, seeing vain things, and divining lies unto them, saying: Thus saith the Lord God: when the Lord hath not spoken.

29 The people of the land have used oppression, and committed robbery: they afflicted the needy and poor, and they oppressed the stranger by calumny without judgment.

30 And I sought among them for a man that might set up a hedge, and stand in the gap before me in favour of the land, that I might not destroy it: and I found none.

31 And I poured out my indignation upon them; in the fire of my wrath I consumed them: I have rendered their way upon their own head, saith the Lord God.

CHAP. XXIII.

Under the names of the two harlots, Oolla and Ooliba, are described the manifold disloyalties of Samaria and Jerusalem, with the punishment of them both.

AND the word of the Lord came to me, *saying:
2 Son of man, there were two women, daughters of one mother:

3 And they committed fornication in Egypt, in their youth they committed fornication: there were their breasts pressed down, and the teats of their virginity were bruised.

4 And their names were, Oolla, the elder, and Ooliba, her younger sister: and I took them, and they bore sons and daughters. Now for their names: Samaria is Oolla, and Jerusalem is Ooliba.

5 And Oolla committed fornication against me, and doated on her lovers, on the Assyrians that came to her.

6 Who were clothed with blue, princes, and rulers, beautiful youths, all horsemen, mounted upon horses.

CHAP. XXIII. VER. 3. Fornication. That is, idolatry. Ch.—Down. Virgins used the stomacher, or (H.) fascia pectoralis. Is. iii. 24. This chapter resembles the 16th. C.

VER. 4. Oolla and Ooliba. God calls the kingdom of Israel Oolla, which signifies their own habitation, because they separated themselves from his temple; and the kingdom of Juda Ooliba, which signifies his habitation in her, because of his temple among them in Jerusalem. Ch.—The ten tribes first gave way to idolatry, and were more numerous. C.—In Egypt the people were united, yet abandoned to idolatry in their youth, when they were only beginning to increase. Afterwards the ten tribes set up altars for themselves, at Dan and Bethel. W.

VER. 5. Assyrians. That is, the idols of the Assyrians: for all that is said in this chapter of the fornications of Israel and Juda, is to be understood in a spiritual sense of their disloyalty to the Lord, by worshipping strange gods. Ch.—W.—The Assyrians taught the worship of Baal, the high places, &c. The Egyptians also promoted their abominations. C.

7 And she committed her fornications with those chosen men, all sons of the Assyrians: and she defiled herself with the uncleanness of all them on whom she doated.

8 Moreover also, she did not forsake her fornications which she had committed in Egypt: for they also lay with her in her youth, and they bruised the breasts of her virginity, and poured out their fornication upon her.

9 Therefore have I delivered her into the hands of her lovers, into the hands of the sons of the Assyrians, upon whose lust she doated.

10 "They discovered her disgrace, took away her sons and daughters, and slew her with the sword: and they became infamous women, and they executed judgments in her.

11 And when her sister, Ooliba, saw this, she was mad with lust more than she: and she carried her fornication beyond the fornication of her sister.

12 Impudently prostituting herself to the children of the Assyrians, the princes, and rulers that came to her, clothed in divers colours, to the horsemen that rode upon horses, and to young men, all of great beauty.

13 And I saw that she was defiled, and that they both took one way.

14 And she increased her fornications: and when she had seen men painted on the wall, the images of the Chaldeans set forth in colours,

15 And girded with girdles about their reins, and with dyed turbans on their heads, the resemblance of all the captains, the likeness of the sons of Babylon, and of the land of the Chaldeans, wherein they were born.

16 She doated upon them with the lust of her eyes, and she sent messengers to them into Chaldea.

17 And when the sons of Babylon were come to her to the bed of love, they defiled her with their fornications, and she was polluted by them, and her soul was glutted with them.

18 And she discovered her fornications, and discovered her disgrace: and my soul was alienated from her as my soul was alienated from her sister.

19 For she multiplied her fornications, remembering the days of her youth, in which she played the harlot in the land of Egypt.

20 And she was mad with lust after lying with them, whose flesh is as the flesh of asses: and whose issue as the issue of horses.

youth, when thy breasts were pressed in Egypt, and the paps of thy virginity broken.

22 Therefore, Ooliba, thus saith the Lord God: Behold I will raise up against thee all thy lovers, with whom thy soul hath been glutted: and I will gather them together against thee round about.

23 The children of Babylon, and all the Chaldeans, the nobles, and the kings, and princes, all the sons of the Assyrians, beautiful young men, all the captains, and rulers, the princes of princes, and the renowned horsemen.

24 And they shall come upon thee well appointed with chariot and wheel, a multitude of people: they shall be armed against thee on every side with breast-plate, and buckler, and helmet: and I will set judgment before them, and they shall judge thee by their judgments.

25 And I will set my jealousy against thee, which they shall execute upon thee, with fury: they shall cut off thy nose and thy ears: and what remains shall fall by the sword: they shall take thy sons, and thy daughters, and thy residue shall be devoured by fire.

26 And they shall strip thee of thy garments, and take away the instruments of thy glory.

27 And I will put an end to thy wickedness in thee, and thy fornication brought out of the land of Egypt: neither shalt thou lift up thy eyes to them, nor remember Egypt any more.

28 For thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I will deliver thee into the hands of them whom thou hatest, into their hands with whom thy soul hath been glutted.

29 And they shall deal with thee in hatred, and they shall take away all thy labours, and shall let thee go naked, and full of disgrace, and the disgrace of thy fornications shall be discovered, thy wickedness, and thy fornications.

30 They have done these things to thee, because thou hast played the harlot with the nations among which thou wast defiled with their idols.

31 Thou hast walked in the way of thy sister, and I will give her cup into thy hand.

32 Thus saith the Lord God: Thou shalt drink thy sister's cup, deep, and wide: thou shalt be had in derision and scorn, which containeth very much.

thereof, thou shalt rend thy breasts: because I have spoken it, saith the Lord God.

35 Therefore thus saith the Lord God: Because thou hast forgotten me, and hast cast me off behind thy back, bear thou also thy wickedness, and thy fornications.

36 And the Lord spoke to me, saying: Son of man, dost thou judge Oolla, and Ooliba, and dost thou declare to them their wicked deeds?

37 Because they have committed adultery, and blood is in their hands, and they have committed fornication with their idols: moreover also their children, whom they bore to me, they have offered to them to be devoured.

38 Yea, and they have done this to me. They polluted my sanctuary on the same day, and profaned my sabbaths.

39 And when they sacrificed their children to their idols, and went into my sanctuary the same day, to profane it: they did these things even in the midst of my house.

40 They sent for men coming from afar, to whom they had sent a messenger: and behold they came: for whom thou didst wash thyself, and didst paint thy eyes, and wast adorned with women's ornaments.

41 Thou satest on a very fine bed, and a table was decked before thee: whereupon thou didst set my incense and my ointment.

42 And there was in her the voice of a multitude rejoicing: and to some that were brought of the multitude of men, and that came from the desert, they put bracelets on their hands, and beautiful crowns on their heads.

43 And I said to her that was worn out in her adulteries: Now will this woman still continue in her fornication.

44 And they went in to her, as to a harlot: so went they in unto Oolla, and Ooliba, wicked women.

45 They, therefore, are just men: these shall judge them as adulteresses are judged, and as shedders of blood are judged: because they are adulteresses, and blood is in their hands.

46 For thus saith the Lord God: Bring a multitude upon them, and deliver them over to tumult and rapine:

47 And let the people stone them with stones, and let them be stabbed with their swords: they shall kill their sons and daughters, and their houses they shall burn with fire.

CHAP. XXIV.

Under the parable of a boiling pot, is shewn the utter destruction of Jerusalem: for which the Jews at Babylon shall not dare to mourn.

AND *the word of the Lord came to me in the ninth year, in the tenth month, the tenth day of the month, saying:

2 Son of man, write thee the name of this day, on which the king of Babylon hath set himself against Jerusalem to-day.

3 And thou shalt speak by a figure, a parable, to the provoking house, and say to them: Thus saith the Lord God: Set on a pot; set it on, I say; and put water into it.

4 Heap together into it the pieces thereof, every good piece, the thigh and the shoulder, choice pieces and full of bones.

5 Take the fattest of the flock, and lay together piles of bones under it: the seething thereof is boiling hot, and the bones thereof are thoroughly sodden in the midst of it.

6 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: Wo to the bloody city, to the pot whose rust is in it, and its rust is not gone out of it: cast it out piece by piece, there hath no lot fallen upon it.

7 For her blood is in the midst of her, she hath shed it upon the smooth rock: she hath not shed it upon the ground, that it might be covered with dust.

8 And that I might bring my indignation upon her, and take my vengeance: I have shed her blood upon the smooth rock, that it should not be covered.

9 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: *Wo to the bloody city, of which I will make a great bonfire.

10 Heap together the bones, which I will burn with fire: the flesh shall be consumed, and the whole composition shall be sodden, and the bones shall be consumed.

11 Then set it empty upon burning coals, that it may be hot, and the brass thereof may be melted; and let the filth of it be melted, in the midst thereof, and let the rust of it be consumed.

12 Great pains have been taken, and the great rust thereof is not gone out, not even by fire.

13 Thy uncleanness is execrable: because I desired to cleanse thee, and thou art not cleansed from thy filthiness: neither shalt thou be cleansed, before I cause my indignation to rest in thee.

14 I, the Lord, have spoken: it shall come to pass, and I will do it: I will not pass by, nor spare, nor be pacified: I will judge thee according to thy ways, and according to thy doings, saith the Lord.

15 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

16 Son of man, behold I take from thee the desire of thy eyes with a stroke: and thou shalt not lament, nor weep: neither shall thy tears run down.

17 Sigh in silence; make no mourning for the dead: let the tire of thy head be upon thee, and thy shoes on thy feet, and cover not thy face, nor eat the meat of mourners.

18 So I spoke to the people in the morning, and my wife died in the evening: and I did in the morning as he had commanded me.

19 And the people said to me: Why dost thou not tell us what these things mean that thou dost?

20 And I said to them: The word of the Lord came to me, saying:

21 Speak to the house of Israel: Thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I will profane my sanctuary, the glory of your realm, and the thing that your eyes desire, and for which your soul feareth: your sons and your daughters, whom you have left, shall fall by the sword.

22 And you shall do as I have done: you shall not cover your faces, nor shall you eat the meat of mourners.

23 You shall have crowns on your heads, and shoes on your feet; you shall not lament nor weep, but you shall pine away for your iniquities; and every one shall sigh with his brother.

24 And Ezechiel shall be unto you for a sign of things to come: according to all that he hath done, so shall you do, when this shall come to pass: and you shall know that I am the Lord God.

25 And thou, O son of man, behold in the day wherein I will take away from them their strength, and the joy of their glory, and the desire of their eyes, upon which their souls rest, their sons and their daughters.

26 In that day when he that escapeth shall come to thee, to tell thee;

27 In that day, I say, shall thy mouth be opened to him that hath escaped, and thou shalt speak, and shalt be silent no more: and thou shalt be unto them for a sign of things to come: and you shall know that I am the Lord.

CHAP. XXV.

A prophecy against the Ammonites, Moabites, Edomites, and Philistines, for their malice against the Israelites.

AND the word of the Lord came to me, saying:
2 Son of man, set thy face against the children of Ammon, and thou shalt prophesy of them.

3 *And thou shalt say to the children of Ammon: Hear ye the word of the Lord God: Thus saith the Lord God: Because thou hast said, Ha, ha, upon my sanctuary, because it was profaned; and upon the land of Israel, because it was laid waste; and upon the house of Juda, because they are led into captivity:

4 Therefore, will I deliver thee to the men of the east for an inheritance, and they shall place their shepcotes in thee, and shall set up their tents in thee: they shall eat thy fruits, and they shall drink thy milk.

5 And I will make Rabbath a stable for camels, and the children of Ammon a couching-place for flocks: and you shall know that I am the Lord.

6 For thus saith the Lord God: Because thou hast clapped thy hands, and stamped with thy foot, and hast rejoiced with all thy heart against the land of Israel;

7 Therefore, behold, I will stretch forth my hand upon thee, and will deliver thee to be the spoil of nations, and will cut thee off from among the people, and destroy thee out of the lands, and break thee in pieces: and thou shalt know that I am the Lord.

8 Thus saith the Lord God: Because Moab and Seir have said: Behold, the house of Juda is like all other nations:

9 Therefore, behold, I will open the shoulder of Moab from the cities, from his cities, I say, and his borders, the noble cities of the land of Bethiesimoth, and Beelmeon, and Cariathaim,

10 To the people of the east with the children of Ammon, and I will give it them for an inheritance, that there may be no more any remembrance of the children of Ammon among the nations.

11 And I will execute judgments in Moab: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

Yet such distress will fall upon the whole nation, (C.) and misery shall increase so much, that a private loss will be almost forgotten. H.—Curæ leves loquuntur, graviore silent. Sen. Troad.—When a loss is foreseen, it is more easily borne. Private calamities sink in public ones. W.

VER. 17. Silence, for such manifold calamities, if thou canst screen thyself from the enemy, who will otherwise take offence, as he has brought them on. H.—Dead. Priests were allowed to mourn only for father or mother, and their unmarried brothers and sisters. Lev. xxi. 1. Ezechiel (xlv. 25.) adds, Son and daughter. Many think the wife must also be understood, as she is nearer than a brother. The reasons for these prohibitions did not then subsist, as no sacrifice could be offered in Chaldea; and therefore God here specifies what the prophet was not to do, (C.) though lawful on other occasions. Sanct.—Tire. Lit. "crown," bandage, (C.) or parchment, on which parts of the law were written. Sept. "Let (Rom. ed. adds, not) the hair of thy head be curled (or ruffed; συνπλεγμενον) upon thee." H.—It was usually cut in mourning. S. Jer.—Feet. They were bare, at funerals, and in times of sorrow. 2 K. xv. 30.—Face, like David. Heb. "the upper lip," which mourners and lepers covered. Lev. xiii. 45. C.—Mourners. were prepared by the relations, (Jos. Bel. ii. 1.) and friends sent some food, but no delicacies, to those who mourned. Lev. v. 9.

VER. 27. No more, if thou darest to speak before the Chaldeans, v. 17. Reserve thy tears and lamentations for that time. C.

CHAP. XXV. VER. 2-3. Ammon. These nations were punished five years after the Jews. C. xxi. 19. Jer. xxvii. 3. C.—"Egypt, Syria, Phœnicia, and Arabia," were conquered. Beros.—Hast. God saw their dispositions, which they manifested afterwards. C.—They rejoiced most, and were therefore punished with other nations. W.

VER. 4. East; the Chaldeans, (Sanct.) who conquered them, (H.) though the Scenite Arabs, who occupied the country after the inhabitants were removed, or the Armenians and Agarens, are rather meant than the Chaldees. W.

VER. 7. Lord, and that it was not through impotence that my people became a prey. Ammon and Moab returned after some time. v. 10. C. xvi. 58. Jer. xlix. 6.

VER. 8. Seir; Idumea.—Nations, whose gods could not defend them. C.—Thus they blasphemed the Lord. Theod.

VER. 9. Shoulder; reduce to slavery, (H.) or take the strong places, (Jer. xlviii. 7. C.) or cities and strength of Moab. W.

13 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: I will stretch forth my hand upon Edom, and will take away out of it man and beast, and will make it desolate from the south: and they that are in Dedan, shall fall by the sword.

14 And I will lay my vengeance upon Edom, by the hand of my people Israel: and they shall do in Edom according to my wrath and my fury: and they shall know my vengeance, saith the Lord God.

15 Thus saith the Lord God: Because the Philistines have taken vengeance, and have revenged themselves with all their mind, destroying and satisfying old enmities:

16 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I will stretch forth my hand upon the Philistines, and will kill the killers, and will destroy the remnant of the sea coast.

17 And I will execute great vengeance upon them, rebuking them in fury: and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall lay my vengeance upon them.

CHAP. XXVI.

A prophecy of the destruction of the famous city of Tyre by Nabuchodonosor.

AND "it came to pass in the eleventh year, the first day of the month, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

2 Son of man, because Tyre hath said of Jerusalem: Aha, the gates of the people are broken, she is turned to me: I shall be filled, now she is laid waste.

3 Therefore thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I come against thee, O Tyre, and I will cause many nations to come up to thee, as the waves of the sea rise up.

4 And they shall break down the walls of Tyre, and destroy the towers thereof: and I will scrape her dust from her, and make her like a smooth rock.

5 She shall be a drying-place for nets in the midst of the sea, because I have spoken it, saith the Lord God: and she shall be a spoil to the nations.

6 Her daughters also that are in the field, shall be slain by the sword: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

7 For thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I will bring against Tyre Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, the king of kings, from the north, with horses, and chariots, and horsemen, and companies, and much people.

8 Thy daughters that are in the field, he shall kill with the sword: and he shall compass thee with forts, and shall cast up a mount round about: and he shall lift up the buckler against thee.

9 And he shall set engines of war and battering rams against thy walls, and shall destroy thy towers with his arms.

10 By reason of the multitude of his horses, their dust shall cover thee: thy walls shall shake at the noise of the horsemen, and wheels, and chariots, when they shall go in at thy gates, as by the entrance of a city that is destroyed.

11 With the hoofs of his horses he shall tread down all thy streets: thy people he shall kill with the sword: and thy famous statues shall fall to the ground.

12 They shall waste thy riches, they shall make a spoil of thy merchandise: and they shall destroy thy walls, and pull down thy fine houses: and they shall lay thy stones, and thy timber, and thy dust, in the midst of the waters.

13 ^bAnd I will make the multitude of thy songs to cease, and the sound of thy harps shall be heard no more.

14 And I will make thee like a naked rock, thou shalt be a drying place for nets, neither shalt thou be built any more: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord God.

15 Thus saith the Lord God to Tyre: Shall not the islands shake at the sound of thy fall, and the groans of thy slain, when they shall be killed in the midst of thee?

16 Then all the princes of the sea shall come down from their thrones: and take off their robes, and cast

VER. 10. With, or "like thee." Moab (v. 11.) shall be treated like Ammon. H.—Heb. "As for thee," &c. C.

VER. 12. Revenge; exhorting the Chaldeans to destroy utterly, (Pa. cxxxvi. 7.) and seizing every opportunity of injuring the Jews. 2 Par. xxviii. 18. Amos i. 11.

VER. 13. South. Heb. "Theman," a city at one extremity. The Chaldeans laid waste the country, (C. xxxii. 29.) but did not remove the people, who seized the southern parts of Judah, till they were forced to submit to the Machabees.

VER. 15. Enmities. They also watched every moment to injure the Jews. Amos i. 5. But Nabuchodonosor was irritated, because they had assisted Tyre. Jer. xlvii. 4.

VER. 16. Killers. Heb. "Ceretheans." David's guards were of this nation. 2 K. viii. 18. They came originally from Crete; and the Sept. have here, "Creteans;" (C.) as Grabe substitutes for "Judges of Sidon." H.—Chal. "archers."—Remnant. They deserve not the name of a nation, having been much reduced by Egypt and the Chaldeans. C.

CHAP. XXVI. VER. 1. Year of the prophet's captivity. H.—He still dates from the transmigration of Joachin. C. i. &c. W.—Some think he speaks of the first, fourth, or fifth month. Tyre was not besieged till after the ninth day of the fourth month, when Jerusalem was taken; nor could she express her joy for that event before, unless God allude to her dispositions, &c. C. xxv. 1. C.

VER. 2. Gates: places of resort and commerce. The Jews came to Jerusalem frequently from all parts, which increased her beauty and trade. New Tyre expects that more will come to her.

VER. 3. Up. Nabuchodonosor besieged the city for thirteen years. The profane historians read by S. Jerom took no notice of this; but Josephus quotes several. An. x. 11. and c. Ap. i. C.

VER. 4. Dust. She shall be demolished, and the rubbish thrown into the sea, to make a road by which New Tyre in the island might be attacked. v. 12. H.

VER. 5. Sea. S. Jerom explains this of New Tyre; Marsham of the Old Tyre. To reconcile the different texts, we only need to suppose that both cities were connected by a road thrown up in the sea by Hiram, and repaired by Nabuchodonosor with great labour, (C. xxix. 18.) after it had been destroyed by the inhabitants of New Tyre, when they saw the old city on the continent fall a prey. S. Jer. C.

VER. 7. Kings: Nabuchodonosor (4 K. xxv. 28.) or Alexander, who took Tyre. M.

VER. 8. Daughters. Many towns were subject to Tyre; almost all Phœnicia acknowledged her dominion, as well as (C.) the seas to which her fleets went. v. 15. Selden. Mare i. 8. Curt. iv.—These smaller cities shall fall, and the town shall be of no service except to dry nets. W.

VER. 9. Engines. Lit. "vines." H.—A covert was thus made for the soldiers, (Veget. iv. 15.) when they approached the walls. M.

VER. 10. Destroyed. Old Tyre was taken by storm. It is doubtful whether it was pillaged. C. xxix. 18. C.

VER. 11. Statuses. The citizens chained the golden statue of Apollo to the altar of Hercules, for fear of its leaving them, when Alexander attacked the town. Curt. iv.—Hiram placed a pillar of gold in the temple of Hercules. Jos. C. Ap. i.—Herodotus (ii. 44.) saw another also of emerald stone, (smaragdus) which illuminated the temple in the night. On such the Tyrians might depend; though some render, "the substance or guard of thy strength," denoting the soldiers (C.) and towers. H.—The gods were treated like the people, and their precious ornaments plundered.

VER. 14. More, for seventy years. Is. xxiii. 15. The people returned at the same time as the Jews. A. 3468. Soon after, Zacharias (C. ix.) speaks of Tyre as then subsisting. It was very strong in Alexander's time, (who took it with difficulty, as Antigonus did eighteen years later) and had a very extensive commerce when S. Jerom wrote. But all this must be understood of New Tyre. The old city never regained much splendour. C.—It is still in ruins. A modern traveller was struck with the completion of this prophecy, beholding a few miserable fishermen drying their nets on the spot!

VER. 16. Sea colonies, or tributary to Tyre v. 8. H.—Leptis, Utica, Carthage, and Cadix, were founded by Tyrians. Pliny v. 19.—Some pretend that these cities were attacked by the conquerors, for manifesting their grief. See (1061) away their broidered garments, and be clothed with astonishment: they shall sit on the ground, and with amazement shall wonder at thy sudden fall.

17 And taking up a lamentation over thee, they shall say to thee: How art thou fallen, that dwellest in the sea, renowned city, that wast strong in the sea, with thy inhabitants, whom all did dread?

18 Now shall the ships be astonished in the day of thy terror: and the islands in the sea shall be troubled, because no one cometh out of thee.

19 For thus saith the Lord God: When I shall make thee a desolate city, like the cities that are not inhabited: and shall bring the deep upon thee, and many waters shall cover thee:

20 And when I shall bring thee down with those that descend into the pit to the everlasting people, and shall set thee in the lowest parts of the earth as places desolate of old, with them that are brought down into the pit, that thou be not inhabited: and when I shall give glory in the land of the living,

21 I will bring thee to nothing, and thou shalt not be, and if thou be sought for, thou shalt not be found any more for ever, saith the Lord God.

A description of the glory and riches of Tyre: and of her irrecoverable fall.

AND the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

2 Thou, therefore, O son of man, take up a lamentation for Tyre:

3 And say to Tyre, that dwelleth at the entry of the sea, being the mart of the people for many islands: Thus saith the Lord God: O Tyre, thou hast said: I am of perfect beauty,

4 And situate in the heart of the sea. Thy neighbours, that built thee, have perfected thy beauty:

5 With fir-trees of Sanir they have built thee, with all sea planks: they have taken cedars from Libanus to make thee masts.

6 They have cut thy oars out of the oaks of Basan: and they have made thee benches of Indian ivory,

7 Fine broidered linen from Egypt was woven for thy sail, to be spread on thy mast: blue and purple from the islands of Elisa, were made thy covering.

8 The inhabitants of Sidon, and the Aradians were thy rowers: thy wise men, O Tyre, were thy pilots.

9 The ancients of Gebal, and the wise men thereof, furnished mariners, for the service of thy various furniture: all the ships of the sea, and their mariners, were thy factors.

10 The Persians, and Lydians, and the Lybians, were thy soldiers, in thy army: they hanged up the buckler and the helmet in thee for thy ornament.

11 The men of Arad were with thy army upon thy walls round about: the Pygmians also that were in thy towers, hung up their quivers on thy walls round about: they perfected thy beauty.

12 The Carthaginians, thy merchants, supplied thy fairs with a multitude of all kinds of riches, with silver, iron, tin, and lead.

13 Greece, Thubal, and Mosoch, they were thy merchants: they brought to thy people slaves and vessels of brass.

14 From the house of Thogorma they brought horses, and horsemen, and mules, to thy market.

15 The men of Dedan were thy merchants: many islands were the traffic of thy hand, they exchanged for thy price teeth of ivory, and ebony.

16 The Syrian was thy merchant, by reason of the multitude of thy works, they set forth precious stones, and purple, and broidered works, and fine linen, and silk, and chodchod, in thy market.

17 Juda, and the land of Israel, they were thy merchants with the best corn: they set forth balm, and honey, and oil, and rosin, in thy fairs.

20 The men of Dedan were thy merchants in tapes-try for seats.

21 Arabia, and all the princes of Cedar, they were the merchants of thy hand: thy merchants came to thee with lambs, and rams, and kids.

22 The sellers of Saba, and Reema, they were thy merchants: with all the best spices, and precious stones, and gold, which they set forth in thy market.

23 Haran, and Chene, and Eden, were thy merchants: Saba, Assur, and Chelmad, sold to thee.

24 They were thy merchants in divers manners, with bales of blue cloth, and of embroidered work, and of precious riches, which were wrapped up, and bound with cords: they had cedars also in thy merchandise.

26 Thy rowers have brought thee into great waters: the south wind hath broken thee in the heart of the sea.

27 Thy riches, and thy treasures, and thy manifold furniture, thy mariners, and thy pilots, who kept thy goods, and were chief over thy people: thy men of war also, that were in thee, with all thy multitude that is in the midst of thee: shall fall in the heart of the sea, in the day of thy ruin.

28 Thy fleets shall be troubled at the sound of the cry of thy pilots.

29 And all that handled the oar, shall come down from their ships: the mariners, and all the pilots of the sea, shall stand upon the land.

30 And they shall mourn over thee with a loud voice, and shall cry bitterly: and they shall cast up dust upon their heads, and shall be sprinkled with ashes.

31 And they shall shave themselves bald for thee, and shall be girded with hair-cloth: and they shall weep for thee with bitterness of soul, with most bitter weeping.

32 And they shall take up a mournful song for thee, and shall lament thee: What city is like Tyre, which is become silent in the midst of the sea?

33 Which by thy merchandise, that went from thee by sea, didst fill many people: which by the multitude of thy riches, and of thy people, didst enrich the kings of the earth.

34 Now thou art destroyed by the sea, thy riches are in the bottom of the waters, and all the multitude that was in the midst of thee is fallen.

35 All the inhabitants of the islands are astonished at thee: and all their kings, being struck with the storm, have changed their countenance.

36 The merchants of people have hissed at thee: thou art brought to nothing, and thou shalt never be any more.

CHAP. XXVIII.

The king of Tyre, who affected to be like to God, shall fall under the like sentence with Lucifer. The judgment of Sidon. The restoration of Israel.

AND *the word of the Lord came to me, saying:
2 Son of man: say to the prince of Tyre: Thus saith the Lord God: Because thy heart is lifted up, and thou hast said: I am God, and I sit in the chair of God, in the heart of the sea: whereas, thou art a man, and not God: and hast set thy heart as if it were the heart of God.

3 Behold thou art wiser than Daniel: no secret is hid from thee.

4 In thy wisdom, and thy understanding, thou hast made thyself strong: and hast gotten gold, and silver, into thy treasures.

5 By the greatness of thy wisdom, and by thy traffic, thou hast increased thy strength: and thy heart is lifted up with thy strength.

6 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: Because thy heart is lifted up as the heart of God:

7 Therefore behold, I will bring upon thee strangers, the strongest of the nations: and they shall draw their swords against the beauty of thy wisdom, and they shall defile thy beauty.

8 They shall kill thee, and bring thee down: and thou shalt die the death of them that are slain in the heart of the sea.

9 Wilt thou yet say before them that slay thee: I am God; whereas thou art a man, and not God, in the hand of them that slay thee?

10 Thou shalt die the death of the uncircumcised by the hand of strangers: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord God.

11 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: Son of man, take up a lamentation upon the king of Tyre:

VER. 26. South. Heb. kodim, (H.) "eastern," or rather "burning," here means Nabuchodonosor, who came from the north, (C. xxvi. 7. C.) or east. The fall of Tyre is described as a shipwreck. H.

VER. 30. Ashes. They followed the same customs as the Jews. C.—The latter were ordered to avoid cutting the hair, like them; yet did so. Deut. xiv. 18. xxii. 12. W.

VER. 36. Hissed, through pity and astonishment. C.

CHAP. XXVIII. VER. 2. Prince. The Jews say Hiram, (S. Jer.) supposing that he lived a thousand years; though this is not requisite, as he died only four hundred and thirty years before. The idea is childish. The king who was taken and slain at this siege, was probably (C.) Ithobalos. Jos. Ant. x. 11.—Origen applies this to the angel guardian of Tyre. S. Aug. thinks an allusion is made to the fall of Lucifer. But it may all refer to the king, (C.) though others explain part of him and the rest of the devil. S. Jer. E.

VER. 3. Than Daniel; viz., in thy own conceit. The wisdom of Daniel was so much celebrated in his days, that it became a proverb among the Chaldeans, when any one would express an extraordinary wisdom, to say he was as wise as Daniel. Ch. W.—He was now at court, and had explained the dream of Nabuchodonosor. Dan. ii. 27.

VER. 10. Uncircumcised. The Jews deem this a disgrace. 1 K. xxxi. 4. The king would be exposed to eternal death, being devoid of faith, &c. C.

VER. 12. Resemblance. The king of Tyre, by his dignity and his natural perfections, bore in himself a certain resemblance of God, by reason of which he might be called the seal of resemblance, &c. But what is here said to him is commonly understood of Lucifer, the king over all the children of pride. Ch.—A seal is perfect when it represents things exactly. The prophet speaks ironically, to repress the king's vanity.

13 Thou wast in the pleasures of the paradise of God: every precious stone was thy covering: the sardius, the topaz, and the jasper, the chrysolite, and the onyx, and the beryl, the sapphire, and the carbuncle, and the emerald: gold, the work of thy beauty: and thy pipes were prepared in the day that thou wast created.

14 Thou a cherub stretched out, and protecting, and I set thee in the holy mountain of God, thou hast walked in the midst of the stones of fire.

15 Thou wast perfect in thy ways from the day of thy creation, until iniquity was found in thee.

16 By the multitude of thy merchandise, thy inner parts were filled with iniquity, and thou hast sinned: and I cast thee out from the mountain of God, and destroyed thee, O covering cherub, out of the midst of the stones of fire.

17 And thy heart was lifted up with thy beauty: thou hast lost thy wisdom in thy beauty, I have cast thee to the ground: I have set thee before the face of kings, that they might behold thee.

18 Thou hast defiled thy sanctuaries by the multitude of thy iniquities, and by the iniquity of thy traffic: therefore, I will bring forth a fire from the midst of thee, to devour thee: and I will make thee as ashes upon the earth, in the sight of all that see thee.

19 All that shall see thee among the nations, shall be astonished at thee: thou art brought to nothing, and thou shalt never be any more.

20 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

21 Son of man, set thy face against Sidon: and thou shalt prophesy of it,

22 And shalt say: Thus saith the Lord God: Behold I come against thee, Sidon, and I will be glorified in the midst of thee: and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall execute judgments in her, and shall be sanctified in her.

23 And I will send into her pestilence, and blood in her streets: and they shall fall, being slain by the sword, on all sides, in the midst thereof: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

24 And the house of Israel shall have no more a stumbling-block of bitterness, nor a thorn causing pain on every side round about them, of them that are against them: and they shall know that I am the Lord God.

25 Thus saith the Lord God: When I shall have gathered together the house of Israel, out of the people among whom they are scattered: I will be sanctified in them before the Gentiles: and they shall dwell in their own land, which I gave to my servant, Jacob.

26 And they shall dwell therein secure, and they shall build houses, and shall plant vineyards, and shall dwell with confidence, when I shall have executed judgments upon all that are their enemies round about: and they shall know that I am the Lord their God.

CHAP. XXIX.

The king of Egypt shall be overthrown, and his kingdom wasted. It shall be given to Nabuchodonosor, for his service against Tyre.

IN *the tenth year, the tenth month, the eleventh day of the month, the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

2 Son of man, set thy face against Pharaoh, king of Egypt: and thou shalt prophesy of him, and of all Egypt:

3 Speak, and say: Thus saith the Lord God: Behold I come against thee, Pharaoh, king of Egypt, thou great dragon that liest in the midst of thy rivers, and sayest: The river is mine, and I made myself.

4 But I will put a bridle in thy jaws: and I will cause the fish of thy rivers to stick to thy scales: and I will draw thee out of the midst of thy rivers, and all thy fish shall stick to thy scales.

5 And I will cast thee forth into the desert, and all the fish of thy river: thou shalt fall upon the face of the earth; thou shalt not be taken up nor gathered together: I have given thee for meat to the beasts of the earth, and to the fowls of the air.

VER. 13. Paradise. Thou hadst every thing delightful at Tyre. C.—Covering. Heb. "bandage;" diadem, (H.) or belt. Sept. specify twelve stones. See Ex. xxviii. 17.—Pipes; music used at the coronation, which was celebrated as a birth-day. C.—God gives and withdraws power from all kings. As long as they act well, they are in a sort of sanctuary. H.

VER. 14. Stretched out. That is, thy wings extended. This alludes to the figure of the cherubims in the sanctuary, which with stretched out wings covered the ark, (Ch.) on the holy mountain. S. Jer. &c.—Fire. That is, bright and precious stones, which sparkle like fire. Ch.—With these the king's robes glittered, or he walked upon them. Est. i. 6. C.—Calcabatur onyx. Lucan x.

VER. 15. Iniquity. Tyre was before wicked; but when the king pretended to be a god, (v. 2.) it could no longer be endured. W.

VER. 17. Beauty. Riches have corrupted thy heart.

VER. 18. Sanctuaries, or temples, which was a crime (C.) in an idolater, as he took them to be the temples of a real deity. H.

VER. 22. Sidon. It gave rise to Tyre, yet was now inferior, though independent of it, (Isa. xxiii. 4.) or subject to Egypt. Diod. ii. 2.—It was now pillaged.

VER. 24. Bitterness. Jezabel came hence; (4 K. xvi. 31.) and the Phœnicians hemmed in the Israelites as much as possible, and fought against them. C.—Sidon was near Tyre, and imitating her crimes was also punished.

VER. 25. When. All shall praise God, seeing that he receives his people again after he has justly chastised them. W.

CHAP. XXIX. VER. 1. Eleventh. Heb. "twelfth." Sept. "first of the twelfth month of the twelfth year." There are other variations in the versions. S. Jerom reads the first in Heb. as Theodoret does, who says that it and the Syr. have the twelfth year; which is true, if we neglect the points. C.—The prophets do not observe the order of times. What is here delivered, was sooner fulfilled; or Tyre and Sodom lay nearer than Egypt. W.—The three next chapters regard that country.

VER. 2. Pharaoh, Ephraïm. Jer. xlv. 30. He came to assist Sedecias; but the Chaldeans raised the siege, went to meet him, and defeated his army. After they had subdued the neighbouring nations, Tyre, &c. they fell upon Egypt. A. 3433. C.

VER. 3. Dragon. Heb. tannin, (H.) whence thynnus may be derived, means any water monster, and seems here put for the crocodile, (C.) which Pharaoh signifies. Grot.—It was the symbol of Egypt, (C.) and adored by the people. Juv. xv. 2.—Rivers; the different branches of the Nile, and the canals.—Myself. I owe my power to no other. C.—"Apries is said to think that no god could deprive him of the kingdom, so well he seemed to have established it." Hierod. ii. 109.—So the ancient Pharaoh said; I know not the Lord. Ex. v. 2. He boasts of having conducted the waters of the Nile through the land. v. 9. M.—This river was honoured as the greatest of the gods. Heliod. 9.—

Aut Jovis; in solo tanta est fiducia Nilo.—Lucan viii.

VER. 4. Bridle. The Tentyrians jump upon the crocodile's back, give it a club to bite at, which they seize with both hands, and bring it to the shore. Pliny viii. 25.—Others throw a hook baited with swine's flesh, and holding the rope on the shore, make a little pig squeak, which draws the attention of the crocodile; and, as it comes for its prey, it swallows the hook, and its eyes being filled with dust is easily slain. Herod. ii. 70.—Apries sent an army against Cyrene, which being defeated as it was thought by the king's fault, many of the Egyptians revolted. He sent Amasis to reduce them, but they gave him the crown. Herod. ii. 161. and iv. 159.—Nabuchodonosor taking advantage of these disturbances, and perhaps invited by Amasis, entered Egypt, drove Apries into the Higher Egypt, slew many of the inhabitants, and Jews, &c. and left Amasis to govern the wretched remains of that kingdom. Usher, A. 3430. The Scripture, however, seems to say that Pharaoh was slain; (Jer. xliii. &c. C.) which Ctesias assures us was done by Amasis, though Herodotus (ii. 169.) says he was killed by the people, and buried with his fathers. This latter circumstance is not very probable; but the historian followed the account of the priests, who would mention what was most honourable for the nation. He seems to have

6 And all the inhabitants of Egypt shall know that I am the Lord: *because thou hast been a staff of a reed to the house of Israel.

7 When they took hold of thee with the hand, thou didst break and rend all their shoulders; and when they leaned upon thee, thou brokest and weakenedst all their loins.

8 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I will bring the sword upon thee, and cut off man and beast out of thee.

9 And the land of Egypt shall become a desert and a wilderness: and they shall know that I am the Lord: because thou hast said: The river is mine, and I made it.

10 Therefore, behold I come against thee and thy rivers: and I will make the land of Egypt utterly desolate, and wasted by the sword, from the tower of Syene even to the borders of Ethiopia.

11 The foot of man shall not pass through it, neither shall the foot of beast go through it; nor shall it be inhabited during forty years.

12 And I will make the land of Egypt desolate in the midst of the lands that are desolate, and the cities thereof in the midst of the cities that are destroyed, and they shall be desolate for forty years: and I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and will disperse them through the countries.

13 For thus saith the Lord God: At the end of forty years, I will gather the Egyptians from the people among whom they had been scattered.

14 And I will bring back the captivity of Egypt, and will place them in the land of Phatures, in the land of their nativity, and they shall be there a low kingdom:

15 It shall be the lowest among other kingdoms, and it shall no more be exalted over the nations; and I will diminish them, that they shall rule no more over the nations.

16 And they shall be no more a confidence to the house of Israel, teaching iniquity, that they may flee, and follow them: and they shall know that I am the Lord God.

17 And it came to pass in the seven and twentieth year, ^bin the first month, in the first of the month, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

18 Son of man, Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, hath made his army to undergo hard service against Tyre: every head was made bald, and every shoulder was peeled: and there hath been no reward given him, nor his army for Tyre, for the service that he rendered me against it.

19 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: Behold I will set Nabuchodonosor, the king of Babylon, in the land of Egypt: *and he shall take her multitude, and take the booty thereof for a prey, and rifle the spoils thereof: and it shall be wages for his army,

20 And for the service that he hath done me against it: I have given him the land of Egypt, because he hath laboured for me, saith the Lord God.

21 In that day a horn shall bud forth to the house of Israel, and I will give thee an open mouth in the midst of them: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

CHAP. XXX.

The desolation of Egypt and her helpers: all her cities shall be wasted.

AND the word of the Lord came to me, ^dsaying:

2 Son of man, prophesy and say: Thus saith the Lord God: Howl ye, wo, wo to the day:

3 For the day is near, yea the day of the Lord is near; a cloudy day, it shall be the time of the nations.

4 And the sword shall come upon Egypt: and there shall be dread in Ethiopia, when the wounded shall fall in Egypt, and the multitude thereof shall be taken away, and the foundations thereof shall be destroyed.

5 Ethiopia, and Lybia, and Lydia, and all the rest of the crowd, and Chub, and the children of the land of the covenant, shall fall with them by the sword.

6 Thus saith the Lord God: They also that uphold Egypt shall fall, and the pride of her empire shall be brought down: from the tower of Syene shall they fall in it by the sword, saith the Lord, the God of hosts.

7 And they shall be desolate in the midst of the lands that are desolate, and the cities thereof shall be in the midst of the cities that are wasted.

8 And they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have set a fire in Egypt, and all the helpers thereof shall be destroyed.

9 In that day shall messengers go forth from my face, in ships, to destroy the confidence of Ethiopia; and there shall be dread among them in the day of Egypt: because it shall certainly come.

10 Thus saith the Lord God: I will make the multitude of Egypt to cease by the hand of Nabuchodonosor, the king of Babylon.

11 He, and his people with him, the strongest of nations, shall be brought to destroy the land: and they shall draw their swords upon Egypt, and shall fill the land with the slain.

12 And I will make the channels of the rivers dry, and will deliver the land into the hand of the wicked: and will lay waste the land, and all that is therein, by the hand of strangers: I, the Lord, have spoken it.

13 Thus saith the Lord God: I will also destroy the idols, and I will make an end of the idols of Memphis: and there shall be no more a prince of the land of Egypt: and I will cause a terror in the land of Egypt.

14 And I will destroy the land of Phatures, and will make a fire in Taphnis, and will execute judgments in Alexandria.

15 And I will pour out my indignation upon Pelusium, the strength of Egypt, and will cut off the multitude of Alexandria.

16 And I will make a fire in Egypt: Pelusium shall be in pain, like a woman in labour, and Alexandria shall be laid waste, and in Memphis there shall be daily distresses.

17 The young men of Heliopolis, and of Bubastus, shall fall by the sword; and they themselves shall go into captivity.

18 And in Taphnis, the day shall be darkened when I shall break there the sceptres of Egypt, and the pride of her power shall cease in her: a cloud shall cover her, and her daughters shall be led into captivity.

19 And I will execute judgments in Egypt: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

20 And it came to pass in the eleventh year, ^bin the first month, in the seventh day of the month, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

21 Son of man, I have broken the arm of Pharaoh, king of Egypt; and behold it is not bound up, to be healed, to be tied up with clothes, and swathed with linen, that it might recover strength and hold the sword.

22 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: Behold I come against Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and I will break into pieces his strong arm, which is already broken: and I will cause the sword to fall out of his hand:

23 And I will disperse Egypt among the nations, and scatter them through the countries.

24 And I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and will put my sword in his hand: and I will break the arms of Pharaoh, and they shall groan bitterly, being slain before his face.

25 And I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and the arms of Pharaoh shall fall: and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have given my sword into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall have stretched it forth upon the land of Egypt.

26 And I will disperse Egypt among the nations, and will scatter them through the countries, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

CHAP. XXXI.

The Assyrian empire fell for their pride: the Egyptian shall fall in like manner.

AND it came to pass in the eleventh year, the third month, the first day of the month, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

2 Son of man, speak to Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and to his people: To whom art thou like, in thy greatness:

3 Behold, the Assyrian was like a cedar in Libanus, with fair branches, and full of leaves, of a high stature, and his top was elevated among the thick boughs.

4 The waters nourished him, the deep set him up on high, the streams thereof ran round about his roots, and it sent forth its rivulets to all the trees of the country.

5 Therefore was his height exalted above all the trees of the country: and his branches were multiplied, and his boughs were elevated because of many waters.

6 And when he had spread forth his shadow, all the fowls of the air made their nests in his boughs, and all the beasts of the forest brought forth their young under his branches, and the assembly of many nations dwelt under his shadow.

7 And he was most beautiful for his greatness, and for the spreading of his branches: for his root was near great waters.

8 The cedars in the paradise of God were not higher than he, the fir-trees did not equal his top, neither were the plane-trees to be compared with him for branches: no tree in the paradise of God, was like him in his beauty.

9 For I made him beautiful, and thick set with many branches: and all the trees of pleasure, that were in the paradise of God, envied him.

10 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: Because he was exalted in height, and shot up his top green and thick, and his heart was lifted up in his height:

11 I have delivered him into the hands of the mighty one of the nations, he shall deal with him: I have cast him out according to his wickedness.

12 And strangers and the most cruel of the nations shall cut him down, and cast him away upon the mountains, and his boughs shall fall in every valley, and his branches shall be broken on every rock of the country: and all the people of the earth shall depart from his shadow, and leave him.

13 All the fowls of the air dwelt upon his ruins, and all the beasts of the field were among his branches.

14 For which cause none of the trees by the waters shall exalt themselves for their height: nor shoot up their tops among the thick branches and leaves, neither shall any of them that are watered stand up in their height: for they are all delivered unto death to the lowest parts of the earth, in the midst of the children of men, with them that go down into the pit.

15 Thus saith the Lord God: In the day when he went down to hell, I brought in mourning, I covered him with the deep: and withheld its rivers, and restrained the many waters: Libanus grieved for him, and all the trees of the field trembled.

16 I shook the nations with the sound of his fall, when I brought him down to hell with them that descend into the pit: and all the trees of pleasure, the choice and best in Libanus, all that were moistened with waters, were comforted in the lowest parts of the earth.

17 For they also shall go down with him to hell to them that are slain by the sword: and the arm of every one shall sit down under his shadow in the midst of the nations.

18 To whom art thou like, O thou that art famous and lofty among the trees of pleasure? Behold, thou art brought down with the trees of pleasure, to the lowest parts of the earth: thou shalt sleep in the midst of the uncircumcised, with them that are slain by the sword: this is Pharaoh, and all his multitude, saith the Lord God.

3 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: *I will spread out my net over thee with the multitude of many people, and I will draw thee up in my net.

4 And I will throw thee out on the land; I will cast thee away in the open field; and I will cause all the fowls of the air to dwell upon thee; and I will fill the beasts of all the earth with thee.

5 And I will lay thy flesh upon the mountains, and will fill thy hills with thy corruption.

6 And I will water the earth with thy stinking blood upon the mountains, and the valleys shall be filled with thee.

7 *And I will cover the heavens, when thou shalt be put out, and I will make the stars thereof dark: I will cover the sun with a cloud, and the moon shall not give her light.

8 I will make all the lights of heaven to mourn over thee, and I will cause darkness upon thy land, saith the Lord God, when thy wounded shall fall in the midst of the land, saith the Lord God.

9 And I shall provoke to anger the heart of many people, when I shall have brought in thy destruction among the nations upon the lands which thou knowest not.

10 And I will make many people to be amazed at thee, and their kings shall be horribly afraid for thee, when my sword shall begin to fly upon their faces: and they shall be astonished on a sudden, every one for his own life, in the day of thy ruin.

11 For thus saith the Lord God: The sword of the king of Babylon shall come upon thee.

12 By the swords of the mighty I will overthrow thy multitude: all these nations are invincible: and they shall waste the pride of Egypt, and the multitude thereof shall be destroyed.

13 I will destroy also all the beasts thereof, that were beside the great waters: and the foot of man shall trouble them no more, neither shall the hoof of beasts trouble them.

30 There are all the princes of the north, and all the hunters: who were brought down with the slain, fearing and confounded in their strength: who slept uncircumcised with them that are slain by the sword, and have borne their shame with them that go down into the pit.

31 Pharaoh saw them, and he was comforted concerning all his multitude, which was slain by the sword: Pharaoh, and all his army, saith the Lord God:

32 Because I have spread my terror in the land of the living, and he hath slept in the midst of the uncircumcised with them that are slain by the sword: Pharaoh, and all his multitude, saith the Lord God.

CHAP. XXXIII.

The duty of the watchman appointed by God: the justice of God's ways: his judgments upon the Jews.

AND the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

2 Son of man, speak to the children of thy people, and say to them: When I bring the sword upon a land, if the people of the land take a man, one of their meanest, and make him a watchman over them:

3 And he see the sword coming upon the land, and sound the trumpet, and tell the people:

4 Then he that heareth the sound of the trumpet, whosoever he be, and doth not look to himself, if the sword come and cut him off, his blood shall be upon his own head.

5 He heard the sound of the trumpet, and did not look to himself; his blood shall be upon him: but if he look to himself, he shall save his life.

6 And if the watchman see the sword coming, and sound not the trumpet, and the people look not to themselves, and the sword come and cut off a soul from among them; he indeed is taken away in his iniquity,

VER. 28. Midst. This threat would make great impression on the Egyptians, who were particularly solicitous to be buried with their fathers.

VER. 29. Edom. Sept. add, "and all the Assyrian princes." Some copies omit Edom. H.—This nation had laid aside circumcision; which Hircan forced them to resume. They had been present at the siege of Jerusalem. C. xxxv. C.

VER. 30. Hunters of men, like Nemrod, the first king of Assyria. H.

VER. 32. My. Heb. Sept. "his," (C.) alluding to the ravages of Nechao; (Grot.) though the Heb. may also signify my, as the Jews read Egypt, and Palestine, the land of the living, were filled with terror. After the latter had been chastised, Pharaoh might dread (C.) a worse fate; (H.) and the multitudes slain before him, might afford him some (C.) wretched consolation. H.—It is evident that these nations believed the existence of separate spirits, and had not given in to the errors of the Sadducees, or of the Metempsychosis. C.

CHAP. XXXIII. VER. 2. Take. Before (C. iii. 17.) God made the choice, (C.) as he does here, v. 7. He confirms the authority of those who are appointed to govern.—Meanest. Lit. "last," (H.) which seems to denote such as are chosen without regard to their dignity or obscurity in life. Gen. xlvii. 2. and 3 K. xii. 31. but I will require his blood at the hand of the watchman.

7 *So thou, O son of man, I have made thee a watchman to the house of Israel: therefore, thou shalt hear the word from my mouth, and shalt tell it them from me.

8 When I say to the wicked: O wicked man, thou shalt surely die: if thou dost not speak to warn the wicked man from his way, that wicked man shall die in his iniquity, but I will require his blood at thy hand.

9 But if thou tell the wicked man, that he may be converted from his ways, and he be not converted from his way, he shall die in his iniquity; but thou hast delivered thy soul.

10 Thou therefore, O son of man, say to the house of Israel: Thus you have spoken, saying: Our iniquities and our sins are upon us, and we pine away in them; how then can we live?

11 ^bSay to them: As I live, saith the Lord God, I desire not the death of the wicked, but that the wicked turn from his way, and live. Turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways: and why will ye die, O house of Israel?

12 Thou therefore, O son of man, say to the children of thy people: The justice of the just shall not deliver him, in what day soever he shall sin; and the wickedness of the wicked shall not hurt him, in what day soever he shall turn from his wickedness; and the just shall not be able to live in his justice, in what day soever he shall sin.

13 Yea, if I shall say to the just that he shall surely live, and he, trusting in his justice, commit iniquity, all his justices shall be forgotten: and in his iniquity, which he hath committed, in the same shall he die.

14 And if I shall say to the wicked: Thou shalt surely die: and he do penance for his sin and do judgment and justice;

15 And if that wicked man restore the pledge, and render what he had robbed, and walk in the commandments of life, and do no unjust thing, he shall surely live, and shall not die.

16 None of his sins, which he hath committed, shall be imputed to him; he hath done judgment and justice, he shall surely live.

17 And the children of thy people have said: The way of the Lord is not equitable: whereas, their own way is unjust.

18 For when the just shall depart from his justice, and commit iniquities, he shall die in them.

19 And when the wicked shall depart from his wickedness, and shall do judgments and justice, he shall live in them.

20 And you say: "The way of the Lord is not right: I will judge every one of you according to his ways, O house of Israel.

21 And it came to pass in the twelfth year^d of our captivity, in the tenth month, in the fifth day of the month, that there came to me one that was fled from Jerusalem, saying: The city is laid waste.

22 And the hand of the Lord had been upon me in the evening, before he that was fled came; and he opened my mouth till he came to me in the morning, and my mouth being opened, I was silent no more.

23 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

24 Son of man, they that dwell in these ruinous places in the land of Israel, speak, saying: Abraham was one, and he inherited the land; but we are many, the land is given us in possession.

25 Therefore say to them: Thus saith the Lord God: You that eat with the blood, and lift up your eyes to your uncleannesses, and that shed blood: shall you possess the land by inheritance?

26 You stood on your swords, you have committed abominations, and every one hath defiled his neighbour's wife: and shall you possess the land by inheritance?

27 Say thou thus to them: Thus saith the Lord God: As I live, they that dwell in the ruinous places shall fall by the sword: and he that is in the field, shall be given to the beasts to be devoured: and they that are in holds and caves, shall die of the pestilence.

28 And I will make the land a wilderness and a desert, and the proud strength thereof shall fail; and the mountains of Israel shall be desolate, because there is none to pass by them.

29 And they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have made their land waste and desolate, for all their abominations which they have committed.

VER. 6. Iniquity, not regarding the admonitions of his pastor; (C. iii. 18. C.) or rather of conscience, when the guide proves faithless and silent, as in this instance. H.—The people were persuaded that none suffered except for some fault. v. 10. Jer. xxxi. 30. Dan. xiii. 52. Gen. xlv. 16. The author of the Book of Job takes great pains to remove this mistake. God sometimes sends crosses for a trial, (C.) and to increase the merit of his servants; though it be very true, (H.) "no one is miserable except he deserve it." S. Aug.

VER. 8. Surely die a temporal, (Theod.) or rather an eternal death. S. Jer. VER. 10. Live? They suppose their case to be desperate, as their fathers had sinned. C. xviii. The prophet shews that none are punished except for their own faults, (C.) and that "each one has free-will to be saved or to be lost." S. Jer.

VER. 11. Desire. The sinner's damnation is not an object of God's pleasure. C. xviii. 22. C.—He has an antecedent will to save all. He knocks at the door of our heart, (Apoc. iii. 20.) and if man do what depends on him, nothing will be wanting on the part of God. S. Tho. i. 2. q. 109. and 112. W.

VER. 12. Hurt him. God effaces all past crimes: yet a relapse makes them as it were revive, and is pardoned with more difficulty. Mat. xviii. 35. Some read, "In what day the converted sinner groans, he shall be saved," as if they had taken in part of Is. xxx. 15.

VER. 17. Equitable; as we are much more inclined to vice than to virtue. This argumentation is inconclusive, as God owes nothing to man; and what good the latter does, is an effect of his grace. The propensity to evil is no excuse, as man is still free. He is judged according to the dispositions in which he is found at the hour of death; yet we must not infer, that those who have spent their lives in sinning will be no worse treated than the person who dies guilty of a single crime.

VER. 21. Twelfth. Rom. Sept. "tenth." Syr. "eleventh year, . . . in the twelfth month;" which Theodoret thinks more probable, as the city was taken in the ninth of the fourth month of that year. Yet even so, it is strange that the news should not arrive before. Some think (C.) that the messenger came also to announce what happened after the death of Godolias. Sanct.—Captivity. Here it is evident that the prophet dates from that event. C. i., &c. H.—As he prophesied on the very day when the city was besieged, (C. xxiv. 2.) so (v. 26.) he foretold that one should come three years after to inform him of the capture. W.—Then the people would believe him, (ib. v. 27. C.) and he would open his mouth boldly, v. 22. H.

VER. 24. Places. He has answered those who despaired. v. 10. Now he turns to the presumptuous, who expected to be treated like Abraham, though they did not imitate his virtues. C.—They perhaps entertained these sentiments before the death of Godolias, thinking to establish themselves in the land. Afterwards the prophet Jeremias could not prevail on them to remain, though God promised them security.

VER. 25. To them. Grave marks to v. 27, Thus saith, &c. as wanting in the Sept. though not in the Alex. copy. S. Jerom reckons eight verses or lines omitted. 31 And they come to thee, as if a people were coming in, and my people sit before thee: and hear thy words, and do them not: for they turn them into a song of their mouth, and their heart goeth after their covetousness.

32 And thou art to them as a musical song, which is sung with a sweet and agreeable voice: and they hear thy words, and do them not.

33 And when that which was foretold shall come to pass, (for behold it is coming) then shall they know that a prophet hath been among them.

CHAP. XXXIV.

Evil pastors are reproved: Christ, the true pastor, shall come and gather together his flock from all parts of the earth, and preserve it for ever.

AND the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

2 Son of man, prophesy concerning the shepherds of Israel; prophesy, and say to the shepherds: Thus saith the Lord God: *Wo to the shepherds of Israel, that fed themselves: should not the flocks be fed by the shepherds?

3 You eat the milk, and you clothed yourselves with the wool, and you killed that which was fat: but my flock you did not feed.

4 The weak you have not strengthened, and that which was sick you have not healed; that which was broken you have not bound up, and that which was driven away you have not brought again, neither have you sought that which was lost: but you ruled over them with rigour, and with a high hand.

5 And my sheep were scattered, because there was no shepherd; and they became the prey of all the beasts of the field, and were scattered.

6 My sheep have wandered in every mountain, and in every high hill; and my flocks were scattered upon the face of the earth, and there was none that sought them; there was none, I say, that sought them.

7 Therefore, ye shepherds, hear the word of the Lord:

8 As I live, saith the Lord God, forasmuch as my flocks have been made a spoil, and my sheep are become a prey to all the beasts of the field, because there was no shepherd; for my shepherds did not seek after my flock, but the shepherds fed themselves, and fed not my flocks:

VER. 33. Coming. The desolation of Jerusalem, (H.) and what I have foretold, hath already taken place; or, the news will presently arrive: as it did the following morning. v. 21. C.

CHAP. XXXIV. VER. 2. Shepherds. That is, princes, magistrates, chief priests, and scribes. Ch.—Shepherds may lawfully take milk, (1 Cor. ix. 7.) but the sheep and its wool belong to the master. W.—Excellent instructions are here given for all in authority. C.

VER. 3. Fat. Pastors often disguise the truth to flatter the rich, or the more just souls are ruined by their negligence.

VER. 4. Healed. God alone can restore to life. But pastors will not be excused by ignorance if they know not the maladies and the remedies of their (1070)

9 Therefore, ye shepherds, hear the word of the Lord:

10 Thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I myself come upon the shepherds, I will require my flock at their hand, and I will cause them to cease from feeding the flock any more; neither shall the shepherds feed themselves any more: and I will deliver my flock from their mouth, and it shall no more be meat for them.

11 For thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I myself will seek my sheep, and will visit them.

12 As the shepherd visiteth his flock, in the day when he shall be in the midst of his sheep that were scattered; so will I visit my sheep, and will deliver them out of all the places where they have been scattered, in the cloudy and dark day.

13 And I will bring them out from the peoples, and will gather them out of the countries, and will bring them to their own land; and I will feed them in the mountains of Israel, by the rivers, and in all the habitations of the land:

14 I will feed them in the most fruitful pastures, and their pastures shall be in the high mountains of Israel; there shall they rest on the green grass, and be fed in fat pastures upon the mountains of Israel.

15 I will feed my sheep: and I will cause them to lie down, saith the Lord God.

16 I will seek that which was lost; and that which was driven away, I will bring again; and I will bind up that which was broken, and I will strengthen that which was weak, and that which was fat and strong I will preserve: and I will feed them in judgment.

17 And as for you, O my flocks, thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I judge between cattle and cattle, of rams and of he-goats.

18 Was it not enough for you to feed upon good pastures? but you must also tread down with your feet the residue of your pastures; and when you drank the clearest water, you troubled the rest with your feet.

19 And my sheep were fed with that which you had trodden with your feet; and they drank what your feet had troubled.

20 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God to you: Behold, I myself will judge between the fat cattle and the lean.

21 Because you thrust with sides and shoulders, and struck all the weak cattle with your horns, till they were scattered abroad.

22 I will save my flock, and it shall be no more a spoil; and I will judge between cattle and cattle.

flock.—Hand. This was blamed in the Pharisees, and is contrary to the spirit of the gospel. Mat. xxiii. 4. and 1 Pet. v. 2.

VER. 5. Field. The people being neglected, followed false prophets and idols. Their teachers were so far from striving to reclaim them, that they perhaps shewed them the example. C.

VER. 8. No shepherd. Pastors who seek only their temporal advantage, (1 Tim. vi. 5. Tit. i. 7. H.) are hirelings; and if they teach false doctrine, they are wolves. John x. W.

VER. 10. Cease. Both the leaders and the people were led into captivity.

VER. 12. Day, in persecution. I will count my sheep, lest any be lost.

VER. 17. Cattle. The crimes of the pastors do not excuse the flock. In it there are people of different dispositions. The rich often destroy, and these are brought to an account. v. 24. C.

23 "AND I WILL SET UP ONE SHEPHERD OVER THEM, and he shall feed them, even my servant David; he shall feed them, and he shall be their shepherd.

24 And I, the Lord, will be their God, and my servant David the prince, in the midst of them: I, the Lord, have spoken it.

25 And I will make a covenant of peace with them, and will cause the evil beasts to cease out of the land: and they that dwell in the wilderness, shall sleep secure in the forests.

26 And I will make them a blessing round about my hill: and I will send down the rain in its season, there shall be showers of blessing.

27 And the tree of the field shall yield its fruit, and the earth shall yield her increase, and they shall be in their land without fear: and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have broken the bonds of their yoke, and shall have delivered them out of the hand of those that rule over them.

28 And they shall be no more for a spoil to the nations; neither shall the beasts of the earth devour them, but they shall dwell securely without any terror.

29 And I will raise up for them a bud of renown: and they shall be no more consumed with famine in the land, neither shall they bear any more the reproach of the Gentiles.

30 And they shall know that I, the Lord, their God, am with them, and that they are my people, the house of Israel, saith the Lord God.

31 "And you my flocks, the flocks of my pasture, are men; and I am the Lord your God, saith the Lord God.

VER. 5. Enemy. God revenges the injuries done to his Church, as if they were done to himself. Acts ix. 4. W.—The enmity of Jacob and of Esau seemed to commence in the womb, and was increased by the purchase of the birthright, till Jacob's prudence disarmed his brother. Their descendants sought every opportunity to injure one another. The Idumeans shewed their ill-will particularly, when the Jews were most distressed. This was a piece of the greatest cruelty.

6 Therefore as I live, saith the Lord God, I will deliver thee up to blood, and blood shall pursue thee: and whereas thou hast hated blood, blood shall pursue thee.

7 And I will make Mount Seir waste and desolate; and I will take away from it him that goeth and him that returneth.

8 And I will fill his mountains with his men that are slain: in thy hills, and in thy vallies, and in thy torrents they shall fall that are slain with the sword.

9 I will make thee everlasting desolations, and thy cities shall not be inhabited: and thou shalt know that I am the Lord God.

10 Because thou hast said: The two nations, and the two lands shall be mine, and I will possess them by inheritance: whereas the Lord was there.

11 Therefore as I live, saith the Lord God, I will do according to thy wrath, and according to thy envy which thou hast exercised in hatred to them: and I will be made known by them, when I shall have judged thee.

12 And thou shalt know that I, the Lord, have heard all thy reproaches, that thou hast spoken against the mountains of Israel, saying: They are desolate, they are given to us to consume.

13 And you rose up against me with your mouth, and have derogated from me by your words: I have heard them.

14 Thus saith the Lord God: When the whole earth shall rejoice, I will make thee a wilderness.

15 As thou hast rejoiced over the inheritance of the house of Israel, because it was laid waste, so will I do to thee: thou shalt be laid waste, O Mount Seir, and all Idumea: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

VER. 15. As, &c. is not in the Rom. Sept. S. Jerom says it was marked with an asterisk, being taken from Theodotion. C.—Grabe supplies to thou shalt. His copy has the rest: . . . "thou shalt know that I am their Lord." H.

CHAP. XXXVI. VER. 1. Israel. The restoration of the Jews and the redemption of Christ, constitute this fourth division. W.—Edom has seized parts of the country, as if I had abandoned my people for ever.

2 Thus saith the Lord God: Because the enemy hath said of you: Aha, the everlasting heights are given to us for an inheritance.

3 Therefore prophesy, and say: Thus saith the Lord God: Because you have been desolate, and trodden under foot on every side, and made an inheritance to the rest of the nations, and are become the subject of the talk, and the reproach of the people:

4 Therefore, ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord God: Thus saith the Lord God to the mountains, and to the hills, to the brooks, and to the vallies, and to desolate places, and ruinous walls, and to the cities that are forsaken, that are spoiled, and derided by the rest of the nations round about.

5 Therefore thus saith the Lord God: In the fire of my zeal I have spoken of the rest of the nations, and of all Edom, who have taken my land to themselves, for an inheritance with joy, and with all the heart, and with the mind: and have cast it out to lay it waste.

6 Prophecy therefore concerning the land of Israel, and say to the mountains, and to the hills, to the ridges, and to the vallies: Thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I have spoken in my zeal, and in my indignation, because you have borne the shame of the Gentiles

7 Therefore thus saith the Lord God: I have lifted up my hand, that the Gentiles who are round about you, shall themselves bear their shame.

8 But as for you, O mountains of Israel, shoot ye forth your branches, and yield your fruit to my people of Israel: for they are at hand to come.

9 For lo I am for you, and I will turn to you, and you shall be ploughed and sown.

10 And I will multiply men upon you, and all the house of Israel: and the cities shall be inhabited, and the ruinous places shall be repaired.

11 And I will make you abound with men and with beasts: and they shall be multiplied, and increase: and I will settle you as from the beginning, and will give you greater gifts than you had from the beginning: and you shall know that I am the Lord.

12 And I will bring men upon you, my people Israel, and they shall possess thee for their inheritance: and thou shalt be their inheritance, and shalt no more henceforth be without them.

13 Thus saith the Lord God: Because they say of you: Thou art a devourer of men, and one that suffocatest thy nation:

14 Therefore thou shalt devour men no more, nor destroy thy nation any more, saith the Lord God:

15 Neither will I cause men to hear in thee the shame of the nations any more, nor shalt thou bear the reproach of the people, nor lose thy nation any more, saith the Lord God.

16 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

17 Son of man, when the house of Israel dwelt in their own land, they defiled it with their ways, and with their doings: their way was before me like the uncleanness of a menstruous woman.

18 And I poured out my indignation upon them for the blood which they had shed upon the land, and with their idols they defiled it.

19 And I scattered them among the nations, and they are dispersed through the countries: I have judged them according to their ways, and their devices.

20 And when they entered among the nations whither they went, they profaned my holy name, when it was said of them: This is the people of the Lord, and they are come forth out of his land.

21 And I have regarded my own holy name, which the house of Israel had profaned among the nations to which they went in.

22 Therefore thou shalt say to the house of Israel: Thus saith the Lord God: It is not for your sake that I will do this, O house of Israel, but for my holy name's sake, which you have profaned among the nations whither you went.

23 And I will sanctify my great name, which was profaned among the Gentiles, which you have profaned in the midst of them: that the Gentiles may know that I am the Lord, saith the Lord of hosts, when I shall be sanctified in you before their eyes.

24 For I will take you from among the Gentiles, and will gather you together out of all the countries, and will bring you into your own land.

25 And I will pour upon you clean water, and you shall be cleansed from all your filthiness, and I will cleanse you from all your idols.

VER. 11. Greater. Sept. "similar." H.—It would be difficult to shew that the Jews arrived at greater eminence after the captivity than before, (C.) though they were less addicted to idolatry. Their kingdom was not independent: they had no prophets, &c. But the superior numbers and excellence of the Christian Church is manifest.

VER. 12. Them. Antiochus and the Romans laid waste the country; (C.) and Adrian would not allow the Jews to come near Jerusalem. S. Jer. Eus. iv. 6.—The people were not indeed removed together, as they had been. But all this is verified only in the Church, which in the midst of persecutions always subsists. Theodoret thinks these promises were conditional with regard to the Jews.

VER. 13. Men. This remark was very ancient. Num. xiii. 33. Wars had almost always raged in the country. C.

VER. 15. More. This whole promise principally relates to the Church of Christ, and God's perpetual protection of her; for as to the carnal Jews, they have been removed out of their land these sixteen hundred years. Oh.

VER. 18. Blood of their own children, and of the innocent. C. xvi. 36. and xxii. 2. and xxxiii. 25.

VER. 20. Land. Yet their conduct was no better than that of infidels. Thus they throw the blame on the law, and upon God himself. Jer. xlviii. 9. &c. C.—The Jews had provoked God to punish them with captivity; and hence the nations took occasion to blaspheme, that he could not protect them. W.

VER. 22. Holy, that my attributes of justice and mercy may be confessed. Is. xlviii. 2. Dan. iii. 49. Judith viii. 24.

VER. 25. Water. R. David and the Chal. explain this of the remission of sin; and all Christians understand it of baptism in water, remitting all offences. Eph. v. 26. Tit. iii. 5. W.—He alludes to the purification of the Jews, which prefigured baptism and penance, in which the blood of Christ is applied to our souls. This of course was only fulfilled in his church.

VER. 26. Flesh. The Jews at their return fell not so often into the sins of idolatry, &c. of which the prophets complained. But yet they were far from answering this character. Great irregularities prevailed under Nehemias, and in the days of the Machabees the priests publicly worshipped idols. 1 Esd. ix.

heart out of your flesh, and will give you a heart of flesh

27 And I will put my spirit in the midst of you: and I will cause you to walk in my commandments, and to keep my judgments, and do them.

28 And you shall dwell in the land which I gave to your fathers, and you shall be my people, and I will be your God.

29 And I will save you from all your uncleannesses; and I will call for corn, and will multiply it, and will lay no famine upon you.

30 And I will multiply the fruit of the tree, and the increase of the field, that you bear no more the reproach of famine among the nations.

31 And you shall remember your wicked ways, and your doings that were not good: and your iniquities, and your wicked deeds shall displease you.

32 It is not for your sakes that I will do this, saith the Lord God, be it known to you: be confounded, and ashamed at your own ways, O house of Israel.

33 Thus saith the Lord God: In the day that I shall cleanse you from all your iniquities, and shall cause the cities to be inhabited, and shall repair the ruinous places.

34 And the desolate land shall be tilled, which before was waste in the sight of all that passed by.

35 They shall say: This land that was untilled is become as a garden of pleasure: and the cities that were abandoned, and desolate, and destroyed, are peopled and fenced.

36 And the nations, that shall be left round about you, shall know that I, the Lord, have built up what was destroyed, and planted what was desolate, that I, the Lord, have spoken and done it.

37 Thus saith the Lord God: Moreover in this shall the house of Israel find me, that I will do it for them: I will multiply them as a flock of men.

38 As a holy flock, as the flock of Jerusalem in her solemn feasts: so shall the waste cities be full of flocks of men: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

CHAP. XXXVII.

A vision of the resurrection of dry bones, foreshewing the deliverance of the people from their captivity. Juda and Israel shall be all one kingdom under Christ. God's everlasting covenant with the Church.

THE hand of the Lord was upon me, and brought me forth in the spirit of the Lord; and set me down in the midst of a plain that was full of bones.

2 And he led me about through them on every side: now they were very many upon the face of the plain, and they were exceeding dry.

3 And he said to me: Son of man, dost thou think

VER. 37. Find. Heb. "seek." I will cause great multitudes to come to the solemn feast. This was seen still more after the conversion of the Gentiles. C.

CHAP. XXXVII. VER. 1. Spirit, by a divine impulse. He was not really removed. M. C.—Bones. "This passage is very famous." S. Jer.—It insinuates the liberation of the captives and of the Gentiles, as well as the mystery of the resurrection. W.—If this were not to take place, it would not be adduced as a figure. Tert. S. VER. 5. Spirit. That is, life, soul, and breath. Ch.—At the resurrection, the same souls shall return to their respective bodies.

these bones shall live? And I answered: O Lord God thou knowest.

4 And he said to me: Prophecy concerning these bones: and say to them: Ye dry bones, hear the word of the Lord.

5 Thus saith the Lord God to these bones: Behold, I will send spirit into you, and you shall live.

6 And I will lay sinews upon you, and will cause flesh to grow over you, and will cover you with skin; and I will give you spirit, and you shall live, and you shall know that I am the Lord.

7 And I prophesied as he had commanded me: and as I prophesied there was a noise, and behold a commotion: and the bones came together, each one to its joint.

8 And I saw, and behold the sinews, and the flesh came up upon them: and the skin was stretched out over them, but there was no spirit in them.

9 And he said to me: Prophecy to the spirit, prophecy, O son of man, and say to the spirit: Thus saith the Lord God: Come, spirit, from the four winds, and blow upon these slain, and let them live again.

10 And I prophesied as he had commanded me: and the spirit came into them, and they lived: and they stood up upon their feet, an exceeding great army.

11 And he said to me: Son of man: All these bones are the house of Israel: they say: Our bones are dried up, and our hope is lost, and we are cut off.

12 Therefore prophecy, and say to them: Thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I will open your graves, and will bring you out of your sepulchres, O my people: and will bring you into the land of Israel.

13 And you shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have opened your sepulchres, and shall have brought you out of your graves, O my people:

14 And shall have put my spirit in you, and you shall live, and I shall make you rest upon your own land: and you shall know that I, the Lord, have spoken, and done it, saith the Lord God:

15 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

16 And thou, son of man, take thee a stick, and write upon it: Of Juda, and of the children of Israel, his associates: and take another stick, and write upon it: For Joseph, the stick of Ephraim, and for all the house of Israel, and of his associates.

17 And join them one to the other into one stick, and they shall become one in thy hand.

18 And when the children of thy people shall speak to thee, saying: Wilt thou not tell us what thou meanest by this?

19 Say to them: Thus saith the Lord God: Behold,

VER. 7. Noise of the bones moving, which denotes the wars of Cyrus and the hurry of the nations to which he restored liberty.

VER. 9. Spirit; wind or soul. The latter animates the body, as the grace (C.) of the Holy Spirit does the soul. H.

VER. 11. Off, like branches. Notwithstanding these desponding thoughts, God will restore his people, (W.) by means of Cyrus. The grave is often put for imprisonment and grievous calamities. Osee vi. 3.

VER. 16. Associates. When Jeroboam caused the division, some of Israel adhered to Juda. The prophet glued the pieces of wood together, or engrafted them one into the other, to shew that all the people should be united, and the Jews and Gentiles concur to form one church. C. Rom. xi. 17.—Before the latter event took place God united the two kingdoms, to teach us that when we labour for the conversion of heretics, as in England, Catholics must first agree among themselves, that so all may more easily become one fold under one shepherd. W.

I will take the stick of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel that are associated with him: and I will put them together with the stick of Juda, and will make them one stick: and they shall be one in his hand.

20 And the sticks whereon thou hast written, shall be in thy hand, before their eyes.

21 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I will take the children of Israel from the midst of the nations whither they are gone; and I will gather them on every side, and will bring them to their own land.

22 And I will make them one nation in the land on the mountains of Israel, and one king shall be king over them all; and they shall no more be two nations, neither shall they be divided any more into two kingdoms.

23 Nor shall they be defiled any more with their idols, nor with their abominations, nor with all their iniquities; and I will save them out of all the places in which they have sinned, and I will cleanse them; and they shall be my people, and I will be their God.

24 And my servant David shall be king over them, and they shall have one shepherd; they shall walk in my judgments, and shall keep my commandments, and shall do them.

25 And they shall dwell in the land which I gave to my servant Jacob, wherein your fathers dwelt, and they shall dwell in it, they and their children, and their children's children, for ever; and David, my servant, shall be their prince for ever.

26 And I will make a covenant of peace with them, it shall be an everlasting covenant with them; and I will establish them, and will multiply them, and will set my sanctuary in the midst of them for ever.

27 And my tabernacle shall be with them: and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.

28 And the nations shall know that I am the Lord, the sanctifier of Israel, when my sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for ever.

VER. 22. King. The Jews were long without kings, after the captivity; then they were not of the tribe of Juda, and all did not return. Christ fulfils the prediction.

VER. 23. Idols. The Jews, even many of the priests, worshipped them, under Antiochus. C.—But the Church is never defiled. II.

VER. 24. David; Christ, the one shepherd. (Jo. x.) over all nations. W.—This cannot refer to Zorobabel, who was never king, nor perhaps even governor; as Sazabasar, who seems to have been a Persian, was appointed by Cyrus. 1 Esd. i. 8.—Shepherd. David had been one. C.—This title is more modest than that of king. S. Jer.

VER. 25. Ever. Let the Jews shew how this has been accomplished. We know that Christ preserves and rules his Church unto the end.

VER. 26. Peace. Can this regard the synagogue? Not a century passed without some flagrant misconduct, or chastisement. But our Saviour is the mediator of peace. Phil. iv. 7. C.

CHAP. XXXVIII. VER. 2. Gog. This name, which signifies hidden, or covered, is taken in this place either for the persecutors of the Church of God in general, or some arch persecutor in particular; such as Antichrist shall be in the latter days. See Apoc. xx. 8. And what is said of the punishment of Gog, is verified by the unhappy end of persecutors.—Magog. Scythia or Tartary, whence the Turks and other enemies of the Church of Christ originally sprung. Ch.—These are supposed to be the princes of some northern and barbarous coun-land of Magog, the chief prince of Mosoch and Thubal: and prophesy of him,

3 And say to him: Thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I come against thee, O Gog, the chief prince of Mosoch and Thubal.

4 And I will turn thee about, and I will put a bit in thy jaws; and I will bring thee forth, and all thy army, horses and horsemen, all clothed with coats of mail, a great multitude, armed with spears, and shields, and swords.

5 The Persians, Ethiopians, and Lybians with them, all with shields and helmets.

6 Gomer, and all his bands, the house of Thogorma, the northern parts, and all his strength, and many peoples with thee.

7 Prepare and make thyself ready, and all thy multitude that is assembled about thee: and be thou commander over them.

8 After many days thou shalt be visited: at the end of years thou shalt come to the land that is returned from the sword, and is gathered out of many nations, to the mountains of Israel, which have been continually waste: but it hath been brought forth out of the nations, and they shall all of them dwell securely in it.

9 And thou shalt go up and come like a storm, and like a cloud to cover the land, thou and all thy bands, and many people with thee.

10 Thus saith the Lord God: In that day projects shall enter into thy heart, and thou shalt conceive a mischievous design.

11 And thou shalt say: I will go up to the land which is without a wall, I will come to them that are at rest, and dwell securely: all these dwell without a wall, they have no bars nor gates:

12 To take spoils, and lay hold on the prey, to lay thy hand upon them that had been wasted, and afterwards restored, and upon the people that is gathered together out of the nations, which hath begun to possess and to dwell in the midst of the earth.

13 Saba, and Dedan, and the merchants of Tharsis, and all the lions thereof, shall say to thee: Art thou come to take spoils? behold, thou hast gathered thy multitude to take a prey, to take silver, and gold, and to carry away goods and substance, and to take rich spoils.

try, (W.) peopled by the son of Japhet. S. Jer.—S. Aug. (de Civ. Dei. xx. 11.) observes, that as the Church is spread everywhere, so also are persecutors. But Christ will overcome them all. W.—This prophecy is very difficult. It seems literally to refer to Cambyzes, who invaded Judea about seventy years after the temple had been destroyed, and perished by the hand of God, at Ecbatana, upon Mount Carmel. It is very usual with the prophets to give fictitious names; as the king of Tyre is called a cherub, and Jerusalem Ooliba. Cambyzes ruled over Scythia, in Iberia; styled Gogarene, by Strabo. xi. C.—The proper Scythia withstood all the attempts of his successors, and defeated Darius. H.

VER. 4. Jaws. Thus Cambyzes treated the son of Psammenites. God has the most absolute dominion over all monarchs. v. 7.

VER. 8. Visited, or rather "shall visit" Judea. Chal. Grot.—Cambyzes invaded Egypt twelve years after the Jews had returned, and came upon them two years later, designing to plunder them, at the instigation of their malevolent neighbours. He had sustained great losses in Egypt, and was arrived at Carmel when news was brought that the false Smerdis had declared himself king. See Herod. iii. 61.

VER. 12. Midst. Lit. "navel." Heb. "Thabor," intimating a mountain rising in a plain. Judg. ix. 7. C.—Alluding to this intended blunder of the Jews lately returned, he speaks of Antichrist and of all heretics, who seek to pervert or suppress Catholics rescued from the power of the devil, by the sacraments of Christ. W

14 Therefore, thou son of man, prophesy and say to Gog: Thus saith the Lord God: Shalt thou not know, in that day, when my people of Israel shall dwell securely?

15 And thou shalt come out of thy place from the northern parts, thou and many people with thee, all of them riding upon horses, a great company and a mighty army.

16 And thou shalt come upon my people of Israel like a cloud, to cover the earth. Thou shalt be in the latter days, and I will bring thee upon my land; that the nations may know me, when I shall be sanctified in thee, O Gog, before their eyes.

17 Thus saith the Lord God: Thou then art he, of whom I have spoken in the days of old, by my servants, the prophets of Israel, who prophesied in the days of those times, that I would bring thee upon them.

18 And it shall come to pass in that day, in the day of the coming of Gog upon the land of Israel, saith the Lord God, that my indignation shall come up in my wrath.

19 And I have spoken in my zeal, and in the fire of my anger, that in that day there shall be a great commotion upon the land of Israel:

20 *So that the fishes of the sea, and the birds of the air, and the beasts of the field, and every creeping thing that creepeth upon the ground, and all men that are upon the face of the earth, shall be moved at my presence: and the mountains shall be thrown down, and the hedges shall fall, and every wall shall fall to the ground.

21 And I will call in the sword against him in all my mountains, saith the Lord God: every man's sword shall be pointed against his brother.

22 And I will judge him with pestilence, and with blood, and with violent rain, and vast hailstones: I will rain fire and brimstone upon him, and upon his army, and upon the many nations that are with him.

23 And I will be magnified: and I will be sanctified: and I will be known in the eyes of many nations; and they shall know that I am the Lord.

But another was set on the throne; whereupon, mounting his horse in a fury, he wounded himself with his sword in the thigh, which mortifying, caused his death after twenty days. Herod. iii. 21. &c.—The historian does not mention what became of his army; but it seems to have perished by discord, as was very common among such a collection of nations. See Jud. vii. 22. 21 And I will set my glory among the nations: and all nations shall see my judgment that I have executed, and my hand that I have laid upon them.

22 And the house of Israel shall know that I am the Lord their God, from that day and forward.

23 And the nations shall know that the house of Israel were made captives for their iniquity, because they forsook me, and I hid my face from them: and I delivered them into the hands of their enemies, and they fell all by the sword.

VER. 13. Day. It does not occur in the calendar. Yet Comestor and the Carthusian mention Cambyssa, the day when Bethulia was delivered. Jud. xvi. 31. The history of Judith may perhaps relate to the defeat of this prince. The embellishments will not injure the truth. The Jews immediately after his death recommence the building of the temple, (1 Esd. iv. Agg. i. 14.) which they are forced to discontinue, till Hystaspes confirmed the decree of Cyrus. This was the grand object of their desires, and therefore the day when Cambysses fell was ever memorable to them. C. Diss.—So will that be for Christians, when Antichrist shall be no more. M.

VER. 25. Israel. All who please may now return. Hystaspes was very favourable to them. He married Esther, raised Mardochai to great power, and sent Esdras into Judea with ample privileges. Many returned under him, Artaxerxes, and Alexander.—Jealous. I will restore the people to favour, and will protect them (C.) like a husband. H.

25 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: Now will I bring back the captivity of Jacob, and will have mercy on all the house of Israel: and I will be jealous for my holy name.

26 And they shall bear their confusion, and all the transgressions wherewith they have transgressed against me, when they shall dwell in their land securely, fearing no man:

27 And I shall have brought them back from among the nations, and shall have gathered them together out of the lands of their enemies, and shall be sanctified in them, in the sight of many nations.

28 *And they shall know that I am the Lord their God, because I caused them to be carried away among the nations; and I have gathered them together unto their own land, and have not left any of them there.

CHAP. XL.

The prophet sees in a vision the rebuilding of the temple: the dimensions of several parts thereof.

IN the five and twentieth year of our captivity, in the beginning of the year, the tenth day of the month, the fourteenth year^a after the city was destroyed: in the self-same day the hand of the Lord was upon me, and he brought me thither.

2 In the visions of God he brought me into the land of Israel, and set me upon a very high mountain: upon which there was as the building of a city, bending towards the south.

3 And he brought me in thither: and behold a man, whose appearance was like the appearance of brass, with a line of flax in his hand, and a measuring reed in his hand: and he stood in the gate.

the Messias. III. Rejecting these errors, Lyran, &c. suppose that the promise was conditional, and that the sins of the Jews prevented the city and temple from being so large; and that the mystical temple of the Church is also insinuated, into which both Jews and Gentiles shall enter. IV. Though this opinion be probable, it seems better to follow S. Jerom, S. Greg. &c. who cannot apply all to the Old Testament, nor think that such a huge temple and city were indeed promised, but explain some parts of the captives at their return, as a figure of those redeemed by Christ, and brought into his Church, which is adorned with all graces. Yet the greatest part must be understood of the Church triumphant. W.—S. Jerom confesses his ignorance on this subject; and those who have come after him, though they imitate not his modesty, add little to dissipate the mist with which this vision is surrounded. Some have adhered too close to Josephus, while Villalpand has here discovered all the magnificence of Greek and Roman architecture, and has represented the temple six times as large as it really was. It seems that the prophet has described the same temple of Solomon which he had seen, that the dimensions might be preserved, and the hopes of the people kept up; (C.) and that they might comprehend what a loss they actually sustained on account of their sins, (H.) and might strive to come up to this pattern (D.) as "near as they should be able," the wealth of the people being much less than Solomon's. Grot.—These arguments do not, however, shew that the buildings were to resemble each other. They vary in many particulars; and the prophet would specify what was to be really executed. He says nothing of the ornamental part, and little of the height, which are the most expensive. Houbigant. Pr.f.—If some things appear to be too grand for the temple of Solomon, and of Zorobabel, we must reflect that the prophet passes from the figure to the Church of Christ, which is not unusual. M.—Alcasar and Bossuet explain it wholly of the Church, so that the letter requires few notes. D.

VER. 2. Mountain; Moria, in spirit. On the eastern side, the road to the city was level. Walls were added after the captivity, on the other sides. Joa. Bel. vi. 6.—City, the temple was so large.—South, to one coming from the north, though the temple lay on that side of the town. Ps. xlvii. 2. C.—Sept. read mongod, "over-against," instead of mongob, "south," which has perplexed many. Houbig.—Ezekiel was placed on Sion, which was not very high, but here it denotes the Church. Jerusalem was in ruins. W.

VER. 3. Brass: shining. H.—This angel waited for the prophet at the northern gate, but introduced him by that looking towards the east. v. 16.—Line. It seems never to have been used. C.

VER. 5. Breadth. Heb. Chal. Sept. "of six cubits, in a cubit and a palm;"

4 And this man said to me: Son of man, see with thy eyes, and hear with thy ears, and set thy heart upon all that I shall shew thee: for thou art brought hither that they may be shewn to thee: declare all that thou seest to the house of Israel.

5 And behold there was a wall on the outside of the house round about, and in the man's hand a measuring reed of six cubits and a hand breadth: and he measured the breadth of the building one reed, and the height one reed.

6 And he came to the gate that looked toward the east, and he went up the steps thereof: and he measured the breadth of the threshold of the gate one reed; that is, one threshold was one reed broad:

7 And every little chamber was one reed long, and one reed broad: and between the little chambers were five cubits:

8 And the threshold of the gate by the porch of the gate within, was one reed.

9 And he measured the porch of the gate eight cubits, and the front thereof two cubits, and the porch of the gate was inward.

10 And the little chambers of the gate that looked eastward were three on this side, and three on that side: all three were of one measure, and the fronts of one measure, on both parts. -

11 And he measured the breadth of the threshold of the gate ten cubits: and the length of the gate thirteen cubits:

12 And the border before the little chambers one cubit: and one cubit was the border on both sides: and the little chambers were six cubits on this side and that side.

13 And he measured the gate from the roof of one little chamber to the roof of another, in breadth five and twenty cubits: door against door.

14 He made also fronts of sixty cubits: and to the front the court of the gate on every side round about.

15 And before the face of the gate, which reached even to the face of the porch of the inner gate, fifty cubits.

16 And slanting windows in the little chambers, and in their fronts, which were within the gate on every side round about: and in like manner there were also in the porches windows round about within, and before the fronts the representation of palm-trees.

17 And he brought me into the outward court, and behold there were chambers, and a pavement of stone in the court round about: thirty chambers encompassed the pavement.

intimating that the sacred cubit contained six palms, while the common one had only five, (C. xliii. 13. W.) being half a yard; (Arbuthnot) or the Hebrew cubit was a hand's breadth larger than the Babylonian, or about 21½ inches, (C.) which may be styled (M.) the sacred cubit. Arb. H.—Reed. This outer wall (C. M.) was to prevent any from falling down the precipice. It was about four yards nine inches in height and thickness, being so solid in order that the ground might not give way. Josephus describes prodigious walls, (H.) reaching to the bottom of the mountain, three hundred cubits on the south and west; but then the temple was much enlarged C.

VER. 6. And. In this verse occurs the first of thirty-four words where the j is allowed by the keri to be omitted in this one chapter, always when it is the sign of the plural number before a suffixed v, and of course by voluntary assimilation. But Camb. MS. 1. has the j regularly in thirty-two of these words. Kennicott.—Steps. The ground was not quite level, which caused the buildings to rise one above another more elegantly. There were four great gates.

VER. 7. Chamber, for the porters, (C.) three on each side of the porch. v. 10 H.

18 And the pavement in the front of the gates, according to the length of the gates, was lower.

19 And he measured the breadth, from the face of the lower gate to the front of the inner court without, a hundred cubits, to the east, and to the north.

20 He measured also both the length and the breadth of the gate of the outward court, which looked north ward.

21 And the little chambers thereof, three on this side, and three on that side; and the front thereof, and the porch thereof, according to the measure of the former gate, fifty cubits long, and five and twenty cubits broad.

22 And the windows thereof, and the porch, and the gravings, according to the measure of the gate that looked to the east, and they went up to it by seven steps, and a porch was before it.

23 And the gate of the inner court was over-against the gate of the north, and that of the east; and he measured from gate to gate a hundred cubits.

24 And he brought me out to the way of the south, and behold the gate that looked to the south; and he measured the front thereof, and the porch thereof, according to the former measures.

25 And the windows thereof, and the porches round about, as the other windows; the length was fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits.

26 And there were seven steps to go up to it; and a porch before the doors thereof; and there were graven palm-trees, one on this side, and another on that side, in the front thereof.

27 And there was a gate of the inner court towards the south; and he measured from gate to gate towards the south, a hundred cubits.

28 And he brought me into the inner court at the south gate; and he measured the gate according to the former measures.

29 The little chamber thereof and the front thereof, and the porch thereof, with the same measures; and the windows thereof, and the porch thereof, round about it, was fifty cubits in length, and five and twenty cubits in breadth.

30 And the porch round about was five and twenty cubits long, and five cubits broad.

31 And the porch thereof to the outward court, and the palm-trees thereof in the front: and there were eight steps to go up to it.

32 And he brought me into the inner court by the way of the east; and he measured the gate according to the former measures.

VER. 11. Thirteen, or twenty-six feet high.

VER. 14. Cubits high, or else the elevation is nowhere specified. C.

VER. 16. Slanting, or "lattice." Sept. "dark." See 3 K. vii. 4. H.—They were larger within, to afford light, as in Solomon's temple, and in castles. Interpreters disagree in their sentiments: but all allow that God here insinuated that he would reward people in the Old Testament with temporal, and those in the New with spiritual blessings; first with grace in this life, and with glory in the next. W.—Yet we must not suppose that the saints of old were deprived of eternal goods. H.—About. The other gates had the like ornaments. C.

VER. 17. There were chambers. Gazophylacia, so called, because the priests and Levites kept in them the stores and vessels that belonged to the temple. Ch.—They went all round the courts. The women were in the second story. Vilalpand and Capel, who are deemed the most accurate, suppose that there were no chambers below, but an open gallery. There seem, however, to have been chambers also. C. viii. 7. C.

VER. 18. Lower. So that there was a step up to the threshold. H.—Marble was used in all places exposed to the weather. Jos. Bel. vi. 14.

33 The little chamber thereof, and the front thereof, and the porch thereof as before; and the windows thereof, and the porches thereof, round about it, was fifty cubits long, and five and twenty cubits broad.

34 And the porch thereof, that is, of the outward court; and the graven palm-trees in the front thereof, on this side and on that side; and the going up thereof was by eight steps.

35 And he brought me into the gate that looked to the north; and he measured according to the former measures.

36 The little chamber thereof, and the front thereof, and the porch thereof, and the windows thereof, round about it, was fifty cubits long, and five and twenty cubits broad.

37 And the porch thereof looked to the outward court; and the graving of palm-trees, in the front thereof, was on this side and on that side; and the going up to it was by eight steps.

38 And at every chamber was a door in the fore fronts of the gates; there they washed the holocaust.

39 And in the porch of the gate were two tables on this side, and two tables on that side; that the holocaust, and the sin-offering, and the trespass-offering might be slain thereon.

40 And on the outward side, which goeth up to the entry of the gate that looketh toward the north, were two tables; and at the other side, before the porch of the gate, were two tables.

41 Four tables were on this side, and four tables on that side: at the sides of the gate were eight tables, upon which they slew the victims.

42 And the four tables for the holocausts were made of square stones; one cubit and a half long, and one cubit and a half broad, and one cubit high, to lay the vessels upon, in which the holocaust, and the victim is slain.

43 And the borders of them were of one hand breadth, turned inwards round about: and upon the tables was the flesh of the offering.

44 And without the inner gate were the chambers of the singing men in the inner court, which was on the side of the gate that looketh to the north; and their prospect was towards the south, one at the side of the east gate, which looked toward the north.

45 And he said to me: This chamber, which looketh towards the south, shall be for the priests that watch in the wards of the temple.

46 But the chamber that looketh towards the north, shall be for the priests that watch over the ministry of the altar. These are the sons of Sadoc, who, among the sons of Levi, come near to the Lord, to minister to him.

47 And he measured the court a hundred cubits long, and a hundred cubits broad, four square; and the altar that was before the face of the temple.

48 And he brought me into the porch of the temple; and he measured the porch five cubits on this side, and five cubits on that side; and the breadth of the gate three cubits on this side, and three cubits on that side.

49 And the length of the porch was twenty cubits, and the breadth eleven cubits, and there were eight steps to go up to it. And there were pillars in the fronts; one on this side, and another on that side.

CHAP. XLI.

A description of the temple, and of all the parts of it.

AND he brought me into the temple, and he measured the fronts six cubits broad on this side, and six cubits on that side, the breadth of the tabernacle.

2 And the breadth of the gate was ten cubits; and the sides of the gate five cubits on this side, and five cubits on that side; and he measured the length thereof forty cubits, and the breadth twenty cubits.

3 Then going inward he measured the front of the gate two cubits; and the gate six cubits; and the breadth of the gate seven cubits.

4 And he measured the length thereof twenty cubits, and the breadth twenty cubits, before the face of the temple; and he said to me: This is the holy of holies.

5 And he measured the wall of the house six cubits; and the breadth of every side-chamber four cubits round about the house on every side.

6 And the side-chambers one by another, were twice thirty-three; and they bore outwards, that they might enter in through the wall of the house in the sides round about, to hold in, and not to touch the wall of the temple.

7 And there was a broad passage round about, going up by winding stairs, and it led into the upper loft of the temple all round; therefore was the temple broader

VER. 26. Seven. There were eight to the inner court (v. 31), shewing that more perfection is now required, and a greater reward given. S. G. eg. W.

VER. 30. Five cubits. The parallel passages would intimate "fifty." O. Villalp.—But the texts all read five, and Maldonat understands the four vacant spaces between the chambers, v. 7. M.

VER. 38. Gates. Heb. is very obscure. The holocausts were slain on the north side of the altar. Lev. i. 11.

VER. 43. Borders, to prevent anything falling, Chal. &c. have "hooks."

VER. 44. North. The singers occupied two wings

VER. 45. Watch over the sacred ornaments, pictures, lamps of the sanctuary, &c. Num. iii. 28.

VER. 46. Altar. Not on actual service (C. Ali. 13), but to prepare the victims.

VER. 48. That side. Sept. add, "and the opening (εξίρσις, width) of the gate was 14 cubits, and the breadth (projections, επαχρῶς) of the," &c. (H), or the wall on each side of the door was three cubits, so that the porch was 20 cubits broad. C.

VER. 49. Eleven. 3 K. vi. says ten. The exact breadth was ten and a half (Vill. T.), or what the pavement covered is there specified according to some. Sept. Rom. has "twelve." But the east. of Basil reads more correctly, ten. C.—Yet both ten and eleven may be right, if this temple be different. H.—Eight Heb. seems corrupt, a ten substituted for it. "They mounted by ten steps," as the Sept. read. Aquila has seven; Sym. eight—Pillars of Brass. 3 K. vii. 16. C.—As they are not measured, they were like Solomon's. W.

CHAP. XLI. VER. 1. The temple. This plan of a temple, which was here shewn to the prophet in a vision, partly had relation to the material temple, which was to be rebuilt: and partly, in a mystical sense, to the spiritual temple of God, the Church of Christ. Ch.—The description seems grander than Solomon's; and yet Zerobabel's temple was meaner than his. Hence this prophecy, and those of Aggeus and Zacharias, cannot be understood of it, but of the Church. S. Jer. S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. xviii. 45. W.

VER. 3. Front, or door-posts. The temple was 20 cubits broad.

VER. 5. Four. Herein it differed from Solomon's chambers, which were in breadth five, six, and seven cubits, in the three stories, respectively. C.

VER. 6. One by another, or one over another: literally, side to side, or side upon side. Ch.—The word side is here equivocal, like Heb. tsela, sometimes denoting the boards, and at other times the apartments round the temple, except on the west, over against the sanctuary, which seems to be the case here. It is true, we shall not easily find sixty-six chambers. But the Heb. &c. have only thirty-three. C.—Villalpand rightly translated anterides, (v. 5.) but here he substitutes trabes, "beams or thick planks" to make it agree with 3 K. vi. 8. as if the same temple were meant. He also adopts the Vulg. bis—Twice. Heb. pehamim. Yet he afterwards places in his commentary, pedes, "thirty-three feet, that is twenty-two cubits," though feet are never used at all as a measure in Scripture. Houbigant.

VER. 7. Broader, as the wall was not so thick. H.—Midst. The two staircases were round in the hollow of the wall, (M.) at the eastern end of the chambers. Jos. See 3 K. C.

in the higher parts; and so from the lower parts they went to the higher by the midst.

8 And I saw in the house the height round about, the foundations of the side-chambers, which were the measure of a reed, the space of six cubits:

9 And the thickness of the wall for the side-chamber without, which was five cubits; and the inner house was within the side-chambers of the house.

10 And between the chambers was the breadth of twenty cubits round about the house on every side.

11 And the door of the side-chambers was turned towards the place of prayer: one door was toward the north, and another door was toward the south: and the breadth of the place for prayer, was five cubits round about.

12 And the building that was separate, and turned to the way that looked toward the sea, was seventy cubits broad: and the wall of the building, five cubits thick round about: and ninety cubits long.

13 And he measured the length of the house, a hundred cubits: and the separate building, and the walls thereof, a hundred cubits in length.

14 And the breadth before the face of the house, and of the separate place toward the east, a hundred cubits.

15 And he measured the length of the building over-against it, which was separated at the back of it: and the galleries on both sides a hundred cubits: and the inner temple, and the porches of the court.

16 The thresholds, and the oblique windows, and the galleries round about on three sides, over-against the threshold of every one, and floored with wood all round about: and the ground was up to the windows, and the windows were shut over the doors.

17 And even to the inner house, and without all the wall round about, within and without, by measure.

18 And there were cherubims and palm-trees wrought, so that a palm-tree was between a cherub and a cherub, and every cherub had two faces.

19 The face of a man was toward the palm-tree on one side, and the face of a lion was toward the palm-tree on the other side: set forth through all the house round about.

20 From the ground even to the upper parts of the gate, were cherubims and palm-trees wrought in the wall of the temple.

VER. 9. House. Because these side-chambers were in the very walls of the temple all around: or it may also be rendered, (more agreeably to the Heb.) so as to signify, that the thickness of the wall for the side-chambers within was the same as that of the wall without; that is, equally five cubits. Ch.—Prot. "and that which was left, was the place of the side-chambers that were within." H.—To manifest a greater respect for God, the apartments of the priests were twenty-five cubits distant from the temple, (v. 10.) and divided by a wall, which Josephus describes as three cubits high. Ant. viii. 2. This wall was at the distance of five cubits from the temple. C.

VER. 11. Prayer, or "separated;" munnach, (H.) the inner house. v. 9.

VER. 13. Separate, different from that v. 9. (C. Heb. gizra. H.) between the temple and the priests' apartments, which it may also designate, (C.) unless it (H.) mean the temple itself, which was divided from the rest, (M.) and set aside for prayer, &c. H.

VER. 15. Galleries; Ethecas, or as the more correct MSS. of S. Jerom read, Ethetas, seems to be formed from (C.) Heb. athikim, (H.) which S. Jerom explains a balcony, portico, or gallery.

VER. 16. About. Thus he intimates the inner temple, which was covered with boards.—Windows. The temple was hidden so far by the chambers; or rather he measured (C.) "the ground and up to the windows, which were" shut up with lattices, affording light over the doors (H.) and apartments, fifteen cubits from the ground.

VER. 18. Two. Before he describes them with four faces. But they varied, 21 The threshold was four-square, and the face of the sanctuary, sight to sight.

22 The altar of wood was three cubits high: and the length thereof was two cubits: and the corners thereof, and the length thereof, and the walls thereof, were of wood. And he said to me: This is the table before the Lord.

23 And there were two doors in the temple, and in the sanctuary.

24 And in the two doors on both sides were two little doors, which were folded within each other: for there were two wickets on both sides of the doors.

25 And there were cherubims also wrought in the doors of the temple, and the figures of palm-trees, like as were made on the walls: for which cause also the planks were thicker in the front of the porch without.

26 Upon which were the oblique windows, and the representation of palm-trees on this side and on that side, in the sides of the porch: according to the sides of the house, and the breadth of the walls.

CHAP. XLII.

A description of the courts, chambers, and other places belonging to the temple.

AND he brought me forth into the outward court, by the way that leadeth to the north, and he brought me into the chamber that was over-against the separate building, and over-against the house toward the north.

2 In the face of the north door was the length of a hundred cubits: and the breadth of fifty cubits.

3 Over-against the twenty cubits of the inner court, and over-against the pavement of the outward court that was paved with stone, where there was a gallery joined to a triple gallery.

4 And before the chambers was a walk ten cubits broad, looking to the inner parts of a way of one cubit. And their doors were toward the north:

5 Where were the store-chambers lower above: because they bore up the galleries, which appeared above out of them from the lower parts, and from the midst of the building.

6 For they were of three stories, and had not pillars, as the pillars of the courts: therefore did they appear above out of the lower places, and out of the middle places, fifty cubits from the ground.

7 And the outward wall that went about by the (Ex. xxv. 18.) or the other two might be against the wall. C.—The cherub signified "knowledge," and the palm-tree victory, to shew that man must be instructed with divine knowledge, and so fight for the victory. The face of man implied that Christ would suffer, and that of a lion announced that he would overcome all his enemies. W.

VER. 21. The threshold was four-square. That is, the gate of the temple was four-square, and so placed as to answer the gate of the sanctuary within. Ch.—It was not an arch, though not a perfect square. 3 K. vi. 34.

VER. 22. Table, or altar of incense, larger than that of Moses. Ex. xxx. 1.

VER. 23. Sanctuary. One folding door opened into it, the other into the temple.

VER. 24. Other. It was not perhaps necessary to open the large door.

VER. 26. Sides, (hunnerutis) or pilasters. Heb. "on the shoulders of the porch, and on the sides of the house, and beams." C.

CHAP. XLII. VER. 1. And S. Jerom finding the Sept. and others varying in their explanations, gives his own; yet adopts the saying of Socrates, "I know that I am ignorant:" for this also is a part of science. W.—Outward, with respect to the temple. It is styled inner court, with reference to that of the people.—Separate. C. xli. 9.

VER. 3. Triple, one over another, (v. 6.) or on a level with the priests' court.

VER. 4. One cubit, projecting out perhaps for seats, or for the pilasters.

VER. 5. Above. The higher stories are not so lofty.

chambers, which were towards the outward court on the forepart of the chambers, was fifty cubits long.

8 For the length of the chambers of the outward court was fifty cubits: and the length before the face of the temple, a hundred cubits.

9 And there was under these chambers, an entrance from the east, for them that went into them out of the outward court.

10 In the breadth of the outward wall of the court that was toward the east, over-against the separate building, and there were chambers before the building.

11 And the way before them was like the chambers which were toward the north: they were as long as they, and as broad as they: and all the going into them, and their fashions, and their doors were alike.

12 According to the doors of the chambers that were toward the south: there was a door in the head of the way, which way was before the porch, separated towards the east as one entereth in.

13 And he said to me: The chambers of the north, and the chambers of the south, which are before the separate building: they are holy chambers, in which the priests shall eat, that approach to the Lord into the holy of holies: there shall they lay the most holy things, and the offering for sin, and for trespass: for it is a holy place.

14 And when the priests shall have entered in, they shall not go out of the holy places into the outward court: but there they shall lay their vestments, wherein they minister, for they are holy: and they shall put on other garments, and so they shall go forth to the people.

15 Now when he had made an end of measuring the inner house, he brought me out by the way of the gate that looked toward the east: and he measured it on every side round about.

16 And he measured toward the east, with the measuring reed, five hundred reeds with the measuring reed round about.

17 And he measured toward the north, five hundred reeds, with the measuring reed round about.

18 And towards the south he measured five hundred reeds, with the measuring reed round about.

VER. 6. Fifty cubits. We only allow thirty, as this is not in Heb. &c. The text, v. 10, and 12, seems incorrect. C.

VER. 13. Holies. Heb. "who are very holy," and (H.) on duty. See Lev. vi. 25.

VER. 14. People. C. xlv. 17. Ex. xxxiii. 42. Christian priests use their vestments only when they are officiating. Durand and Durant Rit. ii. 9. C.

VER. 16. Five. Heb. emoth should be moeth, "three hundred," as it is printed (yet not in the Prot. version. H.) thrice just after, and as it is written here in MS. 4. Camb. 1. 2." Kennicott.—Reeds. Sept. "cubits," as Heb. S. Jer. &c. insinuate. The mountain was only five hundred paces square, even when it was enlarged in the time of Josephus. Bel. vi. 14. Gr.—We must therefore read cubits. C.—If we retain reeds, (H.) the wall will be twelve thousand cubits, (M.) which seems improbable. Tournemine. See C. xlv. H.

VER. 20. Cubits. This confirms the former correction. v. 16. H.—Heb. has only, "of five hundred." Maldonat and A. Lapidé would understand reeds, to agree with what goes before. M.—Separation. Josephus mentions a wall three cubits high, on the pillars of which was written in Greek and Latin, that such as entered the temple must be pure, (C.) and no stranger. H.—Into this court all might come. Philo. C.

CHAP. XLIII. VER. 2. Majesty. The world is enlightened by the preaching of the gospel; and the Church triumphant shall shine in perfection, when that which is sown in corruption shall put on incorruption. 1 Cor. xv. S. Jer.—The blessed Virgin conceiving Jesus Christ may be insinuated. S. Tho. p. 2. q. 27. a. 3. W.

VER. 3. He came. Heb. "I came to destroy (Sept. to anoint) the city," marking such as should be spared. C. ix. The glorious chariot entered by the eastern gate, and the prophet followed to the court of the priests. v. 5. 13. C.— (1080)

19 And toward the west he measured five hundred reeds, with the measuring reed.

20 By the four winds he measured the wall thereof on every side round about, five hundred cubits long, and five hundred cubits broad, making a separation between the sanctuary and the place of the people.

CHAP. XLIII.

The glory of God returns to the new temple. The Israelites shall no more profane God's name by idolatry: the prophet is commanded to shew them the dimensions, and form of the temple, and of the altar, with the sacrifices to be offered thereon.

AND he brought me to the gate that looked towards the east.

2 And behold the glory of the God of Israel came in by the way of the east: and his voice was like the noise of many waters, and the earth shone with his majesty.

3 And I saw the vision according to the appearance which I had seen when he came to destroy the city: and the appearance was according to the vision which I had seen by the river Chobar: and I fell upon my face.

4 And the majesty of the Lord went into the temple by the way of the gate that looked to the east.

5 And the spirit lifted me up, and brought me into the inner court: and behold the house was filled with the glory of the Lord.

6 And I heard one speaking to me out of the house, and the man that stood by me,

7 Said to me: Son of man, the place of my throne, and the place of the soles of my feet, where I dwell in the midst of the children of Israel for ever: and the house of Israel shall no more profane my holy name, they and their kings by their fornications, and by the carcasses of their kings, and by the high places.

8 They who have set their threshold by my threshold, and their posts by my posts: and there was but a wall between me and them: and they profaned my holy name by the abominations which they committed: for which reason I consumed them in my wrath.

9 Now, therefore, let them put away their fornications.

* Supra ix. 1.—* Supra i. 2.

The Jews say the second temple was deprived of the Shekinah, or glory of the Lord. Yet it seems here to enter; and Christ himself adorned this second house, more than the first, by his adorable presence. Agg. ii. 8. H.

VER. 7. Said. The Lord spoke, (Chal. Theod.) or the angel, (S. Jer.) in human shape. H.—He addresses the prophet, v. 12 to C. xlv. 5. though what follows immediately seems to belong to the Lord, (C.) in whose name he speaks. —Name. God hath abandoned the synagogue, but will remain with his Church unto the end. Mat. xxiii. 38. and xxviii. 20. Yet the perfect Church, without spot, is the triumphant; (Eph. v. 27. W.) though the Catholic Church, on earth, is ever holy and "the communion of saints." H.—Carcasses. Idols, according to some; or rather by the kings being buried on Sion. This is nowhere else reprehended, neither is their building too near the temple, which the prophet here condemns. v. 8. C.—It seems, however, that if these things had been blameable, such a number of pious and wise kings would not have acted thus, nor the prophets have neglected to admonish them of their duty. The carcasses and houses here specified may have been vestiges of idolatry; or, in future, the tombs and palaces were to be at a more respectful distance. H.

VER. 8. Wall. The kings of Juda had a door communicating with the temple, by which they entered on the west. It was guarded by Levites. 1 Par. xxvi. 16. Ezechiel places no door on that side. Yet in Herod's temple we find one leading to the adjacent palace, and three others into the town. Joa. Ant. xv. 14.

VER. 9. Carcasses. Lit. "ruins." H.—The remains of the dead were probably not disturbed; but no more, that we know of, were placed on Sion. C.—Kings may signify idols, Moloc, &c. which they had worshipped, and which some had even placed in the holy place, to the nation's ruin. H.

VER. 10. Measure, that they may be convinced of their ingratitude, (M.)

tions, and the carcasses of their kings far from me: and I will dwell in the midst of them for ever.

10 But thou, son of man, shew to the house of Israel the temple, and let them be ashamed of their iniquities, and let them measure the building:

11 And be ashamed of all that they have done. Shew them the form of the house, and of the fashion thereof, the goings out, and the comings in, and the whole plan thereof, and all its ordinances, and all its order, and all its laws, and thou shalt write it in their sight: that they may keep the whole form thereof, and its ordinances, and do them.

12 This is the law of the house upon the top of the mountain: All its border round about is most holy; this then is the law of the house.

13 And these are the measures of the altar by the truest cubit, which is a cubit and a hand breadth: the bottom thereof was a cubit, and the breadth a cubit: and the border thereof unto its edge, and round about, one hand breadth: and this was the trench of the altar.

14 And from the bottom of the ground to the lowest brim two cubits, and the breadth of one cubit: and from the lesser brim to the greater brim four cubits, and the breadth of one cubit.

15 And the ariel itself was four cubits: and from the ariel upward were four horns.

16 And the ariel was twelve cubits long, and twelve cubits broad, four-square, with equal sides.

17 And the brim was fourteen cubits long, and fourteen cubits broad in the four corners thereof: and the crown round about it was half a cubit, and the bottom of it one cubit round about: and its steps turned toward the east.

18 And he said to me: Son of man, thus saith the Lord God: These are the ceremonies of the altar, in what day soever it shall be made: that holocausts may be offered upon it, and blood poured out.

19 And thou shalt give to the priests, and the Levites, that are of the race of Sadoc, who approach to me, saith the Lord God, to offer to me a calf of the herd for sin.

which has deprived them of so noble a structure, and put them under the necessity of beginning so great a work again. It required all the exertions of the prophets to make them go forward with it. Agg. 1. H.

VER. 11. In the whole fabric, (M) as thou hast described it, (H.) or received from the angel, with all the ceremonies to be observed.

VER. 12. Border. Nothing but the temple shall be on this mountain. It shall be wholly consecrated to the Lord. This was ill observed. The Asmonean princes erected the famous tower Antonia, at the north side. Jos. See v. 8. The Jews assert that it was unlawful to spit on this ground, &c. but no such thing is specified in Josephus or in Scripture, only we find that none were to go out by the same door at which they had entered, (C. xli. 9. C.) except the king.

VER. 13. By. Heb. "by cubits." This cubit is a common cubit, &c. The Babylonian, (H.) or sacred one, was a palm longer. W. C. xl. 5.—Breadth. It was the same as the depth, being designed to convey the blood by a conduit to the torrent Cedron.—Trench, or bottom aforesaid. Sept. "the height." H.—Chal. "disposition of the altar," which seems best.

VER. 14. Cubit. They were each a cubit broad, but this greater means higher up. Some assert that the priests stood on this base to avoid treading on the altar, when they placed the wood or victims. But it would be too low; and steps were made for that purpose. The altar was ten, or rather twelve cubits high, and as many broad. Solomon's was ten high and twenty broad. Herod's was a square of forty cubits, raised fifteen from the ground. C.

VER. 15. The ariel. That is, the altar itself, or rather the highest part of it, upon which the burnt-offerings were laid. In the Heb. it is harel, that is, the mountain of God; but in the following verse haariel, that is, the lion of God; a figure, from its consuming, and as it were devouring the sacrifices as a lion devours its prey. Ch.—Fire descending sometimes from heaven. S. Jer. W.—It also appeared like a little mountain in the court. See Is. xxix. 1. The altar was probably made of brass, like Solomon's. Josephus and Philo say that rough 20 And thou shalt take of his blood, and shalt put it upon the four horns thereof, and upon the four corners of the brim, and upon the crown round about: and thou shalt cleanse, and expiate it.

21 And thou shalt take the calf, that is offered for sin: and thou shalt burn him in a separate place of the house without the sanctuary.

22 And in the second day thou shalt offer a he-goat without blemish for sin: and they shall expiate the altar, as they expiated it with the calf.

23 And when thou shalt have made an end of the expiation thereof, thou shalt offer a calf of the herd without blemish, and a ram of the flock without blemish.

24 And thou shalt offer them in the sight of the Lord: and the priests shall put salt upon them, and shall offer them a holocaust to the Lord.

25 Seven days shalt thou offer a he-goat for sin daily: they shall offer also a calf of the herd, and a ram of the flock without blemish.

26 Seven days shall they expiate the altar, and shall cleanse it: and they shall consecrate it.

27 And the days being expired, on the eighth day and thence forward, the priests shall offer your holocausts upon the altar, and the peace-offerings: and I will be pacified towards you, saith the Lord God.

CHAP. XLIV.

The east gate of the sanctuary shall be always shut. The uncircumcised shall not enter into the sanctuary: nor the Levites that have served idols: but the sons of Sadoc shall do the priestly functions, who stood firm in the worst of times.

AND he brought me back to the way of the gate of the outward sanctuary, which looked towards the east: and it was shut.

2 And the Lord said to me: This gate shall be shut: it shall not be opened, and no man shall pass through it: because the Lord, the God of Israel, hath entered in by it, and it shall be shut.

3 For the prince. The prince himself shall sit in it, to eat bread before the Lord: he shall enter in by the way of the porch of the gate, and shall go out by the same way.

stones were used after the captivity: but it seems little attention was paid to the dimensions of the temple, &c. given by Ezechiel. C.—Yet the prophets were present to see the laws of God executed, and never complain of their infringement in these particulars, which were attended with no great difficulty. C. xl. 1. H.—It is certain the Jews never thought themselves bound to make their altars of a determinate size.

VER. 17. Crown, which was usually placed round altars and tables, that nothing might fall down.—Bottom of the altar, or base, mentioned v. 18.—Steps, boarded on each side. Ex. xx. 26.

VER. 19. Levites. Heb. "of the race of Levi, of the family of Sadoc." He had obtained the dignity under Saul, (C.) and after the deposition of Abiathar, under Solomon, (3 K. ii. 26. H.) his posterity always preserved it. C. Diss.—Calf. Thou shalt give it, or make known these rites to the priests. H.—People are often said to do what they only command, as v. 20, &c.

VER. 21. Sanctuary, out of the precincts of the temple, but on the mountain. Lev. iv. 3. and vi. 11.

VER. 22. He-goat. Sept. add, "of the goats," (hircum caprarum. H.) denoting a young kid, (M.) or one selected (H.) rather from the flock. C.

VER. 26. Consecrate it. Lit. "fill his hand;" that is, dedicate and apply it to holy service, (Ch.) as the Heb. &c. speak of the altar. Sept. "they shall fill their hands," seems more natural, (Ex. xxviii. 41.) and is adopted by Pagn. Vat. &c. C.

CHAP. XLIV. VER. 2-3. Opened. No man perfectly understands the Scriptures but the Son of God. Mat. xi. 27. S. Jer.—This also insinuates, that Mary ever remained a pure virgin. S. Aug. &c. W.—Shut, even for the prince. Some (H.) kings of Juda claimed the privilege of entering by it at any time, and passed through a part of the court assigned to the priests. 2 Par. vi. 12. and 4 K. xvi. 18. This shall be no longer tolerated. The gate might be opened in the week days if the prince wished to offer sacrifice, but not else, except on the sabbaths. C. xli. 1. 12.—Lord, in peace offerings and religious feasts.—Porch. Each had two doors. C. xli. 2. C.

4 And he brought me by the way of the north gate in the sight of the house: and I saw, and behold the glory of the Lord filled the house of the Lord: and I fell on my face.

5 And the Lord said to me: Son of man, attend with thy heart, and behold with thy eyes, and hear with thy ears all that I say to thee concerning all the ceremonies of the house of the Lord, and concerning all the laws thereof: and mark well the ways of the temple, with all the goings out of the sanctuary.

6 And thou shalt say to the house of Israel, that provoketh me: Thus saith the Lord God: Let all your wicked doings suffice you, O house of Israel:

7 In that you have brought in strangers uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh, to be in my sanctuary, and to defile my house: and you offer my bread, the fat, and the blood: and you have broken my covenant by all your wicked doings.

8 And you have not kept the ordinances of my sanctuary: but you have set keepers of my charge in my sanctuary for yourselves.

9 Thus saith the Lord God: No stranger uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into my sanctuary, no stranger that is in the midst of the children of Israel.

10 Moreover, the Levites that went away far from me, when the children of Israel went astray, and have wandered from me after their idols, and have borne their iniquity:

11 They shall be officers in my sanctuary, and door-keepers of the gates of the house, and ministers to the house: they shall slay the holocausts, and the victims of the people: and they shall stand in their sight, to minister to them.

12 Because they ministered to them before their idols, and were a stumbling-block of iniquity to the house of Israel: therefore have I lifted up my hand against them, saith the Lord God, and they shall bear their iniquity:

13 And they shall not come near to me, to do the office of priest to me, neither shall they come near to any of my holy things that are by the holy of holies: but they shall bear their shame, and their wickednesses which they have committed.

14 And I will make them door-keepers of the house, for all the service thereof, and for all that shall be done therein.

15 But the priests, and Levites, the sons of Sadoc, who kept the ceremonies of my sanctuary, when the children of Israel went astray from me, they shall come near to me, to minister to me: and they shall stand before me, to offer me the fat, and the blood, saith the Lord God.

16 They shall enter into my sanctuary, and they shall come near to my table, to minister unto me, and to keep my ceremonies.

17 And when they shall enter in at the gates of the inner court, they shall be clothed with linen garments: neither shall any woollen come upon them, when they minister in the gates of the inner court, and within.

18 They shall have linen mitres on their heads, and linen breeches on their loins, and they shall not be girded with any thing that causeth sweat.

19 And when they shall go forth to the outward court to the people, they shall put off their garments wherein they ministered, and lay them up in the store chamber of the sanctuary, and they shall clothe themselves with other garments: and they shall not sanctify the people with their vestments.

20 Neither shall they shave their heads, nor wear long hair: but they shall only poll their heads.

21 And no priest shall drink wine when he is to go into the inner court.

22 *Neither shall they take to wife a widow, nor one that is divorced, but they shall take virgins of the seed of the house of Israel: but they may take a widow also, that is the widow of a priest.

23 And they shall teach my people the difference between holy and profane, and shew them how to discern between clean and unclean.

24 And when there shall be a controversy, they shall stand in my judgments, and shall judge: they shall keep my laws, and my ordinances in all my solemnities, and sanctify my sabbaths.

25 And they shall come near no dead person, lest they be defiled, only their father and mother, and son and daughter, and brother and sister, that hath not had another husband: for whom they may become unclean.

26 And after one is cleansed, they shall reckon unto him seven days.

27 And in the day that he goeth into the sanctuary to the inner court, to minister unto me in the sanctuary, he shall offer for his sin, saith the Lord God.

* Lev. xxi. 14.

VER. 4. Face. This astonishment and attention (v. 5.) intimate the mysteries of the Church, prefigured by the Jewish rites. W.

VER. 5. Ways, or "the going in," and all that concerns the temple and sacrifices.

VER. 7. Flesh. People of this description were not to enter the temple, which is here called the sanctuary, even though they adored God. In some cases pagans were admitted into any part, except the most holy. Epiphane (C.) and Pompey forced their passage thither, to the great sorrow of the Jews. Jos. Bel. i. 6. See Eccl. iii. Acts xxi. 28.—During the plundering of the city, the Chaldees did the like; (Lam. i. 10. H.) and while idols were set up, all rites were neglected.—Doings. You observe the exterior, and not the spirit of religion.

VER. 8. Yourselves, out of ambition, contrary to the regulations of David. C.

VER. 10. Levites, or priests, (H.) who were seduced by Jeroboam, or offered victims on the high places. 4 K. xxiii. 9. Such lost their privileges and were condemned to serve in the meanest offices. It seems the race of Ithamar was alone guilty, and the threat against his house was now put in execution. 1 K. ii. 39. and iii. 14. Lev. xxi. 17. and 2 Esd. vii. 64. C.

VER. 11. Slay. Levites might do this, but the priests poured the blood round the altar. v. 15. They could not well slay all the victims.

VER. 15. And Levites, of the higher order. H.—No simple Levites were of this family. It enjoyed the high priesthood from the time of Solomon.

VER. 17. Court; that is to do duty.—Linen. Wool might have been taken from a dead sheep, which would render the person unclean. C.

VER. 18. Sweat, or so as to make them perspire. Sept. "girded violently." H.—They must have liberty to move, (S. Jer.) and have the girdle about their breast. Braun.

VER. 19. Sanctify, by exposing them to the danger of touching the sacred vestments, which none were to touch but they that were sanctified. Ch.—Sanctify here means to defile. Ex. xxx. 29. 28 *And they shall have no inheritance, I am their inheritance: neither shall you give them any possession in Israel, for I am their possession.

29 They shall eat the victim both for sin and for trespass: and every vowed thing in Israel shall be theirs.

30 *And the first-fruits of all the first-born, and all the libations of all things that are offered, shall be the priest's: and you shall give the first-fruits of your meats to the priest, that he may return a blessing upon thy house.

31 *The priest shall not eat of any thing that is dead of itself, or caught by a beast, whether it be fowl or cattle.

CHAP. XLV.

Portions of land for the sanctuary, for the city, and for the prince. Ordinances for the prince.

AND when you shall begin to divide the land by lot, separate ye first-fruits to the Lord, a portion of the land to be holy, in length twenty-five thousand, and in breadth ten thousand: it shall be holy in all the borders thereof round about.

2 And there shall be for the sanctuary on every side five hundred by five hundred, four-square round about: and fifty cubits for the suburbs thereof round about.

3 And with this measure thou shalt measure the length of five and twenty thousand, and the breadth of ten thousand, and in it shall be the temple, and the holy of holies.

4 The holy portion of the land shall be for the priests, the ministers of the sanctuary, who come near to the ministry of the Lord: and it shall be a place for their houses, and for the holy place of the sanctuary.

5 And five and twenty thousand of length, and ten thousand of breadth shall be for the Levites, that minister in the house: they shall possess twenty store-chambers.

6 And you shall appoint the possession of the city five thousand broad, and five and twenty thousand long, according to the separation of the sanctuary, for the whole house of Israel.

7 For the prince also on the one side and on the other side, according to the separation of the sanctuary, and according to the possession of the city, over-against the separation of the sanctuary, and over-against the possession of the city: from the side of the sea even to the sea, and from the side of the east even to the east. And the length according to every part from the west border to the east border.

8 He shall have a portion of the land in Israel: and the princes shall no more rob my people: but they shall give the land to the house of Israel, according to their tribes.

9 Thus saith the Lord God: Let it suffice you, O princes of Israel: cease from iniquity and robberies, and execute judgment and justice, separate your confines from my people, saith the Lord God.

10 You shall have just balances, and a just ephi, and a just bate.

11 The ephi and the bate shall be equal, and of one measure: that the bate may contain the tenth part of a core, and the ephi the tenth part of a core: their weight shall be equal according to the measure of a core.

12 *And the sicle bath twenty obols. Now twenty sicles, and five and twenty sicles, and fifteen sicles make a mna.

13 And these are the first-fruits which you shall take: the sixth part of an ephi of a core of wheat, and the sixth part of an ephi of a core of barley.

14 The measure of oil also, a bate of oil is the tenth part of a core: and ten bates make a core: for ten bates fill a core.

15 And one ram out of a flock of two hundred, of those that Israel feedeth for sacrifice, and for holocausts, and for peace-offerings, to make atonement for them, saith the Lord God.

* Lev. xxii. 8.—^d Exod. xxx. 13. Lev. xxvii. 25. Num. iii. 47.

VER. 28. No. This is omitted in Heb. Sept. &c. God was their portion. C.—They had no land but what lay near their cities. H.

CHAP. XLV. VER. 1. By lot. MS. 2. reads bogurl; (printed benachala) so the Vulg. sortito. Kennicott.—Heb. "when you shall make the land fall," which usually implies by lot: yet the partition was not made thus, (C. xlviii. 1.) nor at all, (C.) otherwise the prophet might mention how the lots would have fallen to Dan, in the north, &c. H.—The Jews either could not comply, or did not take this to be a command. If they had returned all together, they might probably have put it in execution. But many of them preferred staying where they had gotten a settlement, and the rest only returned in small parties, some not before the reign of Alexander. Those who arrived first, occupied as much as possible their ancient limits. 1 Esd. iii. 1, and 2 Esd. viii. and xi. C.—Thousand: reeds, or cubits. Ch.—Many prefer the latter, which is specified v. 2, (H.) as it agrees with the dimensions of the temple. C. xlii. 16. If reeds or toises were meant, the city would be disproportionate with the rest of the divisions: 50,000 would make 25 leagues, of 2,500 paces each; and if each tribe had as much, the country must have comprised 325 leagues, whereas from Emath to Cadesbarne (C. xlvii. 17.) there at not above 150. C.—To form an idea of the proposed partition, we must suppose the country reached from a little north of Emesa, on the Orontes, to Cadesbarne south, and from the Mediterranean to Damascus, or a little farther east, and beyond the sources of Jazer. 1. Dan, 2. Aser, 3. Nephthali, 4. Manasses, 5. Ephraim, 6. Ruben, and 7. Juda, had about equal portions with that designed for 8. the temple, Levites, and prince, whose southern limits reached almost to Accaron and the Dead Sea. 9. Benjamin, 10. Simeon, 11. Issachar, 12. Zabulon, and 13. Gad, had each about half the quantity of the others, though the tribes occupied the whole extent from east to west, their lots being marked out by parallel lines. Between Juda and Benjamin, a square of 500 cubits was assigned for the temple; another square of 4,500, or 18,000 in circuit, lay round the former for the city of the Levites: round this were suburbs 250 cubits broad, walled about, and having three gates on each side. Next them dwelt their lay servants, in a space 5,000 cubits broad, and 25,000 long, from east to west. A plot of ground on the north and south, sufficient to complete this square was to support them with provisions. On the east side of the Jordan, and on the west of this square for the priests and their servants, two portions almost of equal dimensions with it, were appropriated to the prince. His lot was 25,000 cubits long, and 12,500 broad. C. xlviii. 21. See Calmet's plan. H.—About. It could not be alienated to private men, or for any other purpose. W.

VER. 2. Suburbs. Heb. also, "vacant spaces."

VER. 3. Measure, from the centre of the temple; so that the dimensions given must be doubled, (C. xlviii. 10.) as also v. 5.

VER. 4. Place. There the priests shall dwell.

VER. 5. Chambers for the Levites on duty. Sept. read, "towns." But only one seems to be specified, 18,000 cubits in circumference.

VER. 6. According. Heb. "along or (C.) over-against the oblation of the holy portion." Prot.—Israel, destined to serve the priests. H.

VER. 7. Border. Two equal lots, one on the east and the other on the west were assigned the prince, each 20,000 cubits broad, and 12,500 long. C. xlviii. 21. C.—He dwelt near the priests, for their protection; as the people were on both sides of him, that he might sustain no injury. W.

VER. 8. Rob. Instead of their right, (1 K. viii. 11.) the source of continual vexations, a certain revenue is specified, v. 13.

VER. 9. Confines: encroach not. C.—Heb. and Sept. "take away your oppressions;" (H.) Chal. "scandals." C.

VER. 11. The ephi and the bate. These measures were of equal capacity; but the bate served for liquids, and the ephi for dry things. Ch. v. 13, 14. W.—Ezekiel specifies the measures, that the people might not use those of Babylon, after their return.

VER. 12. Sicles. It would be shorter to say, "sixty sicles make a mna."

VER. 13. Take, for the prince's revenue. He had the sixtieth part of corn and of oil; or rather (C.) he had an exact tithe of the latter. v. 14. Chal. M.

VER. 15. One ram. He shall receive the tithe of sheep, &c. and take one out of two hundred, on condition that he furnish victims. v. 17. C.—The obligation was mutual. S. Jerom explains it of the high priest and people. W.

16 All the people of the land shall be bound to these first-fruits, for the prince in Israel.

17 And the prince shall give the holocaust, and the sacrifice, and the libations on the feasts, and on the new moons, and on the sabbaths, and on all the solemnities of the house of Israel: he shall offer the sacrifice for sin, and the holocaust, and the peace-offerings, to make expiation for the house of Israel.

18 Thus saith the Lord God: In the first month, the first of the month, thou shalt take a calf of the herd, without blemish, and thou shalt expiate the sanctuary.

19 And the priest shall take of the blood of the sin-offering: and he shall put it on the posts of the house, and on the four corners of the brim of the altar, and on the posts of the gate of the inner court.

20 And so shalt thou do in the seventh day of the month, for every one that hath been ignorant, and hath been deceived by error, and thou shalt make expiation for the house.

21 In the first month, the fourteenth day of the month, you shall observe the solemnity of the Pasch: seven days unleavened bread shall be eaten.

22 And the prince on that day shall offer for himself, and for all the people of the land, a calf for sin.

23 And in the solemnity of the seven days he shall offer for a holocaust to the Lord, seven calves, and seven rams without blemish daily, for seven days: and for sin a he-goat daily.

24 And he shall offer the sacrifice of an ephi for every calf, and an ephi for every ram: and a hin of oil for every ephi.

25 In the seventh month, in the fifteenth day of the month, in the solemn feast, he shall do the like for the seven days: as well in regard to the sin-offering, as to the holocaust, and the sacrifice, and the oil.

CHAP. XLVI.

Other ordinances for the prince and for the sacrifices.

THUS saith the Lord God: The gate of the inner court, that looketh toward the east, shall be shut the six days on which work is done; but on the sabbath day it shall be opened; yea, and on the day of the new moon it shall be opened.

2 And the prince shall enter by the way of the porch of the gate from without, and he shall stand at the threshold of the gate: and the priests shall offer his holocaust, and his peace-offerings: and he shall adore upon the threshold of the gate, and shall go out: but the gate shall not be shut till the evening.

VER. 17. Holocaust. This was given before perhaps gratis. 2 Par. xxxi. 3. Solomon and Ezechias shewed great magnificence. After the captivity the people laid on the third of a sicle per head, as this order was not observed. 2 Esd. x. 32.

VER. 18. Take, or order the priests to do this annually, to prepare for the Passover. v. 21. Moses mentions nothing of this, and it does not appear to have been put in execution. C.—Yet it might be the first year after the dedication of the temple. The prophet does not say it was to be done every year. H.

VER. 20. Seventh, or so many days before the solemn feast. Sept. "on the first of the seventh month," the feast of trumpets. Num. xxix. 1. C.

VER. 24. Sacrifice. Heb. mincha, flour. Prot. "meat offering." H.

VER. 25. Day: the feast of tabernacles, to be observed like the Pasch. Num. xxix. 12. C.

CHAP. XLVI. VER. 2. Prince. After the captivity, although the race of David continued in Salathiel, Zorobabel, &c. yet they had not the state of kings. Hence Christians, R. David and other Jews, understand this of the Messias and the rites of his Church, with a literal allusion to the old law. W.—Without, not proceeding into the court of the priests. C. xlv. 2.

VER. 4. Six. Moses only prescribed two lambs for every day. Num. xxviii. 9. (1084)

3 And the people of the land shall adore at the door of that gate before the Lord, on the sabbaths, and on the new moons.

4 And the holocaust that the prince shall offer to the Lord on the sabbath day, shall be six lambs without blemish, and a ram without blemish.

5 And the sacrifice of an ephi for a ram: but for the lambs what sacrifice his hand shall allow: and a hin of oil for every ephi.

6 And on the day of the new moon a calf of the herd without blemish: and the six lambs, and the rams shall be without blemish.

7 And he shall offer in sacrifice an ephi for a calf, an ephi also for a ram: but for the lambs, as his hand shall find: and a hin of oil for every ephi.

8 And when the prince is to go in, let him go in by the way of the porch of the gate, and let him go out the same way.

9 But when the people of the land shall go in before the Lord, in the solemn feasts, he that goeth in by the north gate to adore, shall go out by the way of the south gate: and he that goeth in by the way of the south gate, shall go out by the way of the north gate: he shall not return by the way of the gate whereby he came in, but shall go out at that over-against it.

10 And the prince in the midst of them, shall go in when they go in, and go out when they go out.

11 And in the fairs, and in the solemnities, there shall be the sacrifice of an ephi to a calf, and an ephi to a ram: and to the lambs, the sacrifice shall be as his hand shall find: and a hin of oil to every ephi.

12 But when the prince shall offer a voluntary holocaust, or voluntary peace-offerings to the Lord: the gate that looketh towards the east shall be opened to him, and he shall offer his holocaust, and his peace-offerings, as it is wont to be done on the sabbath day: and he shall go out, and the gate shall be shut after he is gone forth.

13 And he shall offer every day for a holocaust to the Lord, a lamb of the same year without blemish: he shall offer it always in the morning.

14 And he shall offer the sacrifice for it morning by morning, the sixth part of an ephi: and the third part of a hin of oil, to be mingled with the fine flour: a sacrifice to the Lord by ordinance, continual and everlasting.

15 He shall offer the lamb, and the sacrifice, and the oil, morning by morning: an everlasting holocaust.

VER. 5. Sacrifice. See C. xlv. 24. Flour and oil accompanied the victim. When lambs were presented, this was left to the prince's devotion (v. 7. and 11. C.) only. If he gave three or four ephies of flour, he must give as many hins of oil. H.

VER. 6. Calf. Moses orders two, and seven lambs. Num. xxviii. 11. C.—The rams. Heb. "a ram. They shall," &c. H.

VER. 9. It, perhaps to avoid confusion, (M.) and turning the back on the temple, (C.) or to exercise their obedience. As many might enter by one gate as by another, and thus the concourse would not be diminished. H.

VER. 10. Out. The prince went in and out by the same gate, (v. 8.) and might order that on the east to be opened when he had to offer a voluntary sacrifice. In other respects he was like a simple Israelite, and was to attend the temple and use the same gates as the rest. Before, the kings had a gate on the west leading to their palace. But this was no longer to subsist, and the palace was to be far removed. C. xlviii. 21.

VER. 11. Solemnities. Heb. "on feasts and on days of meeting." C.—Sacrifice; mincha, v. 7, and C. xlv. 24. H.

VER. 13. Morning. That for the evening had the same ceremonies. Lev. vi. 9.

VER. 14. By. Cata seems to be taken (C.) from the Gr. kata, "according to," or by. v. 15. H.

16 Thus saith the Lord God: If the prince give a gift to any of his sons: the inheritance of it shall go to his children, they shall possess it by inheritance.

17 But if he give a legacy out of his inheritance to one of his servants, it shall be his until the year of release, and it shall return to the prince: but his inheritance shall go to his sons.

18 And the prince shall not take of the people's inheritance by violence, nor of their possession: but out of his own possession he shall give an inheritance to his sons: that my people be not dispersed every man from his possession.

19 And he brought me in by the entry, that was at the side of the gate, into the chambers of the sanctuary that were for the priests, which looked toward the north. And there was a place bending to the west.

20 And he said to me: This is the place where the priests shall boil the sin-offering, and the trespass-offering: where they shall dress the sacrifice, that they may not bring it out into the outward court, and the people be sanctified.

21 And he brought me into the outward court, and he led me about by the four corners of the court: and behold there was a little court in the corner of the court, to every corner of the court there was a little court.

22 In the four corners of the court were little courts disposed, forty cubits long, and thirty broad: all the four were of one measure.

23 And there was a wall round about compassing the four little courts, and there were kitchens built under the rows round about.

24 And he said to me: This is the house of the kitchens wherein the ministers of the house of the Lord shall boil the victims of the people.

The vision of the holy waters issuing out from under the temple: the borders of the land to be divided among the twelve tribes.

AND he brought me again to the gate of the house, and behold waters issued out from under the threshold of the house toward the east: for the forefront of the house looked toward the east: but the

VER. 17. Sons. If any portion of his land was made over to them, it still remained in the family; but if any other had a present of it, the land must revert to the royal family, agreeably to the law. Lev. xxv. 10. C.—This insinuates that works done by the true children of God, in the state of grace, merit an eternal reward, while moral good works performed in the state of sin, can only have a temporal one. W.

VER. 19. Gale, on the north. C. xlv. 4.—West. At this corner was the kitchen for victims, which could only be eaten in the inner court. If they had been brought into that without, the people would have become unclean; as it is equally wrong to touch holy or impure things when they are forbidden. C. xlv. 19. There were four other kitchens for the people who might choose to eat their peace-offerings. v. 24. C.

VER. 22. Little. Heb. "courts joined." Prot. or marg. "made with chimneys," (H.) or "smoked," as no chimneys were used. Sept. "little courts," as they have read differently. C.—Vulg. unites both meanings. H.

VER. 24. Kitchens. Sept. "porticoes," or rather (C.) "boiling places." Prot. and v. 24. H.

CHAP. XLVII. VER. 1. Waters. These waters are not to be understood literally, (for there were none such that flowed from the temple) but mystically of the baptism of Christ, and of his doctrine and his grace; the trees that grow on the banks are Christian virtues; the fishes are Christians, that spiritually live in and by these holy waters; the fishermen are the apostles, and apostolic preachers; the fenny places, where there is no health, are such as by being out of the Church are separated from these waters of life. Ch.—It is not probable that real water or fishes were found, v. 9. But this must be explained of the Church and of baptism, in a higher and more proper sense. W.—Joel, (iii. 18.) before the captivity, and Zacharias, (xiv. 8.) after that event, speak of fountains as still to appear, and of course not in either temple, though Pilate made aqueducts for the purpose, (Jos. Bel. ii. 13.) which Tacitus, (An. v.) waters came down to the right side of the temple, to the south part of the altar.

2 And he led me out by the way of the north gate, and he caused me to turn to the way without the outward gate, to the way that looked toward the east: and behold there ran out waters on the right side.

3 And when the man that had the line in his hand went out towards the east, he measured a thousand cubits: and he brought me through the water up to the ancles.

4 And again he measured a thousand, and he brought me through the water up to the knees.

5 And he measured a thousand, and he brought me through the water up to the loins. And he measured a thousand, and it was a torrent, which I could not pass over: for the waters were risen so as to make a deep torrent, which could not be passed over.

6 And he said to me: Surely, thou hast seen, O son of man. And he brought me out, and he caused me to turn to the bank of the torrent.

7 And when I had turned myself, behold on the bank of the torrent were very many trees on both sides.

8 And he said to me: These waters that issue forth toward the hillocks of sand to the east, and go down to the plains of the desert, shall go into the sea, and shall go out, and the waters shall be healed.

9 And every living creature that creepeth whithersoever the torrent shall come, shall live: and there shall be fishes in abundance after these waters shall come thither, and they shall be healed, and all things shall live to which the torrent shall come.

10 And the fishers shall stand over these waters, from Engaddi even to Engallim there shall be drying of nets: there shall be many sorts of the fishes thereof, as the fishes of the great sea, a very great multitude:

11 But on the shore thereof, and in the fenny places they shall not be healed, because they shall be turned into salt pits.

12 And by the torrent on the banks thereof, on both sides, shall grow all trees that bear fruit: their leaf shall not fall off, and their fruit shall not fail: every month shall they bring forth first-fruits, because the waters

Maundrel, (p. 148.) and others mention. But the prophets allude not to them, but to Christ, the fountain of water springing up unto life eternal. John iv. 14. and vii. 38. C.—Villalpand understands it of waters brought into the temple to wash the victims; but it seems to refer more to the grace and doctrine of Christ. M.

VER. 2. East. This gate was shut, and therefore he went out at the north gate. C.

VER. 8. The. Heb. "the east country," (Prot. H.) or "the frontiers (Galiliah) eastward," by which some improperly suppose that one rivulet went to the sea of Galilee.—And shall. Heb. "the sea of the going out," where the Jordan empties itself into the Dead Sea; or, the second rivulet ran into the Mediterranean. Zac. xiv. 8. But this passage relates to the Dead Sea alone, (v. 18.) and Galiliah is a place near it, where the Israelites erected an altar of union. Jos. xxii. 10. C.—Healed. No fish can live in the sea of Sodom. Solin xxxviii. —Yet, let the place be ever so noxious, this water shall cure it; (see 4 K. ii. 19. C.) which must be taken in a mystical sense. H.

VER. 10. Engallim, or "the fountain of Gallim," in the tribe of Benjamin. Is. xxv. 44.

VER. 11. Salt, or bitumen pits. Schismatics and bad Christians, who do not live by the spirit of Christ, are meant. C.

VER. 12. First-fruits, or most excellent. H.—S. John saw such (W.) a tree of life. Apoc. xxii. H.—The doctrine of the gospel, and the study of the sacred books, have the most salutary effects; while the very leaves, or the examples of the saints, heal the soul. No more shall the deceitful fruits near Sodom be seen (C.) beautiful, but full of nothing but ashes. Treit. An. v.—Where Christ instructs, a torrent of grace and glory is presently formed. Like the mustard seed growing into a large tree, in which the birds rest, its origin is mean; yet its progress is grand and astonishing.

VER. 13. Double portion. Lit. "cord." H.—His two sons would each have (1085) thereof shall issue out of the sanctuary: and the fruits thereof shall be for food, and the leaves thereof for medicine.

13 Thus saith the Lord God: This is the border, by which you shall possess the land according to the twelve tribes of Israel: for Joseph hath a double portion.

14 And you shall possess it, every man in like manner as his brother: concerning which I lifted up my hand to give it to your fathers: and this land shall fall unto you for a possession.

15 And this is the border of the land: toward the north side, from the great sea by the way of Hethalon, as men go to Sedada.

16 Emath, Berotha, Sabarim, which is between the border of Damascus and the border of Emath, the house of Tichon, which is by the border of Auran.

17 And the border from the sea even to the court of Enon, shall be the border of Damascus, and from the north to the north: the border of Emath, this is the north side.

18 And the east side is from the midst of Auran, and from the midst of Damascus, and from the midst of Galaad, and from the midst of the land of Israel, Jordan making the bound to the east sea, and thus you shall measure the east side.

19 And the south side southward is from Thamar, even to the waters of contradiction of Cades: and the torrent, even to the great sea: and this is the south side southward.

20 And the side toward the sea, is the great sea, from the borders straight on, till thou come to Emath: this is the side of the sea.

21 And you shall divide this land unto you by the tribes of Israel:

22 And you shall divide it by lot for an inheritance to you, and to the strangers that shall come over to you, that shall beget children among you: and they shall be unto you as men of the same country born among the children of Israel: they shall divide the possession with you in the midst of the tribes of Israel.

23 And in what tribe soever the stranger shall be, there shall you give him possession, saith the Lord God.

a share, as Levi was better provided for. W.—He had no portion of the land assigned to him by Josue, but here one part is appointed (C.) for the sacred ministers and the prince. C. xlv. 1.

VER. 14. Brother. The seven tribes to the north have each an equal share, as the five who lay to the south of the Levites had with respect to each other, though their portion must have been only about half of what the former possessed, according to the map. C. xlv. 1. H.—Under Josue, the numbers of each tribe were considered. The present mysterious equality shews, perhaps, that there is no distinction of Jew or Gentile in the Church, and that Christ would come to redeem all. C.—Lifted. People taking an oath acted in this manner. M.

VER. 15. Sedada. These places are not well known. They seem to be near the highest mountain specified, (Num. xxiv. 7.) west of Emesa.

VER. 16. Berotha, conquered by David. 2 K. viii. 8.

VER. 17. Emath was about the middle of the northern limits, between the Mediterranean and the Euphrates.

VER. 18. Auran. Hence a line must be drawn through Damascus over Mount Galaad to the eastern or Dead Sea, to form the eastern borders. C.—The Jordan flowing from Genesareth to Sodom marked out this side, (M.) or rather was in this division; though the land as far as Galaad was to belong to Israel, as it had been before the captivity. Prot. "by Jordan from the border unto," &c. H.

VER. 19. Thamar. Engaddi is sometimes understood: but it lay near Jericho, as this (C.) Thamar was to the south of the Dead Sea. Ptolemy.—Torrent Besor. H.

VER. 20. Emath, not that it was on the sea: but a line was to be drawn over

CHAP. XLVIII.

The portions of the twelve tribes, of the sanctuary, of the city, and of the prince. The dimensions and gates of the city.

AND these are the names of the tribes from the borders of the north, by the way of Hethalon, as they go to Emath, the court of Enan, the border of Damascus northward, by the way of Emath. And from the east side thereof, to the sea shall be one portion for Dan.

2 And by the border of Dan, from the east side, even to the side of the sea, one portion for Aser:

3 And by the border of Aser, from the east side, even to the side of the sea, one portion for Nephthali.

4 And by the border of Nephthali, from the east side, even to the side of the sea, one portion for Manasses.

5 And by the border of Manasses, from the east side, even to the side of the sea, one portion for Ephraim.

6 And by the border of Ephraim, from the east side, even to the side of the sea, one portion for Ruben.

7 And by the border of Ruben, from the east side even to the side of the sea, one portion for Juda.

8 And by the border of Juda, from the east side, even to the side of the sea, shall be the first-fruits which you shall set apart, five and twenty thousand in breadth, and in length, as every one of the portions from the east side, to the side of the sea: and the sanctuary shall be in the midst thereof.

9 The first-fruits which you shall set apart for the Lord: shall be the length of five and twenty thousand, and the breadth of ten thousand.

10 And these shall be the first-fruits of the sanctuary for the priests: toward the north, five and twenty thousand in length, and toward the sea, ten thousand in breadth, and toward the east, also ten thousand in breadth, and toward the south, five and twenty thousand in length: and the sanctuary of the Lord shall be in the midst thereof.

11 The sanctuary shall be for the priests of the sons of Sadoc, who kept my ceremonies, and went not astray when the children of Israel went astray, as the Levites also went astray.

12 And for them shall be the first-fruits of the first-fruits of the land holy of holies, by the border of the Levites.

against this city, eastward from the Mediterranean. Sept. "to opposite the entrance of Emath, as far as its entrance." But the territory extended farther. Num. xxxiv.

VER. 22. Strangers. This was never done by the Jews. It signifies that Christ would give an inheritance, in the true land of promise, (C.) to all nations which should practice his religion. Rom. x. 12. H.

CHAP. XLVIII. VER. 1. Dan. This division is very different from that of Josue, and was never literally executed, being rather of a mystical nature. The limits are not marked out, as each lot was equal. C. See C. xlv. 1. and xlvii. 14. H.—By the twelve tribes all the glorified saints are meant. No cities of refuge occur, because in heaven all are perfect, all secure. S. Jer. W.

VER. 8. Apart, for the Levitical tribe and the prince. C.—As the first-born and things which spring first, so also the land consecrated to the Lord is called first-fruits. W.—Thousand cubits. (C. xlv. 1.) or 12,500 paces, (H.) allowing two cubits for each. This would not reach to the Jordan. But thrice that space must be reckoned, the king having two of them (C.) on each side of the temple, namely, towards the sea, and on the other side of the Jordan. H.

VER. 11. Astray, &c. By this we see, that in the worst of times God always preserved some of the priests from going astray; and that the synagogue never fell so universally into idolatry, but that a remnant was still left free from this corruption. Ch.

VER. 13. Ten. Their city was only 18,000 cubits in circumference. v. 16.

VER. 15. Profane, where servants of the priests may reside. C.—On the north and south, (H.) 1000 cubits broad and 25,000 long were left for fields, gardens, &c. C.

13 And the Levites in like manner shall have by the borders of the priests five and twenty thousand in length, and ten thousand in breadth. All the length shall be five and twenty thousand, and the breadth ten thousand.

14 And they shall not sell thereof, nor exchange, neither shall the first-fruits of the land be alienated, because they are sanctified to the Lord.

15 But the five thousand that remain in the breadth over-against the five and twenty thousand, shall be a profane place for the city for dwelling, and for suburbs: and the city shall be in the midst thereof.

16 And these are the measures thereof: on the north side four thousand and five hundred: and on the south side four thousand and five hundred: and on the east side four thousand and five hundred: and on the west side four thousand and five hundred.

17 And the suburbs of the city shall be to the north two hundred and fifty, and to the south two hundred and fifty, and to the east two hundred and fifty, and to the sea two hundred and fifty.

18 And the residue in length by the first-fruits of the sanctuary, ten thousand toward the east, and ten thousand toward the west, shall be as the first-fruits of the sanctuary: and the fruits thereof shall be for bread to them that serve the city.

19 And they that serve the city, shall serve it out of all the tribes of Israel.

20 All the first-fruits, of five and twenty thousand, by five and twenty thousand, four-square, shall be set apart for the first-fruits of the sanctuary, and for the possession of the city.

21 And the residue shall be for the prince on every side of the first-fruits of the sanctuary, and of the possession of the city over-against the five and twenty thousand of the first-fruits, unto the east border: toward the sea also, over-against the five and twenty thousand, unto the border of the sea, shall likewise be the portion of the prince: and the first-fruits of the sanctuary, and the sanctuary of the temple, shall be in the midst thereof.

VER. 18. Five. Heb. has, "five five hundred:" but one five is properly omitted in several MSS. and in all the ancient versions. Kennicott.—Four thousand five hundred cubits was the length and breadth of the town and temple, which were 18,000 cubits round, (C.) or so many reeds, which would make 36 miles of 1000 paces each. As the earthly Jerusalem was certainly never so large, the modern rabbins assert that the Messiah will build it to that extent; but Catholic doctors understand it mystically of the Church. Thus S. John saw the New Jerusalem or Church triumphant. Apoc. xxi. and xxii. W.

VER. 17. Suburbs, separating the Levites from laics, different from what is mentioned v. 15.

VER. 18. As the, &c. They shall not be alienated, as some might infer from its being said to be profane, which term is used because it was the habitation of laymen.

VER. 19. Israel. People from all parts might serve the Levites. This tribe was not to engage in laborious or sordid employments, being attached to the service of the Lord, and bound to instruct others. But this was more perfectly fulfilled in the Christian Church, where the clergy enjoy great immunities, and are forbidden to exercise any trade or employment which may take them off 22 And from the possession of the Levites, and from the possession of the city, which are in the midst of the prince's portions: what shall be to the border of Juda, and to the border of Benjamin, shall also belong to the prince.

23 And for the rest of the tribes: from the east side to the west side, one portion for Benjamin.

24 And over-against the border of Benjamin, from the east side to the west side, one portion for Simeon.

25 And by the border of Simeon, from the east side to the west side, one portion for Issachar.

26 And by the border of Issachar, from the east side to the west side, one portion for Zabulon.

27 And by the border of Zabulon, from the east side to the side of the sea, one portion for Gad.

28 And by the border of Gad, the south side southward: and the border shall be from Tamar, even to the waters of contradiction of Cades, the inheritance over-against the great sea.

29 This is the land which you shall divide by lot to the tribes of Israel: and these are the portions of them, saith the Lord God.

30 And these are the goings out of the city: on the north side thou shalt measure four thousand and five hundred.

31 And the gates of the city, according to the names of the tribes of Israel, three gates on the north side, the gate of Ruben one, the gate of Juda one, the gate of Levi one.

32 And at the east side, four thousand and five hundred: and three gates, the gate of Joseph one, the gate of Benjamin one, the gate of Dan one.

33 And at the south side, thou shalt measure four thousand and five hundred: and three gates, the gate of Simeon one, the gate of Issachar one, the gate of Zabulon one.

34 And at the west side, four thousand and five hundred, and their three gates, the gate of Gad one, the gate of Aser one, the gate of Nephthali one.

35 Its circumference was eighteen thousand: and the name of the city from that day, The Lord is there.

VER. 20. City, where the Levites and their servants, artisans, &c. dwelt. C. VER. 21. Thereof. The domains of the prince touched the limits of Juda on the north, and of Benjamin on the south, as the portion of Levi did also. The prince occupied the east and west square of this division. H.

VER. 28. Inheritance. Heb. nachal, signifies also "torrent;" and S. Jerom seems to prefer this meaning, as he explains it of the torrent which goes by Rhinocorura, and is commonly supposed to be the southern boundary. C.

VER. 30. Out, or gates. H.—There were three on each of the four sides. C.

VER. 35. The Lord is there. This name is here given to the city; that is, the Church of Christ; because the Lord is always with her till the end of the world. Mat. xxviii. 20. Ch.—He always adorns the Church triumphant; (Apoc. xxii.) but has deserted the synagogue. Mat. xxiii. 38. W.—Jerusalem certainly never bore this name, nor is it requisite that she should, if the prophecy had been literally understood. It would suffice, if she could justly claim such a prerogative. See Is. vii. 14. and 2 K. xii. 25. The Church of Christ possesses God for ever. C.

THE PROPHECY OF DANIEL.

DANIEL, whose name signifies "the judgment of God," was of the royal blood of the kings of Juda, and one of those that were first of all carried away into captivity. He was so renowned for wisdom and knowledge, that it became a proverb among the Babylonians, "as wise as Daniel;" (Ezech. xxviii. 3.) and his holiness was so great from his very childhood, that at the time when he was as yet but a young man, he is joined by the Spirit of God with Noë and Job, as three persons most eminent for virtue and sanctity. Ezech. xiv. He is not commonly numbered by the Hebrews among the prophets, because he lived at court, and in high station in the world: but if we consider his many clear predictions of things to come, we shall find that no one better deserves the name and title of a prophet; which also has been given him by the Son of God himself. Mat. xxiv. Mark xiii. Luke xxi. Ch.—The ancient Jews ranked him among the greatest prophets. Jos. Ant. x. 12. and 1 Mac. ii. 59. Those who came after Christ began to make frivolous exceptions, because he so clearly pointed out the coming of our Saviour, (Theod.) that Porphyrius has no other method of evading this authority except by saying, that the book was written under Epiphanes after the event of many of the predictions. S. Jer.—But this assertion is contrary to all antiquity. Some parts have indeed been questioned, which are found only in Greek. They must, however, have sometime existed in Heb. or Chal. else how should we have the version of Theodotion, which the Church has substituted instead of the Sept. as that copy was become very incorrect, and is now lost? C.—Some hopes of its recovery are nevertheless entertained; and its publication, at Rome, has been announced. Kennicott.—In a title, it seems to make the Daniel visited by Habacuc, a priest; but it is abandoned. C.—This version of course proves that the original was formerly known; and the loss of it, at present, is no more decisive against the authenticity of these pieces, than that of S. Matthew's Heb. original, and of the Chaldee of Judith, &c. will evince that their works are spurious. H.—Extracts of (C.) Aquila and Sym. seen by J. Jerom, (W.) are also given in the Hexapla. Origen has answered the objections of Africanus, respecting the history of Susanna; and his arguments are equally cogent, when applied to the other contested works. The Jews and Christians were formerly both divided in their sentiments about these pieces. C. See S. Jer. in Jer. xxix. 12. and xxxii. 44.—But now as the Church (the pillar of truth) has spoken, all farther controversy ought to cease; (H.) and we should follow the precept, Remove not the landmarks which thy fathers have placed. Dent. xix. 14. See N. Alex. t. ii. S. Jerom, who sometimes calls these pieces "fables," explains himself, by observing, that he had delivered "not his own sentiments," but those of the Jews: quid illi contra nos dicere solant. C.—If he really denied their authority, his opinion ought not to outweigh that of so many other (H.) Fathers and Councils who receive them. They admit all the parts, as the Council of Trent expressly requires us to do. See S. Cyp. &c. also the observations prefixed to Tobias, (W.) and p. 597. H.—Paine remarks that Daniel and Ezechiel only pretended to have visions, and carried on an enigmatical correspondence relative to the recovery of their country. But this deserves no refutation. By allowing that their works are genuine, he cuts up the very root of his performance. Watson.—Daniel, according to Sir Is. Newton, resembles the Apoc. (as both bring us to the fall of the Roman empire) and is "the most distinct in order of time, and easiest to be understood; and therefore, in things that relate to the last times, he must be made a key to the rest." Bp. Newton.—Yet there are many difficulties which require a knowledge of history; (S. Jer. W.) and we must reflect on the words of Christ, He that readeth, let him understand. Mat. xxiv. 15. Daniel (H.) is supposed to have died at court, (C.) aged 110, having written many things of Christ. W.—His name is not prefixed to his book; yet, as Prideaux observes, he sufficiently shews himself in the sequel to be the author. H.

* A. M. 3398. A. C. 606.—Jer. xxv. 1.

CHAP. I. VER. 1. Third, at the conclusion, so that it is called the fourth. Jer. xxv. 1. A. Lap. M.—Nabuchodonosor began his expedition into Syria a year before he was king; (Salien, A. 3428. Jos. &c.) or he had the title before his father Nabopolassar's death. Usher, A. 3397.—The following year he took Joakim, with a design to convey him to Babylon; but he left him on hard terms, and seized many of the sacred vessels, Daniel, &c. C.—Joakim reigned other eight years. 2 Par. xxxvi. 5. W.

VER. 2. His god; Bel, or Belus, the principal idol of the Chaldeans. Ch.—The king pretended to derive his pedigree from Belus, (Abyd. Eus. præp. 1.) and greatly enriched his temple, (C.) which Xerxes demolished. Arrian.—God. Some part might be kept in the palace. C. v. x. and 2 Par. xxxvi. 7.

VER. 3. Eunuchs, or chief officers. The Jews assert that Daniel was made an eunuch. Is. xxxix. 7. But he might be so styled on account of his dignity. C.—Princes. Lit. "tyrants." H.—This name was afterwards only rendered odious by the misconduct of several kings. C.—Heb. parthemim, (H.) seems to be of Greek derivation, alluding to παρθενος, or παρτος, "the first or most honoured." Drus.—We find here other Greek words. C.

VER. 4. Blemish. Deformed people were excluded the throne, or the king's (1088) of his own meat, and of the wine of which he drank himself, that being nourished three years, afterwards they might stand before the king.

6 Now there was among them of the children of Juda, Daniel, Ananias, Misael, and Azarias.

7 And the master of the eunuchs gave them names: to Daniel, Baltassar: to Ananias, Sidrach: to Misael, Misach: and to Azarias, Abdenago.

8 But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not be defiled with the king's table, nor with the wine which he drank: and he requested the master of the eunuchs that he might not be defiled.

9 And God gave to Daniel grace and mercy in the sight of the prince of the eunuchs.

10 And the prince of the eunuchs said to Daniel: I fear my lord, the king, who hath appointed you meat and drink: who if he should see your faces leaner than those of the other youths, your equals, you shall endanger my head to the king.

11 And Daniel said to Malasar, whom the prince of the eunuchs had appointed over Daniel, Ananias, Misael, and Azarias:

presence. Procop. 1.—Science; well educated, or apt to learn. They were first to be taught the Chalde letters, which then differed from the Hebrew. C.

VER. 5. Meat: more exquisite. De Dieu.—All was first served on the king's table. Athen. vi. 14.

VER. 6. Juda. It is thought all four were of royal blood. C.—Others were also kept at court. M.

VER. 7. Baltassar, or as Chaldees (C. or Masorets. H.) pronounce, Beltesanar, "the treasurer of Baal." The names were changed to testify their subjection, (C.) and that they might embrace the manners of the Chaldees. M.—The new names alluded to the sun. C.

VER. 8. Daniel, as head and nearer the throne, gave good example to the rest. W.—Defiled, either by eating meat forbidden by the law, or which had before been offered to idols. Ch.—It was customary among the pagans to make an offering of some parts to their gods, or throw it into the fire. Theod. C.—These reasons determined the pious youths, (H.) who desired also to keep free from gluttony and other vices. Theod. W.

VER. 11. Malassar, another inferior officer. It means also one appointed over the mouth or provisions, (C.) and might be Asphenez v. 3. H. H.

12 Try, I beseech thee, thy servants for ten days, and let pulse be given us to eat, and water to drink:

13 And look upon our faces, and the faces of the children that eat of the king's meat: and as thou shalt see, deal with thy servants.

14 And when he had heard these words, he tried them for ten days.

15 And after ten days, their faces appeared fairer and fatter than all the children that ate of the king's meat.

16 So Malasar took their portions, and the wine that they should drink: and he gave them pulse.

17 And to these children God gave knowledge, and understanding in every book, and wisdom: but to Daniel the understanding also of all visions and dreams.

18 And when the days were ended, after which the king had ordered they should be brought in: "the prince of the eunuchs brought them in before Nabuchodonosor.

19 And when the king had spoken to them, there were not found among them all such as Daniel, Ananias, Misael, and Azarias: and they stood in the king's presence.

20 And in all matters of wisdom and understanding, that the king enquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the diviners, and wise men, that were in all his kingdom.

21 ^b And Daniel continued even to the first year of king Cyrus.

CHAP. II.

Daniel, by divine revelation, declares the dream of Nabuchodonosor, and the interpretation of it. He is highly honoured by the king.

IN the second year of the reign of Nabuchodonosor, Nabuchodonosor had a dream, and his spirit was terrified, and his dream went out of his mind.

2 Then the king commanded to call together the diviners and the wise men, and the magicians, and the Chaldeans: to declare to the king his dreams: so they came and stood before the king.

VER. 12. Pulse. That is, pease, beans, and such like. Ch.—S. Basil hence shews the advantages of fasting; and Catholici, who imitate Daniel, may expect the like reward in heaven: and hope that such a pattern would not displease their dissenting brethren, but rather screen them from their profane sarcasms. H.

VER. 17. Dreams. He was learned in all the sciences of the country, like Moses. Acts vii. 22. C.—They studied these things, in order to refute what was erroneous: discunt . . ut judicent. S. Jer.—The Chaldeans paid great attention to dreams. Daniel acquired the knowledge of such as were sent from heaven by the gift of God, as Joseph had done. To pay any regard to common dreams would be childish (C.) and sinful, if the person depend on them for the knowledge of futurity. H.

VER. 20. Diviners, or fortune-tellers.—Wise men. Sept. "philosophers." C.—Heb. Ashaphim, may come from the Gr. σοφοι. Grot.—They had been educated three years. v. 5. H.

VER. 21. Cyrus; and also to the third, (C. x.) and of course during the whole of the captivity. W.—He was maintained in power by the conqueror of Babylon. C. vi. 18. and xiv. 1. He first displayed his sagacity in the cause of Sanna, (C. xiii. C.) whose history was placed at the head of the book, in Theodotion, (S. Jer. in Isai. iii. 1.) as in its natural order. C.

CHAP. II. VER. 1. Year, from the death of his father, Nabopolassar; for he had reigned before as partner with his father, in the empire. Ch.—In that quality he conquered Syria, (A. 3397) took Daniel, &c. in 3399. He succeeded his father. Usher. C.—After he had enlarged his empire by the conquest of Egypt, &c. he had this dream. A. R. 25. W.—Mind. Sept. "his sleep departed from him." H.—He was restless, recollecting enough to fill him with trouble. When the dream was repeated over, he knew that it was the same. C.

VER. 2. The Chaldeans. That is, the astrologers, that pretended to divine by stars. Ch.—They dwelt on the banks of the Euphrates, and were highly esteemed. Diod. Sic. i.—They were the most ancient philosophers. Civ. Div. i.

3 And the king said to them: I saw a dream: and being troubled in mind I know not what I saw.

4 And the Chaldeans answered the king in Syriac: O king, live for ever: tell to thy servants thy dream, and we will declare the interpretation thereof.

5 And the king, answering, said to the Chaldeans: The thing is gone out of my mind: unless you tell me the dream, and the meaning thereof, you shall be put to death, and your houses shall be confiscated.

6 But if you tell the dream, and the meaning of it, you shall receive of me rewards, and gifts, and great honour: therefore, tell me the dream, and the interpretation thereof.

7 They answered again and said: Let the king tell his servants the dream, and we will declare the interpretation of it.

8 The king answered and said: I know for certain, that you seek to gain time, since you know that the thing is gone from me.

9 If, therefore, you tell me not the dream, there is one sentence concerning you, that you have also framed a lying interpretation, and full of deceit, to speak before me till the time pass away. Tell me, therefore, the dream, that I may know that you also give a true interpretation thereof.

10 Then the Chaldeans answered before the king, and said: There is no man upon earth, that can accomplish thy word, O king; neither doth any king, though great and mighty, ask such a thing of any diviner, or wise man, or Chaldean.

11 For the thing that thou asketh, O king, is difficult: nor can any one be found that can shew it before the king, except the gods, whose conversation is not with men.

12 Upon hearing this, the king in fury, and in great wrath, commanded that all the wise men of Babylon should be put to death.

13 And the decree being gone forth, the wise men were slain: and Daniel and his companions were sought for, to be put to death.

14 Then Daniel inquired concerning the law and

VER. 3. I know. Heb. also, "to know or understand what," &c.

VER. 4. Syriac. It was originally the same as the Chaldean. Daniel understood this language as well as Heb. and writes in it what concerned the Chaldeans, to C. viii. This shews his accuracy, as he makes his speakers use their own tongue. Spinosa ignorantly asserts, that all the seven first chapters are of Chal. and taken from the records of that nation by Judas Macc. How then did Matthias become acquainted with the contents?

VER. 5. Put. Chal. "torn to pieces, and your houses become infamous places;" (C.) Prot. "a dunghill." H.—Such cruel punishments were not uncommon. 1 Esd. vi. 11. C.—Bessus was torn in pieces by the relations of Darius; (Diod. xvii.) and the Persians generally cut off some member of criminals. Brisson ii.

VER. 8. Gain. Lit. "redeem." H.—S. Paul uses a similar expression, exhorting us to save our souls even at the expense of our temporal interest. C.—The diviners wished to give the king's fury time to abate, (H.) and to save their lives; (C.) or delay punishment, at least, as much as possible. H.

VER. 9. Thereof. It is indeed more easy to discover what dream a person has had, than to explain it; since the devil might disclose the former, but he can only guess at what will happen, and herein his agents are often deceived. See Gen. xl. W.—It is not even certain that the devil can know the dreams which we have not divulged, as it is the privilege of God to discern the secrets of the heart. H.

VER. 11. Men. They acknowledged greater and less gods. Stanley, p. 18. C. i.—They pretend not to have any communication with the superior ones, (C.) and by their answer unguardedly bear testimony to the excellence of the God whom Daniel served. S. Jer.

VER. 13. Slain. Lit. "were slaughtering;" interficiabantur. H.—Many think that some had already suffered. Geier. M.—They had been perhaps jealous of Daniel, and had not informed him of the matter. S. Jer.

VER. 14. General. He occupied the same office as Putiphar, in Egypt. Gen. (1089) the sentence, of Arioch, the general of the king's army, who was gone forth to kill the wise men of Babylon.

15 And he asked him that had received the orders of the king, why so cruel a sentence was gone forth from the face of the king. And when Arioch had told the matter to Daniel, 16 Daniel went in, and desired of the king, that he would give him time to resolve the question, and declare it to the king.

17 And he went into his house, and told the matter to Ananias, and Misael, and Azarias, his companions:

18 To the end that they should ask mercy at the face of the God of heaven, concerning this secret, and that Daniel and his companions might not perish with the rest of the wise men of Babylon.

19 Then was the mystery revealed to Daniel by a vision in the night: and Daniel blessed the God of heaven,

20 And speaking, he said: Blessed be the name of the Lord from eternity and for evermore: for wisdom and fortitude are his.

21 And he changeth times and ages: taketh away kingdoms, and establisheth them: giveth wisdom to the wise, and knowledge to them that have understanding:

22 He revealeth deep and hidden things, and knoweth what is in darkness: and light is with him.*

23 To thee, O God of our fathers, I give thanks, and I praise thee: because thou hast given me wisdom and strength: and now thou hast shewn me what we desired of thee, for thou hast made known to us the king's discourse.

24 After this Daniel went in to Arioch, to whom the king had given orders to destroy the wise men of Babylon, and he spoke thus to him: Destroy not the wise men of Babylon: bring me in before the king, and I will tell the solution to the king.

25 Then Arioch in haste brought in Daniel to the king, and said to him: I have found a man of the children of the captivity of Juda, that will resolve the question to the king.

26 The king answered, and said to Daniel, whose name was Baltassar: Thinkest thou indeed that thou canst tell me the dream that I saw, and the interpretation thereof?

27 And Daniel made answer before the king, and said: The secret that the king desireth to know, none of the wise men, or the philosophers, or the diviners, or the soothsayers, can declare to the king.

28 But there is a God in heaven that revealeth mysteries, who hath shewn to thee, O king Nabuchodonosor, what is to come to pass in the latter times. Thy dream, and the visions of thy head upon thy bed, are these:

29 Thou, O king, didst begin to think in thy bed, what should come to pass hereafter: and he that revealeth mysteries shewed thee what shall come to pass.

30 To me also this secret is revealed, not by any wisdom that I have more than all men alive: but that the interpretation might be made manifest to the king, and thou mightest know the thoughts of thy mind.

31 Thou, O king, sawest, and behold there was as it were a great statue: this statue, which was great and high, tall of stature, stood before thee, and the look thereof was terrible.

32 The head of this statue was of fine gold, but the breast and the arms of silver, and the belly and the thighs of brass.

33 And the legs of iron, the feet part of iron and part of clay.

34 Thus thou sawest, till a stone was cut out of a mountain without hands: and it struck the statue upon the feet thereof that were of iron and clay, and broke them in pieces.

35 Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold broken to pieces together, and became like the chaff of a summer's threshing-floor, and they were carried away by the wind: and there was no place found for them: but the stone that struck the statue became a great mountain, and filled the whole earth.

36 This is the dream: we will also tell the interpretation thereof before thee, O king.

37 Thou art a king of kings: and the God of heaven hath given thee a kingdom, and strength, and power, and glory:

38 And all places wherein the children of men, and the beasts of the field do dwell: he hath also given the birds of the air into thy hand, and hath put all things under thy power: thou, therefore, art the head of gold.

39 And after thee shall rise up another kingdom, inferior to thee, of silver: and another third kingdom of brass, which shall rule over all the world.

40 And the fourth kingdom shall be as iron. As

VER. 15. Cruel. Chal. also, "precipitate." C.

VER. 16. Declare the dream. H.—The Chaldeans had promised only to explain it, and the king knew the superior merit of Daniel. C. i. 19. C.

VER. 18. Secret. Lit. "sacrament." Gr. "mystery," which seems to be derived from (C.) moethor, "a secret." H.

VER. 19. Night, while he was probably asleep, (C.) or praying with his companions. Villet.

VER. 20. His. He grants them to whom he pleases, and disposes of kingdoms (C.) without control. v. 21.

VER. 27. Soothsayers. Chal. Gazerin, (H.) who inspect entrails, (Ezec. xxi. 21. S. Jer.) or tell fortunes by sticks. C. iii. 3.

VER. 28. Times. In the Old Test. this commonly signifies when Christ shall appear; but in the New, it refers to the end of the world. C.

VER. 29. Begin. By thus telling what thoughts the king had entertained before his dream, he would be heard with greater confidence. W.

VER. 31. Terrible, or unusual. C.—The statue denoted the four great empires of the Chaldees, Persians, Greeks and Romans. The metals did not mean that (1090) the empire of gold was greater than the rest, as that signified by the iron was far more powerful; but only that the empire of the Chaldees was then the greatest, and that the Persians would acquire still more power and be surpassed by the Greeks, as they were by the Romans, till the kingdom of Christ should be spread over all the earth. W.

VER. 37. Of kings. This title was used by the Persians. Nabuchodonosor was at that time the most potent monarch on earth. He conquered many nations, and greatly embellished the city of Babylon, surrounding it with three walls in fifteen days, and building hanging gardens, which were the wonder of the world. See Eus. præp. ix. 41. and x. 42. &c. C.

VER. 39. Another kingdom; viz. that of the Medes and Persians. Ch.—Inferior; later, of less duration and extent. C.—Third, &c. That of Alexander the Great. Ch.—World. Alexander received ambassadors at Babylon, from the most distant nations, testifying their submission. He conquered beyond the river Indus, &c. Diod. A. 1. Olym. 14. C.

VER. 40. The fourth kingdom, &c. Some understand this of the successors of Alexander, the kings of Syria and Egypt: others, of the Roman empire and its civil wars. Ch.—The former supposition seems best, though the latter is almost universally received, and will be explained hereafter. C.—The Roman empire iron breaketh into pieces, and subdueth all things, so shall that break, and destroy all these.

41 And whereas thou sawest the feet, and the toes, part of potter's clay, and part of iron: the kingdom shall be divided, but yet it shall take its origin from the iron, according as thou sawest the iron mixed with the miry clay.

42 And as the toes of the feet were part of iron, and part of clay: the kingdom shall be partly strong, and partly broken.

43 And whereas thou sawest the iron mixt with miry clay, they shall be mingled indeed together with the seed of man, but they shall not stick fast one to another, as iron cannot be mixed with clay.

44 But in the days of those kingdoms, the God of heaven will set up a kingdom that shall never be destroyed, and his kingdom shall not be delivered up to another people: and it shall break in pieces, and shall consume all these kingdoms: and itself shall stand for ever.

45 According as thou sawest, that the stone was cut out of the mountain without hands, and broke in pieces the clay and the iron, and the brass, and the silver, and the gold, the great God hath shewn the king what shall come to pass hereafter, and the dream is true, and the interpretation thereof is faithful.

46 Then king Nabuchodonosor fell on his face, and worshipped Daniel, and commanded that they should offer in sacrifice to him victims and incense.

47 And the king spoke to Daniel, and said: Verily, your God is the God of gods, and Lord of kings, and a revealer of hidden things: seeing thou couldst discover this secret.

48 Then the king advanced Daniel to a high station, and gave him many and great gifts: and he made him governor over all the provinces of Babylon: and chief of the magistrates over all the wise men of Babylon.

49 And Daniel requested of the king, and he appointed Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, over the works of the province of Babylon: but Daniel himself was in the king's palace.

CHAP. III.

Nabuchodonosor sets up a golden statue: which he commands all to adore: the three children, for refusing to do it, are cast into the fiery furnace; but are not hurt by the flames. Their prayer, and canticle of praise.

KING Nabuchodonosor *made a statue of gold, of sixty cubits high, and six cubits broad, and he set it up in the plain of Dura, of the province of Babylon.

2 Then Nabuchodonosor, the king, sent to call together the nobles, the magistrates, and the judges, the captains, the rulers, and governors, and all the chief men of the provinces, to come to the dedication of the statue which king Nabuchodonosor had set up.

3 Then the nobles, the magistrates, and the judges, the captains, and rulers, and the great men that were placed in authority, and all the princes of the provinces, were gathered together to come to the dedication of the statue, which king Nabuchodonosor had set up. And they stood before the statue which king Nabuchodonosor had set up.

did not immediately rise out of Alexander's, and had no relation to the Jews, &c. Grot. L'Empereur.—But it surely swallowed up all that he had left to his generals, and proved the greatest scourge to the Jewish nation; which has been ever since scattered, while the kingdom of Christ gains ground, and will flourish till that of Rome shall be no more. Antichrist will then appear to cast a cloud over, but not destroy it for three years and a half. It is the opinion of many Fathers, &c. that the Roman empire will subsist till that event take place; (see 2 Thes. ii. 3. 7.) and thus it may be said, that the fourth empire shall not be given to another people. For antichrist will not strive to exalt a particular nation, but to rule over all. Yet his dominion will be short, and will end in the general dissolution of nature; so that the Roman empire may be deemed to last for a long time, or even for ever. v. 44. Those who adopt the former system, allow (H.) that the stone designates both the Roman empire and that of Christ; so that some parts of the prediction may refer to one and some to the other. The origin and progress of the Roman empire, might be a figure of the spiritual power of the Church. It is certain that the successors of Alexander owed their dominion to their valour, and established it by the slaughter of many great generals. The kings who followed Seleucus and Ptolemy were remarkable for a mixture of good and bad qualities. Their efforts to preserve their power by intermarriages, proved abortive. The prophet seems also to have had them in view, C. vii. 7. and viii. 22. C.

VER. 41. Clay. The iron was in a rude state, mixed with earth. The Roman power was at last partly exercised by consuls and partly by emperors. M.—Florus (1.) compares it to the four states of a man, infancy, childhood, youth, and old age. Its youth may be dated from the conquest of all Italy to Tiberius; afterwards it fell to decay, while the eternal kingdom of Christ was forming. v. 44.

VER. 43. Man. Pompey and Cesar, Anthony and Augustus, married each other's relations; but they soon quarrelled, and the race of the Cæsars was extinct in Nero. But this is better understood of the kings of Syria and of Egypt. C.

VER. 44. Kingdom of Christ, in the Catholic Church, which cannot be destroyed. Ch.—This alone cannot be destroyed. W.—All other empires change. The Church has stood for seventeen centuries in the midst of persecutions, which gives us an assurance that she will continue for ever. C.—“Then,” says Munster, “was the kingdom of Christ set up, not by arms, . . . but by the divine power.” This interpretation arises from the improper version, without hands; whereas the sequel shews that the empire here spoken of, is attended with the like violence as the four others, which it destroys. The Roman empire was in no degree connected with others by marriage. In the following verse, Munster improperly turns to the second coming of our Saviour. Grotius here asserts that the stone alludes to the Roman armies, prefiguring the Son of man, whose gospel is indicated by the progress of the Roman empire, as both sprung from small beginnings. But who informed him that there were such figures in that empire as in the Old Testament? All empires begin in that manner, and types should have some greater resemblance with the reality. The Church meddles not with the temporal powers. It is therefore plain that the prophet speaks of empires which shall succeed each other. Houbigant, pref. Prop. 840. —Kingdoms. That of Rome comprised all the former. The persecuting emperors are forced to yield, and the colossal power of infidelity and vice falls before the gospel. Christ's dominion is spiritual, exercised against wickedness (C.) is heavenly and eternal. H.—The blood of martyrs was more efficacious in the establishing of Christianity, than fire and sword had been in forming other empires. M.

VER. 45. Hands. Prot. marg. “mountain, which was not in hand.” H.—Christ was born of a virgin; and his kingdom was not established by ambition, like others. Yet it presently became a mountain, and filled the earth. S. Just. dial. S. Aug. tr. 9. in Jo.—God himself sets up this kingdom. C.

VER. 46. Daniel, taking him for a little god, under the great one, v. 17. W.—Victims. Chal. mincha, (H.) of flour, &c. But the prophet had already declared his sentiments on this head, (v. 28.) and abhorred such honours, like S. Paul, (Acts xiv. 10. C.) though this is not here recorded. M.

VER. 47. Of gods, above all those of the country for explaining hidden things: yet he did not acknowledge him to be the only true God. C.—He afterwards erected an idol to represent his own greatness. W.

VER. 48. Provinces, or that of Babylonia, which was the first.—Wise men. This would not engage him in any idolatrous practices.

VER. 49. Works of agriculture, (C.) which the ancient kings of Persia encouraged with great attention, appointing officers to reward or punish according as their land was cultivated. Xenophon, Cyr. 8. & Econ.—S. Jerom thinks they were appointed judges, (C.) or assistants of Daniel. Grot.—Palace. Lit. “gates,” (H.) as receiver of the taxes, particularly at Susa. C. viii. 2. Marsham, Egypt. sec. 18.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. Statue. It was not the figure of a man, (C.) the dimensions 90 feet high and 9 broad (W.) being disproportionate; though a man might be represented on the pillar. Some take it for Nabopolassar, (C.) or for the king himself. S. Jer. W.—But he never complains of the injury shewn to his own person, and therefore it probably was meant for Bel, the chief god. C. iv. 5. and xiv. 1. This nation adored statues. Bar. vi. 3. The Persians worshipped only the elements. C.—Ochus first set up the statue of the goddess Tanais or Anais. Clem. Protr.—Dura. Sept. “enclosed.” S. Jer.—This happened towards the end of the king's reign, (v. 98, &c.) of course the three young men might be about fifty years old. C.

VER. 2. Nobles. Lit. “satraps,” or, “the king's domestics.” Sept. in 1 Ead viii. 36.—Judges, or “governors of provinces.” ib. Theodot. &c.—Captains of the soothsayers—Rulers; “tyrants,” here denoting treasurers. C.—Governors. Lit. “the grandees who were in power;” (H.) counsellors. The original adds, (C.) Thophthia, (H.) “lawyers” and orators. The head of the Turkish religion is called muphti, from the same root, (C.) peti, “to teach.” H.

VER. 5. Symphony This and several other terms seem taken from the (1091)

4 Then a herald cried with a strong voice: To you it is commanded, O nations, tribes and languages:

5 That in the hour that you shall hear the sound of the trumpet, and of the flute, and of the harp, of the sackbut, and of the psaltery, and of the symphony, and of all kind of music, ye fall down and adore the golden statue which king Nabuchodonosor hath set up.

6 But if any man shall not fall down and adore, he shall the same hour be cast into a furnace of burning fire.

7 Upon this, therefore, at the time when all the people heard the sound of the trumpet, the flute, and the harp, of the sackbut, and the psaltery, of the symphony, and of all kind of music, all the nations, tribes, and languages fell down and adored the golden statue which king Nabuchodonosor had set up.

8 And presently at that very time some Chaldeans came and accused the Jews,

9 And said to king Nabuchodonosor: O king, live for ever:

10 Thou, O king, hast made a decree, that every man that shall hear the sound of the trumpet, the flute, and the harp, of the sackbut, and the psaltery, of the symphony, and of all kind of music, shall prostrate himself, and adore the golden statue:

11 And that if any man shall not fall down and adore, he should be cast into a furnace of burning fire.

12 Now there are certain Jews, whom thou hast set over the works of the province of Babylon, Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago: these men, O king, have slighted thy decree: they worship not thy gods, nor do they adore the golden statue which thou hast set up.

13 Then Nabuchodonosor in fury, and in wrath, commanded that Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago should be brought: who immediately were brought before the king.

14 And Nabuchodonosor, the king, spoke to them, and said: Is it true, O Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, that you do not worship my gods, nor adore the golden statue that I have set up?

15 Now, therefore, if you be ready, at what hour soever, you shall hear the sound of the trumpet, flute, harp, sackbut, and psaltery, and symphony, and of all kind of music, prostrate yourselves, and adore the statue which I have made: but if you do not adore, you shall be cast the same hour into the furnace of burning fire: and who is the God that shall deliver you out of my hand?

16 Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, answered, and said to king Nabuchodonosor: We have no occasion to answer thee concerning this matter.

17 For behold our God, whom we worship, is able to save us from the furnace of burning fire, and to deliver us out of thy hands, O king.

18 But if he will not, be it known to thee, O king, that we will not worship thy gods, nor adore the golden statue which thou hast set up.

19 Then was Nabuchodonosor filled with fury: and the countenance of his face was changed against Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, and he commanded that the furnace should be heated seven times more than it had been accustomed to be heated.

20 And he commanded the strongest men that were in his army, to bind the feet of Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, and to cast them into the furnace of burning fire.

21 And immediately these men were bound, and were cast into the furnace of burning fire, with their coats, and their caps, and their shoes, and their garments.

22 For the king's commandment was urgent, and the furnace was heated exceedingly. And the flame of the fire slew those men that had cast in Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago.

23 But these three men, that is, Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, fell down bound in the midst of the furnace of burning fire.

24 And they walked in the midst of the flame, praising God, and blessing the Lord.

25 Then Azarias standing up, prayed in this manner, and opening his mouth in the midst of the fire, he said:

26 Blessed art thou, O Lord, the God of our fathers, and thy name is worthy of praise, and glorious for ever:

27 For thou art just in all that thou hast done to us, and all thy works are true, and thy ways right, and all thy judgments true.

28 For thou hast executed true judgments in all the things that thou hast brought upon us, and upon Jerusalem, the holy city of our fathers: for according to truth and judgment, thou hast brought all these things upon us for our sins.

29 For we have sinned, and committed iniquity, departing from thee: and we have trespassed in all things:

30 And we have not hearkened to thy command-

But as it was in all the Greek Bibles, (which were originally translated from the Hebrew) it is more than probable that it had been formerly in the Hebrew; or rather in the Chaldaic, in which the Book of Daniel was written: But this is certain: that it is and has been of old, received by the Church, and read as canonical Scripture in her liturgy and divine offices. ments, nor have we observed nor done as thou hadst commanded us, that it might go well with us.

31 Wherefore, all that thou hast brought upon us, and every thing that thou hast done to us, thou hast done in true judgment:

32 And thou hast delivered us into the hands of our enemies that are unjust, and most wicked, and prevaricators, and to a king unjust, and most wicked beyond all that are upon the earth.

33 And now we cannot open our mouths: we are become a shame, and a reproach to thy servants, and to them that worship thee.

34 Deliver us not up for ever, we beseech thee, for thy name's sake, and abolish not thy covenant.

35 And take not away thy mercy from us, for the sake of Abraham, thy beloved, and Isaac, thy servant, and Israel, thy holy one:

36 To whom thou hast spoken, promising that thou wouldst multiply their seed as the stars of heaven, and as the sand that is on the sea shore.

37 For we, O Lord, are diminished more than any nation, and are brought low in all the earth this day for our sins.

38 Neither is there at this time prince, or leader, or prophet, or holocaust, or sacrifice, or oblation, or incense, or place of first-fruits before thee,

39 That we may find thy mercy: nevertheless, in a contrite heart and humble spirit let us be accepted.

40 As in holocausts of rams, and bullocks, and as in thousands of fat lambs: so let our sacrifice be made in thy sight this day, that it may please thee: for there is no confusion to them that trust in thee.

41 And now we follow thee with all our heart, and we fear thee, and seek thy face.

42 Put us not to confusion, but deal with us according to thy meekness, and according to the multitude of thy mercies.

43 And deliver us, according to thy wonderful works, and give glory to thy name, O Lord:

44 And let all them be confounded that shew evils to thy servants, let them be confounded in all thy might, and let their strength be broken:

45 And let them know that thou art the Lord, the only God, and glorious over all the world.

46 Now the king's servants that had cast them in, ceased not to heat the furnace with brimstone and tow, and pitch, and dry sticks,

47 And the flame mounted up above the furnace nine and forty cubits:

48 And it broke forth, and burnt such of the Chaldeans as it found near the furnace.

49 But the angel of the Lord went down with Azarias and his companions into the furnace: and he drove the flame of the fire out of the furnace,

50 And made the midst of the furnace like the blowing of a wind bringing dew, and the fire touched them not at all, nor troubled them, nor did them any harm.

51 Then these three, as with one mouth, praised and glorified and blessed God, in the furnace, saying:

52 Blessed art thou, O Lord, the God of our fathers; and worthy to be praised, and glorified, and exalted above all for ever: and blessed is the holy name of thy glory: and worthy to be praised and exalted above all, in all ages.

53 Blessed art thou in the holy temple of thy glory: and exceedingly to be praised, and exceeding glorious for ever.

54 Blessed art thou on the throne of thy kingdom, and exceedingly to be praised and exalted above all for ever.

55 Blessed art thou that beholdest the depths, and sittest upon the cherubims: and worthy to be praised and exalted above all for ever.

56 Blessed art thou in the firmament of heaven: and worthy of praise, and glorious for ever.

91 Then Nabuchodonosor, the king, was astonished, and rose up in haste, and said to his nobles: Did we not cast three men bound into the midst of the fire? They answered the king, and said: True, O king.

92 He answered, and said: Behold, I see four men loose, and walking in the midst of the fire, and there is no hurt in them, and the form of the fourth is like the son of God.

93 Then Nabuchodonosor came to the door of the burning fiery furnace, and said: Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, ye servants of the most high God, go ye forth, and come. And immediately, Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, went out from the midst of the fire.

94 And the nobles, and the magistrates, and the judges, and the great men of the king, being gathered together, considered these men, that the fire had no power on their bodies, and that not a hair of their head had been singed, nor their garments altered, nor the smell of the fire had passed on them.

95 Then Nabuchodonosor breaking forth, said: Blessed be the God of them, to wit, of Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, who hath sent his angel, and delivered his servants that believed in him: and they changed the king's word, and delivered up their bodies, that they might not serve nor adore any god except their own God.

96 By me, therefore, this decree is made: That every people, tribe, and tongue, which shall speak blasphemy against the God of Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, shall be destroyed, and their houses laid waste: for there is no other God that can save in this manner.

97 Then the king promoted Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, in the province of Babylon.

98 Nabuchodonosor, the king, to all peoples, nations, and tongues, that dwell in all the earth, peace be multiplied unto you.

99 The most high God hath wrought signs and wonders towards me. It hath seemed good to me, therefore, to publish

CHAP. IV.

Nabuchodonosor's dream, by which the judgments of God are denounced against him for his pride, is interpreted by Daniel, and verified by the event.

I, NABUCHODONOSOR, was at rest in my house, and flourishing in my palace:

2 I saw a dream that affrighted me: and my thoughts in my bed, and the visions of my head, troubled me.

3 Then I set forth a decree, that all the wise men of Babylon should be brought in before me, and that they should shew me the interpretation of the dream.

4 Then came in the diviners, the wise men, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers, and I told the dream before them: but they did not shew me the interpretation thereof.

5 Till their colleague, Daniel, came in before me, whose name is Baltassar, according to the name of my god, who hath in him the spirit of the holy gods: and I told the dream before him.

6 Baltassar, prince of the diviners, because I know that thou hast in thee the spirit of the holy gods, and that no secret is impossible to thee, tell me the visions of my dreams that I have seen, and the interpretation of them?

7 This was the vision of my head in my bed: I saw, and behold a tree in the midst of the earth, and the height thereof was exceeding great.

8 The tree was great and strong, and the height thereof reached unto heaven: the sight thereof was even to the ends of all the earth.

9 Its leaves were most beautiful, and its fruit exceeding much: and in it was food for all: under it dwelt cattle and beasts, and in the branches thereof the fowls of the air had their abode: and all flesh did eat of it.

10 I saw in the vision of my head upon my bed, and behold a watcher, and a holy one came down from heaven.

11 He cried aloud, and said thus: Cut down the tree, and chop off the branches thereof: shake off its leaves, and scatter its fruits: let the beasts fly away that are under it, and the birds from its branches.

12 Nevertheless, leave the stump of its roots in the earth, and let it be tied with a band of iron and of brass, among the grass, that is without, and let it be wet with the dew of heaven, and let its portion be with the wild beasts in the grass of the earth.

13 Let his heart be changed from man's, and let a beast's heart be given him: and let seven times pass over him.

14 This is the decree by the sentence of the watchers, and the word and demand of the holy ones: till the living know, that the most High ruleth in the kingdom of men: and he will give it to whomsoever it shall please him, and he will appoint the basest *man over it.

15 I, king Nabuchodonosor, saw this dream: thou, therefore, O Baltassar, tell me quickly the interpretation: for all the wise men of my kingdom are not able to declare the meaning of it to me: but thou art able, because the spirit of the holy gods is in thee.

16 Then Daniel, whose name was Baltassar, began silently to think within himself for about one hour: and his thoughts troubled him. But the king answering, said: Baltassar, let not the dream and the interpretation thereof trouble thee. Baltassar answered, and said: My lord, the dream be to them that hate thee, and the interpretation thereof to thy enemies.

17 The tree which thou sawest, which was high and strong, whose height reached to the skies, and the sight thereof into all the earth:

18 And the branches thereof were most beautiful, and its fruit exceeding much, and in it was food for all, under which the beasts of the field dwelt, and the birds of the air had their abode in its branches.

19 It is thou, O king, who art grown great, and become mighty: for thy greatness hath grown, and hath reached to heaven, and thy power unto the ends of the earth.

He says this, because the name of Baltassar, or Belteshazzar, is derived from the name of Bel, the chief god of the Babylonians. Ch.—Gods. He speaks conformably to his false opinion; (S. VER. 12. Let it, the tree, representing the king who was confined when he began to shew signs of madness: but he broke loose, and fled away. C.

VER. 13. Changed, &c. It does not appear, by Scripture, that Nabuchodonosor was changed from human shape, much less that he was changed into an ox, but only that he lost his reason, and became mad; and in this condition remained abroad in the company of beasts, eating grass like an ox, till his hair grew in such a manner as to resemble the feathers of eagles, and his nails to be like birds' claws. Ch.—Origen represents the whole as an allegorical description of the fall of Lucifer. See S. Jer. But his arguments have made little impression: and it is universally believed that Nabuchodonosor was thus punished for his pride, after a whole year had been allowed him to see if he would repent. The manner of this strange metamorphose has been variously explained. But it seems that he was seized with the species of madness styled Lycanthropy, (C.) as Virgil (Ec. vi. 48.) relates of the daughters of Phryxus, who "with mimic'd moanings fill'd the fields." H.—Thus many fancy they are kings, or horses, (C.) and that they are continually mounting above the clouds, of which we have an instance in a woman still living at Whitby, who in other respects appears to be sufficiently sensible, (H.) as Tertullian and others think Nabuchodonosor was, that he might suffer more. Yet it is commonly supposed he lost his senses for a while, till God was pleased to restore them at the time appointed; when his former humiliating state might make a deep impression upon his mind, as well as upon his subjects, and caution all future generations to guard against the fatal consequences of pride. His son, Evilmerodach, probably ruled during his absence. Most of the Chaldee writings have perished; so that we need not be surprised if they take no notice of this event, which was so disgraceful to the nation. Yet Megasthenes, (in Eus. prep. ix. ult.) seems to hint at it, when he represents the king seized with a divine fury, and crying out: (C. Diss.) "I, the same Nabuchodonosor, foretell unto you, Babylonians, a fatal calamity, which neither my ancestor Belus, nor even the kingdom of Bel, (H. the gods) have power to avert. For a Persian mule (Cyrus, C.) shall come, assisted by your demons, and bring on slavery. . . Having uttered this oracle, he suddenly disappeared." H.—Beast's heart. In his hypochondriac temper he imagined himself (C.) to be an ox, (H.) avoided the society of men, going naked and feeding on grass, upon his hands and feet, till (after seven years) God restored him to his senses and kingdom. W.—The food which he used would tend to purge him, and naturally abate the disorder. Barthol.—Yet none but God could tell precisely when the madness would seize or leave him.—Times. This usually denotes years, in Daniel; (vii. 25. and xii. 7.) and of course (C.) we must understand it here in this sense; (W.) though some have explained it of an indeterminate length of time, or of weeks, months, or seasons. Only winter and summer were admitted, so that half this period would thus suffice. See Theod. C.

VER. 14. Over it. Kings are not always of the most noble dispositions. H.—"All honour comes from Jove." Homer. Ili. 17.—Let the greatest monarchs be humble, (H.) and cast their crowns at the feet of God. C.

VER. 16. Hour. Chal. shaha, (H.) implies "a little while;" (Grot.) yet o

20 And whereas the king saw a watcher, and a holy one come down from heaven, and say: Cut down the tree, and destroy it, but leave the stump of the roots thereof in the earth, and let it be bound with iron and brass, among the grass without, and let it be sprinkled with the dew of heaven, and let his feeding be with the wild beasts, till seven times pass over him.

21 This is the interpretation of the sentence of the most High, which is come upon my lord, the king.

22 They shall cast thee out from among men, and thy dwelling shall be with cattle, and with wild beasts, *and thou shalt eat grass, as an ox, and shalt be wet with the dew of heaven: and seven times shall pass over thee, till thou know that the most High ruleth over the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will.

23 But whereas he commanded, that the stump of the roots thereof, that is, of the tree, should be left: thy kingdom shall remain to thee, after thou shalt have known that power is from heaven.

24 Wherefore, O king, let my counsel be acceptable to thee, *and redeem thou thy sins with alms, and thy iniquities with works of mercy to the poor: perhaps he will forgive thy offences.

25 All these things came upon king Nabuchodonosor.

26 At the end of twelve months he was walking in the palace of Babylon.

27 And the king answered, and said: Is not this the great Babylon, which I have built, to be the seat of the kingdom, by the strength of my power, and in the glory of my excellence?

28 And while the word was yet in the king's mouth, a voice came down from heaven: To thee, O king Nabuchodonosor, it is said: Thy kingdom shall pass from thee.

29 And they shall cast thee out from among men, and thy dwelling shall be with cattle and wild beasts: thou shalt eat grass like an ox, and seven times shall pass over thee, till thou know that the most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will.

30 The same hour the word was fulfilled upon Nabuchodonosor, and he was driven away from among men, and did eat grass, like an ox, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven: till his hairs grew like the feathers of eagles, and his nails like birds' claws.

31 Now at the end of the days, *I, Nabuchodonosor, lifted up my eyes to heaven, and my sense was restored to me: and I blessed the most High, and I praised and glorified him that liveth for ever: *for his power is an everlasting power, and his kingdom is to all generations.

32 And all the inhabitants of the earth are reputed as nothing before him: for he doth according to his will, *as well with the powers of heaven, as among the inhabitants of the earth: and there is none that can resist his hand, and say to him: Why hast thou done it?

33 At the same time my sense returned to me, and I came to the honour and glory of my kingdom: and my shape returned to me: and my nobles, and my magistrates, sought for me, and I was restored to my kingdom: and greater majesty was added to me.

34 Therefore I, Nabuchodonosor, do now praise, and magnify, and glorify the King of heaven: because all his works are true, and his ways judgments, and them that walk in pride he is able to abase.

CHAP. V.

Baltassar's profane banquet: his sentence is denounced in a hand writing on the wall, which Daniel reads and interprets.

BALTASSAR, *the king, made a great feast for a thousand of his nobles: and every one drank according to his age.

2 And being now drunk, he commanded that they should bring the vessels of gold and silver, which Nabuchodonosor, his father, had brought away out of the temple, that was in Jerusalem, that the king and his nobles, and his wives, and his concubines, might drink in them.

some duration, not precisely like one of the modern hours. The prophet was silent, being troubled by the divine spirit, (C. x. 8.) at the view of impending misery; or unwilling to hurt the king's feelings, till he should urge him to speak. C.—He was sorry to denounce such calamities, yet must speak the truth. W.—Trouble. Theodot. "make thee hurry." He perceived the prophet's anxiety, and encouraged him.

VER. 23. Remain. His son and the nobles should act in his name. v. 13.

VER. 24. Alms. Chal. "justice," is often taken in this sense. Syr. &c. 2 Cor. ix. 9. C.—The prediction was conditional, and therefore Daniel exhorts the king to strive to obtain pardon by the powerful remedy of alms-deeds; as he did, after enduring some punishment. W.—Yet this is very doubtful. v. 31.

VER. 25. Came. Daniel informs us of this event, unless the king speak of himself in the third person, from v. 16 to 31, giving an account of what he had heard and experienced. H.—A year of trial was allowed him at first; (Theod.) or he obtained this reprieve by his alms, and lost his former merit by relapsing into pride. S. Jer.

VER. 27. Answered his own vain thoughts. H.—He was admiring the city, C.) which he had greatly enlarged and beautified. Beros. &c.

VER. 31. Heaven: God having looked on me with pity. S. Aug. (ep. 111. C. or 132. W.) seems to think that he was saved; and the author of the B. on Pæd. & grace, (c. 16) attributed to him, remarks that his repentance was different from that of Pharaoh. Hence none must despair. S. Jer. ep. vii. to Leta.—See Theod. A. Lap. &c. who maintain the same opinion: but S. Thomas expresses his doubts. Isaiah (xiv. 9) seems to consign him to hell; and the king here manifests his adhesion to Bel, (v. 5.) and great inconstancy. C. ii. 47. and iii. 15. His conviction seems therefore to have been only in speculation, (C.) or momentary, like that of the philosophers, (Rom. i.) which would render them only more criminal; and we must confess, (H.) that this conversion is very equivocal. Sanctius v. 24 and 34. H.

VER. 32. With, or "by the powers (angels. v. 10.) . . . as by men." Grot.—The stars are also frequently thus described. Mat. xxiv. 29. The king probably believed that the God of the Jews was above his gods, the sun, fire, &c. C.

VER. 33. Shape. He had not assumed that of an ox, (II.) but had greatly neglected his person, (C.) so that he was covered with hair, &c. v. 30. H.

VER. 34. I, &c. From this place some commentators infer, that this king became a true convert, and dying not long after, was probably saved. Ch. Joa. Ant. 10.—This is the last act of his which is recorded. If he had lived much longer, he would probably have restored the Jews. W.—But the time decreed by heaven for their liberation was not yet arrived. H.

CHAP. V. VER. 1. Baltassar. He is believed to be the same as Nabonides, the last of the Chaldean kings, grandson to Nabuchodonosor. He is called his son v. 2, 11, &c. according to the style of the Scriptures, because he was a descendant from him. Ch. S. Jer. in. la. xiii. Usher, &c.—Some think that he was brother of Evilmerodac v. 11. Bar. i. 11. But he seems rather to have been his son. Jer. xxvii. 7. Profane authors place Neriglissor and Laborosoarchod between them. They were not of the royal family, and might be looked upon as usurpers, or reigned in some other place; or they did not meddle with the Jews. C.—It is wonderful that Josephus should prefer these authors; (T.) yet he abandons the dates given by them. Ant. x. 12. & c. Ap. 1. They represent Nabonides as a simple Babylonian raised to the throne, defeated by Cyrus, and suffered to retire into Carmania; whereas, Baltassar was slain. v. 29. C.—The others were of a different lineage, and are mentioned by Eus. &c. Evilmerodac certainly preceded him on the throne, and honoured Joachin in the 37th year of his captivity. W.—Thousand; or, "for his officers over a thousand men." Theodot.—Every. Chal. "and drank wine before the thousand," more than any, for this was deemed a great perfection; or he drank in their presence, but apart. C.—The Persian monarchs used to sit in a separate apartment, with a veil before the door, so that they could see the guests without being seen. A great chandelier was before them; (Athen. iv. 10.) probably on the outside, otherwise it would have defeated their purpose. Light sufficient would appear for Baltassar to see the hand-writing on his chamber wall. v. 5. H.—According to the order of time, this chapter should be placed after the vii. and viii. C.—But those contain visions. H.

VER. 6. Loosed, so that he quaked for fear. Ezec. xxix. 7. C.—He was not

3 Then were the golden, and silver vessels brought, which he had brought away out of the temple that was in Jerusalem: and the king and his nobles, his wives, and his concubines, drank in them.

4 They drank wine, and praised their gods of gold, and of silver, of brass, of iron, and of wood, and of stone.

5 In the same hour there appeared fingers, as it were of the hand of a man, writing over-against the candlestick, upon the surface of the wall of the king's palace: and the king beheld the joints of the hand that wrote.

6 Then was the king's countenance changed, and his thoughts troubled him: and the joints of his loins were loosed, and his knees struck one against the other.

7 And the king cried out aloud to bring in the wise men, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers. And the king spoke, and said to the wise men of Babylon: Whosoever shall read this writing, and shall make known to me the interpretation thereof, shall be clothed with purple, and shall have a golden chain on his neck, and shall be the third man in my kingdom.

8 Then came in all the king's wise men, but they could neither read the writing, nor declare the interpretation to the king.

9 Wherewith king Baltassar was much troubled, and his countenance was changed: and his nobles also were troubled.

10 Then the queen, on occasion of what had happened to the king, and his nobles, came into the banquet-house: and she spoke, and said: O king, live for ever: let not thy thoughts trouble thee, neither let thy countenance be changed.

11 There is a man in thy kingdom that hath the spirit of the holy gods in him: and in the days of thy father knowledge and wisdom were found in him: for king Nabuchodonosor, thy father, appointed him prince of the wise men, enchanters, Chaldeans, and soothsayers, thy father, I say, O king:

12 Because a greater spirit, and knowledge, and understanding, and interpretation of dreams, and shewing of secrets, and resolving of difficult things, were found in him, that is, in Daniel: whom the king named Baltassar. Now, therefore, let Daniel be called for, and he will tell the interpretation.

13 Then Daniel was brought in before the king. And the king spoke, and said to him: Art thou Daniel, of the children of the captivity of Juda, whom my father, the king, brought out of Judea?

14 I have heard of thee, that thou hast the spirit of the gods, and excellent knowledge, and understanding, and wisdom are found in thee.

15 And now the wise men, the magicians, have come in before me, to read this writing, and shew me the interpretation thereof; and they could not declare to me the meaning of this writing.

16 But I have heard of thee, that thou canst interpret obscure things, and resolve difficult things: now if thou art able to read the writing, and to shew me the interpretation thereof, thou shalt be clothed with purple, and shalt have a chain of gold about thy neck, and shalt be the third prince in my kingdom.

17 To which Daniel made answer, and said before the king: thy rewards be to thyself, and the gifts of thy house give to another: but the writing I will read to thee, O king, and shew thee the interpretation thereof.

18 O king, the most high God gave to Nabuchodonosor, thy father, a kingdom, and greatness, and glory, and honour.

19 And for the greatness that he gave to him, all people, tribes, and languages trembled, and were afraid of him: whom he would, he slew: and whom he would, he destroyed: and whom he would, he set up: and whom he would, he brought down.

20 But when his heart was lifted up, and his spirit hardened unto pride, he was put down from the throne of his kingdom, and his glory was taken away.

21 *And he was driven out from the sons of men, and his heart was made like the beasts, and his dwelling was with the wild asses, and he did eat grass like an ox, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven: till he knew that the most High ruled in the kingdom of men, and that he will set over it whomsoever it shall please him.

22 Thou also, his son, O Baltassar, hast not humbled thy heart, whereas thou knewest all these things:

23 But hast lifted thyself up against the Lord of heaven: and the vessels of his house have been brought before thee: and thou, and thy nobles, and thy wives, and thy concubines, have drunk wine in them: and thou hast praised the gods of silver, and of gold, and of brass, of iron, and of wood, and of stone, that neither see, nor hear, nor feel: but the God who hath thy breath in his hand, and all thy ways, thou hast not glorified.

24 Wherefore, he hath sent the part of the hand which hath written this that is set down.

so drunk as to be deprived of sense. H.—This happened in the 17th and last year of his reign, when Daniel was about a hundred years old, (W.) though we have no certain account of his age. H.—He might be eighty-two when he died. C.

VER. 11. Father. So a grandfather might be styled. Jer. xxvii. 7. W.—Daniel was not perhaps at the head of the wise men. C.—They were too jealous to mention him; and the intoxicated king and courtiers remembered not his merit, till an aged matron suggested that he should be consulted. He was probably (H.) in some office, at Susa, yet happened to be then in Babylon, (C.) which was besieged; and thither he might have retired at the approach of Cyrus.

VER. 16. Difficult. Lit. "things which are tied," or perplexing. H.—The Persians still use the like expressions, to imply an intelligent governor. Chardin.

VER. 17. Another. He does not refuse the offers, but civilly replies that he will give satisfaction without regard to any recompense.

VER. 18. Slew. He was an absolute monarch, and considered his subjects as so many slaves. C.—Xerxes having called together his nobles, that he might not seem to have resolved on the war with Greece alone, said: "Nevertheless, remember that you have to obey rather than to advise." V. Max. 9. 5. 2.

VER. 21. Beasts. His disordered imagination made him dwell with them. W.—It is strange that such an example should have been so soon forgotten, that Daniel is forced to repeat it so explicitly. C. iv. 13.

VER. 23. Vessels. Only part had been returned to Sedecias; (C. i. 2.) but they were taken again, and kept in the palace, or in the temple of Bel. H.—Breath, or soul. Gen. ii. 7. C.

25 And this is the writing that is written: MANE, THECEL, PHARES.

26 And this is the interpretation of the word. MANE: God hath numbered thy kingdom, and hath finished it.

27 THECEL: thou art weighed in the balance, and art found wanting.

28 PHARES: thy kingdom is divided, and is given to the Medes and Persians.

29 Then by the king's command; Daniel was clothed with purple, and a chain of gold was put about his neck: and it was proclaimed of him that he had power as the third man in the kingdom.

CHAP. VI.

Daniel is promoted by Darius: his enemies procure a law forbidding prayer: for the transgression of this law, Daniel is cast into the lion's den: but miraculously delivered.

IT seemed good to Darius, and he appointed over the kingdom a hundred and twenty governors, to be over his whole kingdom.

2 And three princes over them, of whom Daniel was one: that the governors might give an account to them, and the king might have no trouble.

3 And Daniel excelled all the princes, and governors: because a greater spirit of God was in him.

4 And the king thought to set him over all the kingdom; whereupon the princes, and the governors, sought to find occasion against Daniel, with regard to the king: and they could find no cause, nor suspicion, because he was faithful, and no fault, nor suspicion was found in him.

5 Then these men said: We shall not find any occasion against this Daniel, unless perhaps concerning the law of his God.

VER. 25. Phares. These words consist of three letters, mona, thokol, pros, as we add o merely for pronunciation. Being unconnected and almost destitute of vowels, (H.) it is not easy even for the learned to read these words, or to ascertain their meaning. Thus d b r being placed in a similar situation, it would be impossible to determine the sense; as it may have ten different meanings, according as it is pronounced. v. 8. C.—Mane is twice repeated, to shew the certainty and exactitude of the numbering. M.—Yet in the sequel each word occurs once and unconnected, as it is here in the Vulg.; not Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin, (Prot. H.) "He hath numbered, numbered, weighed, and the dividers of the Persians" are upon thee, (T.) as Dalila said to Samson. Only three words (H.) were written. S. Jer.—The rest contain the prophet's explanation. The Chaldean empire had now attained its utmost height. Its king brought ruin upon himself by his wicked life. H.—He would soon be divided with the sword, and his kingdom shared between the Medes and Persians. S. Jer.

VER. 28. Persiana. Those who confound Baltassar with Nabonides, say that Cyrus made himself master of all the empire. How then was it divided? Darius rather took possession of the greatest part while Cyrus had Persia, (C.) till his uncle's death. H.

VER. 29. Third, or over a third part. S. Jer. v. 7. H. The honours were conferred without delay, and they would have been made public in the morning. But death prevented the king; and Daniel did not enjoy them till they were ratified by Darins, to whom he adhered. C.—The Medes then besieged the city, which they took that night, when most part were drunk. W.—It was a solemn festival. Is. xxi. S. Jer.—Cyrus rushed in by the channel of the Euphrates, and two of the king's guards slew him to revenge themselves. Xenoph. 7. Beros.

VER. 31. Darius. He is called Cyazares by the historians, and was the son of Astyages, and uncle to Cyrus (Ch.) as well as to Baltassar, by the mother's side. He is styled Astyages, (C. xiii. 65.) or Artaxerxes. Sept. C. vi. 1. He takes the title of king both of the Medes and Persians. C. vi. 8. &c. C.

CHAP. VI. VER. 1. Kingdom. Josephus, &c. say Darius had returned into Media, where he made these regulations. But if this did not take place at Babylon, it would be rather at Susa. C. viii. Josephus counts 300 or 360 (1098)

6 Then the princes, and the governors, craftily suggested to the king, and spoke thus unto him: King Darius, live for ever:

7 All the princes of the kingdom, the magistrates, and governors, the senators, and judges, have consulted together, that an imperial decree, and an edict be published: That whosoever shall ask any petition of any god, or man, for thirty days, but of thee, O king, shall be cast into the den of the lions.

8 Now, therefore, O king, confirm the sentence,^b and sign the decree: that what is decreed by the Medes and Persians may not be altered, nor any man be allowed to transgress it.

9 So king Darius set forth the decree, and established it.

10 Now, when Daniel knew this, that is to say, that the law was made, he went into his house: and opening the windows in his upper chamber towards Jerusalem, he knelt down three times a day, and adored and gave thanks before his God, as he had been accustomed to do before.

11 Wherefore those men carefully watching him, found Daniel praying and making supplication to his God.

12 And they came and spoke to the king concerning the edict: O king, hast thou not decreed, that every man that should make a request to any of the gods, or men, for thirty days, but to thyself, O king, should be cast into the den of the lions? And the king answered them, saying: The word is true, according to the decree of the Medes and Persians, which it is not lawful to violate.

13 Then they answered, and said before the king: Daniel, who is of the children of the captivity of Juda, hath not regarded thy law, nor the decree that thou hast made: but three times a day he maketh his prayer.

14 Now when the king had heard these words, he was very much grieved, and in behalf of Daniel he set

VER. 3. Princes. Th. "regulators." Chal. sarecin, (H.) may be put for (C.) seranim, (H.) the usual title (C.) of the highest officers, the surnas of Persia. Ammian 30.

VER. 4. Kingdom, as prime minister, to whom the three princes should be accountable, as the inferior governors were to them. H.—The king was now advanced in years, and wished to ease himself of part of the burden, (C.) as he could entirely confide in Daniel. H.—He reigned only one year. C. xiii. 65. W.—King. Chal. "kingdom," (H.) to accuse him of treason, (Grot.) or to get him removed. C.—This is an old and malignant trick, to call religion treason, and to get laws made for that purpose. W.—In him a great proof of integrity! M.

VER. 6. Craftily. Chal. "came tumultuously to," &c. C.—They hoped thus to convince the king, as they were so unanimous. He would not perceive the drift of their petition, and was flattered with the idea of being like a god Daniel was not consulted, though on other occasions the king reposed such confidence in him, as the deputies so impudently asserted that the wish was universal! So easily are princes deceived! H.

VER. 8. It, when it is confirmed both by the king and his nobility. Est. viii. 8.

VER. 9. It. Nabuchodonosor of Babylon, and of Ninive, had both pretended to be gods; (C. iii. 15. Judith v. 29. C.) and Curtius (8.) remarks, "that the Persians follow the dictates of prudence as well as of piety, in worshipping their kings among the gods, the majesty of empire being its best protection." H.

VER. 10. Before. He did not open the windows that he might be seen, as that would have been rashness; nor did many perceive what he was doing, (v. 11. W.) as it was in an upper room, but only those who rushed in. H.—It was the usual practice of the Jews, (C.) to pray turning towards the temple, as Solomon had directed, (3 K. viii. 48. S. Jer. in Ezech. viii. 16.) though it was now in ashes. H.—Daniel observed the third, sixth, and ninth hours, as the Church still does. Acts ii. 15. and x. 9. S. Jer.

his heart to deliver him, and even till sun-set he laboured to save him.

15 But those men perceiving the king's design, said to him: Know thou, O king, that the law of the Medes and Persians is, that no decree which the king hath made, may be altered.

16 Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of the lions. And the king said to Daniel: Thy God, whom thou always servest, he will deliver thee.

17 And a stone was brought, and laid upon the mouth of the den: which the king sealed with his own ring, and with the ring of his nobles, that nothing should be done against Daniel.

18 And the king went away to his house, and laid himself down without taking supper, and meat was not set before him, and even sleep departed from him.

19 Then the king rising very early in the morning, went in haste to the lions' den:

20 And coming near to the den, cried with a lamentable voice to Daniel, and said to him: Daniel, servant of the living God, hath thy God, whom thou servest always, been able, thinkest thou, to deliver thee from the lions?

21 And Daniel answering the king, said: O king, live for ever:

22 *My God hath sent his angel, and hath shut up the mouths of the lions, and they have not hurt me: forasmuch as before him justice hath been found in me: yea, and before thee, O king, I have done no offence.

23 Then was the king exceeding glad for him, and he commanded that Daniel should be taken out of the den: and Daniel was taken out of the den, and no hurt was found in him, because he believed in his God.

24 And by the king's commandment, those men were brought that had accused Daniel: and they were cast into the lions' den, they and their children, and their wives: and they did not reach the bottom of the den, before the lions caught them, and broke all their bones in pieces.

25 Then king Darius wrote to all people, tribes, and languages, dwelling in the whole earth: PEACE be multiplied unto you.

26 It is decreed by me, that in all my empire and my kingdom, all men dread and fear the God of Daniel. For he is the living and eternal God for ever: and his kingdom shall not be destroyed, and his power shall be for ever.

27 He is the deliverer, and saviour, doing signs and wonders in heaven, and in earth: who hath delivered Daniel out of the lions' den.

28 *Now Daniel continued unto the reign of Darius, and the reign of Cyrus, the Persian.

CHAP. VII.

Daniel's vision of the four beasts, signifying four kingdoms: of God sitting on his throne: and of the opposite kingdoms of Christ and antichrist.

IN the first year of Baltassar, king of Babylon, Daniel saw a dream: and the vision of his head was upon his bed: and writing the dream, he comprehended it in a few words: and relating the sum of it in short, he said:

2 I saw in my vision by night, and behold the four winds of the heavens strove upon the great sea.

3 And four great beasts, different one from another, came up out of the sea.

4 The first was like a lioness, and had the wings of an eagle: I beheld till her wings were plucked off, and she was lifted up from the earth, and stood upon her feet as a man, and the heart of a man was given to her.

5 And behold another beast, like a bear, stood up on one side: and there were three rows in the mouth thereof, and in the teeth thereof, and thus they said to it: Arise, devour much flesh.

6 After this I beheld, and lo, another like a leopard, and it had upon it four wings, as of a fowl, and the beast had four heads, and power was given to it.

7 After this I beheld in the vision of the night, and

W.—These wretches deserved to perish, though they had spoken nothing but the truth. H.—Wives. Many examples of such punishments occur, (C.) as it was presumed the children and wives were infected by the bad example, and would imitate it, (Jun.) if they had not concurred already. sors of Alexander the great, more especially of them that reigned in Asia and Syria, (Ch.) or in Egypt. C. ii. 40. H.

VER. 4. Man. The emperors of Babylon were forced to confess that they were nothing more. C.—Their cruel and rapid conquests (W.) are denoted by this monstrous animal. Its wings shew how the lands were divided between the Medes and Persians. Perhaps Neriglissor, &c. shared a part. C. v. 1. C.

Grot.—Cyrus was always at war; and Justin (1.) says, that Tomyris II. of Scythia, ordered his head to be cut off, and thrown into a vessel full of blood. His troops are styled robbers, Jer. li. 48. The ambition of Cambyzes, Hystaspes, &c. was insatiable.

Egypt, Syria, Asia, and Macedon, (Theod.) as he had united in his person the empire of the Chaldees, Medes, Persians, and Greeks. C.

VER. 7. Unlike. It is not named: but shews the incomparable power of the Romans, governed by kings, consuls, tribunes, dictators, and emperors, at different times. W.—This is the opinion generally received, which we shall explain. Yet many think that the kingdoms of Syria and Egypt are designated, as C. ii. 40. S. Jerom acknowledges that what is understood of antichrist, had been partly verified in Epiphane's, his figure. The beast was to be slain before the coming of the Son of man. v. 11, 26. It would persecute for three years and a half; but God would grant victory to his saints, as he did to the Machabees. Yet they only exhibited a faint idea of what has been done by the Church. The same subject is treated, C. xi. Many things caused the dominion of the lo, a fourth beast, terrible and wonderful, and exceeding strong, it had great iron teeth, eating and breaking in pieces, and treading down the rest with his feet: and it was unlike to the other beasts which I had seen before it, and had ten horns.

8 I considered the horns, and behold another little horn sprung out of the midst of them: and three of the first horns were plucked up at the presence thereof: and behold eyes like the eyes of a man were in this horn, and a mouth speaking great things.

9 I beheld till thrones were placed, and the ancient of days sat: his garment was white as snow, and the hair of his head like clean wool: his throne like flames of fire: the wheels of it like a burning fire.

10 A swift stream of fire issued forth from before him: * thousands of thousands ministered to him, and ten thousand times a hundred thousand stood before him: the judgment sat, and the books were opened.

11 I beheld, because of the voice of the great words which that horn spoke: and I saw that the beast was slain, and the body thereof was destroyed, and given to the fire to be burnt:

12 And that the power of the other beasts was taken away: and that times of life were appointed them for a time, and a time.

13 I beheld, therefore, in the vision of the night, and lo, one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and he came even to the ancient of days: and they presented him before him.

14 And he gave him power, and glory, and a kingdom: and all peoples, tribes, and tongues shall serve him: * his power is an everlasting power that shall not be taken away: and his kingdom, that shall not be destroyed.

15 My spirit trembled; I, Daniel, was affrighted at these things, and the visions of my head troubled me.

16 I went near to one of them that stood by, and asked the truth of him concerning all these things, and successors of Alexander to be unlike that of others. It was never united, and was very destructive to the Jews. C.—Horns. That is, ten kingdoms, (as Apoc. xvii. 12.) among which the empire of the fourth beast shall be parcelled: or ten kings of the number of the successors of Alexander, as figures of such as shall be about the time of antichrist. Ch.—Epiphanes was the eighth king, and Laomedon, Antigonus, and Demetrius, had been governors of Syria before. Most understand this of antichrist, whom Epiphanes foreshewed. Others think that it points out Vespasian, the tenth successor of Caesar, who made war on the Jews. The same prediction may regard different events, as the abomination (C. ix.) may allude to the profanations committed by Epiphanes, by the Romans at the last siege, and by antichrist. Others apply this to the Turkish empire, which may be paving the way for the great antagonist of Christ. C. Dioclesian and Julian may also be meant, as well as other forerunners of the man of sin. H.—He shall overcome many, but his fury shall continue but a short time, v. 25. W.

VER. 8. Little horn. This is commonly understood of antichrist. It may also be applied to that great persecutor, Antiochus Epiphanes, as a figure of antichrist. Ch.—He was the youngest son of Antiochus the great, and was a hostage at Rome. While he was returning, his elder brother died, and Epiphanes excluded his son Philometor, of Egypt, and the usurper Heliodorus. He also defeated three, Philometor, on the south; Artaxias, king of Armenia, on the east; and the strength, or God's people, v. 24. and C. viii. 9.—Man. He gained several at first, by his affability.—Things: blasphemy. 1 Mac. i. 23. 43. C.

VER. 9. Ancient. The Son is born of the Father, and the Holy Ghost proceeds from both, yet all three are coeternal. W.—Hence the Father is sometimes painted in this manner, though he be a pure spirit. His throne resembled that seen by Ezechiel, C. i. H.—He takes cognizance of all, and punishes accordingly. C.

VER. 10. Fire. Pa. xvi. 3.—Thousands. Gr. implies one million and one hundred millions. M.—The angels are very numerous, particularly the highest, styled assistants. S. Tho. W.

he told me the interpretation of the words, and instructed me:

17 These four great beasts, are four kingdoms, which shall arise out of the earth.

18 But the saints of the most high God shall take the kingdom: and they shall possess the kingdom for ever and ever.

19 After this I would diligently learn concerning the fourth beast, which was very different from all, and exceeding terrible: his teeth and claws were of iron: he devoured and broke in pieces, and the rest he stamped upon with his feet:

20 And concerning the ten horns that he had on his head: and concerning the other that came up, before which three horns fell: and of that horn that had eyes, and a mouth speaking great things, and was greater than the rest.

21 I beheld, and lo, that horn made war against the saints, and prevailed over them,

22 Till the ancient of days came and gave judgment to the saints of the most High, and the time came, and the saints obtained the kingdom.

23 And thus he said: The fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall be greater than all the kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall tread it down, and break it in pieces.

24 And the ten horns of the same kingdom, shall be ten kings: and another shall rise up after them, and he shall be mightier than the former, and he shall bring down three kings.

25 And he shall speak words against the High One, and shall crush the saints of the most High: and he shall think himself able to change times and laws, and they shall be delivered into his hand until a time, and times, and half a time.

26 And a judgment shall sit, that his power may be taken away, and be broken in pieces, and perish even to the end.

27 And that the kingdom, and power, and the greatness of the kingdom, under the whole heaven, may be

VER. 11. Spoke. I wished to see how the king would be punished. He felt the hand of God as he was going to destroy all the Jews, when he pretended to repent. 1 Mac. vi. and 2 Mac. ix. 4. His successors could not much disturb the Jews v. 13. C.

VER. 12. Time. Each of the four empires had its period assigned. That of Rome attracted the prophet's attention most, and is mentioned first. M.

VER. 13. Heaven. Christ appeared about sixty years after the subversion of the Syrian monarchy. Yet these expressions literally refer to his second coming. Mat. xxvi. 64. C.—He had the form of man, as he had the nature. M.—He is clearly predicted. By his power antichrist is overthrown. W.

VER. 14. Destroyed. The eternal dominion of Christ could not be expressed in stronger terms. He seems to allude to them, Mat. xxviii. 18. C.

VER. 17. Earth. The first was on the point of disappearing. C. v. 81. H.

VER. 18. Most High, (Th.) or rather Chal. "the very high saints of God;" as also v. 22, 25, and 27.

VER. 21. Saints. The Machabees at last prevailed. Christ will punish the Jews. Mat. xxiv. 30.

VER. 23. Greater. Chal. "unlike," as v. 7. Epiphanes was a greater scourge of the Jews than any of the preceding.

VER. 24. Mightier. Chal. again, "unlike." Antiochus the great had lost many provinces: but his son was the most implacable enemy of God's people. He subdued them, Egypt and Armenia; or his three competitors. v. 8.

VER. 25. Against, or "over against," like an accuser. Sym. "as if he were God."—Laws. He did this with regard to the Jews, (1 Mac. i. 41. C.) prohibiting their festivals. Antichrist will do the like, and pretend to work miracles. H.—A time, &c. That is, three years and a half; which is supposed to be the length of the duration of the persecution of antichrist. Ch. Apoc. xi. 2. and xii. 14.—Josephus (Bel. pref.) says the sacrifices were discontinued so long, or rather this time elapsed from the publishing his edict till the temple was purified. During six months, people offered sacrifice clandestinely. 1 Mac. iv. 36. 52.

VER. 27. Him. The power of the Machabees was too limited, to be here understood. The Church and Christ must be meant.

given to the people of the saints of the most High: whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all kings shall serve him, and shall obey him.

28 Hitherto is the end of the word. I, Daniel, was much troubled with my thoughts, and my countenance was changed in me: but I kept the word in my heart.

CHAP. VIII.

Daniel's vision of the ram and he-goat, interpreted by the angel Gabriel.

IN the third year of the reign of king Baltassar, a vision appeared to me. I, Daniel, after what I had seen in the beginning,

2 Saw in my vision when I was in the castle of Susa, which is in the province of Elam: and I saw in the vision that I was over the gate of Ulai.

3 And I lifted up my eyes, and saw: and behold a ram stood before the water, having two high horns, and one higher than the other, and growing up. Afterward

4 I saw the ram pushing with his horns against the west, and against the north, and against the south: and no beasts could withstand him, nor be delivered out of his hand: and he did according to his own will, and became great.

5 And I understood: and behold a he-goat came from the west on the face of the whole earth, and he touched not the ground, and the he-goat had a notable horn between his eyes.

6 And he went up to the ram that had the horns, which I had seen standing before the gate, and he ran towards him in the force of his strength.

7 And when he was come near the ram, he was enraged against him, and struck the ram: and broke his two horns, and the ram could not withstand him: and when he had cast him down on the ground, he stamped

* A. M. 3451. A. C. 553.

VER. 28. Word. The angel spoke no more at this time. C.

CHAP. VIII. VER. 1. Beginning. This vision was to explain what he had seen C. vii. respecting the four monarchies. The conflict of the Persians with Alexander, after two hundred and twenty years, is here described. W.

VER. 2. Castle; some read "city." Here the kings had a palace; and Hystaspes, &c. generally resided in it. Nabuchodonosor seems to have subdued Elam. Cyrus had it for his share; but Darius, the Mede, appears from Eschylus to have plundered Susa again. Daniel probably spent the latter part of his life in this city. C.—Gate, or "stagnant water;" (paludem. v. 3. H.) though most understand the river Euleus, on the side of Susiana. The prophets often sought retired places. C. x. 4. Eze. i. 1. C.

VER. 3. A ram. The empire of the Medes and Persians. Ch. W.—Cyrus, the founder, was allied to both.—Higher, denoting the Persians; or Hystaspes, and his posterity, the second branch of the royal family, which reigned to the end: whereas Cambyzes was the only one of the race of Cyrus who succeeded to the throne. Others think that he alludes to Codomannus, whom Alexander certainly attacked.—Afterward is not in Heb. S. Jerom supposed that another ram was designated, but it is the same.

VER. 4. South. Codomannus reigned in peace for two years, when he was invaded. But his predecessors had made war chiefly in Greece, Scythia, and Egypt. The stupendous preparations of Xerxes against Greece only accelerated the fall of his own kingdom, by irritating the two nations. C.

VER. 5. A he-goat. The empire of the Greeks, or Macedonians.—He touched not the ground. He conquered all before him with so much rapidity, that he seemed rather to fly than to walk upon the earth.—A notable horn. Alexander the great. Ch.—He succeeded his father when only twenty years old, and the next year was chosen generalissimo of the Greeks against Persia, which he invaded at the head of 30,000 foot and 4,000 horse, having only seventy talents of silver and provisions for one month. With this he attacked the most flourishing empire, and conquered it in less than four years' time, when Darius was slain. A. 3674. Alexander survived only six years and ten months, yet subdued so many nations that it is almost incredible that he should have travelled over them. He is the belly of brass and the leopard, C. ii. 39. and vii. 6. C.—He died in the midst of his prosperity, (H.) when not quite thirty-three years old, (W.) and left no heirs to succeed him. This conqueror would be painted with two horns, to intimate that he was the son of Jupiter Ammon. C.

VER. 7. Hand. He routed all the forces of his enemy (H.) at the Granicus, at Issus; and at Gaugamela, (C.) or Arbela, Darius escaped, but was slain by his own servants. H.—The clemency of the conqueror towards the fallen royal family is not here specified. C.

VER. 8. Broken, by death. Usher, A. 3681.—Four. Seleucus, Antigonus, upon him, and none could deliver the ram out of his hand.

8 And the he-goat became exceeding great: and when he was grown, the great horn was broken, and there came up four horns under it towards the four winds of heaven.

9 And out of one of them came forth a little horn: and it became great against the south, and against the east, and against the strength.

10 And it was magnified even unto the strength of heaven: and it threw down the strength, and of the stars, and trod upon them.

11 And it was magnified even to the prince of the strength: and it took away from him the continual sacrifice, and cast down the place of his sanctuary.

12 And strength was given him against the continual sacrifice because of sins: and truth shall be cast down on the ground, and he shall do and shall prosper.

13 And I heard one of the saints speaking, and one saint said to another I know not to whom, that was speaking: How long shall be the vision, concerning the continual sacrifice, and the sin of the desolation that is made: and the sanctuary, and the strength be trodden under foot?

14 And he said to him: Unto evening and morning two thousand three hundred days: and the sanctuary shall be cleansed.

15 And it came to pass when I, Daniel, saw the vision, and sought the meaning, that behold there stood before me as it were the appearance of a man.

16 And I heard the voice of a man between Ulai: and he called, and said: Gabriel, make this man to understand the vision.

17 And he came, and stood near where I stood: and Philip, and Ptolemaeus, the successors of Alexander, who divided his empire among them. Ch.—Other generals held out for some time. Philip was only a nominal king; Antipater governed Macedon and Greece. Syria, Asia, and Egypt, formed three other kingdoms. All four are marked out by the four heads of the leopard. C. vii. 6. But the prophet is intent upon Syria and Egypt, which had most to do with the Jews. C.

VER. 9. A little horn. Antiochus Epiphanes, a descendant of Seleucus. He grew against the south and the east, by his victories over the kings of Egypt and Armenia; and against the strength, that is, against Jerusalem and the people of God. Ch.—He persecuted God's people, and set up the idol of Jupiter Olympius in the very temple. W.

VER. 10. Even unto, or against the strength of heaven. So are here called the army of the Jews, the people of God, (Ch.) and particularly the teachers. Many priests gave way to idolatry. 1 Mac. i. 48. and 2 Mac. iv. 14. C.

VER. 11. Strength; the God of armies, (H.) over whom Epiphanes seemed to triumph.

VER. 12. Strength. Heb. "the army was delivered up to him, for the," &c. While several contended for the high priesthood, and imitated the manners of the Greeks, the sacrifices were neglected, and then Antiochus prevailed. 2 Mac. iv. 7.—Ground. The ambitious pontiffs, as well as the king and his officers, kept not their promises. Onias, the lawful high priest, being displaced, went to seek redress at Antioch, in the asylum at Daphne. Andronicus prevailed on him to come out by treacherous promises, and slew him; whereupon even Epiphanes wept, and ordered the murderer to be punished. 2 Mac. iv. 32. The following year he entered Jerusalem, and committed horrible profanations.

VER. 13. Another. We do not inquire how the angels explained themselves, or whether they instruct each other. This conversation was for the prophet's information. C.—One angel asked the other a question about futurity. W.

VER. 14. Days. That is, six years and almost four months; which was the whole time from the beginning of the persecution of Antiochus till his death. Ch.—He began A. 143, and died A. 149, according to the era of Seleucus. H.—The temple was purified in the mean time. 1 Mac. i. 21. and vi. 16. W.—Full days are specified. Sacrifice entirely ceased for three years, A. 145. C. vii. 25. Sym. has 2,400, others 2,200, as quoted by S. Jerom. We know not whether the solar year of 365 days, or the lunar of 354, be meant.

VER. 16. Between, in an island formed by the river. It was the Son of God, (C.) or S. Michael, (S. Jer.) directing Gabriel to explain the vision.

VER. 17. Man. So Ezechiel is usually styled, to shew that the human nature is different from that of angels, and would be greatly honoured by Jesus Christ, who takes this appellation. W.—Of the end, or determined. This shall take place, (C.) but the period is distant. Grot. v. 26.

when he was come, I fell on my face, trembling, and he said to me: Understand, O son of man, for in the time of the end the vision shall be fulfilled.

18 And when he spoke to me, I fell flat on the ground: and he touched me, and set me upright.

19 And he said to me: I will shew thee what things are to come to pass in the end of the malediction: for the time hath its end.

20 The ram, which thou sawest with horns, is the king of the Medes and Persians.

21 And the he-goat, is the king of the Greeks, and the great horn that was between his eyes, the same is the first king

22 But whereas when that was broken, there rose up four for it, four kings shall rise up of his nation, but not with his strength.

23 And after their reign, when iniquities shall be grown up, there shall arise a king of a shameless face, and understanding dark sentences.

24 And his power shall be strengthened, but not by his own force: and he shall lay all things waste, and shall prosper, and do more than can be believed. And he shall destroy the mighty, and the people of the saints,

25 According to his will, and craft shall be successful in his hand: and his heart shall be puffed up, and in the abundance of all things he shall kill many: and he shall rise up against the prince of princes, and shall be broken without hand.

26 And the vision of the evening and the morning, which was told, is true: thou, therefore, seal up the vision, because it shall come to pass after many days.

27 And I, Daniel, languished, and was sick for some days: and when I was risen up, I did the king's business, and I was astonished at the vision, and there was none that could interpret it.

Daniel's confession and prayer; Gabriel informs him concerning the seventy weeks to the coming of Christ.

IN *the first year of Darius, the son of Assuerus, of the seed of the Medes, who reigned over the kingdom of the Chaldeans:

VER. 23. Shameless. Heb. "hard," cruel, and impudent, as Epiphanes was. 1 Mac. i. 2. Marcellinus styles him "wrathful and savage."—Sentences, making use of artifice to seize the estates of his nephew Philometor, and to oppress the Jews. 2 Mac. v. 24. C.—The history speaks of Antiochus: antichrist is also meant, as C. xii. and Mat. xxiv. W.

VER. 24. By. Heb. "not to his (Alexander's) strength." v. 22. Epiphanes conquered Egypt and the Jews: but the former had an infant king, and the latter were unprovided. He shewed more cunning than prowess.

VER. 25. Prince: God.—Hand of man. He confessed that he was justly punished. 1 Mac. vi. 10. Gr. "He shall raise himself by the ruin of many, (Theod. and some MSS. add, and shall rise up against the prince of princes) and he shall break them like eggs with his hand."

VER. 26. Morning of this day, or of what shall happen in certain full days. v. 14.—Seal. When the predictions were to take place soon, they were dated and published. that seventy years should be accomplished of the desolation of Jerusalem.

3 And I set my face to the Lord, my God, to pray and make supplication with fasting, and sackcloth, and ashes

4 And I prayed to the Lord, my God, and I made my confession, and said: *I beseech thee, O Lord God, great and terrible, who keepest the covenant, and mercy to them that love thee, and keep thy commandments.

5 ^aWe have sinned, we have committed iniquity, we have done wickedly, and have revolted: and we have gone aside from thy commandments, and thy judgments.

6 We have not hearkened to thy servants, the prophets, that have spoken in thy name to our kings, to our princes, to our fathers, and to all the people of the land.

7 To thee, O Lord, justice: but to us confusion of face, as at this day to the men of Juda, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and to all Israel, to them that are near, and to them that are far off, in all the countries whither thou hast driven them, for their iniquities, by which they have sinned against thee.

8 O Lord, to us belongeth confusion of face, to our princes, and to our fathers, that have sinned.

9 But to thee, the Lord our God, mercy and forgiveness, for we have departed from thee:

10 And we have not hearkened to the voice of the Lord, our God, to walk in his law, which he set before us by his servants, the prophets.

11 And all Israel have transgressed thy law, and have turned away from hearing thy voice, and the malediction, and the curse, *which is written in the book of Moses, the servant of God, is fallen upon us, because we have sinned against him.

12 And he hath confirmed his words which he spoke against us, and against our princes that judged us, that he would bring in upon us a great evil, such as never was under all the heaven, according to that which hath been done in Jerusalem.

13 As it is written in the law of Moses, all this evil is come upon us: and we entreated not thy face, O Lord our God, that we might turn from our iniquities, and think on thy truth.

CHAP. IX. VER. 1. Darius, the Mede. C. v. 31. If his reign had commenced at the same time with that of Cyrus, at Babylon, as it is commonly supposed, Daniel would have been under no anxiety respecting the people's liberation, as it took place that year, (C.) though perhaps not at the commencement. H.—Cyrus had now ruled over the Persians above two years, so that the first of Darius at Babylon agrees with the third of his reign over his countrymen. C. x. C.—Assuerus, or Ahasuerus, is not a proper name, but means "a great prince." W.

VER. 2. Jerusalem. He read attentively the sacred volumes, particularly the prophecy of Jer. xxv. 11. and xxix. 10. Knowing that many predictions were conditional, he was afraid lest this might be so; notwithstanding a part of it seemed to be verified by the death of Baltassar. C.—Darius had reigned in Persia before. He only ruled part of a year, at Babylon, the 70th of the captivity. 2 Par. xxxvi. 22. Daniel perceiving that the time of the Jews' deliverance was at hand, prayed with great zeal and confidence. W.

VER. 4. Covenant. God never breaks it first. C.—Deus sud gratia semel justificatos non deserit, nisi ab eis prius deseratur. Trid. Sess. vi. 11.

VER. 16. Against. Heb. "according to."—Justice. Sept. "mercy." Let not the enemy boast that he has ruined thy temple, &c. v. 17. C.

14 And the Lord hath watched upon the evil, and hath brought it upon us: the Lord, our God, is just in all his works which he hath done: for we have not hearkened to his voice.

15 "And now, O Lord, our God, who hast brought forth thy people out of the land of Egypt, with a strong hand, and hast made thee a name as at this day: we have sinned, we have committed iniquity,

16 O Lord, against all thy justice: let thy wrath and thy indignation be turned away, I beseech thee, from thy city, Jerusalem, and from thy holy mountain. For by reason of our sins, and the iniquities of our fathers, Jerusalem, and thy people, are a reproach to all that are round about us.

17 Now, therefore, O our God, hear the supplication of thy servant, and his prayers: and shew thy face upon thy sanctuary, which is desolate, for thy own sake.

18 Incline, O my God, thy ear, and hear: open thy eyes, and see our desolation, and the city upon which thy name is called: ^bfor it is not for our justifications that we present our prayers before thy face, but for the multitude of thy tender mercies.

19 O Lord, hear: O Lord, be appeased: hearken, and do: delay not, for thy own sake, O my God: because thy name is invoked upon thy city, and upon thy people.

20 Now while I was yet speaking, and praying, and confessing my sins, and the sins of my people of Israel, and presenting my supplications in the sight of my God, for the holy mountain of my God:

21 As I was yet speaking in prayer, behold the man,

Gabriel, whom I had seen in the vision at the beginning, ^aflying swiftly, touched me at the time of the evening sacrifice.

22 And he instructed me, and spoke to me, and said: O Daniel, I am now come forth to teach thee, and that thou mightest understand.

23 From the beginning of thy prayers the word came forth: and I am come to shew it to thee, because thou art a man of desires: therefore, do thou mark the word, and understand the vision.

24 "Seventy weeks are shortened upon thy people, and upon thy holy city, that transgression may be finished, and sin may have an end, and iniquity may be abolished; and everlasting justice may be brought; and vision and prophecy may be fulfilled; and the Saint of saints may be anointed.

25 Know thou, therefore, and take notice: that from the going forth of the word, to build up Jerusalem again, unto Christ, the prince, there shall be seven weeks, and sixty-two weeks: and the street shall be built again, and the walls, in straitness of times.

26 And after sixty-two weeks Christ shall be slain: and the people that shall deny him shall not be his. And a people, with their leader, that shall come, shall destroy the city, and the sanctuary: and the end thereof shall be waste, and after the end of the war the appointed desolation.

27 And he shall confirm the covenant with many, in one week: and in the half of the week the victim and the sacrifice shall fail: and there shall be in the temple the abomination of desolation: and the desolation shall continue even to the consummation, and to the end.

VER. 24. Seventy weeks (viz. of years, or seventy times seven, that is, 490 years) are shortened; that is, fixed and determined, so that the time shall be no longer. Ch.—This is not a conditional prophecy. Daniel was solicitous to know when the seventy years of Jeremias would terminate. But something of far greater consequence is revealed to him, (W.) even the coming and death of the Messiah, four hundred and ninety years after the order for rebuilding the walls should be given, (C.) at which period Christ would redeem the world, (W.) and abolish the sacrifices of the law. C.—Finished, or arrive at its height by the crucifixion of the Son of God; (Theod.) or rather sin shall be forgiven. Heb. "to finish crimes to seal (cover or remit) sins, and to expiate iniquity."—Anointed. Christ is the great anointed of God, the source of justice, and the end of the law and of the prophets, (Acts x. 38. and 1 Cor. i. 30. Rom. x. 4. C.) as well as the pardoner of crimes. These four characters belong only to Christ. W.

VER. 25. Word, &c. That is, from the twentieth year of king Artaxerxes, when, by his commandment, Nehemias rebuilt the walls of Jerusalem, 2 Esd. ii. From which time, according to the best chronology, there were just sixty-nine weeks of years, that is 483 years, to the baptism of Christ, when he first began to preach and execute the office of Messiah. Ch.—The prophecy is divided into three periods: the first of forty-nine years, during which the walls were completed; (they had been raised in fifty-two days, (2 Esd. vi. 15.) but many other fortifications were still requisite) the second of four hundred and thirty-four years, at the end of which Christ was baptized, in the fifteenth of Tiberius, the third of three years and a half, during which Christ preached. In the middle of this last week, the ancient sacrifices became useless, (C.) as the true Lamb of God had been immolated. Theod.—A week of years denotes seven years, as Lev. xxv. and thus seventy of these weeks would make four hundred and ninety years. V. Bede. Rat. temp. 6 &c. W.—Oaigen would understand 4900 years, and dates from the fall of Adam to the ruin of the temple. Marsham begins twenty-one years after the captivity commenced, when Darius took Susa, and ends in the second of Judas, when the temple was purified. This system would destroy the prediction of Christ's coming, and is very uncertain. Hardouin modifies it, and acknowledges that Christ was the end of the prophecy, though it was fulfilled in figure by the death of Onias III. See 1 Mac. i. 19. Senens. Bib. viii. hæ. 12. and Estius. From C. vii. to xii. the changes in the East, till the time of Epiphanes, are variously described. After the angel had here addressed Daniel, the latter was still perplexed; (C. x. l.) and in order to remove his doubts, the angel informs him of the persecution of Epiphanes, as if he had been speaking of the same event. We may, therefore, count forty-nine years from the taking of Jerusalem (when Jeremias spoke, C. v. 19.) to Cyrus, the anointed, (Is. xlv. 1.) who was appointed to free God's people. They should still be under the Persians, &c. for other four hundred and thirty-four years, and then Onias should be slain. Many would join the Machabees; the sacrifices should cease in the middle of the seventieth week, and the desolation shall continue to the end of it. Yet, though this system may seem plausible, it is better to stick to the common one, which naturally leads us to the death of Christ, dating from the tenth year of Artaxerxes. C.—He had reigned ten years already with his father. Petau.—All the East was persuaded that a great king should arise about the time; when our Saviour actually appeared, and fulfilled all that had been spoken of the Messiah. C. Diss.—Ferguson says, "We have an astronomical demonstration of the truth of this ancient prophecy, seeing that the prophetic year of the Messiah being cut off was the very same with the astronomical." In a dispute between a Jew and a Christian, at Venice, the Rabbi who presided... put an end to the business by saying, "Let us shut up our Bibles; for if we proceed in the examination of this prophecy, it will make us all become Christians." Watson, let. 6.—Hence probably the Jews denounce a curse on those who calculate the times, (H.) and they have purposely curtailed their chronology. C.—Times, &c. (angustia temporum) which may allude both to the difficulties and opposition they met with in building, and to the shortness of the time in which they finished the wall, viz. fifty-two days. Ch.

VER. 26. Weeks, or four hundred and thirty-eight years, which elapsed from the twentieth of Artaxerxes to the death of Christ, according to the most exact chronologists. C.—Slain. Prot. "cut off, but not for himself, and the people of the prince that," &c. H.—S. Jerom and some MSS. read, Christus, et non erit ejus. The sense is thus suspended. The Jews lose their prerogative of being God's people. C.—Christ will not receive them again. S. Jer.—Gr. "the unction shall be destroyed, and there shall not be judgment in him." The priesthood and royal dignity is taken from the Jews. Theod.—The order of succession among the high priests was quite deranged, while the country was ruled by the Romans, and by Herod, a foreigner. C.—Leader. The Romans under Titus. Ch. C.

VER. 27. Many. Christ seems to allude to this passage. Mat. xxvi. 28. He died for all; but several of the Jews particularly, would not receive the proffered grace. C.—Of the week, or in the middle of the week, &c. Because Christ preached three years and a half: and then, by his sacrifice upon the cross, abolished all the sacrifices of the law. Ch.—Temple. Heb. "the wing," (C.) or pinnacle, (H.) the highest part of the temple. C.—Desolation. Some understand this of the profanation of the temple by the crimes of the Jews, and by the bloody

CHAP. X.

Daniel having humbled himself, by fasting and penance, seeth a vision, with which he is much terrified: but he is comforted by an angel.

IN^a the third year of Cyrus, king of the Persians, a word was revealed to Daniel, surnamed Baltassar, and a true word, and great strength: and he understood the word: for there is need of understanding in a vision.

2 In those days I, Daniel, mourned the days of three weeks.

3 I ate no desirable bread, and neither flesh, nor wine, entered into my mouth, neither was I anointed with ointment: till the days of three weeks were accomplished.

4 And in the four and twentieth day of the first month, I was by the great river, which is the Tigris.

5 And I lifted up my eyes, and I saw: and behold a man clothed in linen, and his loins were girded with the finest gold:

6 And his body was like the chrysolite, and his face as the appearance of lightning, and his eyes as a burning lamp: and his arms, and all downward even to the feet, like in appearance to glittering brass: and the voice of his word like the voice of a multitude.

7 And I, Daniel alone, saw the vision: for the men that were with me saw it not: but an exceeding great terror fell upon them, and they fled away, and hid themselves.

8 And I, being left alone, saw this great vision: and there remained no strength in me, and the appearance of my countenance was changed in me, and I fainted away, and retained no strength.

9 And I heard the voice of his words: and when I heard I lay in a consternation upon my face, and my face was close to the ground.

10 And behold a hand touched me, and lifted me up upon my knees, and upon the joints of my hands.

11 And he said to me: Daniel, thou man of desires, understand the words that I speak to thee, and stand upright: for I am sent now to thee. And when he had said this word to me, I stood trembling.

12 And he said to me: Fear not, Daniel: for from faction of the zealots. Others, of the bringing in thither the ensigns and standard of the pagan Romans. Others, in fine, distinguish three different times of desolation: viz. that under Antiochus; that when the temple was destroyed by the Romans; and the last near the end of the world, under antichrist. To all which, as they suppose, this prophecy may have a relation. Ch.—Prot. "For the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate, even unto the consummation; and that determined, shall be poured upon the desolate." H.—The ruin shall be entire. C.

CHAP. X. VER. 1. Third. This concurs with the first of Darius. Cyrus then reigned in Persia, and the king is here often mentioned, as the vision happened near it, on the banks of the Tigris. Only twenty-one days had elapsed since the former.—Strength. Heb. "warfare," or determinate time. Job vii. 1. This shall surely take place, but not soon. C.—For. Prot. "and had understanding," &c. H.—He was informed of the meaning, or strove to know what the preceding vision denoted. C.—Pharao and Baltassar were not prophets, as they did not comprehend what they saw. For understanding is requisite, in order that a vision may be prophetic. S. Tho. ii. 2. q. 175 a. 2. W.

VER. 2. Weeks. Marsham says twenty-one years. But it means only so many days. He began to mourn on the third of Nisan, and continued fasting (v. 4) it seems even on the sabbaths, and on the feast of Passover, till the 24th. C.—He was grieved that the people did not make use of the leave granted by Cyrus; (Theod.) or because the Samaritans had prevailed at court to have the temple forbidden; (Usher, A. 3470, and 1 Esd. i. 14.) or rather because he could not fully understand the former visions. C. ix. 30. and xii. 9. &c. C.

VER. 5. Linen. Heb. baddim.—Finest. Heb. uphaz, (H.) from Phasis or Ophir.

VER. 6. Chrysolite. Heb. "Tharsis." This precious stone was perhaps greenish.

the first day that thou didst set thy heart to understand, to afflict thyself in the sight of thy God, thy words have been heard: and I am come for thy words.

13 But the prince of the kingdom of the Persians resisted me one and twenty days: and behold Michael, one of the chief princes, came to help me, and I remained there by the king of the Persians.

14 But I am come to teach thee what things shall befall thy people in the latter days, for as yet the vision is for days.

15 And when he was speaking such words to me, I cast down my countenance to the ground, and held my peace.

16 And behold as it were the likeness of a son of man touched my lips: then I opened my mouth and spoke, and said to him that stood before me: O my lord, at the sight of thee my joints are loosed, and no strength hath remained in me.

17 And how can the servant of my lord speak with my lord? for no strength remaineth in me; moreover, my breath is stopped.

18 Therefore, he that looked like a man, touched me again, and strengthened me.

19 And he said: Fear not, O man of desires, peace be to thee: take courage, and be strong. And when he spoke to me, I grew strong, and I said: Speak, O my lord, for thou hast strengthened me.

20 And he said: Dost thou know wherefore I am come to thee? And now I will return, to fight against the prince of the Persians. When I went forth, there appeared the prince of the Greeks coming.

21 But I will tell thee what is set down in the scripture of truth: and none is my helper in all these things, but^b Michael, your prince.

CHAP. XI.

The angel declares to Daniel many things to come, with regard to the Persian and Grecian kings: more especially with regard to Antiochus, as a figure of antichrist.

AND from the first year of Darius, the Mede, I stood up, that he might be strengthened, and confirmed.

2 And now I will shew thee the truth. Behold,

^b Apoc. xii. 7.

VER. 10. Hand; the Holy Ghost, or rather the angel Gabriel.

VER. 11. Desires most amiable. C.—This new title is given to comfort the prophet. W.

VER. 18. The prince, &c. That is, the angel guardian of Persia: who, according to his office, seeking the spiritual good of the Persians, was desirous that many of the Jews should remain among them. Ch.—S. Jerom, &c. explain it of the angel guardian. W.—Each country has an archangel over it, as individuals have an angel. Others assert that this was an evil angel; for how could a good one oppose so long the will of God? Yet this argument may be retorted, as evil spirits themselves must comply. It seems, therefore, that Cyrus was exhorted by the good angels to invade the Chaldeans, and thus to liberate God's people. He was afraid of the hazardous attempt, and free-will may resist the inspirations of God.—One, or "prince." C.—Michael, and the guardian of Daniel, joined their prayers for the liberation of the Jews. v. 20. W.

VER. 14. Days. It will not soon take place; or, I have many things to tell. VER. 20. To thee? He awakens his attention (v. 14. C.) and gratitude. H.—Prince, angel guardian; or Alexander, who would one day rout the Persians. C. xi. 2. C.

VER. 21. Of truth, in the former sealed visions. C.—Your prince. The guardian general of the Church of God, (Ch.) as he was of the synagogue. C.

CHAP. XI. VER. 1. Confirmed. Gabriel assisted Michael to comply with God's orders. C. x. 21. C.—The angel continues his speech, and informs us that he had prayed for Darius after the fall of Babylon, seeing that he was well inclined towards the Jews, as his successor Cyrus (who liberated them) was also. W.

VER. 2. Three, &c. Cambysea, Smerdis magus, and Darius the son of Hysthere shall stand yet three kings in Persia, and the fourth shall be enriched exceedingly above them all: and when he shall be grown mighty by his riches, he shall stir up all against the kingdom of Greece.

3 But there shall rise up a strong king, and shall rule with great power: and he shall do what he pleaseth.

4 And when he shall come to his height, his kingdom shall be broken, and it shall be divided towards the four winds of the heaven: but not to his posterity, nor according to his power with which he ruled. For his kingdom shall be rent in pieces, even for strangers, besides these.

5 And the king of the south shall be strengthened, and one of his princes shall prevail over him, and he shall rule with great power: for his dominions shall be great.

6 And after the end of years they shall be in league together: and the daughter of the king of the south shall come to the king of the north to make friendship, but she shall not obtain the strength of the arm, neither shall her seed stand: and she shall be given up, and her young men that brought her, and they that strengthened her in these times.

7 And a plant of the bud of her roots shall stand up: and he shall come with an army, and shall enter into the province of the king of the north: and he shall abuse them, and shall prevail.

8 And he shall also carry away captive into Egypt their gods, and their graven things, and their precious vessels of gold and silver: he shall prevail against the king of the north.

9 And the king of the south shall enter into the kingdom, and shall return to his own land.

10 And his sons shall be provoked, and they shall assemble a multitude of great forces: and he shall come with haste like a flood: and he shall return, and be stirred up, and he shall join battle with his forces.

11 And the king of the south being provoked, shall go forth, and shall fight against the king of the north, and shall prepare an exceeding great multitude, and a multitude shall be given into his hands.

12 And he shall take a multitude, and his heart shall be lifted up, and he shall cast down many thousands: but he shall not prevail.

13 For the king of the north shall return, and shall prepare a multitude much greater than before: and in the end of times, and years, he shall come in haste with a great army, and much riches.

14 *And in those times many shall rise up against the king of the south, and the children of prevaricators of thy people shall lift up themselves to fulfil the vision, and they shall fall.

15 And the king of the north shall come, and shall cast up a mount, and shall take the best fenced cities: and the arms of the south shall not withstand, and his chosen ones shall rise up to resist, and they shall not have strength.

16 And he shall come upon him, and do according to his pleasure, and there shall be none to stand against his face: and he shall stand in the glorious land, and it shall be consumed by his hand.

17 And he shall set his face to come to possess all taspas. Ch. W.—Cyrus had been mentioned before. C. x. 13. 20. Smerdis, or Artaxerxes, (1 Esd. iv. 7.) was the chief of the seven magi, and usurped the throne for six months after the death of Cambyses. C.—He had been declared king before (H.) by Patizites, his own brother. The news excited the fury of Cambyses, who mounting on horseback gave himself a mortal wound in the thigh. Herod. iii. 21. See Ezec. xxxviii. 21. H.—Fourth: Xerxes. Ch.—He invaded Greece with an immense army, forcing those on the road to join him. Just. i. 10. Herod. vii. and viii. C.

VER. 3. A strong king: Alexander. Ch.—The sequel clearly points him out. Before fifteen years had elapsed, his mother, brother, and children were slain. Arideus, his brother, was declared regent till it should be seen what Roxana should bring forth. After the death of those who might be heirs of Alexander, four generals took the title of kings. Others governed in different places, but were destroyed by degrees.

VER. 4. These four: Ptolemy, Seleucus, Antigonus, and Antipater, kings of Egypt, Syria, Asia, and Greece. C. vii. 6. and viii. 22. Besides the other generals, (C.) foreigners began to erect new kingdoms in what had formed the empire of Alexander. S. Jer. Livy xlv. C.

VER. 5. South: Ptolemy, the son of Lagus, king of Egypt, which lies south of Jerusalem. Ch.—S. Irenæus (iv. 43.) observes, that all prophecies are obscure till they be fulfilled. History shews that this relates to Ptolemy. The kingdoms of Egypt and of Syria are more noticed, as they had much to do with the Jews. W.—Ptolemy took Cyprus (C.) and Jerusalem. Jos. Ant. xii. 12.—His princes (that is, one of Alexander's princes) shall prevail over him; that is, shall be stronger than the king of Egypt. He speaks of Seleucus Nicator, king of Asia and Syria, whose successors are here called the kings of the north, because their dominions lay to the north in respect to Jerusalem. Ch.—Nicator means a "conqueror." H.—This king was master of all from Media and Babylonia to Jerusalem. Appian, &c. C.—Philadelphus was more powerful than his father. W.

VER. 6. South. Bernice, daughter of Ptolemy Philadelphus, given in marriage to Antiochus Theos, grandson of Seleucus, (Ch.) and king of Syria. She brought a great "dowry," and was therefore styled Phernophoros. Antiochus agreed to repudiate Laodicea; but he soon took her back. Fearing his inconstancy, she poisoned him, and slew his son by Bernice. This lady in a rage mounted her chariot, and having knocked down the cruel minister of such barbarity, trampled upon his body. The rest pretended that the infant was still living, and delivered up a part of the palace to Bernice, yet slew her as soon as they had an opportunity. S. Jer. Usher, A. 3758. V. Max. ix. 10. &c. C.—Young. Heb. "her conductors, her child, and he that," &c. H.—Her physician, Aristarchus, persuaded her to enter the palace. Her women and Egyptian guards defended her for some time. Polygen. Strat. viii. C.

VER. 7. A plant, &c. Ptolemy Evergetes, the son of Philadelphus. Ch.—Three of Bernice's maids of honour (H.) covered her body, and pretended that she was only wounded, till her brother Evergetes came and seized almost all Asia, Callinicus not daring to give him battle. S. Jer. &c. Vaillant. A. 79. Lagid. C.—He laid waste Syria. W.

VER. 8. Gods. He took back what Cambyses had conveyed out of Egypt; and it was on this account that the people styled him "benefactor." S. Jer. C.—North. Seleucus Callinicus. Ch.—If Evergetes had not been recalled into Egypt by civil broils, he would have seized all the kingdom of Seleucus. Just. xvii.—As he passed by Jerusalem (v. 9.) he made great presents, and caused victims of thanksgiving to be offered up. Jos. c. Ap. ii.

VER. 10. His sons. Seleucus Ceraunius and Antiochus the great, the sons of Callinicus. Ch.—The former was poisoned after three years' reign, as he marched against Attalus. Just. xxix.—Antiochus the great reconquered many provinces from Egypt, but was beaten at Raphia, on the confines, and lost Coele-syria. C.—He shall, &c. Antiochus the great. Ch.—He prosecuted the war, as his brother was prevented by death. W.

VER. 11. South. Ptolemy Philopator, son of Evergetes. Ch.—He was an indolent prince; but his generals gained the victory. C.

VER. 12. Prevail. Many fell on both sides. H.—But Antiochus did not prevail; (W.) or rather Philopator neglected the opportunity of dethroning his rival, (C.) as he might have seized all his dominions, if he had not been too fond of ease. Just. xxx.—He followed the suggestions of his proud heart, when he attempted to enter the most holy place of the temple; and though he was visibly chastised by God, he would have vented his resentment on the Jews, if Providence had not miraculously protected them. 3 Mac. C. See Eccl. i. H.

VER. 13. Times, seventeen years after the battle of Raphia. When Philopator was dead, and his son Epiphanes not above five years old, Antiochus and Philip of Macedon basely attempted to divide his dominions. Scopas engaged Antiochus, but lost the battle, and all that Philopator had recovered. C.—Many revolted in Egypt on account of the arrogance of Agathocles, who ruled in the king's name. v. 14. S. Jer.

VER. 14. Vision. Many Jews, deceived by Onias, erected a temple in Egypt, falsely asserting that they fulfilled the prophecy of Isaias, xix. 19. W.—This Onias was the son of Onias III. who was slain at Antioch. C. ix. 25. H.—The temple of Onion was called after him. All allow that he transgressed the law, by offering sacrifice there after God had pitched upon Jerusalem. But this was done (C.) under Philometor, forty-seven years (Usher) or long after those times, when Epiphanes fought against Antiochus. The rebellion of the Jews against Egypt may therefore be meant. It was decreed that they should be under Antiochus, that his son might cause them to fall, (C.) and punish them for their crimes. H.

VER. 15. Cities; Sidon, Gaza, and the citadel of Jerusalem, &c. C.

VER. 16. Upon him. Antiochus shall come upon the king of the south.—Land: Judea. Ch.—Consumed, or "perfected." Antiochus was very favourable to the Jews; (C.) invited all to return to Jerusalem, and furnished what was requisite for the sacrifices. Jos. Ant. xii. 8.

his kingdom, and he shall make upright conditions with him: and he shall give him a daughter of women, to overthrow it: and she shall not stand, neither shall she be for him.

18 And he shall turn his face to the islands, and shall take many: and he shall cause the prince of his reproach to cease, and his reproach shall be turned upon him.

19 And he shall turn his face to the empire of his own land, and he shall stumble, and fall, and shall not be found.

20 And there shall stand up in his place one most vile, and unworthy of kingly honour: and in a few days he shall be destroyed, not in rage nor in battle.

21 And there shall stand up in his place one despised, and the kingly honour shall not be given him: and he shall come privately, and shall obtain the kingdom by fraud.

22 And the arms of the fighter shall be overcome before his face, and shall be broken: yea, also the prince of the covenant.

23 And after friendships, he will deal deceitfully with him: and he shall go up, and shall overcome with a small people.

24 And he shall enter into rich and plentiful cities: and he shall do that which his fathers never did, nor his fathers' fathers: he shall scatter their spoils, and their prey, and their riches, and shall forecast devices against the best fenced places: and this until a time.

25 And his strength, and his heart, shall be stirred up against the king of the south, with a great army: and the king of the south shall be stirred up to battle with many and very strong succours: and they shall not stand, for they shall form designs against him.

26 And they that eat bread with him, shall destroy him, and his army shall be overthrown: and many shall fall down slain.

27 And the heart of the two kings shall be to do evil, and they shall speak lies at one table, and they shall not prosper: because as yet the end is unto another time.

28 And he shall return into his land with much riches: and his heart shall be against the holy covenant, and he shall succeed, and shall return into his own land.

29 At the time appointed he shall return, and he shall come to the south, but the latter time shall not be like the former.

30 And the galleys and the Romans shall come upon him, and he shall be struck, and shall return, and shall have indignation against the covenant of the sanctuary, and he shall succeed: and he shall return, and shall devise against them that have forsaken the covenant of the sanctuary.

31 And arms shall stand on his part, and they shall defile the sanctuary of strength, and shall take away the continual sacrifice: and they shall place there the abomination unto desolation.

32 And such as deal wickedly against the covenant shall deceitfully dissemble: but the people that know their God shall prevail and succeed.

33 And they that are learned among the people shall teach many: and they shall fall by the sword, and by fire, and by captivity, and by spoil for many days.

VER. 17. Kingdom, viz. all the kingdom of Ptolemy Epiphanes, son of Philopator. Ch.—The Romans interrupted Antiochus, who resolved to lull the young prince asleep, till he had subdued these enemies. C.—Of women. That is, a most beautiful woman, viz. his daughter Cleopatra.—It, viz. the kingdom of Epiphanes; but his policy shall not succeed; for Cleopatra shall take more to heart the interest of her husband than that of her father. Ch.—He came with her to Raphia, and gave her Judea, &c. for her dowry, reserving half of the revenues. Heb. and Gr. have, "to corrupt her;" (C.) Vulg. eam; as he wished his daughter to act perfidiously, that he might seize the whole kingdom. H.—Epiphanes and his generals were on their guard, and Cleopatra took part with her husband. S. Jer.

VER. 18. Islands, near Asia. He also went into Greece, and was master of that country when the Romans declared war against him. C.—Of his reproach. Scipio, the Roman general, called the prince of his reproach, because he overthrew Antiochus, and obliged him to submit to very dishonourable terms, before he would cease from the war. Ch.—Prot. "for a prince for his own behalf shall cause the reproach offered by him to cease, without his own reproach he shall cause it to turn upon him." H.—Being defeated at Magnesia, he chose the wisest plan of avoiding fresh reproach, by making peace, though (C.) the terms were very hard. Livy xxxvii.—He jokingly observed, that he was obliged to the Romans for contracting his dominions. Cic. pro Dejot.

VER. 19. Found. Antiochus plundered the temple of the Elymaites to procure money; but they, (S. Jer.) or the neighbouring barbarous nations, rose up and slew him. Just. xxxii.

VER. 20. One most vile. Seleucus Philopator, who sent Heliodorus to plunder the temple, and was shortly after slain by the same Heliodorus. Ch.—He reigned about twelve years; and had sent his own son, Demetrius, to be a hostage at Rome instead of Epiphanes, whom he designed to place at the head of an army to invade Egypt. Heb. "one who shall cause the exactor to pass over the glory of the kingdom," the temple. 2 Mac. iii. C.

VER. 21. One despised; viz. Antiochus Epiphanes, who at first was despised and not received for king. What is here said of this prince, is accommodated by S. Jerom and others to antichrist, of whom this Antiochus was a figure. Ch.—He lived and died basely; as the origin and end of antichrist will be ignominious. W.—All that follows, to the end of C. xii. regards Epiphanes. He had no title to the crown, which he procured by cunning, and held in the most shameful manner. He canvassed for the lowest offices, so that many styled him Epimanes, "the madman" Diod. in Valesius, p. 305. C.

VER. 22. Fighter. That is, of them that shall oppose him, and shall fight against him. Ch.—Heliodorus, who had murdered his brother and usurped the throne, and Ptolemy Epiphanes, were discomfited. The latter was making preparations against Seleucus, and said that his riches were in the purses of his friends, upon which they poisoned him. S. Jer. C.—Covenant, or of the league. The chief of them that conspired against him; or the king of Egypt, his most powerful adversary. Ch.—This title belongs to antichrist, who will join the Jews, and be received as their Messiah. S. Iren. v. 25. S. Jer. &c. Jo. 543. W.

VER. 23. People. Epiphanes pretended to be tutor of Philometor. But the nobles of Egypt distrusted him; whereupon he came to a battle, near Pelusium, and the young king surrendered himself. His uncle thus took possession of Egypt with surprising facility. Yet the people of Alexandria crowned Evergetes, which occasioned a civil war. C.

VER. 24. Places. Theodot. reads, "Egypt," omitting the h, (H.) which gives a good sense.—C.

VER. 25. The king. Ptolemy Philometor. Ch.—Epiphanes came under the pretext of restoring Philometor, and gained a victory over Evergetes; but returned in Syria, that the two brothers might weaken each other, (C.) while the Syrians formed designs against both. H.

VER. 26. Slain. This was the perfidious policy of Epiphanes, who expected that the two brothers would destroy each other, so that he might easily seize Egypt, of which he kept the key, retaining the city of Pelusium. They were however reconciled, and reigned together. The Scripture often represents that as done which is only intended.

VER. 27. Two kings: Epiphanes and Philometor.—Time. Epiphanes, vexed that he should thus be duped, returned again into Egypt. v. 29.

VER. 28. Riches, taken in Egypt (C.) and in Jerusalem. H.—The people had refused to receive Jason; and Epiphanes treated them in the most barbarous manner, profaned the temple, &c. 1 Mac. i. 23. and 2 Mac. v. 21. C.

VER. 30. Galleys. Heb. "ships of Chittim." H.—The ambassadors probably came in vessels belonging to Macedonia, (C.) which they found at Delos. Livy xlv.—Romans. Popilius and the other Roman ambassadors, who came in galleys, and obliged him to depart from Egypt. Ch.—He was only four or seven miles from Alexandria, and went to meet the ambassadors, who gave him the senate's letter, ordering him to desist from the war. He said he would consult his friends: but Popilius formed a circle round him with his wand, requiring an answer before he went out of it. Hereupon the king withdrew his forces. Polyb. xcii. V. Max. vi. 4.—Succeed. Apollonius massacred many Jews on the sabbath. 1 Mac. i. 30.—Against. Heb. "respecting." Prot. "have intelligence with them," &c. H.—These wretches prompted him to make such edicts, for he was attached to no religion. 2 Mac. iv. 9.

VER. 31. Arms, (brachia) or strong men, Apollonius, Philip, &c. (2 Mac. vi.) and likewise the senator from Antioch, who executed his decrees. C.—Abomination. The idol of Jupiter Olympius, which Antiochus ordered to be set up in the sanctuary of the temple, which is here called the sanctuary of strength, from the Almighty that was worshipped there. Ch.—Other idols were set up, and the people were compelled to sacrifice. C.—Yet even in the hottest persecutions some remain faithful. W.

VER. 32. Dissemble. Thus acted the officers and apostate Jews.—Know. Such were the Assideans, Eleazar and the Machabees.

34 And when they shall have fallen, they shall be relieved with a small help: and many shall be joined to them deceitfully.

35 And some of the learned shall fall, that they may be tried, and may be chosen, and made white, even to the appointed time: because yet there shall be another time.

36 And the king shall do according to his will, and he shall be lifted up, and shall magnify himself against every god: and he shall speak great things against the God of gods, and shall prosper, till the wrath be accomplished. For the determination is made.

37 And he shall make no account of the God of his fathers: and he shall follow the lust of women, and he shall not regard any gods: for he shall rise up against all things.

38 But he shall worship the god Maozim, in his place: and a god whom his fathers knew not, he shall worship with gold, and silver, and precious stones, and things of great price.

39 And he shall do this to fortify Maozim with a strange god, whom he hath acknowledged, and he shall increase glory, and shall give them power over many, and shall divide the land gratis.

40 And at the time prefixed the king of the south shall fight against him, and the king of the north shall come against him like a tempest, with chariots, and with horsemen, and with a great navy, and he shall enter into the countries, and shall destroy, and pass through.

41 And he shall enter into the glorious land, and many shall fall: and these only shall be saved out of his hand, Edom, and Moab, and the principality of the children of Ammon.

VER. 33. Learned; the priests, Matthatias, &c. Mal. ii. 7.

VER. 34. Help. The victories of the Machabees were miraculous.—Deceitfully, like those who took the spoils of idols, and were slain. Heb. may imply, "secretly." C.

VER. 35. Fall, or become martyrs. H.—Such were Eleazar, &c. C.—Another time, after death; (H.) or the perfect deliverance shall take place later, v. 27.

VER. 36. Every god. "He plundered many (C. or most; παντα. II.) temples." Polyb. Athen. v. 6.—The Samaritans, and even the priests of the Lord, obeyed the impious decree; so that the king looked upon himself as a sort of god.—Accomplished against the Jews, when Epiphanes shall be punished.

VER. 37. God. He laughed at religion, yet sometimes offered splendid presents and victims, which shewed his inconstancy. C.—Women. He kept many concubines, (Diod.) and committed the greatest obscenities publicly: minis et scortis. S. Jer.—Heb. may have quite a different sense. He had no regard for the sex, (C.) killing all indiscriminately. Grot.

VER. 38. The god Maozim. That is, the god of forces or strong holds. Ch.—Maozim denotes "strong ones," (H.) guardians, &c. Dr. Newton (Diss.) explains, the king (v. 36) of the Roman state; and supposes that here the guardian saints and angels are meant, whose worship he shews "began in the Roman empire, very soon after it became Christian. This exposition seems far preferable to that which interprets" Jupiter or the heavens, and understands the idol set up by Epiphanes. See Univ. Hist. x. Parkhurst.—If these authors speak of the inferior veneration shewn to saints and angels in the Catholic Church, it had a much earlier commencement, being coeval with religion itself. But only the blindest prejudice can represent this as idolatrous, and of course this system must fall to the ground. H.—Others suppose that Mars, Heracles, Azizus, or Jupiter, may be designated. Heb. "He will rise up against all, (38) and against the strong God (of Israel. v. 31. C. viii. 10. C.) he will, in his place, worship a strange god," &c. Jun.—None of the ancestors of Epiphanes had ever adored Jupiter on the altar of holocausts. C.—He and antichrist adore either the great Jupiter or their own strength. W.

VER. 39. To. Heb. "in the most strong holds, with," &c. II.—He built a fortress near the temple, styled Maoz, (Ezec. xxiv. 25.) on account of its strength. C.—Glory. He shall bestow honours, riches, and lands, upon them that shall worship his god. Ch.—He will entrust the strong places to them.

VER. 40. Fight. Epiphanes made war on Egypt, till the Romans forced him to desist. The prophet explains his preceding attempts, to which he only alluded. v. 29, 30.

VER. 42. Ethiopia. Heb. "the Lubim and Cushim shall be at his steps."

42 And he shall lay his hand upon the lands: and the land of Egypt shall not escape.

43 And he shall have power over the treasures of gold, and of silver, and all the precious things of Egypt: and he shall pass through Lybia, and Ethiopia.

44 And tidings out of the east, and out of the north, shall trouble him: and he shall come with a great multitude to destroy and slay many.

45 And he shall fix his tabernacle, Apadno, between the seas, upon a glorious and holy mountain: and he shall come even to the top thereof, and none shall help him.

CHAP. XII.

Michael shall stand up for the people of God: with other things relating to antichrist, and the end of the world.

BUT^a at that time shall Michael rise up, the great prince, who standeth for the children of thy people: and a time shall come, such as never was from the time that nations began, even until that time. And at that time shall thy people be saved, every one that shall be found written in the book.

2 And many of those that sleep in the dust of the earth, shall awake: ^bsome unto life everlasting, and others unto reproach, to see it always.

3 But they that are learned, ^cshall shine as the brightness of the firmament: and they that instruct many to justice, as stars for all eternity.

4 But thou, O Daniel, shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time appointed: many shall pass over, and knowledge shall be manifold.

5 And I, Daniel, looked, and behold as it were two others stood: one on this side upon the bank of the

VER. 44. North. Judas continued victorious. Armenia (C.) and Parthia rebelled. Tacit. v. 8.—Many. Epiphanes left three generals and half his army to destroy the Jews. C.

VER. 45. Apadno. Some take it for the proper name of a place, others, from the Heb. translate it, his palace. Ch.—He fixed his royal tent between the Mediterranean and the Dead Sea. W.—Porphyrius explains this of the march beyond the Euphrates, which S. Jerom does not disapprove. Apadno may denote Mesopotamia, which is styled Padan Aram.—Glorious. Heb. Zebi, C. or Tsebi, (H.) may allude to Mount Taba, where the king perished, without help. 1 Mac. vi. 11. and 2 Mac. ix. 9. S. Jerom and many others explain all this of antichrist, and no doubt he was prefigured. The like events will probably take place again towards the end of the world. But as the particulars cannot be ascertained, we have adhered to the history of Antiochus. C.

CHAP. XII. VER. 1. Michael, "who is like God," alludes to the name of the Machabees; Who is like unto thee among the gods? The archangel protected the Jews, while Epiphanes was engaged beyond the Euphrates.—Time. The nation was in the utmost distress. Only about seven thousand ill-armed men adhered to Judas: yet these delivered the country by God's decree.—Book. God seemed to keep a register of his friends. C.—Michael, the guardian of the Church, will protect her against antichrist, as her pastors will do visibly. W.

VER. 2. Many. This shews the great number. All shall rise again. In a figurative sense, the Jews who seemed buried shall appear and fight.—To see. Heb. "everlasting." C.—S. Jerom has not seen a d (H.) in the word. This text is express for eternal happiness or misery. C.—Some have understood, deroon, "stench," or contempt, to denote the ignominy of the damned; but the prophet speaks of the times of the Machabees. Houbigant.—All shall rise in their bodies, but all shall not be changed for the better. 1 Cor. xv. 51. W.

VER. 3. Learned in the law of God and true wisdom, which consists in knowing and loving God. Ch.—Heb. "instructors."—Instruct. Heb. "justify," in the same sense. The Machabees and other priests, &c. who instructed people in the law, and stood up for its defence, may be meant. C.—"There is as much difference between a learned sanctity and a holy rusticity, as there is between heaven and the stars." S. Jer.—Teachers, martyrs, and virgins are entitled to an aureola, or accidental reward, besides the essential beatitude. W.—Many. Th. and the Vulg. read, "and of the just many shall be like for an age and after." S. Jer. 1.

7 And I heard the man that was clothed in linen, that stood upon the waters of the river, *when he had lifted up his right hand, and his left hand to heaven, and had sworn by him that liveth for ever, that it should be unto a time, and times, and half a time. And when the scattering of the band of the holy people shall be accomplished, all these things shall be finished.

8 And I heard, and understood not. And I said: O my lord, what shall be after these things?

9 And he said: Go, Daniel, because the words are shut up, and sealed until the appointed time.

10 Many shall be chosen, and made white, and shall be tried as fire: and the wicked shall deal wickedly, and none of the wicked shall understand, but the learned shall understand.

11 And from the time when the continual sacrifice shall be taken away, and the abomination unto desolation shall be set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred ninety days.

12 Blessed is he that waiteth, and cometh unto a thousand three hundred thirty-five days.

13 But go thou thy ways until the time appointed: and thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot unto the end of the days.

VER. 6. I Heb. "He." Theod. Syr. and Arab. "they said" to Gabriel. C. x. 5. Angels ask questions of each other. C. viii. 13.—Wonders. How long shall this be in the dark, and the misery continue?

VER. 7. Heaven. He thus shews that he is not God. C.—Time often implies a year. C. iv. 13. Hence he means three years and a half. Christ assures us that those days shall be shortened, (Mat. xxiv. 22.) and the persecutor shall tarry a short time. Apoc. xvii. 10. and xii. 14. The same period is insinuated by 1290 days, (v. 11) and 1330. v. 12. The two witnesses prophesy 1260 days, during which the Church shall be fed in the wilderness. Apoc. xii. 6. But the term is most exactly specified by forty-two months. Apoc. xi. 2. and xiii. 5. Hence all the Fathers agree that the last persecution shall continue no longer. W.—How absurdly do some Prot. explain this of years during which, they say, the papacy shall subsist! Whence will they date its origin? But they will readily trifle with the word of God, and admit any one to indulge his fancy, as long as he does not strike at the thirty-nine articles. If he do, he may expect the treatment of poor Stone, (H.) whose death in the King's Bench, aged 75, has been just announced. He pleaded that one article decided, "nothing was to be maintained which could not be proved by Scripture." Yet he was deprived of his living by Dr. Porteus, who at one time was as eager to procure a change in the articles, yet was not prevented by his scruples from mounting the episcopal throne of Chester or of London. Stone had not this discretion. Rock. N. 306. He fell a victim to contradictory articles. He might be in error. But what right had Porteus to throw the first stone at him? or how will Protestants shew that any man is reprehensible for adopting the principles of the Reformation, which was entirely built on private interpretation? They applaud Luther, who established Scripture self interpreted for the only rule, and they condemn Stone, Wesley, &c. for acting accordingly. If they have such just weights and measures for their own, what wonder then if the rights of Catholics be disregarded? H.—Half a time. The idol of Jupiter remained just three years. Yet the temple was not ready for sacrifices till other ten days had elapsed. They had been interrupted six months before that idol was set up. C.—We must date from the profanation and distress caused by Apollonius. 1 Mac. iv. 52. Jos. S. Hypol. Usher. A. 3836. C.—Band. Lit. "hand." H.—When the people shall be destitute of strength, God will miraculously deliver them.

VER. 8. Understood not. The prophets were obliged to pray, and sometimes to receive a fresh revelation to explain what they had seen. C. ix. 2. 1 Pet. i. 11. and 1 Cor. xiv. 26. What regarded Antiochus and the Church was almost inexplicable before the event, as the times of antichrist are to us. v. 9.

VER. 10. White, by persecution endured with patience. C. xi. 35.—Learned. While the weak Jews will be scandalized at this treatment, the virtuous will reflect that suffering is a trial of God's servants, and a mark of predestination.

CHAP. XIII.

The history of Susanna, and the two elders.

NOW^b there was a man that dwelt in Babylon, and his name was Joakim:

2 And he took a wife, whose name was Susanna, the daughter of Helcias, a very beautiful woman, and one that feared God.

3 For her parents being just, had instructed their daughter according to the law of Moses.

4 Now Joakim was very rich, and had an orchard near his house: and the Jews resorted to him, because he was the most honourable of them all.

5 And there were two of the ancients of the people appointed judges that year, of whom the Lord said: That iniquity came out from Babylon, from the ancient judges, that seemed to govern the people.

6 These men frequented the house of Joakim, and all that had any matters of judgment came to them.

7 And when the people departed away at noon, Susanna went in, and walked in her husband's orchard.

8 And the old men saw her going in every day, and walking: and they were inflamed with lust towards her:

9 And they perverted their own mind, and turned away their eyes, that they might not look unto heaven, nor remember just judgments.

10 So they were both wounded with the love of her, yet they did not make known their grief one to the other.

11 For they were ashamed to declare to one another their lust, being desirous to have to do with her:

days before. See C. viii. 14. If Daniel speak of lunar years, as it is probable, the difference would only be two days. C.—From the abolishing of the mass as much as possible, and the practice of heresy and abomination, unto the end of antichrist's persecution, 1290 days shall elapse. W.

VER. 12. Days. After the three years and a half, fifty-eight days will occur before the death of Antiochus, when Judas will disperse the troops of his three generals. C.—Some respite will be granted for forty-five days, during which sinners may repent. M.—It is difficult to say why forty-five days are here added to the former number. We are content to depart with Daniel, (v. 9.) without searching any farther into these high mysteries. W.

VER. 13. Lot. Thou shalt enjoy a glorious resurrection, (M.) and thy dignities till death, for which thou must prepare. C.—Days. "Hitherto," says S. Jerom, "we read Daniel, in the Heb. volume; what follows, to the end, is translated from Theodotion's edition." H.—The history of Susanna is there placed at the beginning. C.—According to the order of time, it should be placed after the first chapter. M.

CHAP. XIII. This history of Susanna, in all the ancient Greek and Latin Bibles, was placed in the beginning of the Book of Daniel, till S. Jerom, in his translation, detached it from thence, because he did not find it in the Hebrew; which is also the case of the history of Bel and the dragon. But both the one and the other are received by the Catholic Church, and were from the very beginning a part of the Christian Bible. Ch.—Daniel seems not to have written the history of Susanna, at least in the volume which contains his prophecies, though it be unquestionably canonical. A. Lapide—It has been doubted whether it was ever in Heb. C.—But Origen solves the difficulties of Africanus. H.—Susanna means "a lily," and is proposed as a pattern of conjugal chastity. C.—Daniel was about twelve years old when he disclosed the malice of her accusers. S. Aug. ser. 242. de temp. W.

VER. 5. Judges. The Jews say they were Achab and Sedecias, (Orig.) as this text seems to allude to Jer. xxix. 21. or xxxiii. 14. But how were they burnt? since the Jews appear to have stoned them, unless they were delivered up to the king's officers. v. 61. C.—The captives under Joakim, were better treated than those who were taken nineteen years afterwards, when all fell into a heavier bondage. W.—They might enjoy possessions, (H.) and have judges of their nation. C.—Cappel urges this difficulty, and many others, to shew that this account is fabulous. But as the Jews were allowed to follow their religion, the Chaldees would strive to keep them in good order. It is not said that Joakim was one of the captives. He might have settled long before at Babylon, where Helcias probably brought up his daughter in the fear of God. v. 3. The judges might also have had authority before over the Israelites, in Assyria, who were now all under the same government. v. 57. Houbigant. Pref.

VER. 7. Noon, at which time the Jews dined, (v. 13. Jos. vita) and the streets were as little frequented as they are at night among us. Hence the judges thought this a fit opportunity. C.

VER. 9. Mind. They were distracted by love, (H.) and rendered foolish.

12 And they watched carefully every day to see her. And one said to the other :

13 Let us now go home, for it is dinner time. So going out, they departed one from another.

14 And turning back again, they came both to the same place : and asking one another the cause, they acknowledged their lust : and then they agreed together upon a time, when they might find her alone.

15 And it fell out, as they watched a fit day, she went in on a time, as yesterday and the day before, with two maids only, and was desirous to wash herself in the orchard : for it was hot weather.

16 And there was nobody there, but the two old men that had hid themselves, and were beholding her.

17 So she said to the maids : Bring me oil, and washing balls, and shut the doors of the orchard, that I may wash me.

18 And they did as she bade them : and they shut the doors of the orchard, and went out by a back door to fetch what she had commanded them, and they knew not that the elders were hid within.

19 Now when the maids were gone forth, the two elders arose, and ran to her, and said :

20 Behold the doors of the orchard are shut, and nobody seeth us, and we are in love with thee : wherefore consent to us, and lie with us.

21 But if thou wilt not, we will bear witness against thee, that a young man was with thee, and therefore thou didst send away thy maids from thee.

22 Susanna sighed, and said : I am straitened on every side : for if I do this thing, it is death to me : and if I do it not, I shall not escape your hands.

23 But it is better for me to fall into your hands without doing it, than to sin in the sight of the Lord.

24 With that Susanna cried out with a loud voice : and the elders also cried out against her.

25 And one of them ran to the door of the orchard, and opened it.

26 So when the servants of the house heard the cry in the orchard, they rushed in by the back door, to see what was the matter.

27 But after the old men had spoken, the servants were greatly ashamed : for never had there been any such word said of Susanna. And on the next day, 28 When the people were come to Joakim, her husband, the two elders also came full of wicked device against Susanna, to put her to death.

29 And they said before the people : Send to Susanna, daughter of Helcias, the wife of Joakim. And presently they sent.

VER. 18. Back door, leading from the house. Strangers came by the other gates. C.—Susanna had not perhaps at first intended to bathe. Cappel. accuses her of imprudence, without reason. He cannot believe that the old judges would be so sottish as they appear to have been. Houbig.

VER. 22. Death of the soul, (S. Jer.) and also of the body, if the adultery were detected. How much does Susanna surpass the famed Lucretia, who slew herself to shew that she had not consented to her violation ! Si adultera cur laudata ! Si pudica cur occisa ! S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. i. 19. S. Amb. de Sp. iii. 8. G.

VER. 24. Out. So the law ordained, when a woman was assaulted. II.

VER. 29. People, for greater shew of justice. W.—We here behold the forms.

VER. 32. Uncovered, pretending that respect for the company required it, or perhaps that they might detect her guilt by her blushes. C.—But their real motive is here disclosed. II.

30 And she came with her parents, and children, and all her kindred.

31 Now Susanna was exceeding delicate, and beautiful to behold.

32 But those wicked men commanded that her face should be uncovered, (for she was covered) that so at least they might be satisfied with her beauty.

33 Therefore her friends, and all her acquaintance wept.

34 But the two elders rising up in the midst of the people, laid their hands upon her head.

35 And she weeping, looked up to heaven, for her heart had confidence in the Lord.

36 And the elders said : As we walked in the orchard alone, this woman came in with two maids, and shut the doors of the orchard, and sent away the maids from her.

37 Then a young man that was there hid came to her, and lay with her.

38 But we that were in a corner of the orchard, seeing this wickedness, ran up to them, and we saw them lie together.

39 And him indeed we could not take, because he was stronger than us, and opening the doors, he leaped out :

40 But having taken this woman, we asked who the young man was, but she would not tell us : of this thing we are witnesses.

41 The multitude believed them, as being the elders, and the judges of the people, and they condemned her to death.

42 Then Susanna cried out with a loud voice, and said : O eternal God, who knowest hidden things, who knowest all things before they come to pass, 43 Thou knowest that they have borne false witness against me : and behold I must die, whereas I have done none of these things, which these men have maliciously forged against me.

44 And the Lord heard her voice.

45 And when she was led to be put to death, the Lord raised up the holy spirit of a young boy, whose name was Daniel :

46 And he cried out with a loud voice : I am clear from the blood of this woman.

47 Then all the people turning themselves towards him, said : What meaneth this word that thou hast spoken ?

48 But he standing in the midst of them, said : Are ye so foolish, ye children of Israel, that without examination or knowledge of the truth, you have condemned a daughter of Israel ?

VER. 34. Head, saying, "Thy malice brings on this chastisement, and not we." Lyan.—They appear to discharge their conscience, (Lev. i. 4. and xxiv. 14.) not as judges but as accusers. The people pass sentence. v. 41. Adulteresses were stoned. Lev. xx. 10. C.

VER. 41. Death. The multitude approved of this sentence, which the judges pronounced, pretending to act agreeably to the law. Deut. xxii. W.

VER. 45. Boy. He was about twelve years old. S. Ign. ad Magn. Sulpit. ii. Theod.—He might walk out, though he lodged at court. Houbig.—God enabled him to declare that Susanna was innocent. The people had consented to her death, but he stands up in her defence. W.

VER. 46. Clear. This form is often used. Acts xviii. 6. Mat. xxvii. 24.

VER. 48. Truth. They had taken no precautions to ascertain it ; which they ought to have done the more, as Susanna had always been highly esteemed. C.—As the witnesses were positive, she must die, except their falsehood could be manifested, which none suspected. Houbig.

49 Return to judgment, for they have borne false witness against her.

50 So all the people turned again in haste, and the old men said to him: Come, and sit thou down among us, and shew it us: seeing God hath given thee the honour of old age.

51 And Daniel said to the people: Separate these two far from one another, and I will examine them.

52 So when they were put asunder one from the other, he called one of them, and said to him: O thou that art grown old in evil days, now are thy sins come out, which thou hast committed before:

53 In judging unjust judgments, oppressing the innocent, and letting the guilty to go free, whereas the Lord saith: *The innocent and the just thou shalt not kill.

54 Now then if thou sawest her, tell me under what tree thou sawest them conversing together: He said: Under a mastic tree.

55 And Daniel said: Well hast thou lied against thy own head: for behold the angel of God having received the sentence of him, shall cut thee in two.

56 And having put him aside, he commanded that the other should come, and he said to him: O thou seed of Chanaan, and not of Juda, beauty hath deceived thee, and lust hath perverted thy heart:

57 Thus did you do to the daughters of Israel, and they for fear conversed with you: but a daughter of Juda would not abide your wickedness.

58 Now, therefore, tell me, under what tree didst thou take them conversing together. And he answered: Under a holm tree.

59 And Daniel said to him: Well hast thou also lied against thy own head: for the angel of the Lord waiteth with a sword to cut thee in two, and to destroy you.

60 With that all the assembly cried out with a loud voice, and they blessed God, who saveth them that trust in him.

61 And they rose up against the two elders, (for Daniel had convicted them of false witness by their own mouth) and they did to them as they had maliciously dealt against their neighbour,

62 ^bTo fulfil the law of Moses: and they put them to death, and innocent blood was saved in that day.

63 But Helcias, and his wife, praised God, for their daughter, Susanna, with Joakim, her husband, and all her kindred, because there was no dishonesty found in her.

64 And Daniel became great in the sight of the people from that day, and thence forward.

VER. 50. Old men. They speak sarcastically; or rather other senators, who had not been in the plot, address Daniel.

VER. 55. Two. This punishment was not unusual: yet it is probable that the two old men were stoned to death by the law of retaliation. v. 61. Ex. xix. 4. There is an allusion in Greek, between schimon and schisei, and also between Prinos and prisei; (v. 58, 59) and hence it is concluded that this work was originally in that language. But there might be a similar allusion in Heb. or Chal. or the translator might think it lawful to put one tree for another. C.—We find a tree called shinar, in Persia. Tavern. iv. 6. It would be easy to produce similar allusions in the Latin ilex; thus ilicis peribis, &c. M.

CHAP. XIV.

The history of Bel; and of the great serpent, worshipped by the Babylonians.

AND Daniel was the king's guest, and was honoured above all his friends.

2 Now the Babylonians had an idol called Bel: and there was spent upon him every day twelve great measures of fine flour, and forty sheep, and six vessels of wine.

3 The king also worshipped him, and went every day to adore him: but Daniel adored his God. And the king said to him: Why dost thou not adore Bel?

4 And he answered, and said to him: Because I do not worship idols made with hands, but the living God, that created heaven and earth, and hath power over all flesh.

5 And the king said to him: Doth not Bel seem to thee to be a living god? Seest thou not how much he eateth and drinketh every day?

6 Then Daniel smiled, and said: O king, be not deceived: for this is but clay within, and brass without, neither hath he eaten at any time.

7 And the king being angry, called for his priests, and said to them: If you tell me not who it is that eateth up these expenses, you shall die.

8 But if you can shew that Bel eateth these things, Daniel shall die, because he hath blasphemed against Bel. And Daniel said to the king: Be it done according to thy word.

9 Now the priests of Bel were seventy, beside their wives, and little ones, and children. And the king went with Daniel into the temple of Bel.

10 And the priests of Bel said: Behold, we go out: and do thou, O king, set on the meats, and make ready the wine, and shut the door fast, and seal it with thy own ring:

11 And when thou comest in the morning, if thou findest not that Bel hath eaten up all, we will suffer death, or else Daniel, that hath lied against us.

12 And they little regarded it, because they had made under the table a secret entrance, and they always came in by it, and consumed those things.

13 So it came to pass after they were gone out, the king set the meats before Bel: and Daniel commanded his servants, and they brought ashes, and he sifted them all over the temple before the king: and going forth, they shut the door, and having sealed it with the king's ring, they departed.

14 But the priests went in by night, according to their custom, with their wives, and their children: and they eat and drank up all.

CHAP. XIV. VER. 1. Guest. It seems most probable that the king here spoken of was Evilmerodach, the son and successor of Nabuchodonosor, and a great favourer of the Jews; (Ch. W.) or it might be Darius, (Houbig.) or Cyrus, under whose reign S. Irenæus (iv. 11.) and others place this history. C.—The more correct Greek editions begin with the preceding verse. M.—Sept. read, "Prophecy of Abaum, son of Juda, of the tribe of Levi. There was a priest, Daniel, son of Abda, who was guest of the king of Babylon," &c. See Pref. H.

VER. 19. Angry. Cappel thinks the priests would not be so easily caught, or 15 And the king arose early in the morning, and Daniel with him.

16 And the king said: Are the seals whole, Daniel? And he answered: They are whole, O king.

17 And as soon as he had opened the door, the king looked upon the table, and cried out with a loud voice: Great art thou, O Bel, and there is not any deceit with thee.

18 And Daniel laughed: and he held the king, that he should not go in: and he said: Behold the pavement, mark whose footsteps these are.

19 And the king said: I see the footsteps of men, and women, and children. And the king was angry.

20 Then he took the priests, and their wives, and their children: and they shewed him the private doors by which they came in, and consumed the things that were on the table.

21 The king, therefore, put them to death, and delivered Bel into the power of Daniel: who destroyed him and his temple.

22 And there was a great dragon in that place, and the Babylonians worshipped him.

23 And the king said to Daniel: Behold, thou canst not say now, that this is not a living god: adore him, therefore.

24 And Daniel said: I adore the Lord, my God: for he is the living God: but that is no living god.

25 But give me leave, O king, and I will kill this dragon without sword or club. And the king said, I give thee leave.

26 Then Daniel took pitch, and fat, and hair, and boiled them together: and he made lumps, and put them into the dragon's mouth, and the dragon burst asunder. And he said: Behold him whom you worshipped.

27 And when the Babylonians had heard this, they took great indignation: and being gathered together against the king, they said: The king is become a Jew. He hath destroyed Bel, he hath killed the dragon, and he hath put the priests to death.

28 And they came to the king, and said: Deliver us, Daniel, or else we will destroy thee and thy house.

29 And the king saw that they pressed upon him violently: and being constrained by necessity: he delivered Daniel to them.

30 And they cast him into the den of lions, and he was there six days.

31 And in the den there were seven lions, and they had given to them two carcasses every day, and two sheep: but then they were not given unto them, that they might devour Daniel.

32 Now there was in Judea a prophet called Habacuc, and he had boiled pottage, and had broken bread in a bowl: and was going into the field, to carry it to the reapers.

33 And the angel of the Lord said to Habacuc: Carry the dinner which thou hast into Babylon, to Daniel, who is in the lions' den.

34 And Habacuc said: Lord, I never saw Babylon, nor do I know the den.

35 *And the angel of the Lord took him by the top of his head, and carried him by the hair of his head, and set him in Babylon, over the den, in the force of his spirit.

36 And Habacuc cried, saying: O Daniel, thou servant of God, take the dinner that God hath sent thee.

37 And Daniel said, Thou hast remembered me, O God, and thou hast not forsaken them that love thee.

38 And Daniel arose, and eat. And the angel of the Lord presently set Habacuc again in his own place.

39 And upon the seventh day the king came to bewail Daniel: and he came to the den, and looked in, and behold Daniel was sitting in the midst of the lions.

40 And the king cried out with a loud voice, saying: Great art thou, O Lord, the God of Daniel. And he drew him out of the lions' den.

41 But those that had been the cause of his destruction, he cast into the den, and they were devoured in a moment before him.

42 Then the king said: Let all the inhabitants of the whole earth fear the God of Daniel: for he is the Saviour, working signs, and wonders in the earth: who hath delivered Daniel out of the lions' den.

THE PROPHECY OF OSEE.

OSEE, or Hosea, whose name signifies a saviour, was the first in the order of time among those who are commonly called lesser prophets, because their prophecies are short. He prophesied in the kingdom of Israel, (that is, of the ten tribes) about the same time that Isaiah prophesied in the kingdom of Judah. Ch.—The chronological order is not observed in any edition. The Sept. vary from the rest. They place the less before the greater prophets, and read some of the names rather differently, as Prot. do also, though they have nothing but novelty to recommend the change. We shall here specify the Prot. names, (H.) in the order in which these prophets appeared: (C.) 1. Hosea, 2. Amos, 3. Jonah, 4. Micah, 5. Nahum, 6. Joel, 7. Zephaniah, 8. Habakkuk, 9. Obadiah, 10. Haggai, 11. Zechariah, 12. Malachi. H.—It is not known who collected them into one volume. But the book of Ecclesiasticus (xlix. 12.) speaks of the twelve; and 4 Esd. i. 89. specifies them as they are found in the Sept. Osee, Amos, Micah, Joel, Abdias, Jonas, Nahum, &c. as in the Vulg. C.—Many other prophets appeared before these, (W.) but Osee is the first of the sixteen whose works are extant. He must have continued his ministry about eighty-five years, and lived above one hundred and ten, if the first verse speak of him alone. But some take it to regard the whole collection, and may be added by another hand. C.—The style of Osee is sententious and very hard to be understood, (S. Jer.) as but little is known of the last kings of Israel, in whose dominions he lived, and to whom he chiefly refers, though he speaks sometimes of Judah, &c. C.—By taking a wife, and other parables, he shows their criminal conduct and chastisement, and foretells their future deliverance and the benefits to be conferred by Christ. We must observe that the prophets often style the kingdom of the two tribes, Judah, Benjamin, Jerusalem, or the house of David; and that of the ten tribes, Ephraim, Joseph, Samaria, Jezrahel, Bethel, or Bethaven; and often Israel or Jacob till after the captivity of these tribes, when the latter titles refer to Judah, who imitated the virtues of Jacob better than the other kingdom. W.—Then all distinction of this nature was at an end. H.

CHAP. I.

By marrying a harlot, and by the names of his children, the prophet sets forth the crimes of Israel, and their punishment. He foretells their redemption by Christ.

THE word of the Lord, that came to Osee, the son of Beer, in the days of Ozias, Joathan, Achaz, and Ezechias, kings of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam, the son of Joas, king of Israel.

2 The beginning of the Lord's speaking by Osee: and the Lord said to Osee: Go, take thee a wife of fornications, and have of her children of fornications: for the land by fornication shall depart from the Lord.

3 So he went and took Gomer, the daughter of Debelaim: and she conceived, and bore him a son.

4 And the Lord said to him: Call his name Jezrahel: for yet a little while, and I will visit the blood of Jezrahel upon the house of Jehu, and I will cause to cease the kingdom of the house of Israel.

5 And in that day I will break in pieces the bow of Israel in the valley of Jezrahel.

6 And she conceived again, and bore a daughter, and he said to him: Call her name, Without mercy: for I will not add any more to have mercy on the house of Israel, but I will utterly forget them.

CHAP. I. VER. 1. Israel. He reigned forty-one years, till A. M. 3220. Usher.—The prophets usually give the date, that the prediction may be verified. Some Latin MSS. intimate, that "the Jews attribute these titles to Esdras, (who is Malachias) or to the respective prophets, which is more probable." S. Jer. t. i. —Jeroboam II. died twenty-six years before Ozias, towards the end of whose reign Isaiah commenced; so that Osee was more ancient. W.

VER. 2. Fornications. That is, a wife that hath been given to fornication. This was to represent the Lord's proceedings with his people Israel, who, by spiritual fornication, were continually offending him. Ch.—The prophet reclaimed her. S. Jer.—She denoted Samaria, abandoned to idolatry. Eze. xvi. 15. Several such actions were prophetic. Many have supposed that this was only a parable, but the sequel proves the contrary. C.—Of fornications. So called from the character of their mother, if not also from their own wicked dispositions. Ch.—He is ordered to marry a woman who had been of a loose character, and to have children who would resemble her; (W.) or he takes her children to his house; (Grot.) unless the children of the prophet were so styled because the mother had been given to fornication. So the rod of Aaron retains its name when it was become a serpent. Ex. vii. 12.—Shall, or rather, "has departed;" and therefore he denounces future chastisements.

VER. 4. Jezrahel. Jehu slew Joram in this place. He was the instrument of God's justice, yet acted himself through malice and ambition, and was therefore deservedly punished. Zacharias, the fourth of his family, lost the crown, and was slain by Sallum, at Jezrahel. 4 K. ix. &c. C.—The offspring of Jehu, now on the throne, solicited Jezrahel or the ten tribes to idolatry, which God will revenge. W.

7 And I will have mercy on the house of Judah, and I will save them by the Lord, their God: and I will not save them by bow, nor by sword, nor by battle, nor by horses, nor by horsemen.

8 And she weaned her that was called Without mercy. And she conceived, and bore a son.

9 And he said: Call his name, Not my people: for you are not my people, and I will not be yours.

10 And the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, that is without measure, and shall not be numbered. ^b And it shall be in the place where it shall be said to them: You are not my people: it shall be said to them: Ye are the sons of the living God.

11 And the children of Judah, and the children of Israel, shall be gathered together: and they shall appoint themselves one head, and shall come up out of the land: for great is the day of Jezrahel.

her fornications from her face, and her adulteries from between her breasts.

3 Lest I strip her naked, and set her as in the day that she was born: and I will make her as a wilderness, and will set her as a land that none can pass through, and will kill her with drought.

4 And I will not have mercy on her children: for they are the children of fornications.

5 For their mother hath committed fornication, she that conceived them is covered with shame: for she said: I will go after my lovers, that give me my bread, and my water, my wool, and my flax, my oil, and my drink.

6 Wherefore, behold, I will hedge up thy way with thorns, and I will stop it up with a wall, and she shall not find her paths.

7 And she shall follow after her lovers, and shall not overtake them: and she shall seek them, and shall not find, and she shall say: I will go, and return to my first husband: because it was better with me than now.

8 And she did not know that I gave her corn, and wine, and oil, and multiplied her silver, and gold, which they have used in the service of Baal.

9 Therefore will I return, and take away my corn in its season, and my wine in its season, and I will set at liberty my wool, and my flax, which covered her disgrace.

10 And now I will lay open her folly in the eyes of her lovers: and no man shall deliver her out of my hand:

11 And I will cause all her mirth to cease, her solemnities, her new moons, her sabbaths, and all her festival times.

12 And I will destroy her vines, and her fig-trees, of which she said: These are my rewards, which my lovers have given me: and I will make her as a forest, and the beasts of the field shall devour her.

13 And I will visit upon her the days of Baalim, to whom she burnt incense, and decked herself out with her ear-rings, and with her jewels, and went after her lovers, and forgot me, saith the Lord.

16 And it shall be in that day, saith the Lord: That she shall call me: My husband, and she shall call me no more Baali.

17 And I will take away the names of Baalim out of her mouth, and she shall no more remember their name.

18 And in that day I will make a covenant with them, with the beasts of the field, and with the fowls of the air, and with the creeping things of the earth: and I will destroy the bow, and the sword, and war out of the land: and I will make them sleep secure.

19 And I will espouse thee to me for ever: and I will espouse thee to me in justice, and judgment, and in mercy, and in commiserations.

20 And I will espouse thee to me in faith: and thou shalt know that I am the Lord.

21 And it shall come to pass in that day: I will hear, saith the Lord, I will hear the heavens, and they shall hear the earth.

22 And the earth shall hear the corn, and the wine, and the oil, and these shall hear Jezrahel.

23 And I will sow her unto me in the earth, and I will have mercy on her that was without mercy.

VER. 16. My husband. In Heb. Ishi.—Baali: my lord. The meaning of this verse is: that, whereas, Ishi and Baali were used indifferently in those days by wives speaking to their husbands, the synagogue, whom God was pleased to consider as his spouse, should call him only Ishi, and abstain from the name of Baali, because of his affinity with the name of the idol Baal. God's judgment against the sins of Israel. Juda is warned not to follow their example.

HEAR the word of the Lord, ye children of Israel, for the Lord shall enter into judgment with the inhabitants of the land: for there is no truth, and there is no mercy, and there is no knowledge of God in the land.

2 Cursing, and lying, and killing, and theft, and adultery, have overflowed, and blood hath touched blood.

3 Therefore shall the land mourn, and every one that dwelleth in it shall languish with the beasts of the field, and with the fowls of the air: yea, the fishes of the sea also shall be gathered together.

4 But yet let not any man judge: and let not a man be rebuked: for thy people are as they that contradict the priest.

mel, yet not quite reconciled. The people in captivity are separated both from her idols and from God, though the latter still retains an affection for them. H.—Christ is the literal object of this prediction. C.

7 According to the multitude of them, so have they sinned against me: I will change their glory into shame.

8 They shall eat the sins of my people, and shall lift up their souls to their iniquity.

9 ^bAnd there shall be like people like priest: and I will visit their ways upon them, and I will repay them their devices.

10 And they shall eat and shall not be filled: they have committed fornication, and have not ceased: because they have forsaken the Lord in not observing his law.

11 Fornication, and wine, and drunkenness, take away the understanding.

12 My people have consulted their stocks, and their staff hath declared unto them: for the spirit of fornication hath deceived them, and they have committed fornication against their God.

13 They offered sacrifice upon the tops of the mountains, and burnt incense upon the hills: under the oak, and the poplar, and the turpentine-tree, because the shadow thereof was good: therefore shall your daughters commit fornication, and your spouses shall be adulteresses.

14 I will not visit upon your daughters, when they shall commit fornication, and upon your spouses when they shall commit adultery: because themselves conversed with harlots, and offered sacrifice with the effeminate, and the people that doth not understand shall be beaten.

The want of humanity and of practical knowledge is urged. C.—The knowledge of God includes the observance of the commandments. 1 Jo. ii. 4. W.—This science alone is requisite. Jer. ix. 3. Is. v. 13. Blind leaders prove their own and other's ruin.

VER. 2. Blood. The successors of Jeroboam II. were mostly murdered. C.—Incestuous marriages take place. H.

VER. 3. Together. The waters shall be dried up, or infected. C.—When the people are taken away, beasts will not long remain. Jer. ix. 10. Soph. i. 2. H.

VER. 4. Judge, &c. As if he would say: It is in vain to strive with them, or reprove them, they are so obstinate in evil. Ch.—Priest. Such must be slain. Deut. xvii. 12. C.—Sept. "my people are like a priest contradicted," (H.) or degraded. Theod.

VER. 5. Prophet, both true and false.—Night of tribulation. Heb. and Sept. "I have compared thy mother to the night."

VER. 6. Silent. Sept. "like those who had," &c.—Knowledge. Jeroboam I. had appointed unlawful priests, and some of the house of Aaron went over to him, and were excluded from officiating at Jerusalem, after the captivity. 1 K. xii. 31. Ezec. xlv. 10. Knowledge is always expected of priests. Deut. xvii. 8. Mal. ii. 7. Gratian. dist. 38. c. omnes. C.—When the power of sacrificing is withdrawn, all spiritual functions cease, as sacrifice belongs properly to a priest. W.

VER. 7. Me. A father rejoices in a numerous offspring. But my people take occasion to offend me the more they increase. C.

VER. 8. Sins: victims. W.—Iniquity; or "they seek for support in their propitiatory offerings," and lull the people asleep in their sins. The priests of the golden calf imitated the sacred rites of Moses. It would have been too difficult to make the people change altogether.

VER. 9. Priest. They are equally dissolute, and shall meet the like punishment.—Devices, or thoughts. C.—Cogitatio mali operis penas luet. S. Jer.

VER. 10. Ceased. Heb. "increased." They have no children living. C.—Sept. "let them not succeed."

VER. 11. Understanding. Lit. "heart." H.—Some sins darken reason more than others; but none so much as spiritual fornication. W.

VER. 12. Staff. It was customary to use this mode of divination. (Ezec. xxi. 21.) and likewise incense. v. 13.—Oak. These terms are variously rendered as the trees and stones mentioned in Scripture, will probably never be ascertained.

VER. 14. Visit. This is the most dreadful of God's judgments. He permits those who offend him to receive discontent from their own families.—Effeminate, like the Galli, &c. (S. Jer.) and votaries of Priapus. 3 K. xv. 11. Heb. "the 15 If thou play the harlot, O Israel, at least let not Juda offend: and go ye not into Galgal, and come not up into Bethaven, and do not swear: The Lord liveth.

16 For Israel hath gone astray like a wanton heifer: now will the Lord feed them, as a lamb in a spacious place.

17 Ephraim is a partaker with idols, let him alone.

18 Their banquet is separated, they have gone astray by fornication: they that should have protected them have loved to bring shame upon them.

19 The wind hath bound them up in its wings, and they shall be confounded because of their sacrifices.

CHAP. V.

God's threats against the priests, the people, and princes of Israel, for their idolatry.

HEAR ye this, O priests, and hearken, O ye house of Israel, and give ear, O house of the king: for there is a judgment against you, because you have been a snare to them whom you should have watched over, and a net spread upon Thabor.

2 And you have turned aside victims into the depth: and I am the teacher of them all.

3 I know Ephraim, and Israel is not hid from me: for now Ephraim hath committed fornication, Israel is defiled.

4 They will not set their thoughts to return to their God: for the spirit of fornication is in the midst of them, and they have not known the Lord.

5 And the pride of Israel shall answer in his face: and Israel, and Ephraim shall fall in their iniquity, Juda also shall fall with them.

6 With their flocks and with their herds, they shall go to seek the Lord, and shall not find him: he is withdrawn from them.

7 They have transgressed against the Lord: for they have begotten children that are strangers: now shall a month devour them with their portions.

consecrated women." Sept. "initiated," to honour a lewd idol by prostitution. C.—Beaten. Sept. "adhere to a harlot. But thou, Israel, be not ignorant, and Juda go," &c. H.

VER. 15. Offend. It was more culpable for Juda to commit idolatry (as they had the temple, &c. of the true God) than for Israel, whom Jeroboam hindered from going to Jerusalem, after he had set up his golden calves. W.—Galgal and Bethaven. Places where idols were worshipped. Bethel, which signifies the house of God, is called by the prophet Bethaven, that is, the house of vanity, from Jeroboam's golden calf which was worshipped there. Ch.—Galgal was on the confines of the two kingdoms, and always venerated by the Jews. Idols had been there in ancient times, and probably a sort of oracle. Judg. iii. 19. If Israel be thus abandoned, let not Juda imitate them. C.—Lord. Profane not this sacred name by giving it to idols. Theod.—Use not this expression, since you do not worship me. S. Jer.

VER. 16. Wanton. Sept. "stung," or rendered furious. Thus Israel gives way to ungovernable passions. The people shall be led into captivity, and have room to range about.

VER. 17. Partaker. Heb. "tied to abominations."—Alone. His case is desperate. C.—Sept. "he has placed stumbling-blocks for himself." H.

VER. 18. Separated from that allowed to God's people. Deut. xii. 12. Heb. "insipid," or spoiled. Chal. "their princes have sought after banquets." Sept. "He has provoked (surpassed) the Chanaanites." These two have not read as we do.—They. Heb. "their shields (chiefs) have loved shame:" dissolute practices, or "presents," which are disgraceful. C.—Sept. "They have loved shame by her rage. (19) A whirlwind shall whistle in," &c. H.

VER. 19. Wings. They shall be quickly removed hence. C.
CHAP. V. VER. 1. O priests. What is said of priests in this prophecy is chiefly understood of the priests of the kingdom of Israel; who were not true priests of the race of Aaron, but served the calves at Bethel and Dan. Ch.—They had the name of priests, and pretended to act as such. 3 K. xii. W.—There were some apostates among them. C. iv. 6. But they lost all authority.—To them. Lit. "to the watch:" speculation. Heb. "at Maspha," (H.) in Galad, where a profane altar was erected. C. vi. 8. C.

VER. 2. Depth, or pits of fire, where victims were sometimes thrown. Iphigen. Grot.—By substituting th for t, we might render, "they have dug pits to take them," C. ix. 9 Jos. xxiii. 13. C.—Idolatry leads to the abyss. H.

8 Blow ye the cornet in Gabaa, the trumpet in Rama: howl ye in Bethaven, behind thy back, O Benjamin.

9 Ephraim shall be in desolation in the day of rebuke: among the tribes of Israel I have shewn that which shall surely be.

10 The princes of Juda are become as they that take up the bound: I will pour out my wrath upon them like water.

11 Ephraim is under oppression, and broken in judgment: because he began to go after filthiness.

12 And I will be like a moth to Ephraim: and like rottenness to the house of Juda.

13 And Ephraim saw his sickness, and Juda his band: and Ephraim went to the Assyrian, and sent to the avenging king: and he shall not be able to heal you, neither shall he be able to take off the band from you.

14 For I will be like a lioness to Ephraim, and like a lion's whelp to the house of Juda: I, I will catch, and go: I will take away, and there is none that can rescue.

15 I will go and return to my place: until you are consumed, and seek my face.

CHAP. VI.

Affliction shall be a means to bring many to Christ: a complaint of the untowardness of the Jews. God loves mercy more than sacrifice.

IN their affliction they will rise early to me: Come, and let us return to the Lord.

2 For he hath taken us, and he will heal us: he will strike, and he will cure us.

3 *He will revive us after two days: on the third day he will raise us up, and we shall live in his sight. We shall know, and we shall follow on, that we may know the Lord. His going forth is prepared as the morning light, and he will come to us as the early and the latter rain to the earth.

* 1 Cor. xv. 4.

VER. 4. Known. Fornication had darkened their intellect. C.
VER. 5. Answer. Sept. "be humbled." It appears openly, so as to deserve condemnation. H.

VER. 6. Them. He will receive their victims no longer. Is. i. 11. C.—In vain do they expect to escape by this appearance of sanctity, while they continue in sin. H.

VER. 7. Strangers. That is, aliens from God: and therefore they are threatened with speedy destruction. Ch.—Their offspring is rebellious, and deserves no longer to be called my people. C. i. 9.—Month. Every month the Assyrians shall come upon them; (Chal. S. Jer.) or, in the space of one month, they shall perish. C.—Sept. "the mildew shall eat them and their portions." H.

VER. 8. Back. Bethel lay northwest of Benjamin. The two tribes would hear the distress of Israel, that they might beware and avoid the like misconduct. C.—The captivity is here described. W.

VER. 9. That. Lit. "faith," (H.) that my word shall come to pass.

VER. 10. Bound. This was a capital crime, under Numa, and forbidden. Deut. xix. 14. C.—Juda hoped to seize what was abandoned. S. Jer.—They deferred doing penance, and removed the boundaries set by their fathers, (Theod. C.) the virtuous patriarchs, whom they would not imitate.

VER. 11. Oppression. Lit. "calumny." H. Is. lii. 4.—The Assyrians had no just reason for attacking Israel, though their crimes called for punishment (C.) from God. H.

VER. 13. Avenging. Heb. and Sept. Jareb, (S. Jer.) which some explain of the king of Egypt; others understand the Assyrian; (C. x. 6.) while most suppose that Ephraim applied to Phul, and Juda sent to a protecting king, Theglathphalassar. 4 K. xvi. 7. and xvii. 4. C.

VER. 14. Lioness. Heb. and Sept. "panther." H.—The Assyrians, instead of assisting, proved the ruin of both kingdoms.

VER. 15. Place; to heaven. I will abandon my temple. C.—Face: "they will seek the absent." S. Jer.

CHAP. VI. VER. 1. Early, or in haste. All the people will repent. C.

VER. 2. Cure us. God is always ready to receive penitents. W.

VER. 3. Third. In a short time the Lord will easily set us free. But the prophet refers more directly to the resurrection of the faithful, and of Christ. Eph. ii. 5. and 1 Cor. xv. 4. C.—S. Paul mentions the third day according to the Scriptures, which nowhere else so clearly specify it. W. See S. Jer. 8. Cyp. (1115)

4 What shall I do to thee, O Ephraim? what shall I do to thee, O Juda? your mercy is as a morning cloud, and as the dew that goeth away in the morning.

5 For this reason have I hewed them by the prophets: I have slain them by the words of my mouth: and thy judgments shall go forth as the light.

6 "For I desired mercy, and not sacrifice: and the knowledge of God more than holocausts.

7 But they, like Adam, have transgressed the covenant, there have they dealt treacherously against me.

8 Galaad is a city of workers of idols, supplanted with blood.

9 And like the jaws of highway robbers, they conspire with the priests, who murder in the way those that pass out of Sichem: for they have wrought wickedness.

10 I have seen a horrible thing in the house of Israel, the fornications of Ephraim there: Israel is defiled.

11 And thou also, O Juda, set thee a harvest, when I shall bring back the captivity of my people.

CHAP. VII.

The manifold sins of Israel, and of their kings, hinder the Lord from healing them.

WHEN I would have healed Israel, the iniquity of Ephraim was discovered, and the wickedness of Samaria, for they have committed falsehood, and the thief is come in to steal, the robber is without.

* 1 Kings xv. 22. Eccl. iv. 17. Mat. ix. 13. and xii. 17.

Sanct. 9.—Know. Hitherto we have been reproached with voluntary ignorance in adoring idols. C. iv. 6. We will amend.—His, Christ's.—Rain. It falls only in autumn and in spring. Deut. xi. 14. C.

VER. 4. Mercy. Heb. chesed, (H.) "piety," &c. (Grot.) whence the word Assideans is derived. 1 Mac. ii. 42. The captives flattered themselves, that as soon as they began to entertain sentiments of repentance, God would relieve them. But he answers that their virtue is inconstant, and that they must suffer in proportion to their crimes.

VER. 5. Mouth. I have ordered my prophets to denounce death unto them, and to treat them roughly, like a piece of marble designed for a statue. Sept. &c. "I have slain thy prophets," &c. by Elias, Jehu, &c. The former sense is preferable.—Thy judgments, or condemnation. C.—Heb. "and thy judgments light shall go forth." H.—Pocock labours hard, but in vain, to explain this; as all the old versions, except the Vulg. have, "my judgments as the light," &c. Heb. letters may probably have been ill joined, (Kennicott) as Meibomius suspects they have been also. Jer. xxiii. 33. Here unoxpoti caur, "my judgments as the light," &c. is exchanged for unishpatec or. This would be very easy when words were written undivided, as in ancient MSS. H.—"Some transcriber upon hearing unishpatecaor, from the person dictating to him, writ unishpateca or instead of unishpate caor. Kennicott, Diss. 1.

VER. 6. Mercy; sincere piety. v. 4.—Sacrifice. They had offered many. C. v. 6. C.—"My victims are the salvation of the faithful, and the conversion of sinners." S. Jer.—Knowledge, of a practical nature, which was deficient. C. iv. 6. and vi. 4. C.

VER. 7. Adam. A compact was made with him, that if he continued faithful or otherwise, his posterity should be born in original justice or sin. H.—He transgressed, and was expelled from paradise, as the Jews were from their land. Sept. "like a man;" like any who had not been so highly favoured with the law, &c. C.—Adam means "a man," and sometimes it would be as well rendered in this sense. H.

VER. 8. Supplanted with blood. That is, undermined and brought to ruin for shedding of blood; and, as it is signified in the following verse, for conspiring with the priests, (of Bethel) like robbers, to murder in the way such as passed out of Sichem to go towards the temple of Jerusalem. Or else supplanted with blood signifies flowing in such a manner with blood, as to suffer none to walk there without embreing the soles of their feet in blood. Ch.—Thus they would become unclean, and might easily slip. H.—Galaad was famous for the treaty between Laban and Jacob; and all such places were chosen for altars in the latter times of the two kingdoms. Maspha or Ramoth were the usual resort. Theodoret reads "Galaad." C. iv. 15. C.

VER. 9. Robbers. Jephthe had infested those parts, and the country was noted for murders; whence more cities of refuge were appointed in it. Judg. xi. and Jos. xx. 8. The prophet alludes to what had been said to Gad. Gen. xlix. 19.—Out of, or to Sichem. They were jealous of people going thither, (C.) wishing to receive their offerings themselves. H.

VER. 11. Harves. This implies punishment or felicity. The turn of Juda (1116)

2 And lest they may say in their hearts, that I remember all their wickedness: their own devices now have beset them about, they have been done before my face.

3 They have made the king glad with their wickedness: and the princes with their lies.

4 They are all adulterers, like an oven heated by the baker: the city rested a little from the mingling of the leaven, till the whole was leavened.

5 The day of our king, the princes began to be mad with wine: he stretched out his hand with scorners.

6 Because they have applied their heart like an oven, when he laid snares for them: he slept all the night baking them, in the morning, he himself was heated as a flaming fire.

7 They were all heated like an oven, and have devoured their judges: all their kings have fallen: there is none amongst them that calleth unto me.

8 Ephraim himself is mixed among the nations: Ephraim is become as bread baked under the ashes, that is not turned.

9 Strangers have devoured his strength, and he knew it not: yea, grey hairs also are spread about upon him, and he is ignorant of it.

10 And the pride of Israel shall be humbled before his face: and they have not returned to the Lord, their God, nor have they sought him in all these.

11 And Ephraim is become as a dove that is decoyed, not having a heart: they called upon Egypt, they went to the Assyrians.

shall come, and he shall be chastised; but after the captivity, he shall enjoy plenty. C. ii. 15. Is. ix. 3. C.

CHAP. VII. VER. 1. Israel. God divided the kingdom, that by this chastisement the people might be converted. But Jeroboam set up calves, and caused them to grow worse. W.—How often did God send his prophets to reclaim them!—Without. Most of the kings were of this stamp, while foreign nations invaded the land.

VER. 2. Face. I do not search (C.) into their past lives; they sin publicly, and without ceasing. I have been too indulgent. H.

VER. 3. Glad, &c. To please Jeroboam and their other kings, they have given themselves up to the worship of idols, which are mere falsehood and lies. Ch.—We do not find one good king of Israel. C.—But Jeroboam principally caused Israel to sin. H.—His infernal policy changed the religion of his subjects.

VER. 4. Leaven. Jeroboam invited the people simply to a feast, and used no violence to make them adopt his novelties. But they soon prevailed, and brought on ruin. The cake, or whole nation, was burnt, (v. 8.) as well as the princes. v. 7. C.

VER. 5. Princes. The chief men joined in the schism and idolatry. W.—Mad, with drinking at the king's coronation, or at his coming to the crown. C.—Bacchus presents three cups to the wise; the fourth is the cup of petulance, the fifth of shouts, the sixth of debauchery, &c. Athen. Dipse. ii. 1. Eccl. xxxi. 38.—Scorners. Sept. "pestilent people," who turn religion and piety to ridicule. Instead of repressing them, the king admits them to favour.

VER. 6. Them. Jeroboam seduces the subjects of the house of David, by indulging the passions of the great and small. He may then sleep; the poison gains ground. C.—But soon his own family will feel the direful effects of his policy. H.

VER. 7. Judges, or rulers. Idolatry proved fatal to all. v. 3.

VER. 8. Mixed, like oil and flour. Heb.—Ashes. Thin cakes (C.) of this kind are used by the poor, in Spain, (Sanct.) and by the Arabs. Thevenot. Levant. xxxii.—Turned. There was no time allowed by the enemy, who came and took the Israelites away. C.—They became like other nations, and would not repent. W.

VER. 9. Strangers: kings of Assyria, Damascus, &c.—Hairs. He is grown old in misery, and yet is insensible of it, and sees not that he will shortly cease to be a people. Is. vii. 8.

VER. 10. Humbled. Heb. "answer." C. v. 5. Pride is visible on his face, though he be so much reduced. C.—For all these sins Israel shall be severely punished. W.

VER. 11. Decoyed. Heb. "stupid." C. iv. 11. The dove is the only bird which is not grieved at the loss of its young. S. Jer.—It returns to the same nest, though repeatedly robbed, forgetting past dangers. Theod.—Thus Israel is not reclaimed, though idolatry has so often proved its ruin.—Egypt. Jeroboam had retired thither, and at his return brought about a division of the kingdom. 3 K. xi. 40. Osee, the last king, applied to Saa, and this provoked the Assyrians to destroy the kingdom. They pretended that it was tributary

12 And when they shall go, I will spread my net upon them: I will bring them down as the fowl of the air, I will strike them as their congregation hath heard.

13 Woe to them, for they have departed from me: they shall be wasted, because they have transgressed against me: and I redeemed them: and they have spoken lies against me.

14 And they have not cried to me with their heart, but they howled in their beds: they have thought upon wheat and wine, they are departed from me.

15 And I have chastised them, and strengthened their arms: and they have imagined evil against me.

16 They returned, that they might be without yoke: they became like a deceitful bow: their princes shall fall by the sword, for the rage of their tongue. This is their derision in the land of Egypt.

CHAP. VIII.

The Israelites are threatened with destruction for their impiety and idolatry.

LET there be a trumpet in thy throat, like an eagle upon the house of the Lord: because they have transgressed my covenant, and have violated my law.

2 They shall call upon me: O my God, we, Israel, know thee.

3 Israel hath cast off the thing that is good, the enemy shall pursue him.

4 They have reigned, but not by me: they have been princes, and I knew not: of their silver and their gold they made idols to themselves, that they might perish.

5 Thy calf, O Samaria, is cast off, my wrath is to them, after Phul had been invited to assist Manahem for a thousand talents. 4 K. xv. 19. and xvii. 4. Thus was a worldly policy confounded.

VER. 12. Heard the menaces of Moses, (Deut. xxvii.) and of the prophets. 4 K. xxvii. 13. C.—Sept. "I will instruct (or chastise) them by the hearing of their misery," (H.) when it shall become the subject of conversation throughout the world.

VER. 13. Lies, attributing their deliverance to the golden calf, (3 K. xii. 28. C. Ex. xxxii. 8. M.) and always denying my justice or power.

VER. 14. Thought: "ruminated." H.—Heb. "assembled, or been afraid." Sept. "they were cut," (C.) in honour of idols, hoping to avert the famine. S. Cyr.

VER. 15. Arms. I gave them my laws and power to resist the enemy. M.

VER. 16. Returned, imitating Apis, the folly of Egypt. They have repeatedly followed idols in Egypt, and in the desert, under Jeroboam, Achab, Jehu, &c.—Deceitful. Sept. "bent." Theodoret reads "unbent." It never hits the mark, (C.) but wounds the person who uses it. S. Jer.—Derision. The Egyptians laugh at them; (C.) or thus they acted heretofore, in Egypt. Chal.

CHAP. VIII. VER. 1. Eagle. It makes a noise like a trumpet. Pliny x. 3. —Osee denounces judgments on the house of Israel, which, though schismatical, was not entirely abandoned by the Lord. Salmanasar overturned the kingdom, and may be compared to an eagle, as Nabuchodonosor is frequently. Eze. xvii. 3. But he is not here meant. C.—The temple shall be destroyed by him; (S. Jer.) yet not so soon. W.—Sept. "In their bosom like earth appears, like an eagle," &c. H.

VER. 2. Know thee. They resemble those to whom our Saviour will reply, Not every one that saith, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven. Mat. vii. 22. C.

VER. 3. Him. Sept. "they have pursued the enemy." But the former sense is better. H.—The Assyrian prevailed. S. Jer.—They carried Israel into captivity, before Juda. v. 9. W.

VER. 4. They. Jeroboam and Jehu were assured by the prophets that they should reign, yet this was not a sanction of their right. God condemned their ambition and wicked conduct. The successors of Zacharias had still less pretensions to the throne. God permits such things. The people had not consulted him in these changes. C.—Kings were their own choice. 1 K. xviii. Saul rose by their "error." S. Jer.—Knew, or approved not. v. 2. Mat. xxv. 12. C.—Perish. This was the effect, though contrary to their intention. H.

VER. 5. Calf. The idol is broken in pieces, and carried away by the victorious enemy. Thus does the vanity of such gods appear. Their captivity is therefore often foretold. Jer. xliii. 12.—Cleansed. The physician is disgusted with the obstinacy of the sick. C.—How long will Israel resist the Holy Ghost? Acts vii. 51. H.

VER. 6. Israel. This enhances the crime. Can a people so highly favoured adore the work of an artist!—Webs, such as appear on a fine day in autumn. S.

kindled against them. How long will they be incapable of being cleansed?

6 For itself also is the invention of Israel: a workman made it, and it is no god: for the calf of Samaria shall be turned to spiders' webs.

7 For they shall sow wind, and reap a whirlwind: there is no standing stalk in it, the bud shall yield no meal: and if it should yield, strangers shall eat it.

8 Israel is swallowed up: now is he become among the nations like an unclean vessel.

9 For they are gone up to Assyria, a wild ass alone by himself: Ephraim hath given gifts to his lovers.

10 But even though they shall have hired the nations, now will I gather them together: and they shall rest a while from the burden of the king, and the princes.

11 Because Ephraim hath made many altars to sin: altars are become to him unto sin.

12 I shall write to him my manifold laws, which have been accounted as foreign.

13 They shall offer victims, they shall sacrifice flesh, and shall eat it, and the Lord will not receive them: now will he remember their iniquity, and will visit their sins: they shall return to Egypt.

14 And Israel hath forgotten, his maker, and hath built temples: and Juda hath built many fenced cities: and I will send a fire upon his cities, and it shall devour the houses thereof.

CHAP. IX.

The distress and captivity of Israel for their sins and idolatry.

REJOICE not, O Israel: rejoice not as the nations do: for thou hast committed fornication against Jerom's master suggested that this was the sense. Interpreters vary. C.—Sept. and Th. "is delusive." Sym. &c. "instable;" shebabim. H.—Some erroneously read "instead of." "The Lord casts off the calves of heretics, . . and wonders that people should prefer heretical filth before the cleanliness of the Church." S. Jer.

VER. 7. Whirlwind. They shall be punished for their folly, nor shall they reap any advantage from idols—In it, or in Israel. The seed which I have sown yields no fruit. If any come up, the mildew destroys it. Yea, though any should come to perfection, which is impossible, it should be given to strangers. My people perform no acts of religion; or at least they render them useless, by adoring idols. C.—He speaks in general terms, as few continued faithful. Yet, even in the worst of times, seven thousand were found. 3 K. xix. 18. H.

VER. 8. Vessel. The nations around despised them, after they had applied to the Assyrians, who were looked upon as enemies of all independent states, Israel was not yet in captivity: but this event may be spoken of as if already past.

VER. 9. Wild ass. It is very jealous of liberty, (Job xi. 12.) and of its females, so that it prevents the young males from becoming its rivals. Pliny viii. 30. Solin xxx.—If this were true, the species would soon perish. H.—The Israelites disdained subjection to strangers. They even rejected God, their king; for which reason he abandons them to servitude, in a foreign land. They had run furiously after idols, and had given presents to such lovers.

VER. 10. Princes. Heb. "king of kings." This proud title was afterwards taken by the monarchs of Babylon and of Persia. Israel shall cease to pay taxes, having nothing left. They shall cease to be a people. C.—Sept. "I will receive them, and they shall cease a little to anoint a king and princes." H.—They had none during the captivity, as they would not consult God before in their appointment. v. 4. He speaks ironically. I will conduct them beyond the Euphrates, where they shall have nothing to pay for some time. C.—This wretched condition was of long continuance; (Tournemine) though short, if compared with their crimes. H.

VER. 12. Foreign. Shall I give them laws again to despise? Sept. "I shall write down their number." It will be an easy task, they shall be so diminished. "His laws," &c. (C.) or, "I will describe to him a multitude, and his regulations: The beloved altars have been deemed foreign." S. Jerom's and Grabe's edit. H.

VER. 13. Egypt, to escape the Assyrian. C. ix. 3. C.—They have imitated the Egyptian idols. S. Jer.—Osee had applied to their king for aid. 4 K. xvii. 4.

VER. 14. Temples, or "palaces." C.—Cities. The two tribes, witnessing the calamities of their brethren, will not avoid a similar conduct, but trust in their fortifications. W.—Fire of war destroys both kingdoms—Thereof. Sept. of S. Jerom adds, "and among the Assyrians they have eaten unclean things," which may be taken from C. ix. 3. H.—It is not found in the present Heb. or Gr. copies. C.

thy God, thou hast loved a reward upon every corn-floor.

2 The floor and the wine-press shall not feed them, and the wine shall deceive them.

3 They shall not dwell in the Lord's land: Ephraim is returned to Egypt, and hath eaten unclean things among the Assyrians.

4 They shall not offer wine to the Lord, neither shall they please him: their sacrifices shall be like the bread of mourners: all that shall eat it shall be defiled: for their bread is life for their soul, it shall not enter into the house of the Lord.

5 What will you do in the solemn day, in the day of the feast of the Lord?

6 For behold they are gone, because of destruction: Egypt shall gather them together, Memphis shall bury them: nettles shall inherit their beloved silver, the bur shall be in their tabernacles.

7 The days of visitation are come, the days of repaying are come: know ye, O Israel, that the prophet was foolish, the spiritual man was mad, for the multitude of thy iniquity, and the multitude of thy madness.

8 The watchman of Ephraim was with my God: the prophet is become a snare of ruin upon all his ways, madness is in the house of his God.

9 *They have sinned deeply, as in the days of Gabaa: he will remember their iniquity, and will visit their sin.

10 I found Israel like grapes in the desert: I saw their fathers like the first-fruits of the fig-tree in the top thereof: but they went in to Beelphegor, and alienated themselves to that confusion, and became abominable, as those things were, which they loved.

* Judges xix. 25.

CHAP. IX. VER. 1. Reward, or "present." The kings took the title. 1 K. viii. 15. Other infidel nations rejoice in their wealth. Israel ought not to do so; and, in punishment of idolatry, it shall be despoiled. After Jeroboam II. all went to ruin.

VER. 2. Deceive. The grapes shall yield no wine. C.—Spem mentita seges. Hor. ii. ep. 2. and 3. ode 1. and 16.

VER. 3. Egypt, through distress. C. viii. 13. S. Jer. v. 6. W.—Sua afforded no protection, and the country proved a grave to those who retired thither.—Unclean. The people observed these prescriptions, though they neglected the more important duties. Only some pious souls, like Tobias, Daniel, &c. refrained from such meats in exile. C.—Ezekiel (iv. 9.) foreshewed this by his bread. S. Jer.

VER. 4. Wine. They shall be at a distance from the temple, and in a country where the wine will not be deemed pure. The Jews will drink none which they have not made; and they usually lift up the cup, and pour out a little in God's honour. This they could not do in Assyria, (C.) not having liberty to do all about the wine.—Sacrifices. The Israelites had long neglected to offer any in the temple, (H.) though they had no hindrance. In exile, the fruits, &c. were all accounted unclean, like meats used in mourning, (C.) which defiled those who partook of them. Deut. xvi. 14. Num. xix. 11. "The sacrifices of heretics are the bread of mourning. They offer them not to God, but to the dead, to wicked heresiarches." S. Jer.—Soul. They have need enough of it. H.—"Let them gratify their appetite; I love not what is unclean." S. Jer.

VER. 5. Lord, when he shall punish you. Is. xxxiv. 6. H.—Israel did not go to the temple, but they kept the festivals and banquets in their own manner, the privation of which they would feel.

VER. 6. Gather into the grave. Yet some shall escape. C. xi. 11.—Silver, which they have buried at the approach of the enemy, hoping to recover it when they should depart. The Arabs do so still, (C.) and the Indians likewise, that they may have something to support them in the next world! Bernier.—Bur. Heb. "thorns." C.

VER. 7. Mad. Israel shall promise itself all prosperity, not being inspired by God, but full of madness. W.—There were many false prophets. The true ones were often accounted fools. 4 K. ix. 11. Ezech. iii. 25. C.—"What is said respecting Israel, in this prophet, must be understood of heretics, who being truly mad, utter falsehoods against God." S. Jer.—Sept. "and Israel shall be hurt like the prophet beside himself, the man having (or hurried away by) the spirit." H.

VER. 8. My God. I am such; but the false prophets strive to seduce you. (1118)

11 As for Ephraim, their glory hath flown away, like a bird from the birth, and from the womb, and from the conception.

12 And though they should bring up their children, I will make them without children among men: yea, and woe to them, when I shall depart from them.

13 Ephraim, as I saw, was a Tyre, founded in beauty: and Ephraim shall bring out his children to the murderer.

14 Give them, O Lord. What wilt thou give them? Give them a womb without children, and dry breasts.

15 *All their wickedness is in Galgal, for there I hated them: for the wickedness of their devices I will cast them forth out of my house: I will love them no more, all their princes are revolvers.

16 Ephraim is struck, their root is dried up, they shall yield no fruit. And if they should have issue, I will slay the best beloved fruit of their womb.

17 My God will cast them away, because they hearkened not to him: and they shall be wanderers among the nations.

CHAP. X.

After many benefits, great affliction shall fall upon the ten tribes, for their ingratitude to God.

ISRAEL, a vine full of branches, the fruit is agreeable to it: according to the multitude of his fruit, he hath multiplied altars, according to the plenty of his land, he hath abounded with idols.

2 Their heart is divided, now they shall perish: he shall break down their idols, he shall destroy their altars.

3 For now they shall say: We have no king: because we fear not the Lord: and what shall a king do to us?

* 1 Kings viii. 5.

C.—Jeroboam ought to have restrained the people, and he did the reverse, setting up a calf at Bethel, which proved more ruinous than the crime of Gabaa, (Jud. xix.) or the election of Saul. "In ancient records, I cannot find that any have divided the Church but those who were appointed by God, priests and prophets, that is watchmen." S. Jer.—Indeed, almost all heresies owe their rise to the pride or lust of some who have been in high stations.—Madness, Heb. "and hatred in (margin against) the," &c. Prot. H.—Instead of standing up for the people, he provokes God.

VER. 9. Sin. As they have imitated the citizens of Gabaa, they may expect a similar fate. C.

VER. 10. Top. These are the best. H.—The patriarchs were pleasing to God. He chose the Hebrews; but they began to worship Beelphegor or Adonis, even before the death of Moses. This worship was most shameful. What will not passion do when the gods shew the example!

VER. 11. Conception. Their children, in whom they glory, shall be destroyed (C.) in the very embryo. H.

VER. 12. When. Sept. Th. "my flesh is taken from them," which Theodoret, Lyrar, &c. explain of the incarnation; but Aquila, &c. agree with the Vulg. which is more natural. C.

VER. 13. Tyre. The kingdom of Israel was no less proud. Ezech. xxvi. W.—It was in the highest prosperity under Jeroboam II. Osee saw this and the subsequent overthrow. Tyre was a most populous and wealthy city. C.—Other interpreters have, "a rock;" Sept. "a prey." The latter read d for r. S. Jer. H.—The Vulg. seems best. C.—Tsor denotes "Tyre and a rock." H.

VER. 14. Children, as they have exposed them to the fury of the Assyrians, (C.) or to their idols. Drus.—The prophet appears to demand vengeance through zeal; but it is only a prediction. C.

VER. 15. Galgal: "heaped together." H.—When they erected profane altars here, I could spare them no longer. C.—No more, so as to suffer them to pass unpunished. H.—He afterwards restored them to favour. C. i. 10. and ii. 14. C.—At Galgal they rejected the Lord's spiritual and temporal dominion. M.

VER. 16. Dried up. They are compared to a vine. C. x. 1. C.

CHAP. X. VER. 1. Branches. Sept. "Wood." Sym. This is all: it yields no fruit. Prot. "empty." H.—Heb. "plucked." The grapes are taken away, as the Israelites were; though they boasted of their numbers. C. ix. 16. They are often compared to a vine, the symbol of fecundity. Is. v. 3. Pa. cxxvii. 3. C.—The greater benefits of God enhanced their ingratitude. W.—On every noted hill (H.) profane altars were erected.

VER. 2. Divided between the Lord and idols. 3 Kin. xviii. 21. C.—The Jews

4 You speak words of an unprofitable vision, and you shall make a covenant: and judgment shall spring up as bitterness in the furrows of the field.

5 The inhabitants of Samaria have worshipped the line of Bethaver: for the people thereof have mourned over it, and the wardens of its temple, that rejoiced over it in its glory, because it is departed from it.

6 For itself also is carried into Assyria, a present to the avenging king: shame shall fall upon Ephraim, and Israel shall be confounded in his own will.

7 Samaria hath made her king to pass as froth upon the face of the water.

8 And the high places of the idol, the sin of Israel, shall be destroyed: the bur and the thistle shall grow up over their altars; and they shall say to the mountains: *Cover us; and to the hills: Fall upon us.

9 ^bFrom the days of Gabaa, Israel hath sinned, there they stood: the battle in Gabaa against the children of iniquity shall not overtake them.

10 According to my desire, I will chastise them: and the nations shall be gathered together against them, when they shall be chastised for their two iniquities.

11 Ephraim is a heifer taught to love, to tread out corn, but I passed over upon the beauty of her neck: I will ride upon Ephraim, Judah shall plough, Jacob shall break the furrows for himself.

relate that Osee, the last king of Israel, gave the people leave to go to Jerusalem; (4 K. xvii. 2.) and as they would not take advantage of it, their ruin was decreed. S. Jer.

VER. 3. No king, in captivity; or they give this title to the golden calf. Manahem had destroyed one, so that they could not but see its vanity. The neighbouring nations looked upon their idols as their kings.

VER. 4. Covenant with Phul, who seeks only your destruction. 4 K. xv. 19. C.—Bitterness. Heb. "poison," (II.) or a bitter herb. C.

VER. 5. The king of Bethaven. The golden calves of Jeroboam, (Ch.) one of which (H.) was set up at Bethel. W.—The feminine cous, is spoken in ridicule; as (C.) O versè Phrygie, An. ix. Isis was represented with a cow's head. Herod. ii. 41.—Rejoiced. To avoid this apparent contradiction, the Jews relate that the priests had sent a brazen calf to the Assyrian, and secreted the golden one. While they rejoiced at their success, Salmanasar, (Seder. Olam.) or Senacherib, discovered the cheat, and came to destroy the kingdom. S. Jer.—This has the air of a fable. If (C.) we substitute e for g, in yagiu, (H.) we may give a good sense to the Heb. "The people shouting, or in black, (cemaraiv) have been in sorrow, because their glory is taken from them; so the idol is called. Ps. cv. 20. C.

VER. 6. Itself also is carried, &c. One of the golden calves was given by king Manahem to Phul, king of the Assyrians, to engage him to stand by him. Ch.—Avenging. C. v. 13.—Will, or expectation of aid. C.—He had recourse to this nation, without consulting God. II.

VER. 7. Pass. Heb. "As for Samaria, it is undone. Its king is like froth, or a bubble," &c. C. xi. 1. The calf; (v. 3.) Zacharias or Osee may be meant.

VER. 8. Us, as the Jews would do at the last siege, and sinners before the day of judgment. Lu. xxiii. 30. Apoc. vi. 16. Too happy, if they could by a speedy death escape eternal torments! C.—People shall be in the utmost consternation at the approach of the Assyrians. H.—They will not think themselves secure enough in their caverns.

VER. 9. Gabaa. Sept. "high places;" or he alludes to the brutality of the citizens. Judg. xx. 13.—Stood. Those of Gabaa were speedily punished by the other tribes. Now, all are perverse. At that time one tribe was guilty, and yet some were spared; but all Israel shall be now led into captivity. C.—From the time that Dan adored Micha's idol, (Jud. xviii. 14.) the evil has spread among the rest of the tribes, which did not punish this transgression. Hence all shall at last suffer. W.

VER. 10. Their two iniquities. Their two calves; (Ch.) or because they have abandoned God, and followed idols. Jer. ii. 13. Many render, "when I shall have tied them, like oxen, in their two furrows." But the Vulg. is plainer, and adopted by most.

VER. 11. Neck. I will confine her to harder labour. While the oxen tread out corn, they may eat. Deut. xxv. 4.—Himself. Juda shall be chastised after the ten tribes; so that none of my people shall escape.

VER. 12. Mouth. Heb. "in proportion to (C.) your piety." Sept. "gather a vintage of the fruit of life." H.—Ground. Reform your conduct. C.—Justice, when Christ shall appear, the source of all our grace and justice. S. Jer. &c. C.—Sept. "Light up for yourselves the light of knowledge, for it is time; seek the Lord, till ye obtain the fruit of justice."

VER. 13. Ploughed. Sept. "Why have you concealed impiety," refusing to 12 *Sow for yourselves in justice, and reap in the mouth of mercy, break up your fallow ground: but the time to seek the Lord is, when he shall come that shall teach you justice.

13 You have ploughed wickedness, you have reaped iniquity, you have eaten the fruit of lying: because thou hast trusted in thy ways, in the multitude of thy strong ones.

14 A tumult shall arise among thy people: and all thy fortresses shall be destroyed, as ^aSalmana was destroyed by the house of him that judged Baal in the day of battle, the mother being dashed in pieces upon her children.

15 So hath Bethel done to you, because of the evil of your iniquities.

CHAP. XI.

God proceeds in threatening Israel for their ingratitude: yet he will not utterly destroy them.

AS the morning passeth, so hath the king of Israel passed away. Because Israel was a child, and ^aI loved him: and I called my son out of Egypt.

2 As they called them, they went away from before their face: they offered victims to Baalim, and sacrificed to idols.

3 And I was like a foster-father to Ephraim, I carried them in my arms: and they knew not that I healed them.

* Jer. iv. 8.—^a Judges viii. 12.—^a Mat. ii. 15.

confess! H.—Iniquity, or punishment.—Lying. Your hopes are frustrated, and no fruit is seen. C.—Ways: idols. S. Jer.

VER. 14. Tumult. Heb. shaon; the din of war, (H) or cry of soldiers. C.—Salmana, king of the Medianites, was destroyed by the house; that is, by the followers of him that judgeth Baal; that is, of Gideon, who threw down the altar of Baal, and was therefore called Jerobaal. See Judg. vi. and viii. Ch.—Of him. Sept. Rom. "of Jeroboam." But S. Jer. &c. have, Jerobaal. Theodoret, "in the house of Arbel." Heb. "as Salmana ruined the house of Arbela." There were many places of this name; but none of great note, taken by Salmanasar. Some think that he took it before he was king. Yet this is all uncertain, and the Heb. seems rather changed, so that we should read with the Alex. MS. S. Jer. &c. Jerobaal, who defeated the Medianites, and treated Succoth with great severity. Judg. viii. 15. C.

VER. 15. Bethel. This place, defiled by an idol, shall be the scene of your misery. Sept. "So I will treat you, O house of Israel," &c. (H.) which is not in Heb. (S. Jer.) but seems as good. H.—Heb. adds here properly, (C.) "Presently, or in the morning, shall the king of Israel be utterly cut off," which we have in the next chapter.

CHAP. XI. VER. 1. Away. The last kings of Israel lived in the midst of troubles. H.—Osee, though one of the best, brought ruin on the nation. C.—Son: Israel. But as the calling of Israel out of Egypt was a figure of the calling of Christ from thence; therefore this text is also applicable to Christ, as we learn from S. Mat. ii. 15. Ch. Julian pretends that the apostle has abused this text. But it speaks of both events. S. Jer.—Eusebius (Dem. ix. 3.) thinks that S. Mat. refers to Balaam; (Num. xxiv. 8.) and S. Jeron does not reject this opinion, (in Mat. ii. C.) to avoid "wrangling," though he repeatedly alleges this text as a proof his version being more accurate than that of the Sept. which has his children. This reading the best editions retain; so that it may seem a matter of surprise, that Fabricius should give this verse as a specimen of Origen's Hexapla, and still print my son, taking it, as he says, from the Barbarini copy, the London Polyglot, and Cave. Bib. Gr. iii. 12. The first column has the Heb. text, and the second the same in Greek characters, &c. The reader may form a judgment of this work from the following specimen: 1. Heb. (which we shall express) kerathi bani. 2. Gr. καρὰ θεῶν. 3. Aq. ἐκάλεισά τον υἱον μου. 4. Sym. κεκληγὰς υἱος μου. 5. Sept. κεκληγὰς υἱος μου. 6. Th. καὶ ἐκάλεισά υἱον μου. If any other versions were added, to form Octapla, &c. they were placed after Theodotion, who, though prior to Symmachus, is placed after him, because his version was not so unlike that of the Sept. and the deficiencies were chiefly supplied from him. In the Rom. and Alex. edit. instead of the above we find, μετακαλεσα τα τέκνα αὐτου. "I have recalled his children." H.—This is literally spoken of Israel, (styled God's son, Ex. iv. 23.) and mystically, (W.) though no less (H.) truly, of Jesus Christ, as the inspired evangelist shews. W.

VER. 2. They called: viz. Moses and Aaron called; but they went away after other gods, and would not hear. Ch.—Sept. "As I called them back, or (repeatedly; μετακαλεσα. Grabe has, "he called;" meaning any of God's ministers) so they rushed away from my presence." H.—This sense appears preferable to the Heb. C.

VER. 3. Healed them. My laws were designed to counteract idolatry. H.—I treated them with the utmost tenderness. Deut. i. 31. and xxxii. 11.

VER. 4. Adam. I placed my people in a sort of paradise, (C.) like the first (1119)

4 I will draw them with the cords of Adam, with the bands of love: and I will be to them as one that taketh off the yoke on their jaws: and I put his meat to him, that he might eat.

5 He shall not return into the land of Egypt, but the Assyrian shall be his king: because they would not be converted.

6 The sword hath begun in his cities, and it shall consume his chosen men, and shall devour their heads.

7 And my people shall long for my return: but a yoke shall be put upon them together, which shall not be taken off.

8 How shall I deal with thee, O Ephraim, shall I protect thee, O Israel? ^ahow shall I make thee as Adama, shall I set thee as Seboim? my heart is turned within me, my repentance is stirred up.

9 I will not execute the fierceness of my wrath: I will not return to destroy Ephraim: because I am God, and not man: the holy one in the midst of thee, and I will not enter into the city.

10 They shall walk after the Lord, he shall roar as a lion: because he shall roar, and the children of the sea shall fear.

11 And they shall fly away like a bird out of Egypt, and like a dove out of the land of the Assyrians: and I will place them in their own houses, saith the Lord.

12 Ephraim hath compassed me about with denials, and the house of Israel with deceit: but Juda went down as a witness with God, and is faithful with the saints.

Israel is reproved for sin. God's favours to them.

man; and as they have imitated him, they shall suffer accordingly. Rufin. Haimo.—But Sept. &c. render, "of a man." They shall be treated like the rest. C.—Grace draws man by sweet means. His free-will is not destroyed, nor is he impelled, like beasts, by force or fear, (W.) though the latter is often used for the most salutary purposes.—Yoke, or muzzle, which prevents them from eating. H.—I furnish them with manna. Can it be suspected that I wish to oppress them? C.

VER. 5. Egypt. Many went, contrary to this prohibition. H.—Yet they did not prosper, as they expected. The Hebrews had also often murmured in the desert, and threatened to return to Egypt.

VER. 6. Heads. Heb. "counsellors." Civil war desolated the kingdom, and made way for the Assyrians. Sept. "they are devoured on account of their projects." C.—They are at a loss what to do.

VER. 7. Off. for a long time; and indeed Israel never recovered its former state, after the captivity. H.—Then they became more docile. Heb. is very ambiguous. C.

VER. 8. Adama, &c. Adama and Seboim were two cities in the neighbourhood of Sodom, and underwent the like destruction. Ch.—God punishes, like a father, with regret.

VER. 9. Not man. I am not actuated by the spirit of revenge, nor do I fear lest my enemy escape. C.—I punish in order to reclaim, (S. Jer.) and reserve eternal vengeance only for those who die impenitent.—Holy one. If there be one just man in Israel, I will spare the nation; (Gen. xviii. 32.) or there are some just, like Tobias, and therefore a part shall be reserved; or, (C.) I am the just (H.) God. S. Jer.

VER. 10. Lion. His power is most terrible, and his commands must be obeyed. C.—All nations shall permit the return of Israel. H.—They shall come from the sea, or from its islands.

VER. 11. Egypt. Some returned soon; others not before the reign of Alexander, or perhaps later. C. Diss.

VER. 12. Denials; refusing to adhere to my worship. H.—They wished to unite it with that of idols. S. K. xviii. C.—Saints. The priests and temple are preserved in Juda. Ezechias brought the people to serve God faithfully, while Israel was led captive. Sept. "the house of Israel and Juda with impiety. Now God hath known them lovingly, and it shall be called the holy people of God." Thus both kingdoms were criminal, and God exercised his mercy towards both. H.—The Jews relate that when their ancestors were pursued by the Egyptians, and the people were desponding, Juda signalized his courage by entering the bed of the sea. S. Jer.—These traditions are suspicious. C. and desolation: and he hath made a covenant with the Assyrians, and carried oil into Egypt.

2 Therefore there is a judgment of the Lord with Juda, and a visitation for Jacob; he will render to him according to his ways, and according to his devices.

3 ^bIn the womb he supplanted his brother: and by his strength he had success with an angel.

4 And he prevailed over the angel, and was strengthened: he wept, and made supplication to him: he found him in Bethel, and there he spoke with us.

5 Even the Lord God of hosts, the Lord ^cis his memorial.

6 Therefore turn thou to thy God: keep mercy and judgment, and hope in thy God always.

7 He is like Chanaan, there is a deceitful balance in his hand, he hath loved oppression.

8 And Ephraim said: But yet I am become rich, I have found me an idol: all my labours shall not find me the iniquity that I have committed.

9 And I that am the Lord, thy God, from the land of Egypt, will yet cause thee to dwell in tabernacles, as in the days of the feast.

10 And I have spoken by the prophets, and I have multiplied visions, and I have used similitudes by the ministry of the prophets.

11 If Galaad be an idol, then in vain were they in Galgal offering sacrifices with bullocks: for their altars also are as heaps in the furrows of the field.

12 ^aJacob fled into the country of Syria, and Israel served for a wife, and was a keeper for a wife.

14 Ephraim hath provoked me to wrath with his

^c Gen. xxviii. 5.—^d Exod. xiv. 21. and 22.

CHAP. XII. VER. 1. On. Lit. the wind. H.—To trust in men is no less vain. W.—Sept. "Ephraim is an evil spirit," &c.—Heat. Heb. "eastern or burning wind." H.—Manahem attempted to engage Egypt on his side, but he was frustrated in his hopes, (4 K. xv. S. Jer.) as Osee was likewise; to which king the sense conducts us better. C. xiii. 15.—Oil. That of Palestine was very excellent. Eze. xxvii. 17.

VER. 2. Judgment. Heb. "trial." What follows refers to all the people, whose impiety is contrasted with Jacob's virtue.

VER. 3. Brother Esau, thus foreshewing what would happen. Gen. xxv.—Angel. Sept. "God," whose place this angel held. Elohim implies both. v. 4 Gen. xxxii. 24.

VER. 4. Wept. Sept. "they wept, and besought me." Other interpreters agree with the Vulg.—Us. By changing a vowel point, in Heb. it might be, "He spoke to him." Cap. Grot.—The most magnificent promises were made, at Bethel, regarding the Israelites: this made the profanation of the place more horrible. C.—Sept. "They found me in the house of On, and there the word was addressed to them."—Bethaven was the name of Bethel, among the pious Jews, in the days of Osee. H.

VER. 5. Memorial, and the object of worship; or this great Jehovah spoke to Jacob.

VER. 7. Chanaan. The Phoenicians were so called, and all merchants. Here the title is given reproachfully (C.) to all the posterity of Jacob. H.—None more ignominious could be used. Dan. xiii. 56. Thus Rome is styled Babylon.

VER. 8. Idol. Heb. also, "vanity." Riches are vain, and lead to idolatry when people place their affections on them. Mat. xiii. 22. Eph. v. 5.—Committed. I am conscious of no injustice. C.—Yet he had used a deceitful balance, and his judgment is equally perverse. H.—"What rich man shall be saved!" Clem. Alex.

VER. 9. Egypt. At Sinai the covenant between God and Israel was chiefly ratified. The former ceased not to perform the conditions, but the latter repaid him with ingratitude.—Feast. The people shall be brought back, (C.) or they shall again be forced to dwell under tents. Theod.—"Shall I still cause!" &c. Tournemine.

VER. 10. Prophets. They have represented me as it were under visible forms, that you cannot plead ignorance. The prophets prefigured Christ, the end of the law, &c. C.

VER. 11. Idol. That is, if Galaad, with all its idols and sacrifices, be like a mere idol itself, being brought to nothing by Thelathphalassar, how vain is it to expect that the idols worshipped in Galgal shall be of any service to the bitterness, and his blood shall come upon him, and his Lord will render his reproach unto him.

CHAP. XIII.

The judgments of God upon Israel for their sins. Christ shall one day redeem them.

WHEN Ephraim spoke, a horror seized Israel: and he sinned in Baal, and died.

2 And now they have sinned more and more: and they have made to themselves a molten thing of their silver, as the likeness of idols, the whole is the work of craftsmen: to these they say: Sacrifice men, ye that adore calves.

3 Therefore they shall be as a morning cloud, and as the early dew that passeth away, as the dust that is driven with a whirlwind out of the floor, and as the smoke out of the chimney.

4 *But I am the Lord, thy God, from the land of Egypt: and thou shalt know no God but me, and there is no saviour beside me.

5 I knew thee in the desert, in the land of the wilderness.

6 According to their pastures they were filled, and were made full: and they lifted up their heart, and have forgotten me.

7 And I will be to them as a lioness, as a leopard in the way of the Assyrians.

8 I will meet them as a bear that is robbed of her whelps, and I will rend the inner parts of their liver: and I will devour them there as a lion, the beast of the field shall tear them.

9 Destruction is thy own, O Israel: thy help is only in me.

10 Where is thy king? now especially let him save tribes that remain. Ch.—Will these idols be more powerful? Sept. copies vary. Rom. ed. has Galaad, and Comp. Galgai in both places. But that of S. Jer. and of Theodoret is better.—Heaps of stones. They are in ruins, or very numerous: (C.) yet have not secured the country. H.

VER. 12. Jacob. The history of the patriarch, and of his posterity, serves to place the ingratitude of the people in the clearest light. W.—The prophet had interrupted the account of Jacob, (v. 4.) who had signalized his piety in Galaad. Gen. xxxi. 46.

VER. 13. Prophet. Josue put the people in possession of the country, and offered sacrifice at Galgal, where the rite of circumcision was performed. This place is now defiled. What perfidy (H.) and ingratitude. C.

VER. 14. Him. He shall suffer for his crimes. M.—He can blame only himself. C.

CHAP. XIII. VER. 1. Spoke. When Jeroboam proposed to erect the golden calves, people were seized with horror; yet they consented, and soon after Baal and other idols were worshipped. W.—Ephraim was one of the greatest tribes, and by its example the rest were drawn into idolatry. Achab principally introduced the worship of Baal, which caused God to decree the misery of his people. 3 K. xvi. 31.

VER. 2. Calves. A cutting reproach! Those who could stoop to adore a calf, might be so blind as to sacrifice men! Heb. "sacrifice, ye men who," &c. Jeroboam issues this edict. C.—Sept. "immolate men; calves are wanting." H.

VER. 3. Away. C. vi. 4.—Chimney, or hole, at the side or top of the room. C.—Heb. arubba. (H.) means also "a locust," as the Sept. render it, though here it affords no sense.

VER. 5. Knew: treated thee with kindness, or tried thee. C.

VER. 6. Pastures: the more they were indulged. H. Deut. xxxii. 15.

VER. 7. Lioness. Sept. "panther." I will pursue them even in their captivity.

VER. 8. Whelps; with the greatest fury. 2 K. xvii. 8.—Inner. Heb. "what encloses the heart;" or, I will break their hard heart. C.

VER. 9. Own. Evils are brought on by the sins of men, which God does not cause. W.—Sept. "who will aid to prevent thy perdition, O Israel." H.—God alone is the author of salvation. He also punishes (Amos iii. 6.) but for man's amendment in life. W.

VER. 10. Princes. It was on this pretext that a king was demanded. 1 K. viii. 20. Will any now save you? M.

VER. 11. King; Saul, Jeroboam, or the Assyrian.—Away. Osee, (C.) so that you shall have no more kings of Israel. H.—Sept. alone have, "I took (C.) or had him in," &c. S. Jer.

VER. 12. Hidden. He thinks to escape. H.—But I keep it like pieces of silver, bound up in my treasury. S. Jer. C.

thee in all thy cities: and thy judges, of whom thou saidst: ^bGive me kings and princes.

11 I will give thee a king in my wrath, and will take him away in my indignation.

12 The iniquity of Ephraim is bound up, his sin is hidden.

13 The sorrows of a woman in labour shall come upon him, he is an unwise son: for now he shall not stand in the breach of the children.

14 I will deliver them out of the hand of death. I will redeem them from death: *O death, I will be thy death, O hell, I will be thy bite: comfort is hidden from my eyes, 15 Because he shall make a separation between brothers: ^athe Lord will bring a burning wind that shall rise from the desert: and it shall dry up his springs, and shall make his fountain desolate, and he shall carry off the treasure of every desirable vessel.

CHAP. XIV.

Samaria shall be destroyed. An exhortation to repentance: God's favour, through Christ, to the penitent.

LET Samaria perish, because she hath stirred up her God to bitterness: let them perish by the sword, let their little ones be dashed, and let the women with child be ript up.

2 Return, O Israel, to the Lord, thy God: for thou hast fallen down by thy iniquity.

3 Take with you words, and return to the Lord, and say to him: Take away all iniquity, and receive the good: and we will render the calves of our lips.

4 Assyria shall not save us, we will not ride upon horses, neither will we say any more: The works of

* 1 Cor. xv. 54. Heb. ii. 14.—^a Ezeo. xix. 12.

VER. 13. Him. He shall be taken when he least expects it. His fruit shall come forth. Jer. iv. 31.—Children. He shall have no share in the division of property, or shall not escape when the father shall bring his children to an account. The Chal. &c. insinuate, that the infant affords no help to come forth, as it would if it had sense. C.

VER. 14. Death. This must be understood of eternal misery, from which the just are preserved. All must die, and many suffered a violent death from the Assyrians. W.—After denouncing the severest judgments, the prophet promises redress and a sort of resurrection, which was a figure of the real sufferings and rising of Jesus Christ. The apostle applies this text to him, but follows not the Heb. or Sept. 1 Cor. xv. 55. C.—Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy victory? O death, where is thy sting? Prot. read, O grave, (marg. hell) instead of the latter death. Heb. chi has been twice placed for ai, I will be instead of where? (H.) as the Gr. Arab. and Syr. versions, as well as the context, evince. All the versions prove the same corruption to be. v. 10. Kennicott, Aquila, and the 5. edit. read where? Sym. I will be: (S. Jer.) so that the change probably took place between A. 130 and 200. Sept. "Where is thy cause gained, (in a lawsuit, or thy justice; δικα. H.) O death?" &c.—Eyes. I can find no consolation, (S. Jer.) because the people cause dissension by their perseverance in evil. Heb. also, "repentance," &c. I will utterly destroy Ephraim; or rather, "vengeance," because he shall flourish," &c. If Ephraim would repent, this should not take place; but now, the Lord will bring Salmanassar, a burning wind. v. 15. C.

VER. 15. Springs of death; or the sins which Christ, born of a virgin, shall destroy, and liberate the vessels of election from hell. S. Jer. H.

CHAP. XIV. VER. 1. Perish, because she hath stirred up her God to bitterness. It is not a curse or imprecation, but a prophecy of what should come to pass (Ch.) to Israel, in Assyria. Many such expressions occur. Ps. lxxviii. 25 &c. S. Jer.—Sometimes they are the effects of zeal, conformable to divine justice. Ps. cxi. 6. W.—Heb. "Samaria has sinned, or shall perish." C.—Bitterness. Sept. "she hath resisted her God." H.

VER. 3. Words. In captivity, legal victims cannot be offered. C.—But a contrite heart is always acceptable. Ps. i.—Good. While engaged in sin, (H.) "we can offer thee nothing good."—Calves: victims of praise. S. Jer.—Heb. parim. Sept. omit m, (H.) and render fruit. They are followed by the Arab and Syr. as well as by the apostle. Heb. xiii. 15. C.—We will offer what victims we promise. E. Ps. lxxix. 23. and lxxv. 13.

VER. 4. Gods. The Assyrians, instead of protecting, oppress us; while Egypt, famous for horses, sits unconcerned. C.—But the source of all our evils are the idols, which we will follow no more.—In thee: adheres to the true faith in practice. H.—Israel was like an orphan during the captivity. Isai. i. 1. C.

our hands are our gods: for thou wilt have mercy on the fatherless that is in thee.

5 I will heal their breaches, I will love them freely: for my wrath is turned away from them.

6 I will be as the dew, Israel shall spring as the lily, and his root shall shoot forth as that of Libanus.

7 His branches shall spread, and his glory shall be as the olive-tree: and his smell as that of Libanus.

8 They shall be converted, that sit under his shadow: they shall live upon wheat, and they shall

VER. 5. Breaches, when Israel shall be converted, as some were to Christ, and many will be at the end of the world. W.—Heb. “their return.” Sept. “dwellings.” They shall be purified.—Freely. I have been forced to chastise, My heart dilates. C.—Sept. “I will love them manifestly.” Syr. “accept their free offerings.” H.

VER. 6. Dew. Israel has been like a plant dried up. C. xiii. 15.—Libanus. The cedars were tall and bulky, being well rooted.

VER. 7. Glory. Sept. “he shall be as fruitful as the olive-tree.”—Libanus, or incense. C.—The term has both meanings. H.

VER. 8. His. This may refer to the tree, or to God. The captives shall re-blossom as a vine: his memorial shall be as the wine of Libanus.

9 Ephraim shall say, What have I to do any more with idols? I will hear him, and I will make him flourish like a green fir-tree: from me is thy fruit found.

10 Who is wise, and he shall understand these things? prudent, and he shall know these things? for the ways of the Lord are right, and the just shall walk in them: but the transgressor shall fall in them.

turn, and be happy. But in a more sublime sense it refers to the nations which shall embrace the gospel.—Libanus, or fragrant. Such wine was esteemed in which certain odoriferous herbs were infused. Cant. vii. 2. C.—Libanus was also famous for generous wines. Siconita 11.

VER. 9. Idols? or God will no more reproach them, as their conversion is sincere.—Make. Heb. “be to him like,” &c. C.

VER. 10. Wise. This denotes the obscurity of the prophecy. Theod.—No human wit can explain the prophets: yet the just shall understand as much as shall be necessary. S. Jer. S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. xviii. 28. W.—Only few will make good use of these admonitions, and share in the promises. C.

THE PROPHECY OF JOEL.

JOEL, whose name, according to S. Jerom, signifies the Lord God, (or, as others say, the coming down of God) prophesied about the same time in the kingdom of Juda as Osee did in the kingdom of Israel. He foretells, under figures, the great evils that were coming upon the people for their sins; earnestly exhorts them to repentance; and comforts them with the promise of a teacher of justice, viz. Christ Jesus, our Lord, and of the coming down of his Holy Spirit (Ch.) upon the hundred and twenty faithful assembled in Sion. He describes the land of the twelve tribes made desolate, and the people cast off. S. Jer. ad Paulin.—Yet he speaks chiefly of the kingdom of Juda, and mentions the house of God, sacrifices, &c. W.—S. Jerom infers from his being placed after Osee, without any fresh title, (C.) that he lived in that order of time. W.—But this rule is not general, as Jonas lived before Amos; and Sept. observe not the same disposition of the prophets as we do. The exact time of the famine, when Joel prophesied, cannot be ascertained. It seems he addressed the people in autumn, when a second year's famine was apprehended. He paints every thing with great force and beauty of style. C.

CHAP. I.

The prophet describes the judgments that shall fall upon the people, and invites them to fasting and prayer.

THE word of the Lord, that came to Joel, the son of Phatuel.

2 Hear this, ye old men, and give ear, all ye inhabitants of the land: did this ever happen in your days, or in the days of your fathers?

3 Tell ye of this to your children, and let your children tell their children, and their children to another generation.

4 That which the palmer-worm hath left, the locust hath eaten: and that which the locust hath left, the bruchus hath eaten: and that which the bruchus hath left, the mildew hath destroyed.

CHAP. I. VER. 1. Planted. Sept. “Bathuel.” He was born in the tribe of Gad, at Bethaven, the town which Herod styles Livias. Jos. xiii. 27. C.

VER. 2. Men. Magistrates, and all who have children. H. He speaks to Juda, as the kingdom of Israel was ruined. C. iii. 2. His principal object is to describe the ravages of locusts, and to exhort the people to repent, promising them better times after the captivity, and under the Messias. C. ii. 28. and iii. 20. C.

VER. 3. Generation. Prophecies relate to all future times, that people may see their accomplishment, (W.) and believe. H.

VER. 4. Left, &c. Some understand this literally of the desolation of the land by these insects: others understand it of the different invasions of the Chaldeans, or other enemies. Ch.—Jerusalem was four times plundered by the Babylonians, and every time worse than before, as these four sorts of destructive things shew. But we shall not enlarge upon these points, nor pursue the mystical sense of the prophets, which may be found in the fathers and Ribera. W.—Others suppose that the Assyrians, Chaldeans, Greeks, (particularly Epiphanes) and Romans, are meant. We explain it simply of the devastation by in-

5 Awake, ye that are drunk, and weep, and mourn all ye that take delight in drinking sweet wine: for it is cut off from your mouth.

6 For a nation is come up upon my land, strong, and without number: his teeth are like the teeth of a lion: and his cheek-teeth as of a lion's whelp.

7 He hath laid my vineyard waste, and hath piled off the bark of my fig-tree: he hath stripped it bare, and cast it away; the branches thereof are made white.

8 Lament like a virgin girded with sackcloth for the husband of her youth.

9 Sacrifice and libation is cut off from the house of the Lord: the priests, the Lord's ministers, have mourned:

sects. C.—Four different species of locusts are denoted. Bochart, p. 2, b. iv. 1.—Mildew. Heb. chasil, (H.) is often rendered “a locust,” by Sept. (C. ii. 25. &c.) and most suppose this is here the sense. The mildew destroys corn chiefly in low damp situations. C.

VER. 5. Sweet. Heb. “wine, because of the sweet wine,” (H.) or liquor extracted from fruit. The things which you have abused, are now taken away.

VER. 6. Nations. Some understand the Assyrians or Chaldeans. But locusts are here styled a nation. Prov. xxx. 25.—Lion. Such locusts are described. Apoc. ix. 8. C.—“In India they are said to be three feet long, and their legs and thighs are used for saws when dried.” Pliny xi. 29.—They were attacked by regular troops in Syria. Ib.

VER. 8. Youth, whom she espoused first. Such are more tenderly loved, particularly where polygamy prevails. C.—So Dido speaks of Sichæus, Virg. Æn. iv. Ille meos primus qui se mihi junxit amores Abstulit, ille habebat secum servetque sepulchro.

VER. 9. Lord. No harvest being reaped, the fruits could not be paid. Yet mourned: for the corn is wasted, the wine is confounded, the oil hath languished.

11 The husbandmen are ashamed, the vine-dressers have howled for the wheat, and for the barley, because the harvest of the field is perished.

12 The vineyard is confounded, and the fig-tree hath languished: the pomegranate-tree, and the palm-tree, and the apple-tree, and all the trees of the field are withered: because joy is withdrawn from the children of men.

13 Gird yourselves, and lament, O ye priests, howl, ye ministers of the altars: go in, lie in sackcloth, ye ministers of my God: because sacrifice and libation is cut off from the house of your God.

14 *Sanctify ye a fast, call an assembly, gather together the ancients, all the inhabitants of the land into the house of your God: and cry ye to the Lord:

15 Ah, ah, ah, for the day: because the day of the Lord is at hand, and it shall come like destruction from the mighty.

16 Is not your food cut off before your eyes, joy and gladness from the house of our God?

17 The beasts have rotted in their dung, the barns are destroyed, the store-houses are broken down: because the corn is confounded.

18 Why did the beasts groan, why did the herds of cattle low? because there is no pasture for them: yea, and the flocks of sheep are perished.

19 To thee, O Lord, will I cry: because fire hath devoured the beautiful places of the wilderness: and the flame hath burnt all the trees of the country.

20 Yea, and the beasts of the field have looked up to thee, as a garden bed that thirsteth after rain, for the springs of waters are dried up, and fire hath devoured the beautiful places of the wilderness.

CHAP. II.

The prophet foretells the terrible day of the Lord: exhorts sinners to a sincere conversion: and comforts God's people with promises of future blessings under Christ.

VER. 12. Withered. The bite of the locust corrupts the juice of plants.

VER. 13. Go in to the temple, or sleep on sackcloth. Judith iv. 9. C.

VER. 14. Sanctify. Appoint (H.) or proclaim a general fast, as was usual in such emergencies. 8 K. xxi. 9. and 2 Par. xx. 3. Fasting and other good works are calculated to appease God's wrath. W.

VER. 15. Day. Heb. alah layom: (H.) "Ah, what a day!"—Mighty. Sept. "destruction." They have read in a different manner. God is about to give sentence, (C.) and to send Nabuchodonosor, (S. Jer.) or to destroy by famine. v. 17.

VER. 16. God. None can bring the first-fruits. All appear in mourning.

VER. 17. Dung. Horse-dung dried for bedding, was used in the East instead of straw, (Bush. 3.) as it is still by the Arabs. Darvieux. 11.—Heb. "the seeds are rotten under their clods," (H.) finding no moisture. Sept. "the cows have stamped in their stalls;" or Syr. "remain without food in their cribs." Chal. "the pitchers of wine have been corrupted under their covers," as there was no new wine. C.—Houses. Heb. mammeguroth. Prot. "barns, (H.) or country houses;" which means cabins erected for the season, (Ruth ii. 7.) the Magaria (C.) or Mopalia of the Africans. S. Jer. pref. Amos.—Sept. "the wine presses." Wine and corn were preserved in pits carefully covered over. Agg. ii. 20. These fell to decay, as there was no use for them.

VER. 20. Up, as if to pray for rain. Jer. xiv. 6. C.—Heb. "cry," (H.) or "pant."—As . . . rain is not in Heb. or Sept. C.

CHAP. II. VER. 1. Blow. The prophets often ordered, to signify what will take place. W.—The people were gathered by the sound of trumpets. The danger from the locusts was imminent; and all are exhorted to avert it, by praying in the temple, &c.—Tremble at the sound. Amos iii. 6. C. Extremis turbati. Æn. viii.—Lord. That is, the time when he will execute justice on sinners, (Ch.) and suffer affliction to fall upon them. W. C. i. 15.

BLOW ye the trumpet in Sion, sound an alarm in my holy mountain, let all the inhabitants of the land tremble: because the day of the Lord cometh, because it is nigh at hand.

2 A day of darkness, and of gloominess, a day of clouds and whirlwinds: a numerous and strong people as the morning spread upon the mountains: the like to it hath not been from the beginning, nor shall be after it, even to the years of generation and generation.

3 Before the face thereof a devouring fire, and behind it a burning flame: the land is like a garden of pleasure before it, and behind it a desolate wilderness, neither is there any one that can escape it.

4 The appearance of them is as the appearance of horses, and they shall run like horsemen.

5 They shall leap like the noise of chariots upon the tops of mountains, like the noise of a flame of fire devouring the stubble, as a strong people prepared to battle

6 At their presence the people shall be in grievous pains: all faces shall be made like a kettle.

7 They shall run like valiant men: like men of war they shall scale the wall: the men shall march every one on his way, and they shall not turn aside from their ranks.

8 No one shall press upon his brother: they shall walk every one in his path: yea, and they shall fall through the windows, and shall take no harm.

9 They shall enter into the city: they shall run upon the wall, they shall climb up the houses, they shall come in at the windows, as a thief.

10 At their presence the earth hath trembled, the heavens are moved: ^b the sun and moon are darkened, and the stars have withdrawn their shining.

11 And the Lord hath uttered his voice before the face of his army: for his armies are exceedingly great, for they are strong, and execute his word: ^c for the day of the Lord is great and very terrible: and who can stand it?

VER. 2. Darkness. This implies great misery. v. 10. C.—People. The Assyrians or Chaldeans. Others understand all this of the army of locusts laying waste the land. Ch.—Morning; unexpectedly, (C.) and soon. H.—No human force can prevent the ravages of the locusts.—Beginning, in Palestine. Moses says the same; but speaks of Egypt. Ex. x. 14.

VER. 3. Flame. They destroy all by their bite. C. i. 12. C. Theod.—Pleasure. Heb. "Eden." So luxuriant was Palestine.

VER. 4. Horsemen. The head of a locust bears some resemblance with that of a horse, and its flight is rapid. Apoc. ix. 7. C.

VER. 5. Mountains. "They beat their wings so loudly, that they may be taken for other birds." Pliny xi. 29.—They are much larger in hot climates, (C. i. 6. H.) and may be heard at the distance of two miles, (Bochart) darkening the air for the space of four leagues. Yet this description is poetical, and perhaps an allegory is nowhere better kept up.

VER. 6. Kettle. The Jews were naturally of a dark complexion. Fear causing the blood to retire, would make them black. Is. xiii. 8. Lam. iv. 8. and v. 10. C.

VER. 7. Ranks. Locusts march like a regular army. Theod.—No fortification can keep them out. H.

VER. 8. Brother. S. Jerom saw a cloud of them in Judæa. They were not "a finger-nail's breadth from each other." C.—The Arabs discover the military art in them. Bochart.—They invested France (A. 874) with all the skill of an army, the chiefs marking out the place for the camp the night before. Sigebert.—Windows. They eat the wood, (H.) and the windows were simple lattices or curtains. C.—Heb. "they fall upon the sword, and shall not be hurt." Sept. "consumed or filled." H.—They are never satisfied. Theod.

VER. 10. Shining. The cloud of locusts intercepts the light; or, people in distress think all nature is in confusion. S. Jer. Ezec. xxxii. Jer. iv. 23.—Aloysius (13.) saw locusts in the air for the space of twelve miles; and among the Cossacks, clouds of them may be found six leagues in length and three in breadth. They frequently occasion a famine in Ethiopia. C.

12 Now, therefore, saith the Lord: Be converted to me with all your heart, in fasting, and in weeping, and mourning.

13 And rend your hearts, and not your garments, and turn to the Lord your God: *for he is gracious and merciful, patient and rich in mercy, and ready to repent of the evil.

14 ^bWho knoweth but he will return, and forgive, and leave a blessing behind him, sacrifice and libation to the Lord your God?

15 Blow the trumpet in Sion, °sanctify a fast, call a solemn assembly,

16 Gather together the people, sanctify the church, assemble the ancients, gather together the little ones, and them that suck at the breasts: let the bridegroom go forth from his bed, and the bride out of her bride-chamber.

17 Between the porch and the altar the priests, the Lord's ministers, shall weep, and shall say: Spare, O Lord, spare thy people: and give not thy inheritance to reproach, that the heathens should rule over them. Why should they say among the nations: Where is their God?

18 The Lord hath been zealous for his land, and hath spared his people.

19 And the Lord answered, and said to his people: Behold I will send you corn, and wine, and oil, and you shall be filled with them: and I will no more make you a reproach among the nations.

20 And I will remove far off from you the northern enemy: and I will drive him into a land unpassable, and desert, with his face towards the east sea, and his hinder part towards the utmost sea: and his stench shall ascend, and his rottenness shall go up, because he hath done proudly.

21 Fear not, O land, be glad, and rejoice: for the Lord hath done great things.

22 Fear not, ye beasts of the fields: for the beautiful places of the wilderness are sprung, for the tree hath brought forth its fruit, the fig-tree, and the vine have yielded their strength.

23 And you, O children of Sion, rejoice, and be joyful in the Lord your God: because he hath given you a teacher of justice, and he will make the early and the latter rain to come down to you as in the beginning.

24 And the floors shall be filled with wheat, and the presses shall overflow with wine, and oil.

25 And I will restore to you the years which the locust, and the bruchus, and the mildew, and the palmer-worm hath eaten; my great host which I sent upon you.

26 And you shall eat in plenty, and shall be filled: and you shall praise the name of the Lord your God, who hath done wonders with you, and my people shall not be confounded for ever.

27 And you shall know that I am in the midst of Israel: and I am the Lord your God, and there is none besides: and my people shall not be confounded for ever.

28 And it shall come to pass after this, ^dthat I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy: your old men shall dream dreams, and your young men shall see visions.

29 Moreover, upon my servants and handmaids in those days I will pour fourth my spirit.

30 And I will shew wonders in heaven; and in earth, blood, and fire, and vapour of smoke.

31 °The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood: before the great and dreadful day of the Lord doth come.

32 And it shall come to pass, ^ethat every one that shall call upon the name of the Lord, shall be saved: for in Mount Sion, and in Jerusalem shall be salvation, as the Lord hath said, and in the residue whom the Lord shall call.

VER. 18. Zealous. Indignation is excited when a person perceives any thing contemned which he loves. So God resented the injuries done maliciously by the Gentiles towards his people; though he often punished them for their correction or greater merit. W.—He will resent the blasphemies uttered by infidels against his holy name, and will restore fertility to the land. C.

VER. 19. Nations. This did not take place till after the seventy years captivity, nor then fully. It is verified in true believers, and after death in the glory of the saints. W.

VER. 20. The northern enemy. Some understand this of Holofernes and his army, others of the locusts. Ch.—Prot. "the northern army." Heb. may denote (H.) wind. This often drives away locusts. Those here spoken of were drowned in the Mediterranean and Dead Seas. C.—This occasioned a pestilence, (S. Jer. S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. iv. 31.) to prevent which the locusts were to be speedily buried. Is. xxxiii. 4.—Proudly. Heb. "great things." God, or the locusts are meant.

VER. 22. Strength; fruit, as formerly.

VER. 23. Teacher; Joel, &c. or rather the Messiah. John i. 9. Mat. xxiii. 8. Some translate Heb. "rain." Sept. "meat," (C.) sufficient for the people. Theod.—Rain. Osee vi. 3.

VER. 24. Presses, or subterraneous reservoirs.

VER. 25. Host. God could have hurled his thunderbolts, or mountains, to destroy all mankind; but he chooses to shew their insignificance, (C.) by employing the vilest insects, which they cannot withstand. S. Jer.

VER. 28. After. From this verse to the end the prophet speaks of the times succeeding the captivity, and more especially of the propagation of the gospel. The enemies of God's people shall be destroyed, (C. iii. 1.) which seems to refer to Cambyes. Ezecl. xxxviii. C.—My spirit. This plainly foretells the coming of the Holy Ghost. Acts ii. W.—The Jews never had such a multitude of prophets after the captivity as the Church had. 1 Cor. xiv. 24. What relates to them was only a shadow of what would befall true believers.

VER. 29. Handmaids. Sept. of S. Jer. and S. Peter read, my handmaids. "My," is omitted in both places in Complut. and Heb. and the latter word in the Rom. Sept.

VER. 30. Wonders. Many prodigies preceded the persecution of Epiphanes, the death of Christ, the ruin of the temple, and more will be seen before the day of judgment. Though we cannot prove the same with respect to Cambyes, it suffices that the people were thrown into the utmost consternation (v. 2. 11.) when he forbade the building of the temple, (1 Esd. iv. 6.) and designed to plunder them. Ezechiel (xxxviii. 11.) speaks of the same event, as the Jews assert. Ctesias also mentions that when he offered sacrifice, the victims would not bleed; and that his wife, Roxana, brought forth a child without a head, implying, according to the magi, that he should have no heir. His mother also frequently appeared, and reproached him with the murder of his brother. See C. iii. 15. Ezecl. xxxviii. 22.

VER. 32. Call. Amid these fears, those who trust in the Lord shall have nothing to suffer. Cambyes could not execute his designs. But the prophet here alludes still more to the conversion of the Gentiles. Acts ii. 21. Rom. x. 13. Some returned from Babylon, as a figure of this great event. Only a few Jews

CHAP. III.

The Lord shall judge all nations in the valley of Josaphat. The evils that shall fall upon the enemies of God's people: his blessing upon the Church of the saints.

FOR behold in those days, and in that time when I shall bring back the captivity of Juda, and Jerusalem:

2 I will gather together all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Josaphat: and I will plead with them there for my people, and for my inheritance, Israel, whom they have scattered among the nations, and have parted my land.

3 And they have cast lots upon my people: and the boy they have put in the stews, and the girl they have sold for wine, that they might drink.

4 But what have you to do with me, O Tyre, and Sidon, and all the coast of the Philistines? will you revenge yourselves on me? and if you revenge yourselves on me, I will very soon return you a recompense upon your own head.

5 For you have taken away my silver, and my gold: and my desirable, and most beautiful things you have carried into your temples.

6 And the children of Juda, and the children of Jerusalem, you have sold to the children of the Greeks, that you might remove them far off from their own country.

7 Behold, I will raise them up out of the place wherein you have sold them: and I will return your recompense upon your own heads.

8 And I will sell your sons, and your daughters, by the hands of the children of Juda, and they shall sell them to the Sabeans, a nation far off, for the Lord hath spoken it.

9 Proclaim ye this among the nations: prepare war, rouse up the strong: let them come, let all the men of war come up.

embraced the faith. C.—Salvation. Sept. "shall be saved, as the Lord hath spoken, and the person preaching the gospel, whom the Lord hath called." H.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. Back. The people were just returned when the nations around fell upon them, and were miraculously defeated. Theod.—We shall follow the system respecting Gog, given Eze. xxxviii. C.—Most people, with S. Jerom, suppose that the general judgment is described, though some explain it of the captives delivered from their enemies. W.

VER. 2. Josaphat, "the judgment of the Lord," (H.) marks the place where the Judge will sit, on the east of Jerusalem, between the temple and Olivet, whence our Lord ascended into heaven. W.—There also he had been seized and treated contumeliously. H.—But many of the Fathers assert that the whole world will be the scene of judgment, and the first author who determines the situation of Josaphat, is one in the works of V. Bede. Here it may denote the great plain reaching from Carmel to the Jordan, where the army of Cambyzes perished with his chief. People of almost all nations were there. Eze. xxxviii. —Land. The Chaldees, now governed by a Persian, had scattered the Jews, and the Idumeans had seized part of their land.

VER. 3. Boy, to gratify their brutal passions; (Lam. v.) or, they have exchanged such for harlots, (C.) and paid the latter with captive boys. Sept. H.

VER. 4. Me. These cities and nations had rejoiced at the ruin of the Jews. Eze. xxv. C.—Coast. Sept. "Galilee of strangers." H.

VER. 5. Temples, or palaces. The Chaldeans had done so, and perhaps had sold some to others.

VER. 6. Greeks: the Ionians carried on such a traffic. Eze. xxvii. 12. Tyre and the Philistines were ready to sell. ib. xxvi. 2. and xxv. 15.

VER. 7. Them, particularly under Hystaspes and Artaxerxes.

VER. 8. Sabeans; probably at the bottom of Arabia. C.—Thirty thousand Tyrians were sold by Alexander. Arrian ii.—The Jews would not fail to purchase. C.

VER. 9. Prepare. Lit. "sanctify." H.—God sends Cambyzes to chastise Egypt. His turn will then come.

VER. 41. Down. Many perished in Egypt, the rest in Judea. v. 2.

10 Cut your plough-shares into swords, and your spades into spears. Let the weak say: I am strong.

11 Break forth, and come, all ye nations from round about, and gather yourselves together: there will the Lord cause all thy strong ones to fall down.

12 Let them arise, and let the nations come up into the valley of Josaphat: for there I will sit to judge all nations round about.

13 *Put ye in the sickles, for the harvest is ripe: come and go down, for the press is full, the fats run over: for their wickedness is multiplied.

14 Nations, nations in the valley of destruction: for the day of the Lord is near in the valley of destruction.

15 ^bThe sun and the moon are darkened, and the stars have withdrawn their shining.

16 *And the Lord shall roar out of Sion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem: and the heavens and the earth shall be moved, and the Lord shall be the hope of his people, and the strength of the children of Israel.

17 And you shall know that I am the Lord your God, dwelling in Sion, my holy mountain: and Jerusalem shall be holy, and strangers shall pass through it no more.

18 And it shall come to pass in that day, ^athat the mountains shall drop down sweetness, and the hills shall flow with milk: and waters shall flow through all the rivers of Juda: and a fountain shall come forth of the house of the Lord, and shall water the torrent of thorns.

19 Egypt shall be a desolation, and Edom a wilderness destroyed: because they have done unjustly against the children of Juda, and have shed innocent blood in their land.

20 And Judea shall be inhabited for ever, and Jerusalem to generation and generation.

21 And I will cleanse their blood, which I had not cleansed: and the Lord will dwell in Sion.

THE PROPHECY OF AMOS.

AMOS prophesied in Israel about the same time as Osee, and was called from following the cattle to denounce God's judgments to the people of Israel and the neighbouring nations, for their repeated crimes, in which they continued without repentance. Ch.—The kingdom was then almost free from idolatry, except that of the calves, yet dissolute and flourishing under Jeroboam II. The prophet spoke at Bethel, (C. vii.) till the idolatrous priest, Amasias, forced him to flee to Thecua, four leagues south of Jerusalem, where he continued to prophesy against the various nations of Damascus, Juda, &c. but particularly against Israel. C. i. &c. How long he continued is uncertain. S. Jerom and others account his style rustic; but S. Aug. (Doct. iv. 7.) as good a judge, pronounces that it was eloquent, and like that of the other inspired writers, suited to the speakers. C.—Amos means "one carrying," or "a people torn away." S. Jer. in Joel. II.—He deals in metaphors agreeably to his pastoral education, but is profound in sense. Id. ep. ad Paulin.—After denouncing judgments on different nations, he foretells the coming of Christ and abundance of grace. W.

CHAP. I.

The prophet threatens Damascus, Gaza, Tyre, Edom, and Ammon with the judgments of God, for their obstinacy in sin.

THE words of Amos, who was among the herdsmen of Thecua: which he saw concerning Israel in the days of Ozias, king of Juda, and in the days of Jeroboam, the son of Joas, king of Israel, ^btwo years ^abefore the earthquake.

2 And he said: ^aThe Lord will roar from Sion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem: and the beautiful places of the shepherds have mourned, and the top of Carmel is withered.

3 Thus saith the Lord: For three crimes of Damascus, and for four, I will not convert it: because they have threshed Galaad with iron wains.

4 And I will send a fire into the house of Azael, and it shall devour the houses of Benadad.

5 And I will break the bar of Damascus: and I will cut off the inhabitants from the plain of the idol, and him that holdeth the sceptre from the house of pleasure: and the people of Syria shall be carried away to Cyrene, saith the Lord.

6 Thus saith the Lord: For three crimes of Gaza, and for four, I will not convert it, because they have carried away a perfect captivity to shut them up in Edom.

^a A. M. circiter 3224. A. C. 780.—^b Zach. xiv. 5.

CHAP. I. VER. 1. Herdsmen. S. Jerom's MSS. after Aquila, have "pastorals," (H.) pastoralibus. C.—Theodotion retains Nokedim. Sept. read Accarim, (H.) substituting r for d, (S. Jer.) and perhaps a for n. H.—They have also "Jerusalem," for Israel, though the prophecy regard the latter. The country south of Thecua has no towns, and is solely for pasture. S. Jer.—Amos might have many flocks, like Mesa and king Dejotarus. 4 K. iii. 4. C.—David was taken from the flocks to be king, and Amos to be a prophet. W.—King. These two lived long in prosperity. C.—Earthquake. Many understand this of a great earthquake, which, they say, was felt at the time that king Ozias attempted to offer incense in the temple. But the best chronologists prove that the earthquake here spoken of must have been before that time: because Jeroboam the second, under whom Amos prophesied, was dead long before that attempt of Ozias. Ch.—This is asserted by Usher. Yet his arguments are not conclusive. If the attempt and earthquake happened in the 23d year of Ozias, Amos might commence A. 3215, six years before the death of Jeroboam. 4 K. xv. 5. Zac. xi. 15. C.—Josephus (ix. 1.) fixes upon the former period. Jeroboam, however, died in the 38th of Ozias, who was deposed 14 years later. W.

VER. 2. Carmel. "God's vineyard," may denote any fruitful mountain. Amos refers to pastoral affairs. C.

VER. 3. Three—four. That is, for their many unrepented of crimes. Ch.—Three is the first number of which we can say "many or all." Four denotes excess. Thus God forgives many sins, yet punishes when they become excessive. W.—Thus profane authors say, (C.)

Terque quaterque pectus percussa decorum. Æn. iv.

—Convert it. That is, I will not spare them, nor turn away the punishments I design to inflict upon them. Ch.—My decree is absolute.—Wains, designed to make the corn come out, (C.) or to cut the straw. S. Jer.—Such instruments were sometimes trailed over men. Sept. "they have sawed the pregnant women," &c. This circumstance is borrowed from 4 K. viii. Damascus was often at war with Israel. But Jeroboam punished it as Thēglathphalassar did afterwards, v. 5. and 4 K. xvi. 9. Amos might witness the ravages of the former. C.—Azael, or Hazeel, who slew his master, Benadad. H.

VER. 5. Plain. The city "Bikhath-Aven," or the latter word, probably (1126)

7 And I will send a fire on the wall of Gaza, and it shall devour the houses thereof.

8 And I will cut off the inhabitant from Azotus, and him that holdeth the sceptre from Ascalon: and I will turn my hand against Accaron, and the rest of the Philistines shall perish, saith the Lord God.

9 Thus saith the Lord: For three crimes of Tyre, and for four, I will not convert it: because they have shut up an entire captivity in Edom, and have not remembered the covenant of brethren.

10 And I will send a fire upon the wall of Tyre, and it shall devour the houses thereof.

11 Thus saith the Lord: For three crimes of Edom, and for four, I will not convert him: because he hath pursued his brother with the sword, and hath cast off all pity, and hath carried on his fury, and hath kept his wrath to the end.

12 I will send a fire into Theman: and it shall devour the houses of Bosra.

13 Thus saith the Lord: For three crimes of the children of Ammon, and for four, I will not convert him: because he hath ript up the women with child, of Galaad, to enlarge his border.

14 And I will kindle a fire in the wall of Rabba: and it shall devour the houses thereof with shouting in denotes Baal, as the Syrians style Baal-Bek, the city which the Greeks call He-liopolis. The valley between the two mountains extending northward, is still called Bucca.—Pleasure. Heb. "Beth Heden." We find Eden in a delightful part of Libanus.—Cyrene, not in Africa, but on the river Cyrus, in Albania. 4 K. xv. 29.

VER. 6. Edom. The Philistines and Tyrians (v. 9) exercised this inhumanity on the Idumeans, probably before they had thrown off the yoke of Juda, under Joram, (4 K. viii. 21.) as the Lord seems concerned for them; (C.) or they sold the captive Israelites to Edom, to increase their misery. S. Jer.—Sept. "the captivity of Solomon," or the subjects of that monarch. But the Heb. word means also perfect, (H.) or absolute, (Jer. xiii. 19. C.) or "pacific," seizing the citizens in times of peace. H.

VER. 7. Gaza. Ozias, Ezechias, and Psammetichus, ravaged the country. 2 Par. xxvi. 6. and 4 K. xviii. 8. Is. xiv. 29. The Philistines recovered strength; but Nabuchodonosor, Alexander, and the Machabees conquered them again.

VER. 9. Brethren; for Edom and the Jews sprung from the same stock. Some think that he alludes to the alliance between the king of Tyre and David. But that had long ceased, and was not agreeable to the law; (Ex. xxii. 32. and 3 K. ix. 13. C.) at least when it was attended with much danger. H.

VER. 10. Thereof. Salmanasar besieged it five years (Menander) and Nabuchodonosor thirteen, when he destroyed Tyre. Eze. xxvi.

VER. 11. Sword. Edom was subdued by David, and remained tributary till Joram. It attempted to recover its liberty under Josaphat, though the Heb. text have improperly Aram. 2 Par. xx. 2, 23. The two nations were often at variance. C.—Cast off. Sept. "violated the womb, or the mother on the earth."

VER. 12. Houses, &c. Sept. "its foundations," (H.) or the fortified country. S. Jer.—Bosor lay towards Philadelphia, in the ancient territory of Edom. Their strong places were seized by Ozias, by the Chaldeans, and by the Machabees.

VER. 13. Border. They pretended that Galaad belonged to them. Judg. xi. 12. David subdued Ammon; but after the division of the kingdom, they recovered their independence, and took occasion to commit these cruelties, while Israel had to contend with Syria. Jeremias (xlix. 1.) speaks of a later period.

the day of battle, and with a whirlwind in the day of trouble.

15 And Melchom shall go into captivity, both he, and his princes together, saith the Lord.

CHAP. II.

The judgments with which God threatens Moab, Juda, and Israel for their sins, and their ingratitude.

THUS saith the Lord: For three crimes of Moab, and for four, I will not convert him: because he hath burnt the bones of the king of Edom even to ashes.

2 And I will send a fire into Moab, and it shall devour the houses of Carioth: and Moab shall die with a noise, with the sound of the trumpet:

3 And I will cut off the judge from the midst thereof, and will slay all his princes with him, saith the Lord.

4 Thus saith the Lord: For three crimes of Juda, and for four, I will not convert him: because he hath cast away the law of the Lord, and hath not kept his commandments: for their idols have caused them to err, after which their fathers have walked.

5 And I will send a fire into Juda, and it shall devour the houses of Jerusalem.

6 Thus saith the Lord: For three crimes of Israel, and for four, I will not convert him: because he hath sold the just man for silver, and the poor man for a pair of shoes.

7 They bruise the heads of the poor upon the dust of the earth, and turn aside the way of the humble: and the son and his father have gone to the same young woman, to profane my holy name.

8 And they sat down upon garments laid to pledge by every altar: and drank the wine of the condemned in the house of their God.

9 *Yet I cast out the Amorrhite before their face: whose height was like the height of cedars, and who was strong as an oak: and I destroyed his fruit from above, and his roots beneath.

* Num. xxi. 24. Deut. ii. 24.

VER. 14. Rabba, the capital, called also Philadelphia. Ozias and Joatham attacked the people with advantage. C.

VER. 15. Melchom, the god or idol of the Ammonites, otherwise called Moloch, and Melech; which, in Heb., signifies a king, and Melchom their king. Ch.—He assumed the title of "their king." Judg. xi. 14. Jer. xlix. 3. H.—Blind people, who could not see the vanity of such impotent gods! C.—Both he. Sept. "and their priests." H.

CHAP. II. VER. 1. Ashes. Some think that he alludes to 4 K. iii. 27. or rather in some war, the ashes of the dead were disturbed. C.—Both these acts of inhumanity deserved severe punishment. W.

VER. 2. Fire: war under Ozias. C.—Carioth. Sept., "the cities." Carioth has this meaning, but it was also the name of a great city. Jer. xlviii. 24. H.

VER. 3. Judge, ruler, or head, shall be no more.

VER. 4. Walked. After Solomon, scarcely a good prince appeared, till the days of Amos. Juda imitated the idolatry of Israel, hoping thus to find assistance. C.—His crime was the more grievous, as they had the law. W.

VER. 5. Fire. Under Joathan, Rasin, &c. invaded the country. Achaz increased the misery, by applying to the Assyrians. C.

VER. 6. Just man. Joseph, (Rupert) or our Saviour, (Sanct.) or any other. The expression is proverbial. Eze. xiii. 19. C.—Israel contemned the law, and adopted the abominations of all. W.

VER. 7. Humble, provoking him to anger.—Name. Such incests caused infidels to blaspheme. Lev. xviii. 8. C.—They must be punished with severity. W.

VER. 8. Altar. Herein they offended doubly, (Ex. xxii. 26.) as they used the garments of others to hide their shameful actions. 4 K. xxii. 7. C.—Sept. "and tying up their garments with cords, they made veils touching the altar, and drank wine procured by calumnies," (H.) or "rapine," &c. Chal.—Condemned by them unjustly, though some think that a very delicious and intoxicating wine is meant, such as was given to people in grief. Prov. xxxi. 6. Mark xv. 23. Helena learnt in Egypt how to compose such wine. Odys. iv.—Feasting in temples on carpets was an ancient custom.

VER. 9. Beneath. The Israelites seemed like locusts in comparison. Num. xiii. 34.

10 *It is I that brought you up out of the land of Egypt, and I led you forty years through the wilderness, that you might possess the land of the Amorrhite.

11 And I raised up of your sons for prophets, and of your young men for Nazarites. Is it not so, O ye children of Israel, saith the Lord?

12 And you will present wine to the Nazarites: and command the prophets, saying: Prophecy not.

13 Behold, I will screek under you, as a wain screekeeth that is laden with hay.

14 And flight shall perish from the swift, and the valiant shall not possess his strength, neither shall the strong save his life.

15 And he that holdeth the bow shall not stand, and the swift of foot shall not escape, neither shall the rider of the horse save his life.

16 And the stout of heart among the valiant shall flee away naked in that day, saith the Lord.

CHAP. III.

The evils that shall fall upon Israel for their sins.

HEAR the word that the Lord hath spoken concerning you, O ye children of Israel: concerning the whole family that I brought up out of the land of Egypt, saying:

2 You only have I known of all the families of the earth: therefore will I visit upon you all your iniquities.

3 Shall two walk together, except they be agreed?

4 Will a lion roar in the forest, if he have no prey? will the lion's whelp cry out of his den, if he have taken nothing?

5 Will the bird fall into the snare upon the earth, if there be no fowler? Shall the snare be taken up from the earth, before it hath taken somewhat?

6 Shall the trumpet sound in a city, and the people not be afraid? Shall there be evil in a city which the Lord hath not done?

* Exod. xiv. 22. Deut. viii. 24.

VER. 11. Nazarites. Some went secretly to Jerusalem for this purpose; or perhaps they performed these rites illegally at Bethel: for many parts of the law were observed, though not perfectly. C. iv. 4. The Nazarites were in high estimation. Lam. iv. 7. But the dissolute Israelites (Q.) derided them as well as the prophets, (H.) and attempted to make them transgress. C.

VER. 13. I will screek. Unable to bear any longer the enormous load of your sins, &c. The Spirit of God, as S. Jerom takes notice, accommodates itself to the education of the prophet, and inspires him with encouragements taken from country affairs. Ch.—Sept. "I am overturned." Heb. "pressed." C.

VER. 14. Swift. Jeroboam I. Other kings are described afterwards. S. Jer.—In the latter times all was in confusion. C.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. Family, including all the posterity of Jacob. W.—He afterwards addresses the ten tribes in particular. S. Jer. C.

VER. 2. Known, with love, (H.) and favoured with the law, &c. Above all, styling you my people. Ex. xix. 6. Eze. xx. 5. C.—Visit. That is, punish. Ch.—I will treat you like my children, that I may spare you in eternity. C.

VER. 3. Agreed? As they cannot do this well, so neither can man be acceptable to God, unless he keep his laws. W.—The prophet here proves his mission, intimating that if he were not inspired, he would soon be open to detection. He had been banished from Bethel. C. 7. By many similes, he shows that the event will prove the sincerity of his character, and that he cannot resist the holy spirit which is in him.

VER. 4. Nothing? Thus, should I inveigh against your crimes, if there were no need?

VER. 5. Somewhat? When the prophet speaks, has he no reason? God shows that he has sent him, by inflicting the punishments which he denounces.

VER. 6. Afraid. Yet you can hear these terrible truths without consternation! Will you therefore escape? C.—Evil. He speaks of the evil of punishments of war, famine, pestilence, desolation, &c. but not of the evil of sin, of which God is not the author. Ch.—All evil of punishment is sent by God, either to reclaim sinners or to be the beginning of sorrows, if they die impenitent. W.—You know that He rewards or punishes. If, therefore, what I foretold come to pass, do not blame me.

7 For the Lord God doth nothing without revealing his secret to his servants, the prophets.

8 The lion shall roar, who will not fear? The Lord God hath spoken, who shall not prophesy?

9 Publish it in the houses of Azotus, and in the houses of the land of Egypt: and say: Assemble yourselves upon the mountains of Samaria, and behold the many follies in the midst thereof, and them that suffer oppression in the inner rooms thereof.

10 And they have not known to do the right thing, saith the Lord, storing up iniquity, and robberies in their houses.

11 Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: The land shall be in tribulation, and shall be compassed about: and thy strength shall be taken away from thee, and thy houses shall be spoiled.

12 Thus saith the Lord: As if a shepherd should get out of the lion's mouth two legs, or the tip of the ear: so shall the children of Israel be taken out that dwell in Samaria, in a piece of a bed, and in the couch of Damascus.

13 Hear ye, and testify in the house of Jacob, saith the Lord, the God of hosts:

14 That in the day when I shall begin to visit the transgressions of Israel, I will visit upon him, and upon the altars of Bethel: and the horns of the altars shall be cut off, and shall fall to the ground.

15 And I will strike the winter-house with the summer-house: and the houses of ivory shall perish, and many houses shall be destroyed, saith the Lord.

The Israelites are reproved for their oppressing the poor, for their idolatry, and their incorrigibleness.

VER. 9. Azotus. Sept. "Assyrians."—Follies. Sept. "wonders." Let your greatest enemies know what crimes you commit against yourselves (H.) and others.

VER. 11. About. As oxen tread out corn, going round a tree: C.—Sept. "Tyre even all around, thy land shall be a desert." Tear means "Tyre and tribulation," according to S. Jerom's master. H.

VER. 12. Bar: things of small value. Thus few even of the poor will escape the Assyrians. M.—Damascus. Some render "couch side." But there is no proof of this being accurate. Jeroboam II. subdued Damascus, and reigned in prosperity. Who would then have thought that Israel should so soon be removed into Media? C.—Sept. "over-against the tribe of Juda, and in Damascus, priests hear," &c. They probably left hairs, (H.) "couch," (Aquila) untranslated, and some person has substituted "priests." S. Jer.—Only the miserable (M.) or fugitives escape the enemy. H.

VER. 14. Bethel. Manahem seems to have sent one of the calves to engage Phul to come to his assistance. Osee x. 5. and 4 K. xv. 19. Salmanasar had both. Osee viii. 5. Josias afterwards defiled the profane altars. 4 K. xxiii. 15.—Horns, made of brass, which the Assyrians carried off. C.—The fairest possessions of sinners will at last perish. W.

VER. 15. Winter. Sept. "winged house," to keep off cold, (S. Jer.) or to give air. C.—Summer-house. The noblemen had such in cooler regions. M.—The kings of Persia passed the summer at Ecbatana. Xen. Cyr. viii.—Palladius (i. 12.) orders that the summer apartments must look to the north.—Ivory. Many ornaments of this nature appeared in them, (C.) whence Achab's palace was so called. 3 K. xxii. 39. H.

CHAP. IV. VER. 1. Fat kine. He means the great ones that lived in plenty and wealth, (Ch.) and without restraint, (Is. xv. 5. Jer. xli. 20. C.) having no compassion for the poor. W.—The women who had too great an ascendancy over their husbands, like Jezabel, may also be meant. Theod. Grot.—In many parts of the East the women affect being fat.

VER. 2. Holiness. He has none but himself to swear by. Heb. vi. 13. His word is infallible; but he condescends to use an oath to make a deeper impression on man.—Pikes; spits, or large shields. Heb. also, "They will lead you away with hooks, (in the nose, Is. xxxvii. 29.) and your children with fish-hooks," or pots. You shall be treated like victims, being either roasted or boiled. No part shall be left.

crush the poor: that say to your masters: Bring, and we will drink.

2 The Lord God hath sworn by his holiness, that lo, the days shall come upon you, when they shall lift you up on pikes, and what shall remain of you in boiling pots.

3 And you shall go out at the breaches, one over-against the other, and you shall be cast forth into Armon, saith the Lord.

4 Come ye to Bethel, and do wickedly: to Galgal, and multiply transgressions: and bring in the morning your victims, your tithes in three days.

5 And offer a sacrifice of praise with leaven: and call free offerings, and proclaim it: for so you would do, O children of Israel, saith the Lord God.

6 Whereupon I also have given you dulness of teeth in all your cities, and want of bread in all your places: yet you have not returned to me, saith the Lord.

7 I also have withholden the rain from you, when there were yet three months to the harvest: and I caused it to rain upon one city, and I caused it not to rain upon another city: one piece was rained upon: and the piece whereupon I rained not, withered.

8 And two and three cities went to one city to drink water, and were not filled: yet you returned not to me, saith the Lord.

9 *I struck you with a burning wind, and with mildew, the palmer-worm hath eaten up your many gardens, and your vineyards: your olive-groves, and fig-groves: yet you returned not to me, saith the Lord.

victors shall divide you among them. C.—Armon, a foreign country; some understand it of Armenia, (Ch.) and this is the general opinion. M.—Sept. "on Mount Remmon." Theodot. "Mona." Israel was removed into Armenia, "the mountain of Menni." Jer. li. 27.

VER. 4. Galgal. Thither the people went of their own accord, as to a place of devotion. Osee iv. 15. Amos ironically tells them to proceed, as Christ addressed the Jews. Mat. xxiii. 32. C.—After many admonitions have proved fruitless, God suffers infidels to act as they please. W.—This is the most dreadful of his judgments. H.—Morning, with haste.—Three days. This also may denote the false exactitude of the Israelites to perform what God did not require, while they neglected the most essential duties, like the Pharisees. It may also imply the giving tithes every third year, (Deut. xiv. 28.) or presenting themselves at the three great festivals. Ex. xxiii. 14. The schismatics observed parts of the law, and had a devotion of their own choice. C.

VER. 5. With. Heb. mechaneta, (H.) also "without leaven." It was expressly forbidden, (Lev. ii. 11.) though not in the first fruits. Lev. xxiii. 17.—It, to beg that God would remember you. Num. x. 10. Hence the Pharisees did so when they gave alms, (Mat. vi. 2. C.) but out of ostentation. H.—Sept. "And they read the law of their own invention, (Theod.) or of God, out of the land, (which the Jews were not to do. S. Chrys. or. 3. a. Jud. Const. Apost. vi. 24.) and proclaimed praise or confession." H.—These interpreters read inaccurately, (C.) krau meuts thure, &c. yet S. Jerom explains their words of heretics reading the Scriptures out of the true Church, and misapplying them.

VER. 6. Dulness, (stuporem) as when the teeth have bitten at a stone (H.) and are edged. Jer. xxxi. 29. Sept. "gnashing." Heb. "cleanness," through want of food. Eliseus foretold a famine under Achab. 4 K. viii. 1. That of Joel (i) seems to have happened later than this. C.—God sent these afflictions for their amendment. W.

VER. 7. Months. The latter rain falls in April. See Deut. xi. 14. C.—Harvest. Sept. have as usual, "vintage." But this is less accurate, as it never rains in the preceding summer months. S. Jer.

VER. 9. Wind. Prot. "blasting." H.—"Pestilential air," (Sept. Sym. &c.) which destroys the corn (C.) and men. H.

VER. 10. Egypt, as I punished the Egyptians, (C.) or the Hebrews, when they came thence, and wished to return. Chal. S. Cyr.—Horses. I have deprived you of them, (H.) under Achab and Joachaz. 4 K. vi. and xiii.—Nostrils. Hazeael slew many subjects of Jehu. 4 K. x. 32. 11 I destroyed some of you, *as God destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, and you were as a firebrand plucked out of the burning: yet you returned not to me, saith the Lord.

12 Therefore I will do these things to thee, O Israel: and after I shall have done these things to thee, be prepared to meet thy God, O Israel.

13 For behold, he that formeth the mountains, and createth the wind, and declareth his word to man, he that maketh the morning mist, and walketh upon the high places of the earth; the Lord, the God of hosts, is his name.

CHAP. V.

A Lamentation for Israel: an exhortation to return to God.

HEAR ye this word, which I take up concerning you for a lamentation. The house of Israel is fallen, and it shall rise no more.

2 The virgin of Israel is cast down upon her land, there is none to raise her up.

3 For thus saith the Lord God: The city, out of which came forth a thousand, there shall be left in it a hundred: and out of which there came a hundred, there shall be left in it ten, in the house of Israel.

4 For thus saith the Lord to the house of Israel: Seek ye me, and you shall live.

5 But seek not Bethel, and go not into Galgal, neither shall you pass over to Bersabee: for Galgal shall go into captivity, and Bethel shall be unprofitable.

6 Seek ye the Lord, and live: lest the house of Joseph be burnt with fire, and it shall devour, and there shall be none to quench Bethel.

7 You that turn judgment into wormwood, and forsake justice in the land.

8 Seek him that maketh Arcturus, and Orion, and that turneth darkness into morning, and that changeth day into night: *that calleth the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth: The Lord is his name.

* Gen. xix. 24.—b Infra ix. 8.—c Soph. i. 13.—d Ps. xcvi. 10. Rom. xii. 9.

VER. 11. Burning. This comparison shews the condition of Israel. Hardly any escaped. Zac. iii. 2. and 1 Cor. iii. 15. C.

VER. 12. These. He mentions not what, to keep them in greater suspense and dread; (S. Jer.) or he will put in execution what he had threatened before. v. 2.—Meet. Sept. "beseech." Aq. "oppose," or to receive the Messias. S. Jer.—Prepare by repentance to find mercy. C.—After long captivity, Christ will save some. W.

VER. 13. Wind. Sept. "the Spirit, and announcing to man his Christ," (H.) or Cyrus. Theod.—But this version has read improperly. C.—Some hence brought an argument against the divinity of the Holy Spirit. S. Jer.—Mist. Sept. "the morning and the cloud," spreading light or darkness over man.—Earth, on the wings of the wind. Ps. xvii. 11. C.

CHAP. V. VER. 1. Lamentation. Such canticles were usual. Is. xiv.—Israel. It no longer formed a separate kingdom. C.—When the people fear no evil, God laments for them. W.

VER. 3. City, before (C.) or after the captivity. It required a long time to fill the cities as they had been. H.—When the Assyrians invaded the country, it was greatly reduced. C.

VER. 5. Bethel, . . Galgal, . . Bersabee. The places where they worshipped their idols. Ch.—They had all been honoured by the patriarchs. Bersabee had belonged to Juda under Achab. 3 K. xix. 3. But it was originally in the tribe of Simeon, and Jeroboam II. recovered all that had been lost. 4 K. xiv. 25. C.—Unprofitable. Heb. leaven, "for vanity," (H.) Bethaven.

VER. 6. Joseph. His two grandchildren gave name to the principal tribes of the kingdom.—Bethel. Sept. "Israel," which seems preferable. C.—Yet Bethel may stand, as it denotes the apostate Israelites.

VER. 7. You. Sept. "the Lord, [God] who does judgment on high, and has placed justice on the earth; (8) who maketh and transformeth all things, and turneth," &c. H.—Heb. agrees with the Vulg. C.

VER. 8. Arcturus and Orion. Arcturus is a bright star in the north, Orion a 9 He that with a smile bringeth destruction upon the strong, and waste upon the mighty.

10 They have hated him that rebuked in the gate: and have abhorred him that speaketh perfectly.

11 Therefore, because you robbed the poor, and took the choice prey from him: *you shall build houses with square stone, and shall not dwell in them: you shall plant most delightful vineyards, and shall not drink the wine of them.

12 Because I know your manifold crimes, and your grievous sins: enemies of the just, taking bribes, and oppressing the poor in the gate.

13 Therefore the prudent shall keep silence at that time, for it is an evil time.

14 Seek ye good, and not evil, that you may live: and the Lord, the God of hosts, will be with you, as you have said.

15 *Hate evil, and love good, and establish judgment in the gate: it may be the Lord, the God of hosts, may have mercy on the remnant of Joseph.

16 Therefore, thus saith the Lord, the God of hosts, the sovereign Lord: In every street there shall be wailing: and in all places that are without, they shall say: Alas, alas! and they shall call the husbandman to mourning, and such as are skilful in lamentation to lament.

17 And in all vineyards there shall be wailing: because I will pass through in the midst of thee, saith the Lord.

18 *Woe to them that desire the day of the Lord: to what end is it for you? the day of the Lord is darkness, and not light.

19 As if a man should flee from the face of a lion, and a bear should meet him: or enter into the house, and lean with his hand upon the wall, and a serpent should bite him.

20 Shall not the day of the Lord be darkness, and not light: and obscurity, and no brightness in it?

21 *I hate, and have rejected your festivities: and I will not receive the odour of your assemblies.

beautiful constellation in the south. Ch.—Shepherds in Arabia and Spain are well acquainted with the stars. C.—We have examined the meaning of cima and ceal, Job ix. 9. and xxxviii. 31. S. Jeron's master asserts that the latter means "effulgence." Cima is rendered the Pleiades by Aquila and Th.; "the seven stars," by Prot. H.—When such allusions to the heathen mythology occur, they give no sanction to it, but serve to explain what is meant. S. Jer.—Morning, affording comfort. C. iv. 13.—Earth, by floods (C.) or rain. S. Jer.

VER. 9. With a smile. That is, with all ease, and without making any effort. Ch.—Aquila has "grinning," to shew displeasure. S. Jer.—Heb. "he strengthens the oppressor against the strong," so that those whom he pleases to chastise cannot escape.

VER. 10. They, the wicked, could not endure Amos, (C. vii. 12.) nor those who rebuked them.

VER. 12. Grievous. Heb. also, "numerous."

VER. 13. Time. It is to no purpose speaking to the deaf, (Eccl. xxxii. 9.) or throwing pearls before swine. Mat. vii. 6. Amos was silent for a while, till God opened his mouth again. C. iii. 8. and vii. 12.

VER. 14. Said. Probably Amasias took occasion, from the flourishing state of the kingdom, to assert that the Lord approved of their conduct. C.

VER. 15. May be. God will not be wanting on his side. But this implies that man may find a difficulty in seeking good, and neglect to do it, though he may if he please, with God's assistance. W.—Remnant. Posterity. C.

VER. 16. Lament. Such hired mourners often seemed more grieved than those who were really affected. Hor. art.—All were invited to join in the common sorrow. Jer. ix. 17. and xlviii. 31.

VER. 18. The day. Some impudently laughed at the prophets. Is. v. 19. Jer. xvii. 15. Others wished for the coming of the Lord, not reflecting that he would punish their guilt. C.—Thus many, through impatience, desire to die. We must rather repent, and leave our lives at God's disposal. S. Jer.

VER. 19. Serpent. All his attempts would thus prove abortive. The Israel-

22 And if you offer me holocausts, and your gifts, I will not receive them: neither will I regard the vows of your fat beasts.

23 Take away from me the tumult of thy songs: and I will not hear the canticles of thy harp.

24 But judgment shall be revealed as water, and justice as a mighty torrent.

25 *Did you offer victims and sacrifices to me in the desert for forty years, O house of Israel?

26 But you carried a tabernacle for your Moloch, and the image of your idols, the star of your god, which you made to yourselves.

27 And I will cause you to go into captivity beyond Damascus, saith the Lord, the God of hosts, is his name.

The desolation of Israel, for their pride and luxury.

WOE^b to you that are wealthy in Sion, and to you that have confidence in the mountain of Samaria: ye great men, heads of the people, that go in with state into the house of Israel.

2 Pass ye over to Chalane, and see, and go from thence into Emath the great: and go down into Geth, of the Philistines, and to all the best kingdoms of these: if their border be larger than your border.

3 You that are separated unto the evil day: and that approach to the throne of iniquity.

5 You that sing to the sound of the psaltery: they ites were not ruined by Phul, or by Theglathphalassar. But the serpent, (H.) Salmanassar, came and took them in their own houses. 4 K. xvii. 7. C.

VER. 21. Festivities. Some were still observed. C. iv. 4.

VER. 22. Vows. Heb. "peace-offerings of your meries;" a sort of oxen. 2 K. vi. 13. and 3 K. i. 9. Sept. "the salvation of your appearance," or what you offer for your welfare.

VER. 23. Harp. Praise ill becomes the sinner. Eccl. xv. 9. Ps. xlix. 17.

VER. 24. Mighty. Heb. "Ethan." Let your virtue appear, or the greatest miseries will shortly overwhelm you. C.

VER. 25. Did you offer, &c. Except the sacrifices that were offered at the first, in the dedication of the tabernacle, the Israelites offered no sacrifices in the desert. Ch.—They ceased after the beginning of the second year. S. Aug. q. 47. in Ex. Lev. vii. &c. W.—God did not require sacrifices when the people came out of Egypt. Jer. vii. 22. Deut. xii. 8. They were not performed so regularly in the desert, (C.) and the people still bore a secret affection for idols, (v. 25.) which rendered all their victims useless. H.

VER. 26. A tabernacle, &c. All this alludes to the idolatry which they committed, when they were drawn away by the daughters of Moab to the worship of their gods. Num. xxv. Ch.—They imitated the superstitions of Egypt, and bore the image of Osiris, adorned with a star and crescent, on a sort of base, under a canopy. Heb. "You carried the tents of your king and the base of your statues, the star of your gods, which you have made for yourselves." Sept. by changing (C.) cinn into Rephan, or paqan, (H.) have caused great confusion among commentators. If any change were requisite, (C.) cima (H.) would be preferable. v. 8. Job ix. 9. Yet the Heb. seems to be correct, and chinn denotes a pedestal rather than an idol. Some read Kevan, the Saturn of the Arabs, &c. and think that Rephan has been mistaken for it. The only difficulty is the authority of S. Stephen, who follows the Sept. Acts vii. 43. Yet he probably spoke in Syria, and might pronounce Chewan; though S. Luke might adopt the Sept. in a matter of so little consequence. C. Diss.—This decision may not probably give satisfaction to those who reflect that both these authors were under the immediate influence of the Holy Ghost, and that if an error had crept into the copy of the Sept. he would have corrected it. Truth is always of sufficient consequence. See Kennicott, Diss. ii. p. 344. H.—Chinn and Rephan are "expressive of the same" god or idol, representing the machine of the heavens. The people of Peru worshipped Chqun. Parkhurst, p. 137.—Remvan may be Remmon, (4 K. v. 18.) or Saturn. Grot.—In a Coptic alphabet of the planets it is thus explained: (De Dieu. Collier. Dict. Sept. and Acts) "You have taken the tabernacle of Moloch, and the star of your god Remphan, figures" &c. Prot. marg. "the Siccuth, your king, and Chinn, your images, the star," &c. H.

VER. 27. Damascus, or Babylon, (Acts vii.) into Mesopotamia, &c. The sense is the same. C.—When the apostles quote passages, "they do not consider the words but the sense." S. Jer.—One Greek copy, however, has Damascus in the Acts. H.

6 That drink wine in bowls, and anoint themselves with the best ointments: and they are not concerned for the affliction of Joseph.

7 Wherefore, now they shall go captive at the head of them that go into captivity: and the faction of the luxurious ones shall be taken away.

8 *The Lord God hath sworn by his own soul, saith the Lord, the God of hosts: I detest the pride of Jacob, and I hate his houses, and I will deliver up the city, with the inhabitants thereof.

9 And if there remain ten men in one house, they also shall die.

10 And a man's kinsman shall take him up, and shall burn him, that he may carry the bones out of the house: and he shall say to him that is in the inner rooms of the house: Is there yet any with thee?

11 And he shall answer: There is an end. And he shall say to him: Hold thy peace, and mention not the name of the Lord.

12 For behold, the Lord hath commanded, and he will strike the greater house with breaches, and the lesser house with clefts.

13 Can horses run upon the rocks, or can any one plough with buffles, for you have turned judgment into bitterness, and the fruit of justice into wormwood?

14 You that rejoice in a thing of naught: you that say: Have we not taken unto us horns by our own strength?

^b Luke vi. 24.—Jer. li. 14.

CHAP. VI. VER. 1. Wealthy. Sept. Syr. and Arab. "despisers of Sion. Heb. also, "who hate Sion." The prophecy wholly regards Israel. C.—It is a great crime for the rich to neglect the poor; but still more so, when wealthy clergymen shew no compassion for the spiritual or corporal wants of their neighbours. W.—State. Heb. "to whom the house of Israel comes" for judgment.

VER. 2. Chalane. Ctesiphon (C) was built on its ruins. Gen. x. 10. H.—Why do you imitate these cities? or, has their greatness protected them? Phul probably took Chalane, and Jeroboam II. the other cities v. 15. and 4 K. xiv. 25. At that time there was no appearance of the kingdom being destroyed; yet Amos composes a funeral canticle, to shew the certainty of the event.

VER. 3. Separated. Heb. "remove the evil day," as if it would not overtake you. Eze. xii. 22. Sept. "who are praying (C.) or coming (Grabe) to the evil day, approaching and touching false sabbaths." H.—They pray to be delivered, while they continue (C.) their false worship. H.

VER. 4. Ivory, with which the beds for eating were adorned. v. 7. C.—Wanton. Heb. "stretch themselves out upon their," &c. H.

VER. 5. David. They think they excel him in music; but he consecrated his talent to a better purpose. C.—Sept. "they deemed them stable, and not fugitive things." H.—They have placed their chief good in such pleasures. Theod. C.

VER. 6. In bowls. Sept. "refined," (H.) or cleared of the dregs.—Joseph, of their brethren, or they seem to have no share in the sufferings of mankind. Ps. lxxii. 5.

VER. 7. Luxurious. Heb. "the feast of those who stretch themselves out, shall," &c. Sept. "the neighing shall be removed from Ephraim." His lusts shall be punished. Jer. v. 8.—Some translate Heb. "the mourning of those who stretch themselves on their beds is at hand." Others, "their funeral feast is distant." None shall bewail their death. So ambiguous is the original. C.

VER. 8. Jacob. God loved the humility of the patriarch, and hated the pride of his posterity. W.

VER. 9. Die. Their numbers will not protect them from the plague.

VER. 10. Burn. After the captivity, it was more common to bury or to embalm the dead. C.

VER. 11. Lord. He has done it. Do not repine. Theod. S. Cyr.—Heb. "Be silent, and not to remember the," &c. He will offer comfort. C.—Still, none will return to the Lord. S. Jer.

VER. 12. Clefts. All shall perish, (C.) both Israel and Juda. Chal. Grot.—But he speaks only of the former.

VER. 13. Buffles, which cannot be tamed. Heb. "with oxen." We must understand, on rocks. C.—Sept. "Shall they be silent when they are with females?" H.—To turn the works of justice into sins, is no less unnatural than to plough with wild buffles. W.

VER. 14. Naught: in your idols, which are nothing, (1 Cor. viii. 4.) or in your own strength, fortifications, or allies.—Horns: glory and power. C.—Parata tollo cornua. Hor. epod. 6.

15 But behold, I will raise up a nation against you, O house of Israel, saith the Lord, the God of hosts: and they shall destroy you from the entrance of Emath, even to the torrent of the desert.

CHAP. VII.

The prophet sees, in three visions, evils coming upon Israel: he is accused of treason by the false priest of Bethel.

THESE things the Lord God shewed to me: and behold, the locust was formed in the beginning of the shooting up of the latter rain; and lo, it was the latter rain after the king's mowing.

2 And it came to pass, that when they had made an end of eating the grass of the land, I said: O Lord God, be merciful, I beseech thee: who shall raise up Jacob, for he is very little?

3 The Lord had pity upon this: It shall not be, said the Lord.

4 These things the Lord God shewed to me: and behold, the Lord called for judgment unto fire, and it devoured the great deep, and eat up a part at the same time.

5 And I said: O Lord God, cease, I beseech thee: who shall raise up Jacob, for he is a little one?

6 The Lord had pity upon this: Yea, this also shall not be, said the Lord God.

7 These things the Lord shewed to me: and behold, the Lord was standing upon a plastered wall, and in his hand a mason's trowel.

8 And the Lord said to me: What seest thou, Amos? And I said: A mason's trowel. And the Lord said: Behold, I will lay down the trowel in the midst of my people, Israel: I will plaster them over no more.

VER. 15. Nation: the Assyrians.—Desert, commonly called Bezor, (C.) between Damietta and Rhinocorura. S. Jer.—The whole territory of Israel, reaching so far, (v. 2.) shall be laid waste. C.

CHAP. VII. VER. 1. The locust, &c. These judgments by locusts and fire, which by the prophet's intercession were moderated, signify the former invasions of the Assyrians under Phul and Teghathphalassar, before the utter desolation of Israel by Salmanassar. Ch.—Locusts denoted the Assyrian invaders. 4 K. xviii. W.—Formed. Lit. "the maker of the locust, in the beginning of the herbs shooting," &c. (H.) in spring. S. Jer.—They pasture in our January: yet the grass of autumn may be meant. The king took the best which grows in summer. C.—Sept. "and lo, a swarm of locusts coming in the morning; and lo, one bruchus, Gog, the king," (H.) or "against king Gog." C.—Aquila has, "of the king of Gaza." He probably left the original term, (S. Jer.) gizee. H.—The invasion of the Assyrians, Chaldeans, and Scythians is insinuated. Theod.—The latter came the year after the earthquake. C. i. Pezron.—This was the first vision of Amos. C.—He saw the first and last inroads of the Assyrians, as well as the prosperity of Jeroboam. M.

VER. 2. When. Sept. "If it shall eat up," &c. H.—Little. After Jeroboam II. the kingdom fell to decay, when Manahem called in the Assyrians. C.

VER. 3. The. Sept. "Repent, O Lord, on this head, and this shall," &c.—Not be: the grass shall not be totally devoured. H.—The king of the Assyrians invaded Juda in vain. 4 K. xix. W.

VER. 4. Part of the land, if the prophet had not interposed; (v. 6. C.) or rather civil wars desolated a great part of the kingdom, before the Lord was appeased. H.—The fire foreshewed the captivity of the two tribes. 4 K. xxiv. W.

VER. 6. The. Sept. as v. 3. H.—We read not of locusts being sent, v. 1. But the fire of war certainly raged before the final catastrophe of Jehu's family, when Sallum slew Zacharias. 4 K. xv. 8. C.

VER. 7. Plastered. Heb. "wall, made by a plumb-line, with a plumb-line in his hand." Prot. H.—But Sept. Syr. &c. seem more literal, (C.) "on a wall of adamant, and a diamond in his hand." Heb. anac, (H.) whence a diamond was called anacites, (Orpheus) or anachites. Pliny xxxvii. 4.—Saturn had a scythe of adamant, and walls of this kind were deemed impervious even to the inhabitants of heaven. Thus Virgil describes the gate of hell:

*Porta adversa ingens solidoque adamantæ columnæ,
Vis ut nulla virum non ipsi excindere ferro*

Cæcilicæ valent. —En. vi.

--God appearing on such a wall, intimated that the separation between him and his people was complete. C.—Hic murus aheneus esto. Hor. i. ep. 1.

VER. 8. Plaster. Sept. "I will no more pass over it," the adamantine wall. I will hide their faults no longer. H.—This third vision alluded to the distress of the ten tribes. 4 K. xv. 20. W.

VER. 9. Idol. Heb. "Isaac." C.—Sept. "laughter." H.—Isaac had resided for some time at Bersabee, which was a place frequented by the idolaters. C. v.

9 And the high places of the idol shall be thrown down, and the sanctuaries of Israel shall be laid waste: and I will rise up against the house of Jeroboam with the sword.

10 And Amasias, the priest of Bethel, sent to Jeroboam, king of Israel, saying: Amos hath rebelled against thee in the midst of the house of Israel: the land is not able to bear all his words.

11 For thus saith Amos: Jeroboam shall die by the sword, and Israel shall be carried away captive out of their own land.

12 And Amasias said to Amos: Thou seer, go, flee away into the land of Juda: and eat bread there, and prophesy there.

13 But prophesy not again any more in Bethel: because it is the king's sanctuary, and it is the house of the kingdom.

14 And Amos answered, and said to Amasias: I am not a prophet, nor am I the son of a prophet: but I am a herdsman, plucking wild figs.

15 And the Lord took me when I followed the flock, and the Lord said to me: Go, prophesy to my people, Israel.

16 And now, hear thou the word of the Lord: Thou sayest: Thou shalt not prophesy against Israel, and thou shalt not drop thy word upon the house of the idol.

17 Therefore, thus saith the Lord: Thy wife shall play the harlot in the city, and thy sons, and thy daughters shall fall by the sword, and thy land shall be measured by a line: and thou shalt die in a polluted land, and Israel shall go into captivity out of their land.

5. and viii. 14. Josias overthrew (4 K. xxiii. 8. C.) the profane "altars." H.—Sword. His son Zacharias was slain after six months reign. v. 6. 11.

VER. 10. Words. Nothing could be more unfounded. Amos had indeed denounced many judgments; but he was not wanting in respect to the king. C.

VER. 11. Sword. The prophet did not say this, but that the Lord would rise up against the house of Jeroboam with the sword; which was verified when Zacharias, the son and successor of Jeroboam, was slain by the sword. 4 K. xv. 10. Ch.—The false prophet was therefore guilty of a lie. They accuse the preachers of truth as traitors. W.—Thus many missionary priests have been traduced in England. H.

VER. 12. Seer. This was the ancient title of prophets; (1 K. ix. 9. C.) but it is here used contemptuously. H.—We know not whether Amasias acted by the king's order or not. He was less afraid of the predictions than of losing his employment. C.

VER. 13. Sanctuary, or "palace." Kimchi.—The kings resided commonly in Samaria; but they came hither to practise their religion, and had a palace. C.—The king's choice was all that Amasias regarded, as many seem still to do, without examining whether the religion be true or false! Will the king screen them from the indignation of the just Judge at the hour of death? H.

VER. 14. I am not a prophet. That is, I am not a prophet by education: nor is prophesying my calling or profession: but I am a herdsman, whom God was pleased to send hither to prophesy to Israel. Ch.—He speaks with the like humility as the baptist, John i. 21. Lu. vii. 26. It seems the prophets usually left their trade, and applied to meditation. Zac. viii. 5. Sept. "I was not a prophet, nor," &c.—Plucking. Sept. (Th.) "pricking." C.—This was requisite to make the fruit ripen in four days' time. Pliny xiii. 7. and xvi. 27.—Wild fig-trees have three sorts of fruit. The flies which proceed from some of them, prick the sweet figs, and make them ripen. Tournefort i. let. 8.—Amos probably conveyed such wild figs to be near those of the garden, while at other times he fed his cattle.

VER. 16. Drop; menaces. Eze. xx. 46. Sept. "thou shalt not disturb (C.) or threaten the house of Jacob." S. Jer.—Idol; the calf, worshipped in Bethel. Ch.—Heb. "Isaac," as v. 9. H.

VER. 17. Play. Symmachus has better, "shall be treated as a harlot." A "husband would rather hear that his wife had been slain than defiled." S. Jer.—Line, and divided among strangers.—Land, out of Palestine. All other countries were deemed unclean. Amasias was probably exiled, or led captive by Teghathphalassar, as Salmanassar did not come till sixty-two years after the death of Jeroboam. We know no more of the history of Amasias. The martyr-ologies say he slew Amos. C.—His name means "rigid," and he was a true image of a heretic. "All that he possesses shall fall to the share of devils." S. Jer.

CHAP. VIII.

Under the figure of a hook, which bringeth down the fruit, the approaching desolation of Israel is foretold, for their avarice and injustices.

THESE things the Lord shewed to me: and behold a hook to draw down the fruit.

2 And he said: What seest thou, Amos? And I said: A hook to draw down fruit. And the Lord said to me: The end is come upon my people, Israel: I will not again pass by them any more.

3 And the hinges of the temple shall screek in that day, saith the Lord God: many shall die: silence shall be cast in every place.

4 Hear this, you that crush the poor, and make the needy of the land to fail,

5 Saying: When will the month be over, and we shall sell our wares: and the sabbath, and we shall open the corn: that we may lessen the measure and increase the sicle, and may convey in deceitful balances.

6 That we may possess the needy for money, and the poor for a pair of shoes, and may sell the refuse of the corn.

7 The Lord hath sworn against the pride of Jacob: Surely I will never forget all their works.

8 Shall not the land tremble for this, and every one mourn that dwelleth therein: and rise up altogether as a river, and be cast out, and run down as the river of Egypt?

9 And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord God, that the sun shall go down at mid-day, and I will make the earth dark in the day of light:

10 *And I will turn your feasts into mourning, and all your songs into lamentation: and I will bring up sackcloth upon every back of yours, and baldness upon every head: and I will make it as the mourning of an only son, and the latter end thereof as a bitter day.

11 Behold the days come, saith the Lord, and I will send forth a famine into the land: not a famine of bread, nor a thirst of water, but of hearing the word of the Lord.

those who were near, (4 K. xv. 23.) but the rest also were taken, (4 K. xvii. 6.) as we pull with a hook the fruit which we cannot reach otherwise. W.

VER. 3. Temple, when God comes like a mighty warrior; or when the profane temples shall be pillaged. C. ix. 1. Heb. also, "the canticles of the temple or palace shall be changed into lamentations."—Place. Heb. "a multitude of dead bodies shall be cast in every place. Keep silence." C.

VER. 5. Month: the first day was observed as a festival. Num. x. 10. H. —At the expiration of the month usurers demanded their money. Hor. i. sat. 2. Aristoph. Nub. ii. 1.—Corn, to sell after the sabbatical year, when it was dearest. Sabbath also denotes all "festivals." These misers think that there are too many.—Sicle. Having a large measure to buy, and a small one to sell again. Deut. xxv. 13. Prov. xx. 10.

VER. 6. Shoes, for almost nothing. Thus they forced the poor to serve, or to sell their effects.

VER. 7. Jacob, because the rich despise the poor. It may also mean, that he swore-by heaven or the temple, (Lev. xxvi. 19.) or that he would destroy the high places. C.

VER. 8. Altogether. Sept. "its total ruin shall rise as a river."—Egypt. The whole land shall be visited with misery, as Egypt is by the Nile. H.—The enemy shall retire with the booty. The Nile overflows in summer, and covers Egypt for six weeks, carrying much earth with its impetuous waves. Is. xviii. 2.

VER. 9. Light. Usher (A. 3213.) explains this of an eclipse, at Pentecost. The Fathers generally understand that which accompanied the death of Christ; but it only implies great desolation and terror. Jer. xv. 9. Joel iii. 11. S. Jer. &c. C.—In their greatest prosperity, calamities shall unexpectedly fall upon them. W.

VER. 10. Baldness, the hair being cut in mourning. Job i. 20.—Son, most afflicting. Zac. xii. 10. Jer. vi. 26. C.

12 And they shall move from sea to sea, and from the north to the east: they shall go about seeking the word of the Lord, and shall not find it.

13 In that day the fair virgins, and the young men shall faint for thirst.

14 They that swear by the sin of Samaria, and say: Thy God, O Dan, liveth: and the way of Bersabee liveth: and they shall fall, and shall rise no more.

CHAP. IX.

The certainty of the desolation of Israel: the restoring of the tabernacle of David, and the conversion of the Gentiles to the Church; which shall flourish for ever.

I SAW the Lord standing upon the altar, and he said: Strike the hinges, and let the lintels be shook: for there is covetousness in the head of them all, and I will slay the last of them with the sword: there shall be no flight for them: they shall flee, and he that shall flee of them shall not be delivered.

2 ^b Though they go down even to hell, thence shall my hand bring them out: and though they climb up to heaven, thence will I bring them down.

3 And though they be hid in the top of Carmel, I will search and take them away from thence: and though they hide themselves from my eyes in the depth of the sea, there will I command the serpent, and he shall bite them.

4 And if they go into captivity before their enemies, there will I command the sword, and it shall kill them. *And I will set my eyes upon them for evil, and not for good.

5 And the Lord, the God of hosts, is he who toucheth the earth, and it shall melt: and all that dwell therein shall mourn: and it shall rise up as a river, and shall run down as the river of Egypt.

6 He that buildeth his ascension in heaven, and hath founded his bundle upon the earth: ^d who calleth the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth, the Lord is his name.

VER. 11. Lord. During the siege provisions were wanting, but instruction still more so. W.—Israel had banished Amos. They would be left destitute. We find no prophet among them during the captivity, except Tobias. C. xiii. 3 We may apply this to the state of the Jews since the death of Christ. They have no guides. C.—They read incessantly, and do not understand (S. Jer Mercer), the Bible, which none will ever penetrate who refuse to receive the key from the Church. H.

VER. 12. Sea to sea: from west to south, or to the ocean; in whatever part of the world they may be. C.

VER. 14. Sin. Sept. "prostitution," which the pagans deemed requisite; (Hor. i. ode 2.) or worship (H.) of Baal, (4 K. xvii. 16. C.) and all the other superstitions. H.—Way. Sept. "thy God," or religion, (Acts ix. 2.) or pilgrimage to Bersabee. C. v. 5. Perhaps the true God was here adored; but it was in a manner which he condemned. 9 For behold, I will command, and I will sift the house of Israel among all nations, as corn is sifted in a sieve: and there shall not a little stone fall to the ground.

10 All the sinners of my people shall fall by the sword: who say: The evils shall not approach, and shall not come upon us.

the Gentiles. Acts xv. 15. W.—After the fall of Israel, Juda still flourished: but this cannot be meant. The prosperity after the return from Babylon, or rather under Jesus Christ, must fulfil the prediction. Zorobabel had a very precarious authority, and the Machabees were not of the tribe of Juda, nor was their kingdom so flourishing or durable. C.

VER. 12. Edom, subdued by Hircan, with the surrounding nations. Edom and all mankind shall receive the glad tidings of salvation. H.

VER. 13. Shall overtake, &c. By this is meant the great abundance of spiritual blessings; which, as it were, by a constant succession, shall enrich the Church of Christ. Ch.—Munster, and his imitator, Clarus, see nothing but an allegory in this abundance and return, v. 14. Yet the literal sense ought to be adopted, when it involves no contradiction. Houbigant, pref. p. 297.—God promised a succession of crops to the faithful Israelites, (Lev. xxvi. 6.) and the return of the ten tribes is frequently specified. C.

THE PROPHECY OF ABDIAS.

ABDIAS, whose name is interpreted the servant of the Lord, is believed to have prophesied about the same time as Osee, Joel, and Amos: though some of the Hebrews, who believe him to be the same with Achab's steward, make him much more ancient. His prophecy is the shortest of any in number of words, but yields to none, says S. Jerom, in the sublimity of mysteries. It contains but one chapter. Ch.—He foretells the destruction of Edom, for its pride and enmity against the Jews: whose return and the redemption of mankind are also announced. W.—Abdias seems to have prophesied after the destruction of Jerusalem, and before Nabuchodonosor attacked Edom, &c. which took place within five years. C

THE PROPHECY OF JONAS.

JONAS prophesied in the reign of Jeroboam II. as we learn from 4 K. xiv. 25. to whom also he foretold his success in restoring all the borders of Israel. He was of Geth-Opher, in the tribe of Zabulon, and consequently of Galilee; which confutes that assertion of the Pharisees, (John vii. 52.) that no prophet ever arose out of Galilee. He prophesied and prefigured in his own person the death and resurrection of Christ, and was the only one among the prophets who was sent to preach to the Gentiles. Ch.—The most incredible mystery in our religion, and the vocation of the Gentiles, are thus insinuated. C.—The latter shall be saved if they repent, like Ninive. W.—Paine's supposition, that this book was written by a pagan "to satirise the malignant character of a predicting priest," requires no refutation. II. Watson.

CHAP. I.

Jonas being sent to preach in Ninive, fleeth away by sea: a tempest riseth: of which he being found, by lot, to be the cause, is cast into the sea, which thereupon is calmed.

NOW the word of the Lord came to Jonas, the son of Amathi, saying:

2 Arise, and go to Ninive, the great city, and preach in it: for the wickedness thereof is come up before me.

3 And Jonas rose up to flee into Tharsis from the face of the Lord, and he went down to Joppe, and found a ship going to Tharsis: and he paid the fare thereof, and went down into it, to go with them to Tharsis from the face of the Lord,

4 But the Lord sent a great wind into the sea: and a great tempest was raised in the sea, and the ship was in danger to be broken.

5 And the mariners were afraid, and the men cried to their god: and they cast forth the wares that were in the ship, into the sea, to lighten it of them: and Jonas went down into the inner part of the ship, and fell into a deep sleep.

6 And the ship-master came to him, and said to him: Why art thou fast asleep? rise up, call upon thy God, if so be that God will think of us, that we may not perish.

7 And they said every one to his fellow: Come, and let us cast lots, that we may know why this evil is upon us. And they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonas.

8 And they said to him: Tell us for what cause this evil is upon us, what is thy business? of what country art thou? and whither goest thou? or of what people art thou?

9 And he said to them: I am a Hebrew, and I fear the Lord, the God of heaven, who made both the sea and the dry land.

10 And the men were greatly afraid, and they said to him: Why hast thou done this? (for the men knew that he fled from the face of the Lord: because he had told them.)

11 And they said to him: What shall we do to thee, that the sea may be calm to us? for the sea flowed and swelled.

12 And he said to them: Take me up, and cast me into the sea, and the sea shall be calm to you: for I know that for my sake this great tempest is upon you.

13 And the men rowed hard to return to land, but they were not able: because the sea tossed and swelled upon them.

14 And they cried to the Lord, and said: We beseech thee, O Lord, let us not perish for this man's life, and lay not upon us innocent blood: for thou, O Lord, hast done as it pleased thee.

15 And they took Jonas, and cast him into the sea, and the sea ceased from raging.

16 And the men feared the Lord exceedingly, and sacrificed victims to the Lord, and made vows.

CHAP. II.

Jonas is swallowed up by a great fish; he prayeth with confidence in God: and the fish casteth him out on the dry land.

NOW the Lord prepared a great fish to swallow up Jonas: and Jonas was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights.

Ch.—Yet Jonas was sleeping through grief. S. Jer. Mat. xxvi. 40. C.

VER. 9. Fear, and therefore fly from the face of the Lord. v. 3. 10. H.—He knew that God is every where, v. 3. Ps. cxxxiii. 8. C.—Sept. "I worship." Fear is often taken in this sense. II.

VER. 12. Cast me. God intimates that he required this sacrifice. M. VER. 13. Hard. They were unwilling to destroy the prophet, (C.) fearing to incur fresh guilt by thus treating one who had intrusted his life to them. Jos. Ant. ix. 11.

VER. 14. Blood. We act thus by his direction, and through necessity. VER. 16. Lord. They were converted by this prodigy, and offered sacrifice immediately, or (C.) when they came to port. M.—All know by the light of reason that sacrifice and vows are acceptable to the Lord. W.

CHAP. II. VER. 1. Fish. Heb. dag; afterwards daga occurs, v. 2; (H.) on which Leusden observes, the Jews infer that Jonas was first swallowed up by a male and then by a female fish, which being full of young he was much straitened, and prayed from the belly of that (hadaga) female fish! He alludes to R. (1135)

2 And Jonas prayed to the Lord, his God, out of the belly of the fish.

3 And he said: "I cried out of my affliction to the Lord, and he heard me: I cried out of the belly of hell, and thou hast heard my voice.

4 And thou hast cast me forth into the deep, in the heart of the sea, and a flood hath compassed me: all thy billows, and thy waves have passed over me.

5 And I said: I am cast away out of the sight of thy eyes: but yet I shall see thy holy temple again.

6 "The waters compassed me about even to the soul: the deep hath closed me round about, the sea hath covered my head.

7 I went down to the lowest parts of the mountains: the bars of the earth have shut me up for ever: and thou wilt bring up my life from corruption, O Lord, my God.

8 When my soul was in distress within me, I remembered the Lord: that my prayer may come to thee, unto thy holy temple.

9 They that in vain observe vanities, forsake their own mercy.

10 But I with the voice of praise will sacrifice to thee: I will pay whatsoever I have vowed for my salvation to the Lord.

11 And the Lord spoke to the fish: and it vomited out Jonas upon the dry land.

CHAP. III.

Jonas is sent again to preach in Ninive. Upon their fasting and repentance, God recalleth the sentence by which they were to be destroyed.

AND the word of the Lord came to Jonas the second time, saying:

* Ps. cxix. 1.—Ps. lxxviii. 1.

Jarohi. H.—Thus nar, puer, is put for a girl, to imply that Rebecca was prudent and Dina rambling. Buxt. Tib. 13. See Kennicott, Dia. 2, p. 417 and 552. —Noble discoveries! Many suppose (H) that this fish was a whale, as it does not live on flesh; (U) but its throat being so narrow, as hardly to suffer a man's arm to pass, it is more probable that it was the sea-dog, lamia or canis chariarian, (Bartolin 14.) which may easily contain a man. Aldrovandus iii. 32. M.—This sea-dog, or shark, has five rows of teeth in each jaw. Human bodies have been found entire in the stomach. Buton.—Our Saviour calls the fish a whale, Mat. xii. 40. W.—But that term is given to any great sea monster. Yet it is not of much importance what species of fish be meant, provided the miracle be admitted. C.—The pagans ridiculed it. S. Aug. ep. 102. q. 6. 30.—Yet they believed many of a similar nature, alleging the omnipotence of God. S. Jer.—This reason accounts for all the miracles recorded in Scripture. But might not God have chosen some easier expedient! We must not dive into his reasons. The impression which such a fact would make on the Ninivites, and the prefiguring of Christ's burial, might suffice. Jonas was not a type of his death, as some have imagined, Q. ad Orthodox. C.—Nights, or as long as our Saviour was in the monument, (M.) which was about thirty-four hours. C. Dis.

VER. 2. Prayed. He entertained these sentiments. Sanct. xiv.—He afterwards wrote them down. C.

VER. 3. I cried. These five verses (H.) express his thoughts while he was in the sea, (S. Jer. C.) or in the fish. H.—He doubtless prayed before, when he was cast into the sea, and also in the whale's belly, having then greater confidence that he should arrive safely on dry land, (v. 5.) and therefore vowing sacrifices of thanks, v. 10. W.—Hell; the whale's belly, (Theod. &c.) or rather the depth of the sea. It may denote any imminent danger.

VER. 5. Eyes, in a sort of despair, like the psalmist, xxx. 23. Yet he presently resumes fresh confidence in God, notwithstanding the greatness of his offences.—Temple. He went to Jerusalem, like other good Israelites.

VER. 6. Soul, so that I was in danger of being suffocated. Pa. lxxviii. 2. C.—Sea. Heb. "weeds entangled," &c. H.—The Mediterranean has a great deal of sea weed. He speaks of the time before he was swallowed up by the fish.

VER. 7. Lowest. Heb. and Sept. "clefs."—Bars, or prisons, in the abyss, (C.) farthest from the heights. W.

VER. 8. Me, at the last gasp, (C.) and oppressed with grief. M.

VER. 9. Mercy. He alludes to the sailors. Theod.—Heb. also, "let them forsake their worship," (Drus. Lev. xx. 17.) or they are guilty of impiety. They neglect their vows, v. 10. C. i. 16. C.

VER. 11. Spoke to the fish. God's speaking to the fish was nothing else but his will, which all things obey. Ch. W.—Land. Josephus says near the Euxine Sea. But thus it must have travelled 800 leagues. Others fix upon different places, without any proof. C.

CHAP. III. VER. 2. Bid thee before, or when thou shalt be there. C.—He seems to have returned to Jerusalem. M.

2 Arise, and go to Ninive, the great city: and preach in it the preaching that I bid thee.

3 And Jonas arose, and went to Ninive, according to the word of the Lord: now Ninive was a great city of three days' journey.

4 And Jonas began to enter into the city one day's journey: and he cried, and said: Yet forty days, and Ninive shall be destroyed.

5 "And the men of Ninive believed in God: and they proclaimed a fast, and put on sackcloth from the greatest to the least.

6 And the word came to the king of Ninive: and he rose up out of his throne, and cast away his robe from him, and was clothed with sackcloth, and sat in ashes.

7 And he caused it to be proclaimed and published in Ninive, from the mouth of the king, and of his princes, saying: Let neither men nor beasts, oxen, nor sheep, taste any thing: let them not feed, nor drink water.

8 And let men and beasts be covered with sackcloth, and cry to the Lord with all their strength, and let them turn every one from his evil way, and from the iniquity that is in their hands.

9 "Who can tell if God will turn, and forgive: and will turn away from his fierce anger, and we shall not perish?

10 And God saw their works, that they were turned from their evil way: and God had mercy with regard to the evil which he had said that he would do to them, and he did it not.

* Mat. xii. 41. Luke xi. 32.—Jer. xviii. 11. Joel ii. 14.

VER. 3. Journey. By the computation of some ancient historians, Ninive was about fifty miles round: so that to go through all the chief streets and public places, was three days' journey. Ch.—Diodorus (iii. 1.) says Ninive was 150 stadia or furlongs in length. It must have been therefore 480 round; and as each furlong contains 125 paces of 5 ft. each, the compass would be "60 Italian miles, (about 50 Eng.)" which would employ a person three days to go through the principal streets. W.—Ninive "was much larger than Babylon." Strabo xvi.—Heb. "a great city of God," &c. denoting its stupendous size.

VER. 4. Journey. He records what he said the first day, though he seems to have preached many (Theod.) even during forty days, after which time (H.) he expected the city would fall, and therefore retired out of the walls. C. iv.—Forty. Sept. three. S. Justin, (dial.) "three, or forty-three." Theodoret thinks that the mistake was made by some ancient transcriber, and has since prevailed in all the copies of the Sept. All the rest have forty. S. Aug. (de civ. Dei. xviii. 44.) believes the Sept. placed three for a mysterious reason. Origen (hom. xvi. Num.) suggests that the prophet determined the number, and hence God did not execute the threat. C.—This and many other menaces are conditional. If men repent, God will change his sentence. S. Chrys. S. Greg. Mor. xvi. 18. W.

VER. 5. God. They were convinced that he had wrought such wonders in the person of Jonas, with a desire of their welfare, particularly as he allowed them some delay. Accordingly they did penance for about forty days, and their conversion was so sincere, that Christ proposes it to his disciples. Mat. xii. 41. C.—Thus "the city was overturned in its perverse manners." S. Aug. de civ. Dei. xxi. 24. and Ps. 1.—They were at an end, and the city was renovated. H.

VER. 6. King Sardanapalus, (Salien, A. 3216) or rather his father, Phul, whom Strabo calls Anacyndaraxes, (C.) and who died A. 3237, (Usher) four years after he had invaded Palestine. 4 K. xv. 19.

VER. 7. Princes. Their consent was requisite, to form an irrevocable edict. Dan. vi. 8.—Men. Even infants, according to the Fathers. Joel ii. 16. S. Basil adds also, the young of cattle. This was done to excite rational beings to repentance. Theod.—We do not find that cattle were deprived of food on such occasions among the Jews. But Virgil specifies that this was the case at the death of Cæsar, (Ecl. v.) as it was in droughts among some nations of America. Horn ii. 13. C.—When people are greatly moved by repentance, they exceed in austerity; but if this be not indiscreet, God accepts of their good intention. W.

VER. 10. Mercy. Heb. "repented," as some copies of the Sept. read, while others have, "was comforted." H.—God suspended the stroke. But as the people soon relapsed, Sardanapalus burnt himself to death, and the city was taken, (S. Jer.) thirty-seven years after Jeroboam. A. 3257. Usher.—Yet this was only a prelude to its future ruin, foretold by Tobias, (xiv. 5. in Gr.) and effected by Nabopolassar and Astyages. C. A. 3378. Usher.—The vestiges did not appear in the days of Lucian, (Charon. C.) soon after Christ. H.

CHAP. IV.

Jonas, repining to see that his prophecy is not fulfilled, is reproved by the type of the ivy.

AND Jonas was exceedingly troubled, and was angry:

2 And he prayed to the Lord, and said: I beseech thee, O Lord, is not this what I said, when I was yet in my own country? therefore I went before to flee into Tharsis: *for I know that thou art a gracious and merciful God, patient, and of much compassion, and easy to forgive evil.

3 And now, O Lord, I beseech thee take my life from me: for it is better for me to die than to live.

4 And the Lord said: Dost thou think thou hast reason to be angry?

5 Then Jonas went out of the city, and sat toward the east side of the city: and he made himself a booth there, and he sat under it in the shadow, till he might see what would befall the city.

6 And the Lord God prepared an ivy, and it came

* Ps. xxxv. 5. Joel ii. 13.

CHAP. IV. VER. 1. Troubled. His concern was lest he should pass for a false prophet; or rather lest God's word, by this occasion might come to be slighted and disbelieved. Ch.—He conjectured that God would spare the penitent Ninivites, and feared lest prophecies should be deemed uncertain. But this doubt is solved by observing that some are conditional, (C. iii. 4. Jer. xviii. 8.) as it proved here. When the people relapsed, they were afterwards destroyed. Nah. i. &c. W. C. iii. 10.—The conversion of Ninive was an earnest of that of the Gentiles. C.—This being so intimately connected with the reprobation of the Jews, (H.) the prophet was grieved at the misery of the latter, (S. Jerom) which our Saviour and S. Paul bewailed. Acts xi. 2. Rom. x. 19. Lu. xix. &c. Yet Jonas seems to have considered himself rather too much.

VER. 5. Went, or "had gone," waiting for the city's ruin. C.

VER. 6. The Lord God prepared an ivy. Hederam. In the Heb. it is kikajon, which some render a gourd; others a palmerist, or palma Christi. Ch.—This latter is now the common opinion. S. Jerom explains it of a shrub growing very fast in the sandy places of Palestine. He did not pretend (C.) that hedera, or ivy, as Aquila translates, (H.) was the precise import; but he found no Latin term more resembling, (C.) as he observes here and in his letter to S. Aug. who had informed him that a certain bishop of Africa having read his version publicly, the audience was surprised at the change; and the Jews, "either through ignorance or malice," decided in favour of the old Greek and Latin version of up over the head of Jonas, to be a shadow over his head, and to cover him (for he was fatigued): and Jonas was exceedingly glad of the ivy.

7 But God prepared a worm, when the morning arose on the following day: and it struck the ivy and it withered.

8 And when the sun was risen, the Lord commanded a hot and burning wind: and the sun beat upon the head of Jonas, and he broiled with the heat: and he desired for his soul that he might die, and said: It is better for me to die than to live.

9 And the Lord said to Jonas: Dost thou think thou hast reason to be angry, for the ivy? And he said: I am angry with reason even unto death.

10 And the Lord said: Thou art grieved for the ivy, for which thou hast not laboured, nor made it to grow, which in one night came up, and in one night perished.

11 And shall not I spare Ninive, that great city, in which there are more than a hundred and twenty thousand persons, that know not how to distinguish between their right hand and their left, and many beasts?

gourd, which Prot. retain. H.—But this does not grow so soon no more than the ivy. The palma Christi, or ricinus, does. The Egyptians call it kiki, and the Greeks selicy prion. See Pliny xv. 7. Its foliage is thick, and its trunk hollow. C.—But how came S. Jerom to be unacquainted with this plant? or why did he substitute one false name for another?

VER. 8. Hot. Heb. also, "eastern and sultry," (H.) or silent, (C.) which instead of refreshing, served only to increase the heat, (H.) and to raise dust. Sept. Syr. &c. agree with the Vulg.

VER. 9. Death. The spirit of prophecy changes not the temper. C.—Jonas had reason to be grieved, and so had God to shew mercy. In this history and prediction, who would have thought that Jonas had been a figure of our Saviour's death and resurrection, if he himself had not declared it? Mat. xii. W.—The prophet comes out of the fish alive, as Christ does from the tomb. He was cast into the sea to save those on board; Christ dies for the redemption of mankind. Jonas had been ordered to preach, but did not comply till after his escape; thus the gospel was designed to be preached to the Gentiles, yet Christ would not have it done till he had risen. Mat. xv. 26. The prophet's grief intimates the jealousy of the Jews; as his shade destroyed, points out the law, which leaves them in the greatest distress. The very name fish, ixtus, is a monogram of "Jesus Christ, the Son of God, a Saviour, (C.) or crucified." H. S. Paulin ep. 32. —Hence Jonas most strikingly foreshewed Christ. S. Aug. de civ. Dei. xviii. 30.

THE PROPHECY OF MICHEAS.

MICHEAS, of Morasti, a little town in the tribe of Juda, was cotemporary with the prophet Isaias, whom he resembles both in his spirit and his style. He is different from the prophet Micheas, mentioned in the Third Book of Kings, (C. xvii.) for that Micheas lived in the days of king Achab, one hundred and fifty years before the time of Ezechias, under whom this Micheas prophesied, (Ch.) as he did in the two preceding reigns. H.—He addresses both Israel and Juda, and predicts the happiness of the Jews after the captivity, as a figure of what the Church should enjoy. C.—The Jews shall embrace the faith at last, after the Gentiles. W.—We have only a small part of the predictions of Micheas, though he may have written no more. His style is obscure, like that of Osee. C.—His name signifies "humility," or "who is like." S. Jer.

CHAP. I.

Samaria, for her sins, shall be destroyed by the Assyrians: they shall also invade Juda and Jerusalem.

duty, and will not be blameable, if people die in their sins. Jer. iii. 18. W.—This sublime address shews the importance of the subject, and how deep an impression the sins of Israel had made in his breast.

and the valleys shall be cleft, as wax before the fire, and as waters that run down a steep place.

5 For the wickedness of Jacob is all this, and for the sins of the house of Israel. What is the wickedness of Jacob? is it not Samaria? and what are the high places of Juda? are they not Jerusalem?

6 And I will make Samaria as a heap of stones in the field when a vineyard is planted: and I will bring down the stones thereof into the valley, and will lay her foundations bare.

7 And all her graven things shall be cut in pieces, and all her wages shall be burnt with fire, and I will bring to destruction all her idols: for they were gathered together of the hire of a harlot, and unto the hire of a harlot they shall return.

8 Therefore will I lament, and howl: I will go stript and naked: I will make a wailing like the dragons, and a mourning like the ostriches.

9 Because her wound is desperate, because it is come even to Juda, it hath touched the gate of my people, even to Jerusalem.

10 Declare ye it not in Geth, weep ye not with tears: in the house of Dust sprinkle yourselves with dust.

11 And pass away, O thou that dwellest in the Beautiful place, covered with thy shame: she went not forth that dwelleth in the confines: the House adjoining shall receive mourning from you, which stood by herself.

VER. 3. Earth, to subdue the rebels. Amos iv. 13. Hab. iii. 3. C.
VER. 4. Moted. Sept. "moved." H.—Cleft, as it was to swallow up Core, (Num. xvi. 31.) with the greatest ease.

VER. 5. Jerusalem. High places were left there under Joathan. 4 K. xv. 35. Achab had introduced the worship of Baal into Samaria, and though the family of Jehu repressed this worship, it gained ground when Micah appeared. C.—This conduct excited God's indignation. H.—He came to punish the most guilty. O.

VER. 6. Heap. Sept. "hut to keep the fruit." Heb. "hillock of the field," (H.) to be cultivated. Grot.—Bare, by Salmanassar. 4 K. xvii. 6. It was afterwards rebuilt, (C.) but completely levelled by Hircan. Jos. Ant. xiii. 18.

VER. 7. Her wages. That is, her donaries or presents offered to her idols; or the hire of all her traffic and labour. Ch.—Samaria had trafficked with idols, and thus grew rich, but imitated their idolatry; (W) and therefore was ruined, and her citizens and riches (H.) removed into Assyria. W.—Harlot. They were gathered together by one idolatrous city, viz. Samaria: and they shall be carried away to another idolatrous city, viz. Nineve. Ch.—The hire of prostitution was not to be received in God's temple, (Deut. xxiii. 18.) which prohibition shews the antiquity of this abominable custom. Bar. vi. 9. S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. iv. 10. C.

VER. 8. Naked. Ill clothed, (H) to shew the approaching calamity of the Israelites. Is. xx. M.—Sept. and Chal. explain all of the people, (C) or of Samaria. "Therefore shall she lament and howl, go barefoot and naked, bewail like," &c. H.—Dragons, when they are crushed by the elephant. Solin xxxviii. M.—Tannin means also (H) whales, &c. which make a horrible noise.—Ostrich s, or swans. Is. xlii. 21. Both have a mournful note. C.

VER. 9. Gate. That is, the destruction of Samaria shall be followed by the invasion of my people of Juda, and the Assyrian shall come and lay all waste even to the confines of Jerusalem. Ch.—Juda received the worship of Baal from Israel. It shared in the punishment of that kingdom. The prophet alludes to the ravages of Sennacherib, v. 18. Yet Juda was much afflicted by Razin and Phacee, before that invasion: which caused Achaz to call in the aid of Theglathphalassar. 2 Par. xxviii. and 4 K. xvi. C.

VER. 10. Geth. Amongst the Philistines, lest they rejoice at your calamity. Ch. 2 K. i. 20. Amos iii. 9. C.—Tell not these calamities, which I foresee, among your enemies, lest they rejoice. But lament in your own houses, which shall be filled with dust. S. Jeron prays for the light of the Holy Ghost to understand this passage. W.—Weep ye not. Keep in your tears, that you may not give your enemies an occasion of exulting over you: but in your own houses, or in your house of dust, your earthly habitation, sprinkle yourselves with dust, and put on the habit of penitents. Some take the house of dust (in Hebrew Haphra) to be the proper name of a city. Ch.—With tears. Heb. "at all," (Prot. H.) "in Aeco," or Ptolemais, (Reland) or Bochim, (H.) a place near Jerusalem. Judg. ii. 1. But no reference to this place, or to "the Enakim," (who appear in some copies of the Sept.) seems to be made.—Of dust. Samaria, v. 6. C.

VER. 11. Place. In Samaria. In the Hebrew, the beautiful place is expressed by the word Saphir, which some take for the proper name of a city. Ch.—It is thought that S. Jeron has given the sense of several proper names, (C) or this has been done since in the Vulg. by some other. In the edit. of his works, (A. 1533) we read, "The dwelling of Saphir passes from you: she hath not come out (1138)

12 For she is become weak unto good that dwelleth in bitterness: for evil is come down from the Lord into the gate of Jerusalem.

13 A tumult of chariots hath astonished the inhabitants of Lachis: it is the beginning of sin to the daughter of Sion, for in thee were found the crimes of Israel.

14 Therefore shall she send messengers to the inheritance of Geth: the houses of lying to deceive the kings of Israel.

15 Yet will I bring an heir to thee that dwellest in Maresa: even to Odollam shall the glory of Israel come.

16 Make thee bald, and be polled for thy delicate children: enlarge thy baldness as the eagle: for they are carried into captivity from thee.

CHAP. II.

The Israelites, by their crying injustices, provoke God to punish them. He shall at last restore Jacob.

WO to you that devise that which is unprofitable, and work evil in your beds: in the morning light they execute it, because their hand is against God.

2 And they have coveted fields, and taken them by violence, and houses they have forcibly taken away: and oppressed a man and his house, a man and his inheritance.

3 Therefore thus saith the Lord: Behold, I devise an evil against this family: from which you shall not who inhabits Sennan. The house of Asel shall receive," &c. H.—Saphir or Diosarea was a strong place (Jos. Bel. ii. 37.) of Galilee, where Sannan was also situated. Judg. iv. 11. Haetsel may denote "the vicinity." C.—People shall not attempt to comfort their neighbours, being themselves under the greatest alarms. H.—Forth. That is, they that dwell in the confines came not forth, but kept themselves within, for fear.—Adjoining, viz. Judea and Jerusalem, neighbours to Samaria, and partners in her sin, shall share also in her mourning and calamity: though they had pretended to stand by themselves, trusting in their strength. Ch.—All the inhabitants shall be led into captivity naked. H.

VER. 12. Weak, &c. Jerusalem is become weak unto any good; because she dwells in the bitterness of sin. Ch.—Prot. "the inhabitant of Maroth waited carefully for good." H.—We know not of any place called Maroth. Grotius would substitute Ramoth. C.—Bitterness. S. Jer. "Maroth." Sym. "provoking to bitterness." They are unable to defend their possessions. H.

VER. 13. Lachis, when Sennacherib came to besiege it. 4 K. xviii. 13. C.—Beginning. That is, Lachis was the first city of Juda that learnt from Samaria the worship of idols, and communicated it to Jerusalem. Ch.—This is not very probable. We may translate, "this is the source of sin," or of chastisement; or the imitation of Israel, is the chief of the crimes of Sion. C.

VER. 14. Send. Lachis shall send to Geth for help; but in vain: for Geth, instead of helping, shall be found to be a house of lying and deceit to Israel. Ch.—Inheritance. Some translate rather "Moreseth (or Morasthi) of Geth, the houses of Acsib," &c. Both these towns were near Geth, and perhaps at this time subject to it. 2 Par. xxviii. 18. Achaz sent to ask for aid against the king of Israel, v. 9. C.—Prot. "therefore shall thou give presents to Moreseth-Geth, the houses of Achizib shall be a lie to thee," &c. H.—There is an allusion between Acsib and a lie, as also between Maresa and an heir, (v. 15. C.) as the terms have those senses. H.

VER. 15. Heir. Maresa (which was the name of a city of Juda) signifies inheritance: but here God by his prophet tells the Jews, that he will bring them an heir to take possession of their inheritance: and that the glory of Israel shall be obliged to give place, and to retire even to Odollam, a city in the extremity of their dominions. And therefore he exhorts them to penance in the following verse. Ch.—Maresa shall fall a prey to the king of Assyria. Micah was a native of this town, and he ironically addresses his countrymen. C.—Glory. Thus he denotes "the misery" of Israel, which shall be extended to the last town in Juda. W.—Heb. means also "burden." Odolla was taken by Sennacherib, (C) with the other towns around Jerusalem. H.

VER. 16. Eagle. When it loses its feathers, it becomes languid. Theod.—This verse should be joined with the next chapter, which regards the kingdom of Israel. C.

CHAP. II. VER. 1. Evil. Sept. "labours." Heb. "vanity, or an idol." H.—That is called unprofitable, which is very detrimental. W.—Morning, suddenly and with zeal. C.—Is. Heb. "has power," (Chal.) "they have not raised their hands to God." Sept. Arab.

VER. 2. Oppressed. Lit. "calumniated," (H.) as Jezabel did Naboth. 3 K. xxi. 13.

VER. 3. Time. It was very near. Micah saw the ruin of Samaria, under Theglathphalassar and Salmanassar.

VER. 4. Say. The Israelites sing this mournful canticle to v. 7. which the withdraw your necks, and you shall not walk haughtily, for this is a very evil time.

4 In that day a parable shall be taken up upon you, and a song shall be sung with melody by them that say: We are laid waste and spoiled: the portion of my people is changed: how shall he depart from me, whereas he is returning that will divide our land?

5 Therefore thou shalt have none that shall cast the cord of a lot in the assembly of the Lord.

6 Speak ye not, saying: It shall not drop upon these, confusion shall not take them.

7 The house of Jacob saith: Is the Spirit of the Lord straitened, or are these his thoughts? Are not my words good to him that walketh uprightly?

8 But my people, on the contrary, are risen up as an enemy: you have taken away the cloak off from the coat: and them that passed harmless you have turned to war.

9 You have cast out the women of my people from their houses, in which they took delight: you have taken my praise for ever from their children.

10 Arise ye, and depart, for there is no rest here for you. For that uncleanness of the land, it shall be corrupted with a grievous corruption.

11 Would God I were not a man that hath the spirit, and that I rather spoke a lie: I will let drop to thee of wine, and of drunkenness: and it shall be this people upon whom it shall drop.

12 I will assemble and gather together all of thee, O Jacob: I will bring together the remnant of Israel, I will put them together as a flock in the fold, as sheep in the midst of the sheepcotes, they shall make a tumult by reason of the multitude of men.

13 For he shall go up that shall open the way before them: they shall divide, and pass through the gate, and shall come in by it: and their king shall pass before them, and the Lord at the head of them.

prophet composes for them, to shew the certainty of the event. It is very difficult. C.—The whole synagogue speaks. M.—Depart. How do you pretend to say that the Assyrian is departing, when indeed he is coming to divide our lands amongst his subjects? Ch.—The Cuthians were sent into the country. 4 K. xvii. 24. C.—Sept. "and there was none to hinder him from returning, our lands were divided." H.

VER. 5. Nona. Thou shalt have no longer any lot or inheritance in the land of the people of the Lord. Ch.—Strangers had taken possession. C.—Virgil has the like affecting thoughts. Ec. l. Impius huc tam culta novalia miles habebit? H.

VER. 6. Drop. That is, the prophecy shall not come upon these. Such were the sentiments of the people that were unwilling to believe the threats of the prophets. Ch.—The princes order the prophets not to inculcate so many miseries. W.—Heb. "Make it not rain: they will make it rain: they will cause no rain like this: confusion shall not cease." The people beg that the prophets would not announce such judgments: but, (C.) correcting themselves, they bid them to say what they please, (H.) as nothing can befall them more terrible. Here the canticle ends. C.—Sept. "shed no tears, nor let them weep for these things, for she will not cast away reproaches, who says the house of Jacob has provoked the spirit," &c. H.

VER. 7. Straitened. Is he inclined to danger? The prophet replies, if God punishes, it is because the people will not repent. C.—His mercy is extended to penitents, as well as to the just. W.

VER. 8. Away. You have often stripped people of their necessary garments; and have treated such as were innocently passing on the way, as if they were at war with you. Ch.—He alludes to Israel attacking Juda without cause, and killing 120,000 at once, while they took 200,000 women and children (v. 9.) captives, whom Oded indeed persuaded them to release. 2 Par. xxviii. 6. Sept. are very obscure in this chapter. C.

VER. 9. Cast out, &c. Either by depriving them of their houses; or, by your crimes, giving occasion to their being carried away captives, and their children, by that means, never learning to praise the Lord. Ch.—The Jews accustomed them to sing God's praises early, while they were still innocent. Ps. viii. 2. Misery might cause them to complain of Providence. Perhaps the prophet alludes to the custom of divorcees. Mal. ii. 16.

CHAP. III.

For the sins of the rich oppressing the poor, of false prophets flattering for lucre, and of judges perverting justice, Jerusalem and the temple shall be destroyed.

AND I said: Hear, O ye princes of Jacob, and ye chiefs of the house of Israel: Is it not your part to know judgment,

2 You that hate good, and love evil: that violently pluck off their skins from them and their flesh from their bones?

3 Who have eaten the flesh of my people, and have flayed their skin from off them: and have broken, and chopped their bones as for the kettle, and as flesh in the midst of the pot.

4 Then shall they cry to the Lord; and he will not hear them: and he will hide his face from them at that time, as they have behaved wickedly in their devices.

5 Thus saith the Lord concerning the prophets that make my people err: that bite with their teeth, and preach peace: and if a man give not something into their mouth, they prepare war against him.

6 Therefore night shall be to you instead of vision, and darkness to you instead of divination: and the sun shall go down upon the prophets, and the day shall be darkened over them.

7 And they shall be confounded that see visions, and the diviners shall be confounded: and they shall all cover their faces, because there is no answer of God.

8 But yet I am filled with the strength of the spirit of the Lord, with judgment and power: to declare unto Jacob his wickedness, and to Israel his sin.

9 Hear this, ye princes of the house of Jacob, and ye judges of the house of Israel: you that abhor judgment, and pervert all that is right.

10 You that build up Sion with blood, and Jerusalem with iniquity.

11 *Her princes have judged for bribes: and her

* Ezec. xxii. 27. Soph. iii. 8.

VER. 10. Corruption. Your sins will not permit you to remain any longer, and strangers shall defile this land. C.

VER. 11. Would God, &c. The prophet could have wished, out of his love to his people, that he might be deceived in denouncing to them these evils that were to fall upon them: but by conforming himself to the will of God, he declares to them that he is sent to prophesy, literally to let drop upon them, the wine of God's indignation, with which they should be made drunk; that is, stupified and cast down. Ch.—Prot. "If a man, walking in the spirit of falsehood, do lie, saying, I will prophesy unto thee of wine and strong drink, he shall even be a prophet of this people." But I cannot thus deceive you. 11.

VER. 12. Assemble. God shews his mercy, in gathering his Church out of all nations. W.—At least the Jews shall be converted, (Rom. xi. 26. S. Jer. Eus. Dem. ii. 50.) or they shall be butchered by the Assyrians. Sanct.—Men. The country was very populous when the Romans destroyed the Jews. They had returned by degrees. C.

VER. 13. Open. Heb. "break down." H.—Divide. Heb. "make a breach." They shall return boldly, and in triumph. C.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. I. Heb. and Sept. "He, the Lord, said;" or, Micah addressed the princes of both kingdoms, under Ezechias. v. 12. Jer. xxvi. 18.—To know and practise. Osee vi. 3. C.—Both rich and poor strove to extort from each other. W.

VER. 2. Skins. When some exhorted Tiberius to lay on more taxes, he replied: "a good shepherd must shear the flock, and not tear off the skin." Suet. xxxii.

VER. 5. Peace. They pretend goodness, while they do the greatest mischief. —Prepare. Lit. "sanctify," (H.) or denounce war. C.—False prophets seek their private lucre. W.

VER. 6. Vision. Impostors shall skulk through fear, when the people shall see that they were not sent. v. 7.

VER. 8. Spirit. I am no impostor. C. ii. 11.

VER. 10. Iniquity. You offer victims unjustly procured, or build your palaces with what belongs to the poor.

VER. 11. Hire. It is not lawful to refuse instruction to those who have nothing; nor must priests act solely for a temporal reward, though reason shews that they should be supported by those whom they have to teach. Mat. x. 10.

priests have taught for hire, and her prophets divined for money: and they leaned upon the Lord, saying: Is not the Lord in the midst of us? no evil shall come upon us.

12 Therefore, because of you, ^a Sion shall be ploughed as a field, and Jerusalem shall be as a heap of stones, and the mountain of the temple as the high places of the forests.

CHAP. IV.

The glory of the Church of Christ, by the conversion of the Gentiles. The Jews shall be carried captives to Babylon, and be delivered again.

AND ^b it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the house of the Lord shall be prepared in the top of mountains, and high above the hills: and people shall flow to it.

2 And many nations shall come in haste, and say: Come, let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob: and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for the law shall go forth out of Sion, and the word of the Lord out of Jerusalem.

3 And he shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off: and they shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into spades: nation shall not take sword against nation: neither shall they learn war any more.

4 And every man shall sit under his vine, and under his fig-tree, and there shall be none to make them afraid: for the mouth of the Lord of hosts hath spoken.

5 For all people will walk every one in the name of his god: but we will walk in the name of the Lord, our God, for ever and ever.

6 In that day, saith the Lord, I will gather up her that halteth: and her that I had cast out, I will gather up: and her whom I had afflicted.

7 ^c And I will make her that halted, a remnant: and her that had been afflicted, a mighty nation: ^d and

VER. 12. Forests, after its destruction by Nabuchodonosor. C.—In the space of three years' neglect, shrubs were growing in the courts of the temple. 1 Mac. iv. 38. H.—Rufus ploughed up the spot where the temple had stood, after the Romans had burnt it down. S. Jer. Jos. Bel. vii. 20.—This prediction made a deep impression on the minds of the people. It caused them to refrain from killing Jeronias. v. 1. C.

CHAP. IV. VER. 1. Last days. This sometimes means after this. Is. ix. 1. But here it denotes the time which shall elapse from Christ till the day of eternity. The Jews allow that this prediction regards the Messiah, though they will not explain it of Jesus Christ. Their exceptions are well refuted by Ribera. W.—It is plain that it can be verified nowhere else, but in the Church of Christ; though some expressions may, as usual, refer to the return of the captives. Isaias, (ii. 2.) &c. had already used the like terms under Ozias. Juda is here comforted, after its ruin had been denounced.

VER. 2. Jerusalem. No other nation ever embraced the Jewish law. But all received the gospel, (C.) which was first preached at Jerusalem, by people of that country. H.—“We are of yesterday, and we fill all your places.” Tert.

VER. 3. Judge, or “rule” (Judg. viii. 22.) as Christ does over all. C.—Ploughshares. Heb. “scythes,” (H.) or “coulters.” W. Mart. xiv. 34. C.—Learn, &c. The law of Christ is a law of peace; and all his true subjects, as much as lies in them, love and keep peace with all the world. Ch.—They will sustain injuries meekly. 1 Cor. vi. W.—When Christ appeared, the Roman empire enjoyed peace. C.—Aspera tum positis mitescunt secula bellis, &c. Æn. i.

VER. 4. Fig-tree. Such a happiness would not suit the ambitious. Zac. iii. 10. VER. 5. And ever. After the captivity the Gentiles continued to worship idols, and the Jews had a greater aversion for them; but when the gospel was propagated, idols fell into contempt, and the Jewish law was at an end, while heretics were varying continually. The Church alone is stable, and built upon the rock. C.—All such quiet people as walk in the name of the Lord, will keep peace even with those who hate it, (Ps. cxix.) suffering persecution with joy. Heb. x. 34. S. Iren. iv. 67. S. Cyr. &c. W.

VER. 6. Halteth, as the synagogue did, (3 K. xviii. 21.) bringing nothing to the Lord will reign over them in Mount Sion, from this time now and for ever.

8 And thou, O cloudy tower of the flock, of the daughter of Sion, unto thee shall it come: yea, the first power shall come, the kingdom to the daughter of Jerusalem.

9 Now, why art thou drawn together with grief? Hast thou no king in thee, or is thy counsellor perished, because sorrow hath taken thee as a woman in labour?

10 Be in pain and labour, O daughter of Sion, as a woman that bringeth forth: for now shalt thou go out of the city, and shalt dwell in the country, and shalt come even to Babylon, there thou shalt be delivered: there the Lord will redeem thee out of the hand of thy enemies.

11 And now many nations are gathered together against thee, and they say: Let her be stoned: and let our eye look upon Sion.

12 But they have not known the thoughts of the Lord, and have not understood his counsel: because he hath gathered them together as the hay of the floor.

13 Arise, and tread, O daughter of Sion: for I will make thy horn iron, and thy hoofs I will make brass: and thou shalt beat in pieces many peoples, and shalt immolate the spoils of them to the Lord, and their strength to the Lord of the whole earth.

CHAP. V.

The birth of Christ in Bethlehem: his reign and spiritual conquests.

NOW shalt thou be laid waste, O daughter of the robber: they have laid siege against us, with a rod shall they strike the cheek of the judge of Israel.

2 ^e AND THOU, BETHLEHEM Ephrata, art a little one among the thousands of Juda: out of thee shall he come forth, unto me that is to be the ruler in Israel: and his going forth is from the beginning, from the days of eternity.

perfection, (Heb. vii. 19.) while the Gentiles were abandoned to idolatry. From both Christ chose his Church. Acts xxi. 20. &c. C.—The Jews will be at last converted. W.

VER. 7. Remnant, or numerous progeny.—Afflicted. Heb. and Sept. “repu- diated,” (C.) or “cast off.” H.

VER. 8. Cloudy. Heb. “fortress, or ophel,” a tower or wall near the temple. 2 Esd. iii. 27.—Flock. Jerusalem was no better, after the Chaldeans had destroyed it. 4 K. xvii. 9. Yet there Zorobabel, the Machabees, and Christ displayed their power. It was the cradle of the Church. Some take this to refer to Bethlehem, as C. v. 2. C.—Shall it come. Sept. add, “from Babylon.” After the captivity the Jews shall flourish, as the Church shall prove victorious over all her persecutors. H.

VER. 9. No king, after Sedecias was taken. C.—The two tribes shall be led into captivity and released. v. 12. W.

VER. 11. Sion. Let us enter the sanctuary and plunder it. Cambyses was instigated to fall upon the Jews lately returned. Ezech. xxxviii. 11. His rapacious designs were frustrated, as those of persecutors will be. C.

VER. 12. Hay. Prot. “sheaves.” H.—People were thus often trodden to death by oxen. Athen. xii. 5.

VER. 13. Brass. Fear nothing. The Jews did not attack the army of Cam- byses, (Ezech. xxxviii. 21. and xxxix. 10. C.) at least at first. H.—But what God did for them is attributed to them. C.—Immolate. Sept. “devote to the Lord their multitude, and,” &c. Prot. “gain,” (H.) or what spoils they have taken. C.

CHAP. V. VER. 1. Robber. Some understand this of Babylon, which robbed and pillaged the temple of God; others understand it of Jerusalem, by reason of the many rapines and oppressions committed there. Ch.—Heb. “now assemble, O daughter of troops;” Babylon, famous (H.) for soldiers, who will seize Sedecias; (Jer. xxxix. 6. C.) or Jerusalem, noted for rapine. C. iii. Thou shalt be spoiled, yet restored till Bethlehem bring forth Christ, the ruler of the world. W.

VER. 2. Ephrata. This was the ancient name (H.) of Bethlehem, (Gen. xxxv 16.) though some think that it was so called after Caleb's wife. 1 Par. ii. 19.—Art, or “art thou?” &c. which makes it agree with Mat. ii. 4.—Little. Heb. tsahir, (H.) is often rendered “considerable.” Chal.—Thousands: capital cities. Zac. ix. 7. Bethlehem seemed too mean to send forth a ruler over the rest. The 3 Therefore will he give them up even till the time wherein she that travaileth shall bring forth: and the remnant of his brethren shall be converted to the children of Israel.

4 And he shall stand, and feed in the strength of the Lord, in the height of the name of the Lord, his God: and they shall be converted, for now shall he be magnified even to the ends of the earth.

5 And this man shall be our peace, when the Assyrian shall come into our land, and when he shall set his foot in our houses: and we shall raise against him seven shepherds, and eight principal men.

6 And they shall feed the land of Assyria with the sword, and the land of Nemrod with the spears thereof: and he shall deliver us from the Assyrian when he shall come into our land, and when he shall tread in our borders.

7 And the remnant of Jacob shall be in the midst of many peoples, as a dew from the Lord, and as drops upon the grass, which waiteth not for man, nor tarrieth for the children of men.

8 And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles, in the midst of many peoples, as a lion among the beasts of the forests, and as a young lion among the flocks of sheep: who, when he shall go through, and tread down, and take, there is none to deliver.

9 Thy hand shall be lifted up over thy enemies, and all thy enemies shall be cut off.

10 And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord, that I will take away thy horses out of the midst of thee, and will destroy thy chariots.

11 And I will destroy the cities of thy land, and will throw down all thy strong holds, and I will take away sorceries out of thy hand, and there shall be no divinations in thee.

12 And I will destroy thy graven things, and thy statues, out of the midst of thee: and thou shalt no more adore the works of thy hands.

13 And I will pluck up thy groves out of the midst of thee: and will crush thy cities.

14 And I will execute vengeance in wrath, and in indignation, among all the nations that have not given ear.

CHAP. VI.

God expostulates with the Jews for their ingratitude and sins: for which they shall be punished.

HEAR ye what the Lord saith: Arise, contend thou in judgment against the mountains, and let the hills hear thy voice.

2 Let the mountains hear the judgment of the Lord, and the strong foundations of the earth: for the Lord will enter into judgment with his people, and he will plead against Israel.

3 ^aO my people, what have I done to thee, or in what have I molested thee? answer thou me.

4 For I brought thee up out of the land of Egypt, and delivered thee out of the house of slaves: and I sent before thy face Moses, and Aaron, and Mary?

5 ^bO my people, remember, I pray thee, what Balach, the king of Moab, purposed: and what Balaam, the son of Beor, answered him, from Setim to Galgal, that thou mightest know the justices of the Lord.

6 What shall I offer to the Lord that is worthy?

^a Jerom. ii. 5.—^b Num. xxii. 23.

ancient Jews clearly understood this of the Messias. The moderns explain it of Zorobabel: but the expressions are too grand for him. C.—S. Jerom accuses the Jews of having designedly omitted some cities, (Jos. xv. 60.) because Bethlehem Ephrata is one. It is nowhere else thus described. Kennicott.—The priests substituted land of Juda instead of Ephrata. Mat. ii. H.—The evangelist recites their words, to shew their negligence in quoting Scripture. "Yet some assert, that in almost all quotations from the Old Test. the order or words are changed, and sometimes the sense, . . . as the apostles did not write out of a book, but trusted to memory, which is sometimes fallacious." S. Jer.—This principle would be very dangerous, (Simon. Crit. i. 17.) and we should attribute the variation to other causes, as the sacred penman could not mistake. H.—Bethlehem, though a little town, was rendered more illustrious than many others by the birth of Christ. W.—Forth. That is, he who as man shall be born in thee, as God was born of his Father from all eternity. Ch.—His coming was also long before announced. Orig. c. Cels. i.—But the former sense is preferable. C.—Eternity. These expressions singly imply a long time; (Ex. xxi. 6. Ps. xxiii. 7.) but when doubled, seculum seculi, &c. they must be understood of an absolute eternity, which Christ enjoyed with the Father and the Holy Ghost; though, in his human nature, he was born in time. W.

VER. 3. Forth, till Babylon let them go; (Sanct.) or the Jews shall enjoy the land till Christ come; (S. Jer. exp. ii.) or he will leave them in their blindness till the nations shall have received the gospel, when there shall be one fold. Jo. x. 16. Rom. xi. 25.

VER. 4. Earth. Christ shall be glorified, governing his Church. The Jews shall be respected as a people singularly favoured.

VER. 5. Peace. This regards Christ and not Zorobabel. C.—Assyrian. That is, the persecutors of the Church; who are here called Assyrians by the prophet, because the Assyrians were at that time the chief enemies and persecutors of the people of God. Ch.—The Persians held the empire which had belonged to Babylon and to Assyria, and was founded by Nemrod. Gen. x. 8. C.—Seven, &c. The pastors of God's Church, and the defenders of the faith. The number seven, in Scripture, is taken to signify many; and when eight is joined with it, we are to understand that the number will be very great. Ch.—See Eccle. xi. 2. Ruth iv. 16. C.—Christ always preserves a great number, notwithstanding the attacks of persecutors, enabling bishops to feed them with a power which the people must reverence. Heb. xiii. W.—Eight. Eschylus places Artaphanes between Smerdis and Hystaspes, the former of whom was one of the seven magi, and the latter one of the seven conspirators, (C.) or rather chief princes, who attacked the usurper. H.—They always retained great privileges, so that they seemed all to govern. V. Max. ix. 2. Herod. iii. 65. See 1 Esd. iv. 7. Est. i. 14. where we find that the kings did nothing of importance without their seven counsellors. C.—Principal. Sept. "bites (Sym. Christ's) of men," or people of the old as well as of the new law. S. Jer.

VER. 6. They. Hystaspes first laid a tax of money on the Persians, who hence styled him a merchant. Herod. iii. 89.—He was severe, and often at war. C.—Feed. They shall make spiritual conquests in the lands of their persecutors, with the sword of the Spirit which is the word of God. Eph. vi. 17. Ch.—With, &c. Sept. "in the ditch." Th. &c. "gates," where sentence was given.—Dord-ra. Seven or eight princes have taken the place of Cambyzes, who had invaded Judea. v. 5. C.

VER. 7. Jacob; viz the apostles, and the first preachers of the Jewish nation, whose doctrine, like dew, shall make the plants of the converted Gentiles grow up, without waiting for any man to cultivate them by human learning. Ch.—Under Hystaspes, the husband of Esther, the Jews enjoyed rest, and Providence protected them. C.

VER. 8. Lion. This denotes the fortitude of these first preachers, and their success in their spiritual enterprises. Ch.—The Jews, by leave of Assuerus, defended themselves; and the Machabees became terrible. Est. ix. and 1 Mac. iii.

4. The power of the latter was established, while the efforts of Eupator and of other Syrian persecutors for sixty years, down to Zebina, proved fruitless or destructive to themselves. C.

VER. 10. Horses. Some understand this, and all that follows to the end of the chapter, as addressed to the enemies of the Church. But it may as well be understood of the converts to the Church, who should no longer put their trust in any of these things. Ch.—God will protect his people, so that horses and fortifications will be unnecessary.

VER. 11. Sorceries. The Jews after their return abstained more from such things; but not like the Church of Christ, in which idols and dealings with the devil have never been tolerated.

VER. 14. Ear, to the admonitions of the prophets. Hence Egypt, &c. were justly punished.

CHAP. VI. VER. 1. The mountains, &c. That is, the princes, the great ones of the people. Ch.—But Heb. intimates real mountains, which had witnessed the impiety of the people, (C.) and had been defiled with their altars, &c. Prot. "Contend thou before the," &c. (H.) as God's advocate. He condescends to justify his conduct towards Israel. Is. iii. 13. C.—He had shewn them great favours, but they were ungrateful. Off. for good Frid. W.

VER. 4. Slaves. Their prison, in Algiers, &c. is dreadful. C.—Mary. She taught the women. Chal. Theod.—She was a figure of Christ's mother, as Moses and Aaron were of himself. W.

VER. 5. From Setim to Galgal. He puts them in mind of the favour he did them, in not suffering them to be quite destroyed by the evil purpose of Balach and the wicked counsel of Balaam; and then gives them a hint of the wonders he wrought in order to bring them into the land of promise, by stopping the course of the Jordan, in their march from Setim to Galgal. Ch.—Galgala, "limits," may denote those of the Jordan, between which river and Setim Israel was encamped. Num. xxii. and xxv.—Justices. Sym. "mercies." C.

VER. 6. What shall I offer, &c. This is spoken in the person of the people, (1141) wherewith shall I kneel before the high God? shall I offer holocausts unto him, and calves of a year old?

7 May the Lord be appeased with thousands of rams, or with many thousands of fat he-goats? shall I give my first-born for my wickedness, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?

8 I will shew thee, O man, what is good, and what the Lord requireth of thee: * Verily to do judgment, and to love mercy, and to walk solicitous with thy God.

9 The voice of the Lord crieth to the city, and salvation shall be to them that fear thy name: hear, O ye tribes, and who shall approve it?

10 As yet there is a fire in the house of the wicked, the treasures of iniquity, and a scant measure full of wrath.

11 Shall I justify wicked balances, and the deceitful weights of the bag?

12 By which her rich men were filled with iniquity, and the inhabitants thereof have spoken lies, and their tongue was deceitful in their mouth.

13 And I therefore began to strike thee with desolation for thy sins.

14 Thou shalt eat, but shalt not be filled: and thy humiliation shall be in the midst of thee: and thou shalt take hold, but shalt not save: and those whom thou shalt save, I will give up to the sword.

15 ^bThou shalt sow, but shalt not reap: thou shalt tread the olives, but shalt not be anointed with the oil: and the new wine, but shalt not drink the wine.

16 For thou hast kept the statutes of Amri, and all the works of the house of Achab: and thou hast walked according to their wills, that I should make thee a desolation, and the inhabitants thereof a hissing, and you shall bear the reproach of my people.

CHAP. VII.

The prophet laments, that notwithstanding all his preaching, the generality are still corrupt in their manners: therefore their desolation is at hand: but they shall be restored again and prosper; and all mankind shall be redeemed by Christ.

WO is me, for I am become as one that gleaneth in autumn the grapes of the vintage:

CHAP. VII. VER. 1. Figs, which are the worst. S. Jer. S. Amb. in Lu. vii. 8. Yet they were eagerly sought after, before the other figs came to maturity. They had escaped the rigours of winter. Such Christ (C.) seemed to expect. Mark xi. 13.

there is no cluster to eat, my soul desired the first ripe figs.

2 The holy man is perished out of the earth, and there is none upright among men: they all lie in wait for blood, every one hunteth his brother to death.

3 The evil of their hands they call good: the prince requireth, and the judge is for giving: and the great man hath uttered the desire of his soul, and they have troubled it.

4 He that is best among them, is as a brier: and he that is righteous, as the thorn of the hedge. The day of thy inspection, thy visitation cometh: now shall be their destruction.

8 Rejoice not, thou my enemy, over me, because I am fallen: I shall arise, when I sit in darkness, the Lord is my light.

9 I will bear the wrath of the Lord, because I have sinned against him: until he judge my cause, and execute judgment for me: he will bring me forth into the light, I shall behold his justice.

10 And my enemy shall behold, and she shall be covered with shame, who saith to me: Where is the Lord thy God? my eyes shall look down upon her: now shall she be trodden under foot as the mire of the streets.

11 The day shall come, that thy walls may be built up: in that day shall the law be far removed.

THE PROPHECY OF NAHUM.

NAHUM, whose name signifies a comforter, was a native of Eleese, or Eleesai, supposed to be a little town in Galilee. He prophesied after the ten tribes were carried into captivity, and foretold the utter destruction of Ninive by the Babylonians and Medes; which happened in the reign of Josias, (Ch.) in the sixteenth year, when the father of Nabuchodonosor and the grandfather of Cyrus entirely ruined Ninive, and divided the empire between them, (C.) A. 3378. Usher. Tob. xiv. 16.—Nahum was probably on the spot when he proclaimed this beautiful prediction, which yields not to any work of profane authors. He might have been carried captive by Salmanasar, as he alludes to the captivity of Israel and to the blasphemies of Sennacherib. We cannot, therefore, place his prophecy before the fifteenth year of Ezechias. C.—He appeared about fifty years after Jonas, when the Ninivites had relapsed, and were destroyed in the space of one hundred and thirty-five years, as a figure of the subversion of idolatry by Christ's preaching the gospel of peace. CHAP. I. VER. 1. Burden, or threat. W.—Sept. "assumption," (H.) when the prophet saw in spirit the impending ruin. Theod.—Allegorically, Nahum is "the comforter" of the just, shewing that God will avenge their cause against Ninive, "the beautiful," and destroy the world, (kosmos, which also means "beautiful,") after which the saints shall reign in eternal glory. W.—We have described Ninive. Jonas i. C.—It was overturned first A. 3267, and again A. 3378. Usher.—Elcesite. Some think that Elcesai was the father of Nahum; but most suppose that it was a village of Galilee. C.

God sends his armies against Ninive to destroy it.

HE is come up that shall destroy before thy face, that shall keep the siege: watch the way, fortify thy loins, strengthen thy power exceedingly.

VER. 2. Pride, &c. He hath punished Jacob for his pride; and therefore Ninive must not expect to escape. Or else, rendering the pride of Jacob means rewarding, that is, punishing Ninive for the pride they exercised against Jacob. This God will now resent, (C.) though he justly chastised his people by them. H.

VER. 4. Streets. The Ninivites are disordered at the enemy's approach. S. Jer.

VER. 5. Muster. Lit. "remember" (H.) the ancient heroes, Salmansar, &c. C.—Stumble, by running hastily on. Ch.—Prepared to defend the city. H.—All this represents a city surprised. It attempts to defend itself; but God renders all efforts vain. C.

CHAP. III.

The miserable destruction of Ninive.

WO^b to thee, O city of blood, all full of lies and violence: rapine shall not depart from thee.

2 The noise of the whip, and the noise of the rattling of the wheels, and of the neighing horse, and of the running chariot, and of the horsemen coming up:

3 And of the shining sword, and of the glittering spear, and of a multitude slain, and of a grievous destruction: and there is no end of carcasses, and they shall fall down on their dead bodies.

4 Because of the multitude of the fornications of the harlot that was beautiful and agreeable, and that made use of witchcraft, that sold nations through her fornications, and families through her witchcrafts.

5 Behold I come against thee, saith the Lord of hosts: *and I will discover thy shame to thy face, and will shew thy nakedness to the nations, and thy shame to kingdoms.

6 And I will cast abominations upon thee, and will disgrace thee, and will make an example of thee.

7 And it shall come to pass that every one that shall see thee, shall flee from thee, and shall say: Ninive is laid waste: who shall bemoan thee? whence shall I seek a comforter for thee?

8 Art thou better than the populous Alexandria, that dwelleth among the rivers? waters are round about it: the sea is its riches: the waters are its walls.

9 Ethiopia and Egypt were the strength thereof, and there is no end: Africa and the Libyans were thy helpers.

* Micah vii. 11.—^b Ezech. xxiv. 9.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. Blood. Nemrod established his power by shedding blood. Gen. x. Ninus, who built Ninive, and his successors were also bloody. After 1200 years the empire decayed under Sardanapalus, as historians agree. Yet it continued longer, according to the Scriptures and Ribera, till the Chaldeans destroyed it, when it had subsisted about 1440 years. It was even possessed of great power after the return of the Jews from Babylon, as Eua. S. Aug. V. Bede, &c. write. W.—Depart. Sept. "be touched." H.—He continues the metaphor of the lion seizing its prey. Here the last chapter should end.

VER. 2. The noise. He has described the forces of Ninive, now he specifies those of Cyaxares and Nabopolassar.

VER. 4. Harlot. Ninive is cruel and impure, engaging others in idolatry and witchcraft. C.—Sold, forcing them to adopt her manners. Rom. vii. 14.

VER. 8. Populous Alexandria. No-Amon. A populous city of Egypt, destroyed by the Chaldeans, and afterwards rebuilt by Alexander, and called Alexandria. Others suppose No-Amon to be the same as Diospolis. Ch.—This seems preferable, as it was amidst waters and near the Mediterranean. Profane historians take little notice of it, as it was greatly reduced. Bochart fixes upon Memphis, others upon the temple of Ammon. But these were too remote from the sea. C.—The former was however near the Nile, (H.) which is sometimes 11 Therefore thou also shalt be made drunk, and shalt be despised: and thou shalt seek help from the enemy.

12 All thy strong holds shall be like fig-trees with their green figs: if they be shaken, they shall fall into the mouth of the eater.

13 Behold thy people in the midst of thee are women: the gates of thy land shall be set wide open to thy enemies, the fire shall devour thy bars.

14 Draw thee water for the siege, build up thy bulwarks: go into the clay, and tread, work it and make brick.

15 There shall the fire devour thee: thou shalt perish by the sword, it shall devour thee like the bruchus: assemble together like the bruchus, make thyself many like the locust.

16 Thou hast multiplied thy merchandises above the stars of heaven: the bruchus hath spread himself and flew away.

17 Thy guards are like the locusts: and thy little ones like the locusts of locusts which swarm on the hedges in the day of cold: the sun arose, and they flew away, and their place was not known where they were.

18 Thy shepherds have slumbered, O king of Assyria, thy princes shall be buried: thy people are hid in the mountains, and there is none to gather them together.

THE PROPHECY OF HABACUC.

HABACUC was a native of Bezoeher, and prophesied in Juda some time before the invasion of the Chaldeans, which he foretold. He lived to see this prophecy fulfilled, and for many years after, according to the general opinion, which supposes him to be the same that was brought by the angel to Daniel, in Babylon. Dan. xvi. Ch.—He might very well live to see the captives return, as only sixty-six years elapsed from the first of Joakim, when he began to prophesy, till that event. He retired at the approach of the Chaldees, and afterwards employed himself in agricultural pursuits. C.—The sins of Juda, the coming of the Chaldees, and the relaxation of the captivity are specified; and in the canticle, the appearance of Christ, the last judgment and eternity, (W.) are mentioned in the most sublime style. II.

CHAP. I.

The prophet complains of the wickedness of the people; God reveals to him the vengeance he is going to take of them by the Chaldeans.

THE burden *that Habacuc, the prophet, saw.
2 How long, O Lord, shall I cry, and thou wilt not hear? shall I cry out to thee, suffering violence, and thou wilt not save?

3 Why hast thou shewn me iniquity and grievance, to see rapine and injustice before me? and there is a judgment, but opposition is more powerful.

4 Therefore the law is torn in pieces, and judgment cometh not to the end: because the wicked prevaieth against the just, therefore wrong judgment goeth forth.

5 ^b Behold ye among the nations, and see: wonder, and be astonished: for a work is done in your days, which no man will believe when it shall be told.

6 For behold, I will raise up the Chaldeans, a bitter and swift nation, marching upon the breadth of the earth, to possess the dwelling places that are not their own.

7 They are dreadful and terrible: from themselves shall their judgment, and their burden proceed.

8 Their horses are lighter than leopards, and swifter than evening wolves: and their horsemen shall be spread abroad: for their horsemen shall come from afar, they shall fly as an eagle that maketh haste to eat.

9 They shall all come to the prey, their face is like a burning wind: and they shall gather together captives as the sand.

CHAP. I. VER. 1. Burden. Such prophecies more especially are called burdens, as threaten grievous evils and punishments. Ch.—He says not against whom, because the menace is directed to persecutors in general. W.

VER. 2. Says. Some think that he expresses the sentiments of the weak, like David, (Pa. lxxii. 2,) or what he had formerly entertained. The language of the prophets is very bold. Ex. xxxii. 32. Job iiii. 3. Jer. xx. 14. Jon. iv. 8. C.

VER. 3. Opposition. Sept. "the judge receives" bribes. H.—Such was the state of Juda after Josias. Jer. xxi. 12.

VER. 5. Among Sept. ye despisers. S. Paul nearly agrees with this version. Acts xiii. 41. The copies vary, as the Heb. has done. C.—The apostle gives the mystical sense; the literal is very obscure. W.—God answers the prophet's complaints, and shews that the Chaldeans shall punish the guilty, and afterwards be themselves chastised.

VER. 6. Chaldeans. Nabuchodonosor was the first of this nation who attacked Joakim, and having conquered all as far as the Nile, returned to succeed Nabopolassar. He afterwards came upon Jechonias and Sedecias, &c. The prophet might have all this in view, particularly the first invasion. C.—Bitter; warlike, as all the Gr. historians remark. S. Jer.—The Chaldees were not yet arrived at such greatness, and of course this is not the Habacuc specified Dan. xiv. W.—Yet the same prophet might foresee it. H.

VER. 7. Proceed. They admit no authority but their own. C.—This pride will prove their ruin. H.

VER. 8. Leopards: the swiftest quadrupeds. C.—The horses near the Euphrates were swift and warlike. Oppian.—Swifter. Heb. "sharper" (H.) in seeing, even when there is no moon. Elian x. 26.—Evening. Sept. "Arabian." II.—It may denote the hyena of that country, which is most terrible. Guevar.

VER. 9. Burning. Heb. also, "eastern," which is hot, and raises the sand of Arabia so as to be very detrimental. C.—Out of 2,000 travellers from Mecca to Aleppo, only 'twenty-nine escaped such a storm, or kamsin, in that vast desert, (1146)

10 And their prince shall triumph over kings, and princes shall be his laughingstock: and he shall laugh at every strong hold, and shall cast up a mount, and shall take it.

11 Then shall his spirit be changed, and he shall pass, and fall: this is his strength of his god.

12 Wast thou not from the beginning, O Lord, my God, my holy one, and we shall not die? Lord, thou hast appointed him for judgment: and made him strong for correction.

13 Thy eyes are too pure to behold evil, and thou canst not look on iniquity. Why lookest thou upon them that do unjust things, and holdest thy peace when the wicked devoureth the man that is more just than himself?

14 And thou wilt make men as the fishes of the sea, and as the creeping things that have no ruler.

15 He lifted up all them with his hook, he drew them in his drag, and gathered them into his net: for this he will be glad and rejoice.

16 Therefore will he offer victims to his drag, and he will sacrifice to his net: because through them his portion is made fat, and his meat dainty.

17 For this cause, therefore, he spreadeth his net, and will not spare continually to slay the nations.

CHAP. II.

The prophet is admonished to wait with faith. The enemies of God's people shall assuredly be punished.

I WILL stand upon my watch, and fix my foot upon the tower: and I will watch, to see what will be

Aug. 23, 1813. Rock. 312. H.—Sand, from various countries. Is. xx. 4. Beros cited c. Ap. i.

VER. 10. Prince, or "it," the nation. v. 10. Heb. "They," &c.—Laughing-stock, (ridicule.) Nabuchodonosor raised or deposed princes as in jest. H.—Sennacherib's officers were or had been kings. Is. x. 3.—Mount. Thus cities were chiefly taken. Ezech. iv. 1. C.

VER. 11. Spirit; viz. the spirit of the king of Babylon. It alludes to the judgment of God upon Nabuchodonosor, recorded Dan. iv. and to the speedy fall of the Chaldean empire. Ch.—It shall yield to the Medes, &c. after conquering the Assyrians. W.—Fall Heb. "sin." Sept. "obtain pardon."—God: "idol" Chal. "This is the strength of my God." Sept. God forced the proud king to confess that his great exploits were not to be attributed to himself or to idols. H.

VER. 12. Die! We hope that this scourge will not entirely ruin us.—Correction, like Pharaoh. Ex. ix. 16.

VER. 13. Look, with approbation (C.) or connivance.

VER. 14. Ruler. People are subdued by Nabuchodonosor. H.—They make little resistance. C.

VER. 16. Drag, adoring his own arms and prowess, (Sanct.) like Mezentius and Capaneus:

—Dextra mihi Deus, (Æn. x.)

Te voco, te solum, superum contemptor, adoro. Stat. x.

—Guevare thinks fishes were adored, as they were among the Syrians. Nabuchodonosor attributed all to his own genius, or to Bel, whose statue he set up. Dan. iii. C.—Victorious nations thus honour themselves and not God.

VER. 17. Nations, of every country. W.—Few have been so much addicted to war as Nabuchodonosor. C.

CHAP. II. VER. 1. Will stand, &c. Waiting to see what the Lord will answer to my complaint, viz. that the Chaldeans, who are worse than the Jews, said to me, and what I may answer to him that reproveth me.

2 And the Lord answered me, and said: Write the vision, and make it plain upon tables: that he that readeth it may run over it.

3 For as yet the vision is far off, and it shall appear at the end, and shall not lie: if it make any delay, wait for it: for it shall surely come, and it shall not be slack.

4 Behold, he that is unbelieving, his soul shall not be right in himself: *but the just shall live in his faith.

5 And as wine deceiveth him that drinketh it: so shall the proud man be, and he shall not be honoured: who hath enlarged his desire like hell: and is himself like death, and he is never satisfied: but will gather together unto him all nations, and heap together unto him all people.

6 Shall not all these take up a parable against him, and a dark speech concerning him: and it shall be said: Wo to him that heapeth together that which is not his own? how long also doth he load himself with thick clay?

7 Shall they not rise up suddenly that shall bite thee: and they be stirred up that shall tear thee, and thou shalt be a spoil to them?

8 Because thou hast spoiled many nations, all that shall be left of the people shall spoil thee: because of men's blood, and for the iniquity of the land, of the city, and of all that dwell therein.

9 Wo to him that gathereth together an evil covetousness to his house, that his nest may be on high, and thinketh he may be delivered out of the hand of evil.

10 Thou hast devised confusion to thy house, thou hast cut off many people, and thy soul hath sinned.

11 For the stone shall cry out of the wall: and the timber that is between the joints of the building, shall answer.

12 ^b Wo to him that buildeth a town with blood, and prepareth a city by iniquity.

13 Are not these things from the Lord of hosts? for the people shall labour in a great fire: and the nations in vain, and they shall faint.

14 For the earth shall be filled, that men may know the glory of the Lord, as waters covering the sea.

15 Wo to him that giveth drink to his friend, and presenteth his gall, and maketh him drunk, that he may behold his nakedness.

16 Thou art filled with shame instead of glory: drink thou also, and fall fast asleep: the cup of the right hand of the Lord shall compass thee, and shameful vomiting shall be on thy glory.

17 For the iniquity of Libanus shall cover thee, and the ravaging of beasts shall terrify them, because of the blood of men, and the iniquity of the land, and of the city, and of all that dwell therein.

and who attribute all their success to their own strength, or to their idols, should nevertheless prevail over the people of the Lord. The Lord's answer is, that the prophet must wait with patience and faith; that all should be set right in due time; and the enemies of God and his people punished according to their deserts. Ch.—The prophet speaks, waiting for a further revelation, (W.) not seeing before the reasons of Providence in permitting the wicked to prosper. H. Ps. lxxii. 17.—He is informed that the kings of Babylon, (v. 5. 8.) Judah, (v. 11) Tyre, (v. 14) and Egypt, (v. 18) and all who trust in idols, shall suffer. V. 19. Hereupon the judgments of God are pronounced just. C.—Tower. Aq. &c. "circle." The ancient Jews say Habacuc formed a circle, out of which he would not stir till he was satisfied, (Kimchi) as Popilius did. V. Max. vi. 4. Dan. xi. 29. C.

VER. 2. Over it. It shall be so legible (H.) any one may hear or take a copy. C. VER. 3. Slack. That which happens at the time fixed is not. W.—Heb. "the vision is for an appointed time." Habacuc might live to see the conquest and downfall of Nabuchodonosor. Many think that the first and second coming of Christ (Heb. x. 36. Rom. i. 17.) are here insinuated, as the dominion of the aforesaid king represented the slavery of mankind under the devil, and the liberty granted by Cyrus was a type of their redemption. The felicity of the Jews is the last event which the prophet specifies, and this is here the literal sense. S. Cyr. C.

VER. 4. Unbelieving. Prot. "lifted up." H.—The king's vain projects shall fail. Sept. Rom. "If he withdraw himself, my soul shall not have pleasure in him. But my just man shall live by my faith." Others read with S. Paul, "my just man shall live by faith." Heb. x. 38. C.—The source of content arises from faith, (without which this life would be a sort of death, as the apostle and S. Aug. Trin. xiv. 12. &c. observe) because it is the beginning of life by grace, which the works of the law could not otherwise confer. Gal. iii. W.—The Heb. will admit the sense of the Sept. and we ought rather to shew this in passages which the authors of the New Testament quote, than to excuse them. Here their version seems preferable to that given by moderns, ecce elata est, non recta anima ejus in eo, the drift of which who can guess? Beza has acted unfairly, "at si quis se subdlexerit non est gratum animo meo;" whereas the text speaks of the "just man," as Theophylact. observes. "Hence all who know his theological opinions, may see how suspicious his translation must be accounted." Pearson. pref. Sept. B.

VER. 5. As wine deceiveth, &c. viz. by affording only a short passing pleasure, followed by the evils and disgrace that are the usual consequences of drunkenness: so shall it be with the proud enemies of the people of God, whose success affordeth them only a momentary pleasure, followed by innumerable and everlasting evils. Ch.—Heb. "but as the proud man prevaricates in wine, he shall not succeed." Baltassar's reign was short. Vat. De Dieu.—Nabuchodonosor saw himself reduced to the meanest condition.—Hell. He is insatiable. Prov. xxx. 16. C.—Estuat infelix (Alex.) augusto limite mundi. Juv. x.

VER. 6. Parable. Lit. "marvel," or wonderful speech; parabolam.—Dark. Prot. "a taunting proverb;" (H.) when Nabuchodonosor became like a beast, and his empire was soon after divided. C.—Clay. Ill-gotten goods, that like mire both burden and defile the soul. Ch.—Gold and silver are only a sort of earth. Job xxvi. 16. Zac. ix. 2. Habacuc does not even name riches, out of contempt. Some think (C.) that he alludes to the grave. People prayed for their deceased friend: Sit tibi terra levis. Drus.

VER. 7. Bite, like worms in the grave. Cyrus will overturn the kingdom The Rabbinis pretend that Evilmerodac caused his father's body to be cut in pieces for the crows, lest he should return again. C.

VER. 8. Blood. For cruelty, avarice, &c. the Chaldees shall be ruined. W.—City, different from that land of the Arabs, who dwell under tents. This city may denote Jerusalem, Babylon, &c.

VER. 9. Wo. This is commonly understood of Nabuchodonosor; but it seems rather to designate Joakim, (Jer. xxii. 13.) whose injustice scandalized the prophet. C.

VER. 10. House. Thinking to establish thy family for ever, thou hast proved its ruin by avarice, &c. W.—This is applied to Nabuchodonosor, but may be as well explained of Joakim, who oppressed his people, and was cast out like an ass. C.

VER. 11. Timber. Heb. "caphis (Sept. the insect sawbore) from the wood shall answer." H.—The signification of the Heb. term is unknown. It was customary to place beams of wood after some courses of stone, to strengthen the building. 3 K. vi. 36. C.—The crimes were so crying, that if men were silent the very stones would publish them. M.

VER. 12. Wo. This might be explained of Nabuchodonosor; but we rather understand the king of Tyre, whose pride was intolerable. Ezec. xxviii. It seems useless to repeat so often the same threats against one king. C.

VER. 13. Things, &c. That is, shall not these punishments that are here recorded come from the Lord upon him that is guilty of such crimes? (Ch.) or, are not these riches from the Lord? The king of Tyre thought himself a god. Ezec. xxviii. 2. C.—People; enemies of God's people. Ch.—The riches of the Tyrians shall perish, so that the troops of Nabuchodonosor shall find nothing worth their trouble. Thus all were justly punished.

VER. 14. Sea. The land and naval forces attacked Tyre. C.—Vast multitudes came against Babylon. M.—The punishment of the wicked will cause many to adore and to fear the Lord. H.

VER. 15. Wo. All this may refer to the king of Egypt, who deceived Joakim, Sedecias, &c. C.—Sept. "O, he who giveth drink to his neighbour, a cruel overthrew, and who maketh," &c.—Nakedness. Sept. "cavernus," deluding him, so that his places of retreat become useless. H.—The Jews relate that Sedecias was intoxicated, and then acted with indecency. S. Jer.—But these accounts deserve little credit.

VER. 16. Glory. Egypt shall suffer at last. Is. xix. 14. Jer. xliii. &c. It was customary to hand the cup about. Jer. xxv. 17. Mat. xxvi. 27. C.

VER. 17. Libanus. That is, the iniquity committed by the Chaldeans against the temple of God, signified here by the name of Libanus. Ch.—Egypt had persuaded the governor of Coelosyria and the Jews to revolt, and then abandoned them.—Beasts, which were adored in Egypt. Those who explain all of the Chaldees are much perplexed, understanding the army of Cyrus, or the oppressed nations, or subjects to be meant. C.—And of. Heb. "land of the city," as v. 8.

VER. 18. Thing, Prot. falsely, "image." H.—This is addressed to all idolaters.

18 What doth the graven thing avail, because the maker thereof hath graven it, a molten, and a false image? because the forger thereof hath trusted in a thing of his own forging, to make dumb idols.

19 Wo to him that saith to wood, Awake: to the dumb stone, Arise: can it teach? Behold, it is laid over with gold, and silver, and there is no spirit in the bowels thereof.

20 *But the Lord is in his holy temple: let all the earth keep silence before him.

CHAP. III.

1. A PRAYER OF HABACUC, THE PROPHET, FOR IGNORANCES.

2 O LORD, I have heard thy hearing, and was afraid.

O Lord, thy work, in the midst of the years bring it to life:

In the midst of the years thou shalt make it known: when thou art angry, thou wilt remember mercy.

3 God will come from the south, and the holy one from Mount Pharan:

* Ps. x. 5.

VER. 20. Temple. Heb. "palace," or heaven. House is generally put for the temple.—Silence, out of respect, &c. The guards of the eastern princes observe the utmost silence and modesty. God is very different from idols. He is the arbiter of life and death. C.—Silence often denotes subjection. 1 Mac. i. 3. M.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. For ignorances. That is, for the sins of his people. In the Hebrew it is shignoth: which some take to signify a musical instrument, or tune, with which this sublime prayer and canticle was to be sung. Ch.—The term is omitted in several Latin MSS. The precise import cannot be ascertained; yet it seems to imply a song of comfort. C.—Sept. "with a canticle." H.—S. Jerom follows Aq. Sym. and the 5. edit. Theodot. has "for voluntary" transgressions. C.—All sins proceed in some degree from ignorance, (W.) and are all the effects of free-will. H.—The prophet prays to be freed from sin, and foretells the coming of Christ, &c. W.—The Fathers apply this canticle to Him, as the Church herself does in her office. We cannot go astray, following such guides. Yet some think that an allusion is made to the return from captivity, and from Egypt, which were noble figures of the world's redemption. The prophet concludes with adoring the ways of God, (C.) which at first he had not comprehended. H.—He is astonished at God's mercy, in becoming incarnate for man's sake. W.

VER. 2. Thy hearing, &c. That is, thy oracles, the great and wonderful things thou hast revealed to me: and I was struck with a reverential fear and awe. Ch.—I saw that the unjust would not escape. C.—Work. The great work of the redemption of man, which thou wilt bring to life and light in the midst of the years, when our calamities and miseries shall be at their height. Ch.—Years, at the time appointed. W.—Sept. read, "Lord, I considered thy works, and was astonished; in the midst of two living creatures, or lives, thou shalt be known," (H.) or found, between an ox and an ass, as the Church has it. Nat. and Circumc. W.—Christ appeared when the world was most disolate. M.—The tradition of two animals being near the crib where he was born, is not of earlier date than about the fifth century. Some explain this of the Father between the Son and the Holy Ghost; others of Christ between the thieves, or the two testaments, or collecting his Church from Jews and Gentiles, &c. Sanct. C.—Moderns agree with S. Jerom's version. The prophet begs that God would perform his ancient miracles in his days, (C.) by relieving the captives, as he had formerly delivered their ancestors. H.—Make. Heb. and Sept. "when the years approach, thou shalt be made known; when the time shall come, thou shalt be manifested; when my soul shall be troubled, in wrath thou," &c. H.—God never shuts the gate of mercy to the penitent. Nah. i. 3. C.

VER. 3. South. God himself will come to give us his law, and to conduct us into the true land of promise; as heretofore he came from the south, (in the Heb. Teman) and from Mount Pharan, to give his law to his people in the desert. See Deut. xxxiii. 2. Ch.—Sept. render, "the shady and thick mount, Diapsalma." S. Jerom, Pharan semper. Heb. Sela. Ps. ix. W.—The term seems to denote a pause. There might be many in the same canticle, (C.) as we find three here, (v. 9. 13) and many placed at irregular distances in the Psalms. H.—The Hebrews had long sojourned in the Stony Arabia, under the guidance of the Lord. We should render in the past time to v. 16. C.—Christ was born (H.) at Bethlehem, to the south of Jerusalem, (W.) and had given the law, as a Jew interpreted this passage to S. Jerom. He was probably a convert. H.

VER. 4. Horns, &c. That is, strength and power, which by a Heb. phrase are called horns: or beams of light, which come forth from his hands: or it may allude to the cross, in the horns of which the hands of Christ were fastened, where his strength was hidden, by which he overcame the world, and drove out death and the devil. Ch.—Horns may also designate the nails, the prints of which remained in our Saviour's hands after his glorious resurrection. H.—God appeared hurling his thunderbolts (v. 11. Ps. xvii. 16. C.) with a fiery law in his right hand, all shining with glory. Ex. xix. 18. and xxxiv. 29. Deut. v. 22. H.—Sinai seemed to be all on fire. Nothing can resist lightning. C.—Pulmine terres. En. i.—Hid, Sept. "and he has placed the strong love of his power," (H.) Jesus Christ, who has given his life for us. C.

His glory covered the heavens, and the earth is full of his praise.

4 His brightness shall be as the light: horns are in his hands:

There is his strength hid: 5 Death shall go before his face.

And the devil shall go forth before his feet.

6 He stood and measured the earth.

He beheld, and melted the nations: and the ancient mountains were crushed to pieces.

The hills of the world were bowed down by the journeys of his eternity.

7 I saw the tents of Ethiopia for their iniquity, the curtains of the land of Madian shall be troubled.

8 Wast thou angry, O Lord, with the rivers? or was thy wrath upon the rivers? or thy indignation in the sea?

Who wilt ride upon thy horses: and thy chariots are salvation.

9 Thou wilt surely take up thy bow: according to the oaths which thou hast spoken to the tribes.

Thou wilt divide the rivers of the earth.

VER. 5. Death, &c. Both death and the devil shall be the executioners of his justice against his enemies; as they were heretofore against the Egyptians and Chanaanites. Ch.—Heb. daber, (H.) according to the different pronunciation, is rendered "the word" by the Sept. and Theo.; "the plague," by Aquila, &c. After Christ was baptized, the devil came to tempt him. S. Jer.—Devil. Heb. resheph, (H.) or "bird," (Sym. &c.) means "creeping on the belly," as is explained by the Jews of the devil, who tempted our first parents. S. Jer.—Moderns (H.) follow the Chal. and understand the carbuncle. C.—Prot. "burning coals:" marg. "diseases," (H.) resembling the pestilence. God destroyed his enemies and the murmuring Hebrews. C.—Sept. "and it (the word) shall go out into the fields behind his feet." God's will shall be published in the field of the world, (H.) when the gospel shall be preached to the Gentiles.

VER. 6. Measured. Sept. "the earth was troubled," (C.) or shaken. H.—He beheld. One look of his eye is enough to melt all the nations, and to reduce them to nothing. For all heaven and earth disappear when they come before his light. Apoc. xx. 11. Ch.—The Chanaanites were dismayed at the approach of God's people. He routed the nations, and determined the portion which he had chosen for Israel. Jos. ii. 9. C.—Mountains. By the mountains and hills are signified the great ones of the world, that persecute the Church, whose power was quickly crushed by the Almighty. Ch.—The roughest roads in the wilderness were made smooth. God is poetically described at the head of his people. Deut. viii. 4. and xxxiii. 15. Ps. lxxv. 5. C.

VER. 7. Ethiopia, the land of the Blacks, and Madian, are here taken for the enemies of God and his people, who shall perish for their iniquity. Ch.—Chus peopled that part of Arabia. H.—Heb. has Chusan, perhaps to rhyme with Madian; though some think that Chusan (defeated by Othniel) and Madian (over whom Gedeon gained a complete victory) are designated. Judg. ii. and vi. When the Hebrews had crossed the Red Sea, the Arabs and Madianites removed their tents in great trepidation. C.—These nations dwelt chiefly under tents, or skins, which would be removed in time of war. W.

VER. 8. With the rivers, &c. He alludes to the wonders wrought heretofore by the Lord in favour of his people Israel, when the waters of the rivers, viz. of Arnon and Jordan, and of the Red Sea, retired before their face; when he came as it were with his horses and chariots to save them; when he took up his bow for their defence, in consequence of the oath he had made to their tribes; when the mountains trembled, and the deep stood with its waves raised up in a heap, as with hands lifted up to heaven; when the sun and moon stood still at his command, &c. to comply with his anger, not against the rivers and sea, but against the enemies of his people. How much more will he do in favour of his Son, and against the enemies of his Church? Ch.—Horses: the ark of the covenant. C.

VER. 9. Take. Sept. "bend thy bow over the sceptres," says the Lord, Diapsalma. Sela is neglected by the Vulg. or (H.) by S. Jerom, as having no meaning. C.—Yet we find in the edit. of his works he renders it, for ever; and here observes, that the Lord "always dwells with his saints," and attacks vices by their mouths.—Rivers. Sept. "the earth shall be cut by rivers." H.—Greek historians mention several rivers which have appeared or ceased to flow in consequence of earthquakes. The apostles, moved by Christ, water the world and form the Church. S. Jer.

VER. 10. Grieved. They seemed full of surprise, as in labour, (Heb.) and the abyss spoke in its manner, (C.) obeying thy voice, and letting the Israelites pass. H. Ps. lxxiii. 15. and exiii. 3. Num. xxi. 13. C.—"Earth, sea, and rocks quake at the sight of God." Æschyl. H.—Sept. are obscure, (C.) "Peoples shall behold thee, and grieve, (or be in labour: ωδυνάσονται has both meanings. S. Jer.) Dividing the waters of the passage, the abyss," &c. Other cop. read, "Thou, Lord, wilt divide," which S. Jerom explains of heresies, which soon disappear. H.

VER. 11. Go. The five kings shall flee at the descent of Bethoron; or the heavenly body shall proceed at thy command, at the signal given by thunder Jos. x. 11.

VER. 13. Christ. This may well be explained of the incarnation. God was touched at the miseries of his people, and rescued them by Moses. C.—Theodo-

10 The mountains saw thee, and were grieved: the great body of waters passed away.

The deep put forth its voice: the deep lifted up its hands.

11 The sun and the moon stood still in their habitation, in the light of thy arrows, they shall go in the brightness of thy glittering spear.

12 In thy anger thou wilt tread the earth under foot. in thy wrath thou wilt astonish the nations.

13 Thou wentest forth for the salvation of thy people: for salvation with thy Christ.

Thou struckest the head of the house of the wicked: thou hast laid bare his foundation even to the neck.

14 Thou hast cursed his sceptres, the head of his warriors, them that came out as a whirlwind to scatter me.

Their joy was like that of him that devoureth the poor man in secret.

tion and Symmachus, "Ebionite, half Christians," give a Jewish interpretation, "to save thy Christ." Aquila, though a Jew, and the 5th edit. agree with us; but the 6th edit. best explains the mystery, "through Jesus, thy Christ." S. Jer.—Head, &c. Such was Pharaoh heretofore; such shall antichrist be hereafter. Ch.—It may also be understood of Nabuchodonosor and of all persecutors. H.—Cyrus cut off Baltassar; Christ will destroy antichrist, (2 Thess. ii. M.) the head of the wicked congregation. Is. xi. 4. W.—Neck, or root. Pharaoh's eldest son perished. Ex. xiv. 17. C.

VER. 14. Sceptres. The nobles were drowned (H.) with their king, (C) when they expected an easy prey. Ex. xiii. 9. H.—Heb. "thou hast pierced the chief of their troops in the midst of tribes," or sticks, as the Egyptians perhaps slew each other. C.

VER. 15. Sea, &c. to deliver thy people from the Egyptian bondage; and thou shalt work the like wonders in the spiritual way, to rescue the children of thy Church from their enemies. Ch.—The waters stood up like mountains, while God seemed to pass in his triumphal car. C.

VER. 16. I have heard, &c. viz. the evils that are now coming upon the Israelites for their sins; and that shall come hereafter upon all impenitent sinners: and the foresight that I have of these miseries makes me willing to die, that I may be at rest, before this general tribulation comes, in which all good things shall be withdrawn from the wicked. Ch.—The five woes denounced C. ii. make the deepest impression upon me. H.—I fear lest I should sin. S. Jer.—The thought of so many wonders makes me speechless. C.—Me. Let me find rest in the grave, like Job. H.—I trust that God will raise me up. C.—Heb. "rottenness hath entered, . . . and I trembled in myself." Sept. (15) "horses, troubling many waters: (16) I watched, and my belly was filled with fear at the voice of the prayer of my lips, and trembling entered my bones, and under me my strength (or frame, &c.; some read roxe) was troubled. I shall rest in the day of my tribulation, to go up to the people of my parish," or neighbourhood; rupinas. H.—People, &c. That I may join the happy company in the bosom of Abraham, that are girded; that is, prepared for their journey, by which they shall attend their Lord, when he shall ascend into heaven. To which high and happy place, my Jesus, that is, my Saviour, the great conqueror of death and hell, shall one day conduct me rejoicing and singing psalms of praise. v. 18. and 19. Ch.—Girded. Heb. "transfiguration or desolation." Habacuc was mercifully allowed by Providence to dwell in Juda, when almost all were led away. He was transported through the air to feed Daniel, (xiv. 32.) where he might see his brethren, as he here insinuates, having relied on God's mercy. v. 2. C.—Prot. "when he cometh up unto the people, he will invade them with his troops; (marg. "cut them in pieces") 17. Although the," &c. When all shall be ravaged, I will still hope. H.—All must be patiently endured, that we may rest at last. W.

Let rottenness enter into my bones, and swarm under me.

17 For the fig-tree shall not blossom: and there shall be no spring in the vines. The labour of the olive-tree shall fail: and the fields shall yield no food: the flock shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls.

19 The Lord God is my strength: and he will make my feet like the feet of harts: and he the conqueror will lead me upon my high places singing psalms.

VER. 17. Fail. Lit. "lie," (H.) or frustrate our expectations. C.—Spem mentita reges. Hor. i. ep. 7.—Fold. Sept. "fool."

VER. 18. Jesus. Heb. yishi, "my (H.) salvation." C.—Sept. "saviour." Chal. "redeemer." H.—Jesus was the desire of all nations, and he imparts true joy to the faithful. John viii. 56. C.—At the last day, plagues similar to those of Egypt will occur; but the elect shall rejoice. S. Jer.

VER. 19. Places. I shall escape the fury of the Chaldeans, and sing a hymn of thanksgiving. C.—"The conqueror singing psalms" may be unconnected with the rest, (H.) and designed to shew that the hymn was intended for religious meetings. It may signify, "To the chief over the female musicians." C.—Lannatseach binginothai. Prot. "to the chief singer on my stringed instruments." Marg. "Neginoth." Sept. "He will order my feet unto perfection. He will establish me upon the heights, to gain the victory in his canticle." H.—I shall exchange my former complaints for songs of praise, and be crowned by Jesus. S. Jer.

THE PROPHECY OF SOPHONIAS.

SOPHONIAS, whose name, saith S. Jerom, signifies "the watchman of the Lord," or "the hidden of the Lord," prophesied in the beginning of the reign of Josias. He was a native of Sarabatha, and of the tribe of Simeon, according to the more general opinion. He prophesied the punishments of the Jews for their idolatry and other crimes; also the punishments that were to come on divers nations; the coming of Christ, the conversion of the Gentiles, the blindness of the Jews, and their conversion towards the end of the world. Ch.—Some editions read, Ezechias. H.—But this opinion is not well grounded no more than that of the Jews, who assert (C.) that all the ancestors mentioned by the prophets were endued with the prophetic spirit, for which reason Amos specifies none, as he was not the son of a prophet. C. vii. 14. S. Jer.—Sophonias appeared a little before Jeremias, Ezech. Bar. and Daniel, foretelling the captivity and return of the two tribes, the destruction of various nations, the conversion of the Gentiles, and of the Jews also towards the end of the world. W.—Many of the promises regard only the Christian Church. C.

godly shall meet with ruin: and I will destroy men from off the face of the land, saith the Lord.

4 And I will stretch out my hand upon Juda, and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem: and I will destroy out of this place the remnant of Baal, and the names of the wardens of the temples, with the priests:

5 And them that worship the host of heaven upon the tops of houses, and them that adore, and swear by the Lord, and swear by Melchom.

6 And them that turn away from following after the Lord, and that have not sought the Lord, nor searched after him.

7 Be silent before the face of the Lord God: for the day of the Lord is near, for the Lord hath prepared a victim, he hath sanctified his guests.

8 And it shall come to pass in the day of the victim of the Lord, that I will visit upon the princes, and upon the king's sons, and upon all such as are clothed with strange apparel:

9 And I will visit in that day upon every one that entereth arrogantly over the threshold: them that fill the house of the Lord their God with iniquity and deceit.

10 And there shall be in that day, saith the Lord, the noise of a cry from the fish-gate, and a howling from the Second, and a great destruction from the hills.

11 Howl, ye inhabitants of the Morter. All the people of Chanaan is hush, all are cut off that were wrapped up in silver.

12 And it shall come to pass at that time, that I will search Jerusalem with lamps, and will visit upon the men that are settled on their lees: that say in their hearts: The Lord will not do good, nor will he do evil.

Macrob. iii. 8.—The priests of Baal appeared in this manner, and cut themselves, (3 K. xviii. 28) committing great indecencies, while God ordered his ministers to be clothed in white with the utmost gravity. C.—The very remembrance of such idols and priests shall be abolished. Osee ii. 16. They were designed for the worship of fire. Baal was the sun. H.

have wrought his judgment: seek the just, seek the meek: if by any means you may be hid in the day of the Lord's indignation.

4 For Gaza shall be destroyed, and Ascalon shall be a desert, they shall cast out Azotus at noon-day, and Accaron shall be rooted up.

5 Wo to you that inhabit the sea coast, O nation of reprobates: the word of the Lord upon you, O Chanaan, the land of the Philistines, and I will destroy thee, so that there shall not be an inhabitant.

6 And the sea coast shall be the resting-place of shepherds, and folds for cattle:

7 And it shall be the portion of him that shall remain of the house of Juda, there they shall feed: in the houses of Ascalon they shall rest in the evening: because the Lord their God will visit them, and bring back their captivity.

8 I have heard the reproach of Moab, and the blasphemies of the children of Ammon, with which they reproached my people, and have magnified themselves upon their borders.

9 Therefore, as I live, saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, Moab shall be as Sodom, and the children of Ammon as Gomorrha, the dryness of thorns, and heaps of salt, and a desert even for ever: the remnant of my people shall make a spoil of them, and the residue of my nation shall possess them.

10 This shall befall them for their pride: because they have blasphemed, and have been magnified against the people of the Lord of hosts.

11 The Lord shall be terrible upon them, and shall consume all the gods of the earth: and they shall adore him every man from his own place, all the islands of the Gentiles.

12 You Ethiopians also shall be slain with my sword.

13 And he will stretch out his hand upon the north, and will destroy Assyria: and he will make the beautiful city a wilderness, and as a place not passable, and as a desert.

14 *And flocks shall lie down in the midst thereof, all the beasts of the nations: and the bittern, and the urchin shall lodge in the threshold thereof: the voice of the singing bird in the window, the raven on the upper post, for I will consume her strength.

15 This is the glorious city that dwelt in security: that said in her heart: I am, and there is none beside me: how is she become a desert, a place for beasts to lie down in? every one that passeth by her shall hiss, and wag his hand.

CHAP. III.

A wo to Jerusalem for her sins. A prophecy of the conversion of the Gentiles, and of the poor of Israel. God shall be with them. The Jews shall be converted at last.

WO to the provoking and redeemed city, the dove.

2 She hath not hearkened to the voice, neither hath she received discipline: she hath not trusted in the Lord, she drew not near to her God.

3 ^bHer princes are in the midst of her as roaring lions: her judges are evening wolves, they left nothing for the morning.

4 Her prophets are senseless, men without faith: her priests have polluted the sanctuary, they have acted unjustly against the law.

5 The just Lord is in the midst thereof, he will not do iniquity: in the morning, in the morning he will bring his judgment to light, and it shall not be hid: but the wicked man hath not known shame.

6 I have destroyed the nations, and their towers are beaten down: I have made their ways desert, so that there is none that passeth by: their cities are desolate, there is not a man remaining, nor any inhabitant.

* Isai. xxxiv. 11.—^b Ezeq. xxii. 27. Michens iii. 11.

VER. 3. Just. Heb. "justice." C.—Sept. "righteousness, and answer the same." H.—Scarcely the innocent will escape. M.—The prophet does not specify the crimes of the Philistines, as Ezechiel (xxv. 15.) does. C.

VER. 4. Shall be, or "is." The prophets often represent future things as past, to shew the certainty of the event. The destruction of other cities by the Chaldees, gave the Jews to understand what they had to expect, as all sin must be punished sooner or later. W.—Psaumetichus, and his son, Nachao, probably fell upon these cities. C.—The former besieged Azotus for twenty-nine years. Herod. ii. 157.—Afterwards Nabuchodonosor reduced the country, beginning with the house of God. Jer. xlvii. 4. Ezeq. xxv. 15. &c. C.

VER. 5. Coast. Lit. "line," (H.) with which land was measured. C.—Reprobates. Heb. cerethim, (H.) or Cerethi, of whom David's guards were formed. C.—Sept. "people sprung from the Cretans," whence some (Theod.) of the Philistines came, perhaps rather than from Cyprus, as was conjectured. Gen. x. 14.—Chanaan. So the Philistines are styled contemptuously. They adored the same idols. Wisd. xii. 23.

VER. 6. Shepherds. Merchants shall come no longer, the country being subdued by Nabuchodonosor, and by the Machabees v. 7. C.—Alexander ruined Gaza. Curt. iv.

VER. 8. Borders, helping the Chaldeans. This brought on their ruin. S. Jer.—They were always disposed to seize the country.

VER. 9. Dryness. Sept. "Damascus shall be abandoned as a heap on the barn-floor, and disappearing for an age." H.—This city is threatened with the rest. Is. xvii. 1. C.—Ever. Sept. refer this to Damascus, others to Ammon, &c. H.—The latter nations were in desolation for a long time; but had re-established themselves, when the Machabees reduced them again. Jer. xlviii. and 1 Mac. v. 6.

VER. 11. Own place. The Jewish religion could be practised only at Jerusalem, so that this is one of the most striking predictions of the conversion of the world. The Jews in vain attempt to restrain it to the captives returning. See S. Jer. C.—They shall inform many of the truth, and be the means of their conversion. H.—But God shall be adored in every place. M.

VER. 12. Ethiopia. Heb. Cushim, denote also the Arabs, &c. who fell a prey to the Chaldeans. C.

VER. 13. The beautiful city. Ninive, which was destroyed soon after this, viz. in the sixteenth year of the reign of Josias. Ch. A. 3378.—Heb. "he shall make Ninive desolate." H.—This famous and potent city was at last destroyed. W. See Jonas iii. 4. C.

VER. 14. Bittern and the urchin. Heb. kuath and kippod, are terms to us (H.) unknown.—Threshold. Heb. "the pomegranates," supposed to be an ornament of the doors.—Raven. Sept. also read arb better than choreb, "desolation or the sword." See Is. xxxiv. 11. C.—Chereb has both meanings, "a raven, or sword." S. Jer.—I will. Heb. "he has uncovered her cedar," (C.) her fine palaces and apartments. Sept. "for the cedar is its height, (or pride) this is the city given to evils, that," &c. H.

VER. 15. Beside, or equal. This was true. Jonas i. 2. C.—The founder intended that no city should ever equal it. Diod. ii. S. Jerom applies what is here said of Ninive to the Church in the times of antichrist, (Rondet.) or to a fallen soul. Any nation may abandon the faith: but the whole Church cannot fail. H.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. Dove. Jerusalem is upbraided, and then comforted. She had been treated like a spouse, a dove; and yet proved faithless. C.—Heb. "Wo to the famous, and defiled, and oppressing city." Sept. agree with us, if we only exchange famous for provoking. H.—After being redeemed from Egypt, the Jews ungratefully follow idols. Osee vii. 11. M.—Jerusalem having been freely chosen and favoured above other places, and still provoking God, cannot escape a severe chastisement. W.

VER. 2. Lord. She had recourse rather to the princes of Assyria and of Egypt, which proved her ruin.

VER. 3. Evening. Sept. "Arabian." Hab. i. 8. Such was the state of the kingdom before the reform of Josias. C.

VER. 4. Senseless. Prot. "light," or (H.) windy and inconstant. There were too many false prophets (C.) during the minority of Josias. H.

VER. 5. Morning. Speedily he will punish the guilty before all.—Shame. He is hardened. C.—Sept. "and not injustice for victory." Grabe substitutes contention. God is just, (H.) even when he takes vengeance. C.

VER. 6. Towers. Lit. "angles," (H.) the chiefs, or to the very last. Job xxxviii. 6. Zac. x. 4. The nations have been punished for an example. But you do not take warning. C.

VER. 7. But. Sept. "be prepared, rise early, all their grapes are corrupt." H.—I had reason to expect an amendment, when so many nations had perished before their eyes. C.—They however sinned out of malice, and strove to provoke me in all their ways.

7 I said: Surely thou wilt fear me, thou wilt receive correction: and her dwelling shall not perish, for all things wherein I have visited her: but they rose early, and corrupted all their thoughts.

8 Wherefore expect me, saith the Lord, in the day of my resurrection that is to come, for my judgment is to assemble the Gentiles, and to gather the kingdoms: and to pour upon them my indignation, all my fierce anger: *for with the fire of my jealousy shall all the earth be devoured.

9 Because then I will restore to the people a chosen lip, that all may call upon the name of the Lord, and may serve him with one shoulder.

10 From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia, shall my suppliants, the children of my dispersed people, bring me an offering.

11 In that day thou shalt not be ashamed for all thy doings, wherein thou hast transgressed against me: for then I will take away out of the midst of thee thy proud boasters, and thou shalt no more be lifted up because of my holy mountain.

12 And I will leave in the midst of thee a poor and needy people: and they shall hope in the name of the Lord.

13 The remnant of Israel shall not do iniquity, nor speak lies, nor shall a deceitful tongue be found in their

VER. 8. To come. Sept. "for a witness." H.—About forty years after Christ's resurrection, the Jews for the most part continuing obstinate, Titus ruined their city; which is a figure of the world's destruction, and of the eternal punishment of the wicked. W.—After the resurrection, the Church was to be gathered from all nations. Christ will rise again at the last day to judge all. God threatens his rebellious people with captivity, and then promises to show mercy. v. 9. Thus the prophets often subjoin promises to threats.

VER. 9. Chosen. Sym. "pure." C.—Idols shall not be mentioned. Theod.—All people shall know and adore the Lord, which was verified only after Christ's coming. C.—Sept. "for then I will change again for the peoples, language to its own kind." (H.) which Origen, (c. Cels. viii.) and the Jews in S. Jerom, explain of the days of the Messiah, when the confusion of Babel shall cease. But this is forced: it suffices that people unite in faith and obey the Church.—Shoulder, like people carrying a burden. Sept. "under one yoke." After the captivity the Jews were more obedient and faithful, as the more corrupt remained behind the Euphrates, or were cut off in the last wars. Yet the synagogue was never so pure as the Christian Church, even in the worst times. C.—All nations shall worship God in unity of faith, and courageously submit to the gospel. W.

VER. 10. Ethiopia. The Nile arises in that country, and runs through Egypt and Arabia, which is often styled Ethiopia or Cush. Is. xviii. 1. The Jews came from Egypt to adore at Jerusalem, even after the building of Onion. Yet this literally regards Christ's Church.—Offering. The Jews performed this after the captivity, coming or sending the half siele to Jerusalem annually, from all quarters of the world. Num. iii. 46. Mat. xvii. 23. C.

VER. 11. Doings. Lit. "inventions," of religion of thy own choice. H.—Thy past offences shall be obliterated, and thou shalt commit nothing of the kind any more. Those proud spirits who caused thee to dislike my law, and who set up idols in my temple shall disappear.—Mountain. The temple shall be destroyed, that all may know that I am attached to virtue alone, (C.) and not to any edifice or place. H.—They trusted too much to the temple. Jer. vii. 4. M.

VER. 12. Poor in spirit. H.—Heb. "meek and extenuated," who trust not in themselves. This is the character of true Christians. The few Jews who remained in the country, or who returned from Babylon, might well represent them, being poor and dependent. The disciples of Christ contemned riches, and were resolute only where virtue was at stake. C.—They were instructed by poor fishermen taught by God. M.

VER. 13. Israel. They shall be more submissive, and afraid of yielding to mouth: for they shall feed, and shall lie down, and there shall be none to make them afraid.

14 Give praise, O daughter of Sion: shout, O Israel: be glad, and rejoice with all thy heart, O daughter of Jerusalem.

15 The Lord hath taken away thy judgment, he hath turned away thy enemies: the king of Israel, the Lord, is in the midst of thee, thou shalt fear evil no more.

16 In that day it shall be said to Jerusalem, Fear not: to Sion, Let not thy hands be weakened.

17 The Lord, thy God, in the midst of thee is mighty, he will save: he will rejoice over thee with gladness, he will be silent in his love, he will be joyful over thee in praise.

18 The triflers that were departed from the law, I will gather together, because they were of thee: that thou mayest no more suffer reproach for them.

19 Behold, I will cut off all that have afflicted thee at that time: and I will save her that halteth, and will gather her that was cast out: and I will get them praise, and a name, in all the land where they had been put to confusion.

20 At that time, when I will bring you: and at that time that I will gather you: for I will give you a name, and praise among all the people of the earth, when I shall have brought back your captivity, before your eyes, saith the Lord.

idolatry. Yet the synagogue was far from the perfection of primitive Christianity, or even from that of many pious souls in these days of relaxation.—Affraid. The Jews were not much molested till the time of Epiphaneus, nor was the country ravaged as it had been. Mic. ii. 12. This peace is however of a spiritual nature, granted by Christ to those who fight against their passions. John xiv. 27. C.—They shall feed on the word of God and on the blessed Eucharist. M.

VER. 15. Judgment, or "condemnation." Sept. "iniquities," (C.) nailing to the cross the handwriting that was against thee. H.—God does not treat thee with rigour. He will be thy king. The Jews had no king for a long time. But the true Israel, of whom the prophet speaks, is continually ruled and fed by Jesus Christ, who imparts his graces abundantly. C.

VER. 17. Silent; constant. M.—He will accuse thee no more. Can this be understood of the Jews, who have been cast off till the fulness of the Gentiles enter the Church? To the latter all this must be applied. Few prophets inveighed against the crimes of the captives after their return. C.—But this must be deemed a punishment, unless the crimes were also removed. H.

VER. 18. Triflers. Lit. "trifles;" nugas. Heb. nugi, (H.) which is almost Latin. S. Jer.—These vain nothing, (C.) men who were of light dispositions, scoffers at Christ, shall be converted and honour him. W.—Sept. 17. "he will renew thee in his love, and will exult over thee in joy, as on a festival day: (18) and I will bring back thy bruised ones. Wo to him that has reproached her." Aquila likewise renders by wo, or eu, oh, oi, using it as an exclamation, though not of sorrow. Yet the term signifies, they were. S. Jer. H.—Heb. lit. "I have gathered those who were in grief for a time. They were of thee. Shame was upon them like a heavy load;" or, "they were grieved on account of the festivals disused. They were like an offering rejected," with disgrace. C.—They lamented that they could no longer observe the solemn festivals, and this was to the pious a most intolerable burden, while libertines seem to feel as great a misery in the observance.

VER. 19. Cut. Sept. "do in thee, for thy sake at," &c.—H.—Halteth, and hath no children, (Mic. iv. 7.) denoting the Gentiles. C.—Sept. "squeezed out," like grapes, being in distress. S. Jer.—Where. Sept. "and they shall be ashamed at," &c.

VER. 20. Bring. Sept. "do good to you." H.—Praise. All shall speak well of you who have been lately dishonoured, when I shall take both Gentiles and Jews for my spouse after the captivity, which seems present, (C.) it is so certain. H.—Captivity, under satan and sin. M.

THE PROPHECY OF AGGEUS.

AGGEUS was one of those that returned from the captivity of Babylon, in the first year of the reign of king Cyrus. He was sent by the Lord in the second year of the reign of king Darius, the son of Hystaspes, to exhort Zorobabel, the prince of Juda, and Jesus, the high priest, to the building of the temple; which they had begun, but left off again through the opposition of the Samaritans. In consequence of this exhortation, they proceeded in the building, and finished the temple. And the prophet was commissioned by the Lord to assure them that this second temple should be more glorious than the former, because the Messias should honour it with his presence; signifying, withal, how much the Church of the new testament should excel that of the old testament. Ch.—The glory of the Catholic Church hence appears. W.—We know little of the life of Aggeus. It is thought that he was born in captivity. C.—He came into Judea eighteen years after its termination, (W.) in the second year of Hystaspes, when the seventy years of the temple's desolation ended. Zac. i. 12. and 1 Esd. v. The people had courage to obey the word of the prophets rather than the king's edict. Aggeus means feasting, (S. Jer.) or pleasant. He brings joyful tidings, after rebuking the people for preferring their own convenience before the house of God. H.

CHAP. I.

The people are reproved for neglecting to build the temple. They are encouraged to set about the work.

IN the second year of Darius, *the king, in the sixth month, in the first day of the month, the word of the Lord came by the hand of Aggeus, the prophet, to Zorobabel, the son of Salathiel, governor of Juda, and to Jesus, the son of Josedec, the high priest, saying:

2 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, saying: This people saith: The time is not yet come for building the house of the Lord.

3 And the word of the Lord came by the hand of Aggeus, the prophet, saying:

4 Is it time for you to dwell in ceiled houses, and this house lie desolate?

5 And now thus saith the Lord of hosts: Set your hearts to consider your ways.

6 *You have sowed much, and brought in little: you have eaten, but have not had enough: you have drunk, but have not been filled with drink: you have clothed yourselves, but have not been warmed: and he that hath earned wages, put them into a bag with holes.

7 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Set your hearts upon your ways:

8 Go up to the mountain, bring timber, and build the house: and it shall be acceptable to me, and I shall be glorified, saith the Lord.

9 You have looked for more, and behold it became less, and you brought it home, and I blowed it away: why, saith the Lord of hosts? because my house is desolate, and you make haste every man to his own house.

CHAP. I. VER. 1. Darius Hystaspes. C.—When the Jews had no king, the prophets dated from the reign of the monarch on whom they were dependent. Theod.—Sixth; Elul, the last of the civil year, corresponding with our September. The harvest had been bad, and Aggeus assigns the reason. C.—Governor. Lit. "duke," or captain. Sept. "of the tribe of Juda." H.—He descended from the kings of Juda, and was now chief governor by leave of Darius. W.—Yet Cyrus had appointed Sarasar, (1 Esd. i. 8.) who perhaps, after the death of Cambyses, fled; as Zorobabel and Jesus are designated judges, and a crown is made for them. C. ii. 24. Zac. iii. and vi. 11. Still Thartana, governor beyond the Euphrates, took cognizance of the Jewish affairs. 1 Esd. v. 3. The prince of Juda was therefore under him. Zorobabel was son or grandson of Salathiel, (1 Par. iii. 17.) or was adopted by him, being born of Phadaia. C.—Josedec, who was led into captivity. 1 Par. vi. 15.

VER. 2. Yet come. God's service must be restored without delay, and manners reformed; as otherwise many will be lost eternally. W.—The Jews refrained from commencing the temple till the time marked out by Jeremiah, xxv. 11. Zac. i. 7. C.—From the beginning of the last siege sixty nine years had elapsed. Usher. A. 3485.—Others, reflecting on the obstacles placed by Cyrus and Cambyses, thought it was not yet time to work at the temple: but these were only 10 Therefore, the heavens over you were stayed from giving dew, and the earth was hindered from yielding her fruits:

11 And I called for a drought upon the land, and upon the mountains, and upon the corn, and upon the wine, and upon the oil, and upon all that the ground bringeth forth, and upon men, and upon beasts, and upon all the labour of the hands.

12 Then Zorobabel, the son of Salathiel, and Jesus, the son of Josedec, the high priest, and all the remnant of the people, hearkened to the voice of the Lord, their God, and to the words of Aggeus, the prophet, as the Lord, their God, sent him to them: and the people feared before the Lord.

13 And Aggeus, the messenger of the Lord, as one of the messengers of the Lord, spoke, saying to the people: I am with you, saith the Lord.

14 And the Lord stirred up the spirit of Zorobabel, the son of Salathiel, governor of Juda, and the spirit of Jesus, the son of Josedec, the high priest, and the spirit of all the rest of the people: and they went in, and did the work in the house of the Lord of hosts, their God.

CHAP. II.

Christ, by his coming, shall make the latter temple more glorious than the former. The blessing of God shall reward their labour in building. God's promise to Zorobabel.

IN *the four and twentieth day of the month, in the sixth month, in the second year of Darius, the king, they began.

2 And in the seventh month, the word of the Lord came by the hand of Aggeus, the prophet, saying:

* Deut. xxviii. 38. Michens vi. 15.—A. M. 3485. A. C. 519.

pretexa. The kingdom was now held by another family, and the former decrees abolished. Fear of labour, therefore, was the only impediment.

VER. 4. Ceiled: superbly adorned. Heb. "covered." You are not content with what is merely necessary, while the temple lies in ruins. C.

VER. 5. Ways. Sound the real motives of your neglect. H.—See if your misfortunes do not originate in this cause, and if God does not require you to build the temple. v. 9. C.

VER. 6. Filled. Lit. "inebriated," (H.) so as to become cheerful. S. Jer.

VER. 8. The mountain Libanus. Wood had been purchased before, but had been used for other purposes. 1 Esd. iii. 7. Now the people went to procure more. The following year Darius confirmed the decree of Cyrus, which was a change plainly effected by Providence. C.

VER. 11. Drought. Heb. choreb, (H.) is rendered the sword, by the Sept. and may best signify "a burning wind," according to the different pronunciation. S. Jer.—This was not then determined by the vowel points (C.) of the Masora. Soph. ii. 14. H.

VER. 13. Messenger. To excite the people's attention, Aggeus declares that he is sent by God, (W.) like the prophets of old. Some Jews have asserted (C.) that he, Malachias, the Baptist, and Jacob, were angels incarnate. But let us

3 Speak to Zorobabel, the son of Salathiel, the governor of Juda, and to Jesus, the son of Josedec, the high priest, and to the rest of the people, saying :

4 Who is left among you, that saw this house in its first glory ? and how do you see it now ? is it not in comparison to that as nothing in your eyes ?

5 Yet now take courage, O Zorobabel, saith the Lord, and take courage, O Jesus, the son of Josedec, the high priest, and take courage, all ye people of the land, saith the Lord of hosts : and perform (for I am with you, saith the Lord of hosts)

6 The word that I covenanted with you : when you came out of the land of Egypt : and my spirit shall be in the midst of you : fear not.

7 For thus saith the Lord of hosts : * Yet one little while, and I will move the heaven, and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land.

8 And I will move all nations : AND THE DESIRED OF ALL NATIONS SHALL COME : and I will fill this house with glory : saith the Lord of hosts.

9 The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith the Lord of hosts.

10 Great shall be the glory of this last house more than of the first, saith the Lord of hosts : and in this place I will give peace, saith the Lord of hosts.

11 In the four and twentieth day of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius, the king, the word of the Lord came to Aggeus, the prophet, saying :

* Heb. xli. 26.

leave (S. Jer.) these learned dreams. C.—They have no better foundation than the ambiguity of malac, which signifies “an angel, or a messenger.” H.—With you. This is often repeated, to encourage the dejected people. M.

VER. 14. Work. Sept. “works.” H.—They prepared materials, and began the temple on the 24th of the ninth month. C. ii. 16. 19. M.

CHAP. II. VER. 1. M, &c. This should be joined with the preceding chap. C.—They began the new work at this time, and on the 21st of the seventh month the prophet had a fresh revelation. W.

VER. 4. Glory. The temple had been destroyed sixty-nine years before, so that many might have seen it. When the second temple was dedicated, (C.) or founded, (H.) two years after the captivity, cries of grief and of joy were heard. 1 Esd. iii. 12.

VER. 7. Little. Christ was born 515 years afterwards. The world had been disturbed by Alexander and by the Romans, yet peace then prevailed. All nature acknowledged the power of Jesus Christ, and the world was reformed. Another commotion will take place at his second coming. C.

VER. 8. DESIRED. Jacob styles him the expectation of nations, (Gen. xlix.) because He was wanting, and always necessary for all. W.—Thus the sick desire a remedy, though they know not what it is. The Gentiles were ignorant of the Messiah; yet he was still desirable and most lovely. Cant. v. 16. C.—Many also, like Job, had a lively expectation of their Redeemer's coming from the tradition of the patriarchs. H.—Heb. “the desires of all nations shall come:” (H.) venient. Sept. “the chosen things,” &c. Christ shall come for all, (C.) and the elect shall meet him with eagerness. H.—In vain do the Jews attempt to contest this prediction. Was not the Messiah to be desired ? and has not Jesus Christ procured the greatest advantages for mankind ?

VER. 10. Peace : another title of the Messiah. His presence ennobleth this temple (C.) more than precious ornaments of gold and silver (v. 9.) did that of Solomon. H.—Some have pretended that the second temple, repaired by Herod, was more spacious and magnificent than the former. It also subsisted a longer time. But this circumstance adds no superior value, unless the structure was better finished. What Josephus relates of Herod's repairs, is denied by several respectable modern authors. Salien. A. 4035, &c.—Yet as the fact was so recent, it seems it had some foundation, though the account may be greatly exaggerated. Josephus is not always exact. C.—The Jews all agree that the temple of Zorobabel and of Herod was the same. Lempereur.—It is almost certain that this edifice was never honoured with the ark, &c. like that of Solomon ; so that if it be not on account of the Messiah, no good reason appears for giving it the preference. II.—The ancients who had seen the former, wept (W.) when that of Zorobabel was founded, confessing its inferiority (H.) both in size and elegance. It was only 60 cubits high and broad, while the former was 120, built of polished stone and covered with cedar. Zorobabel had rough stones. 1 Esd. v. 8. and vi. 3. and 2 Par. iii. 4. and 3 K. vi. 7. As for the same temple, enlarged and adorned by Herod, it continued not long in that state ; and its chief glory consisted in our Saviour's presence, when he was received in the arms of Simeon, and often preached there. Hence S. Aug. (de civ. Dei. xviii. 45.) shews that the prophet foretells the glory of Christ's mystical temple, (1154)

12 Thus saith the Lord of hosts : Ask the priests the law, saying :

13 If a man carry sanctified flesh in the skirt of his garment, and touch with his skirt, bread, or pottage, or wine, or oil, or any meat : shall it be sanctified ? And the priests answered, and said : No.

14 And Aggeus said : If one that is unclean by occasion of a soul touch any of all these things, shall it be defiled : and the priests answered, and said : It shall be defiled.

15 And Aggeus answered, and said : So is this people, and so is this nation before my face, saith the Lord, and so is all the work of their hands : and all that they have offered there, shall be defiled.

16 And now consider in your hearts, from this day and upward, before there was a stone laid upon a stone in the temple of the Lord.

17 When you went to a heap of twenty bushels, and they became ten : and you went into the press, to press out fifty vessels, and they became twenty.

18 ^b I struck you with a blasting wind, and all the works of your hand with the mildew and with hail, yet there was none among you that returned to me, saith the Lord.

19 Set your hearts from this day, and henceforward, from the four and twentieth day of the ninth month : from the day that the foundations of the temple of the Lord were laid, and lay it up in your hearts.

^b Amos iv. 2.

the faithful of all nations, in whom he dwells by the grace of the new testament, as in living stones, far more gloriously than in any temple erected by Solomon or after the captivity. W.

VER. 12. The law. “He who knows it not, shews himself to be no priest of the Lord.” Deut. xvii. S. Jer.

VER. 13. No, conformably to Lev. vi. 27. M.—What the linen covered could not render other things sacred. The victim must come in immediate contact with them, to have this effect. H.—Those who had touched the dead, rendered both holy and common things unclean for others. There were two sorts of sanctified meats : the victims for sin, which the priests on duty alone could eat, (Lev. vii. 1. 6.) and the peace-offerings, of which all who were clean might partake. ib. xix. The former alone sanctified what they touched. Both must be burnt if they touched any thing unclean, while ordinary food in the same predicament might be consumed by people in mourning, &c. C.—That which touched a holy thing was sanctified, (Lev. vi. 18.) but that thing did not sanctify others ; so the people, by touching the sacrifices, were only legally holy, and therefore their victims were not acceptable to the Lord as long as they did not comply with their duty of building his temple. W.

VER. 14. By occasion of a soul. That is, by having touched the dead : in which case, according to the prescription of the law, (Num. xix. 13. 22.) a person not only became unclean himself, but made every thing that he touched unclean. The prophet applies all this to the people, whose souls remained unclean by neglecting the temple of God ; and therefore were not sanctified by the flesh they offered in sacrifice, but rather defiled their sacrifices by approaching to them in the state of uncleanness. Ch.

VER. 15. So. He makes the application of the second answer given, v. 14. All your victims have hitherto been contaminated. I redressed not your miseries. But now, as you have begun to work at my temple, I will remove the scourge. It is easy to apply the first answer, v. 13. Your victims have purified you no more than holy flesh wrapped up in a garment would sanctify it, (C.) or other things which it does not immediately touch. H.—Your bad dispositions render them useless. Jer. xi. 15. The victims were also bad. Mal. i. 6. C.

VER. 16. Day, the 24th of the ninth month, when you began to build. v. 19. Henceforward your crops shall be abundant. M.—I judge not from natural appearances, as the corn is still in the granary. v. 20. C.—Upon a stone. The foundations had been laid the year after the Jews returned, and an altar set up. 1 Esd. iii. Nothing more of consequence was done till the second year of Darius. The temple was finished and dedicated in the sixth. Ib. vi. 15. Hence Aggeus speaks of the stones to be used hereafter. Those in the foundations were to be laid afresh, (v. 19) or were not seen or noticed. In the same sense our Saviour predicts, that a stone shall not be left upon a stone in the temple, which the Romans should destroy before that generation had passed away. Mat. xxiv. 2. 34. This was verified within forty years. Yet A. Rutter observes it was more fully accomplished when the Jews dug up the foundations, by order of Julian, who wished to falsify the prediction. H.

VER. 17. Bushels. Heb. specifies nothing. Sept. “when you put in a basket (or vase) twenty sata of barley.” He speaks of such as was not yet winnowed 20 Is the seed as yet sprung up? or hath the vine, and the fig-tree, and the pomegranate, and the olive-tree, as yet flourished? from this day I will bless you.

21 And the word of the Lord came a second time to Aggeus, in the four and twentieth day of the month, saying:

22 Speak to Zorobabel, the governor of Juda, saying: I will move both heaven and earth.

23 And I will overthrow the throne of kingdoms, and will destroy the strength of the kingdom of the Gentiles: and I will overthrow the chariot, and him that rideth therein: and the horses and their riders shall come down, every one by the sword of his brother.

24 In that day, saith the Lord of hosts, I will take thee, ^bO Zorobabel, the son of Salathiel, my servant, saith the Lord, and will make thee as a signet, for I have chosen thee, saith the Lord of hosts.

• Eccli. xlix. 18.

VER. 20. Sprung up. Heb. "in the granary," or cave, magura, whence the African magaria, or huts, are derived. Chal. and Sept. "barn floor," as it was commonly adjoining to these huts. Some have, "in blade." But this seems to be the sense: the corn is not yet sown, nor the trees in blossom, yet I announce great fertility next year. He spoke in Nov. during which and the following month the seed was committed to the earth, in Palestine, as (C.) it was in Egypt, the wheat ripening in seven months, (Pliny xviii. 7.) and being cut towards the end of June. S. Jer.—Aggeus probably composed the Ps. lxiv. to thank God for this fertility.

VER. 22. Earth. Some great event is denoted. Nothing occurs in history after the second year of Darius, to shew that Zorobabel signalized himself. Theodoret thinks that the irruption of the Scythians, or of Gog, is meant. Others believe (C.) that the prophecy relates to Christ, at his first (S. Cyr.) or second coming. S. Jer.—But the Heb. speaks of something past, and we doubt not but the attempt of Cambyse, three years before, is the subject. Ezech. xxxviii. "I have overturned the throne of kings," Cambyse, and the magi, and have given the kingdom to another family. The enemy has destroyed himself. Then I kept thee as a seal, with the greatest care. Jer. xxii. 24. Thou art no longer oppressed by the Persian king or his governor. Hystaspes has declared in thy favour. Nothing could more enhance the authority of Zorobabel than an action so recent, which God seemed to have permitted on his account, and for his glory. C.—While all other kingdoms perish, the Church of Christ remains. W.

VER. 24. O Zorobabel. This promise principally relates to Christ, who was of the race of Zorobabel. Ch.

THE PROPHECY OF ZACHARIAS.

ZACHARIAS began to prophesy in the same year as Aggeus, and upon the same occasion. His prophecy is full of mysterious figures and promises of blessings, partly relating to the synagogue and partly to the Church of Christ. Ch.—He is the "most obscure and longest of the twelve;" (S. Jer.) though Osee wrote the same number of chapters. H.—Zacharias has been confounded with many others of the same name. Little is known concerning his life. Some have asserted that the ninth and two following chapters were written by Jeremias, in whose name C. xi. 12. is quoted Mat. xxvii. 9. But that is more probably a mistake of transcribers. Zacharias speaks more plainly of the Messias and of the last siege of Jerusalem than the rest, as he lived nearer those times. C.—His name signifies, "the memory of the Lord." S. Jer.—He appeared only two months after Aggeus, and shewed that the Church should flourish in the synagogue, and much more after the coming of Christ, who would select his first preachers from among the Jews. Yet few of them shall embrace the gospel, in comparison with the Gentiles, though they shall at last be converted. S. Jer. ad Paulin. W.

CHAP. I.

The prophet exhorts the people to return to God, and declares his visions by which he puts them in hopes of better times.

IN ^athe eighth month, in the second year of king Darius, the word of the Lord came to Zacharias, the son of Barachias, the son of Addo, the prophet, saying:

2 The Lord hath been exceeding angry with your fathers.

3 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: ^bTurn ye to me, saith the Lord of hosts: and I will turn to you, saith the Lord of hosts.

4 Be not as your fathers, to whom the former prophets have cried, saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Turn ye from your evil ways, and from your wicked thoughts; but they did not give ear, neither did they hearken to me, saith the Lord.

CHAP. I. VER. 1. Barachias adopted him, (1 Esd. v. 1.) or rather Addo was his grandfather.

VER. 2. Angry, as he has severely chastised them. C.

VER. 3. Turn ye. Such expressions admonish us of our free-will, and when we answer, convert us, &c. (Lam. v. 11. C.) we confess that God's grace preventeth us. Trid. Sess. vi. 5. W.—We may resist the Holy Spirit, (H.) and reject his graces. The prophet exhorts the people to lay aside all former negligence, (C.) and proceed with the temple. H.—It had been commenced about two months before. Agg. ii. 1. 16.

5 Your fathers, where are they? and the prophets, shall they live always?

6 But yet my words, and my ordinances, which I gave in charge to my servants, the prophets, did they not take hold of your fathers? and they returned, and said: As the Lord of hosts thought to do to us, according to our ways, and according to our devices, so he hath done to us.

7 In the four and twentieth day of the eleventh month, which is called Sabbath, in the second year of Darius, the word of the Lord came to Zacharias, the son of Barachias, the son of Addo, the prophet, saying:

8 I saw by night, and behold a man riding upon a red horse, and he stood among the myrtle-trees, that were in the bottom: and behind him were horses red, speckled, and white.

9 And I said: What are these, my lord? And the 11 And they answered the angel of the Lord, that stood among the myrtle-trees, and said: We have walked through the earth, and behold all the earth is inhabited, and is at rest.

12 And the angel of the Lord answered, and said: O Lord of hosts, how long wilt thou not have mercy on Jerusalem, and on the cities of Juda, with which thou hast been angry? this is now the seventieth year.

13 And the Lord answered the angel, that spoke in me, good words, comfortable words.

14 And the angel, that spoke in me, said to me: Cry thou, saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: "I am zealous for Jerusalem, and Sion, with a great zeal.

15 And I am angry with a great anger with the wealthy nations: For I was angry a little, but they helped forward the evil.

VER. 10. These are they, &c. The guardian angels of provinces and nations. Ch.—The Jews believed that each nation had such an angel, who had to give an account to one in higher authority. God proportions his revelation to their ideas.

VER. 11. Rest. All the country under Michael's care enjoyed peace, (C.) in the second year of Darius. H.—The red horse implies slaughter. Apoc. vi. 4. It was now repressed. Tournemine.

VER. 12. The seventieth year; viz. from the beginning of the siege of Jerusalem, in the ninth year of king Sedecius, to the second year of king Darius. These seventy years of the desolation of Jerusalem and the cities of Juda, are different from the seventy years of captivity foretold by Jeremias; which began in the fourth year of Joakim, and ended in the first year of king Cyrus. Ch.—Of these Daniel (ix) speaks. The temple had also been destroyed now seventy years, (W.) and the angel prays, (H.) while the prophet begs that the people may be inspired to rebuild it. W.—Michael takes occasion from the angels' report, to beseech the Lord to perfect what had been so well begun. He speaks not expressly of the temple, as Aegeus had prevailed on the people to commence that edifice. They had excused themselves that the time was not come, as they probably dated from the burning of the temple; though its desolation began with the siege, thirty months before. See Jer. xxv. 11. and xxix. 10. C.

VER. 18–20. Four horns, four smiths. The four horns represent the empires or kingdoms, that persecute and oppress the people of God: the four smiths or carpenters (for suber may signify either) represent those whom God makes his instruments in bringing to nothing the power of persecutors. CHAP. II.

Under the name of Jerusalem, he prophesieth the progress of the Church of Christ, by the conversion of some Jews, and many Gentiles.

AND I lifted up my eyes, and saw, and behold a man, with a measuring line in his hand.

2 And I said: Whither goest thou? and he said to me: To measure Jerusalem, and to see how great is the breadth thereof, and how great the length thereof.

3 And behold the angel that spoke in me went forth, and another angel went out to meet him.

4 And he said to him: Run, speak to this young man, saying: Jerusalem shall be inhabited without walls, by reason of the multitude of men, and of the beasts, in the midst thereof.

5 And I will be to it, saith the Lord, a wall of fire round about: and I will be in glory in the midst thereof.

6 O, O flee ye out of the land of the north, saith the Lord, for I have scattered you into the four winds of heaven, saith the Lord.

7 O Sion, flee thou that dwellest with the daughter of Babylon:

8 For thus saith the Lord of hosts: After the glory he hath sent me to the nations that have robbed you: for he that toucheth you, toucheth the apple of my eye:

9 For behold, I lift up my hand upon them, and they shall be a prey to those that served them: and you shall know that the Lord of hosts sent me.

10 Sing praise, and rejoice, O daughter of Sion: for behold, I come, and I will dwell in the midst of thee: saith the Lord.

11 And many nations shall be joined to the Lord in Egyptians on the south, and the Assyrians and Chaldees on the north, had much molested God's people, and were therefore punished. W.—The princes of Assyria and of Babylon, the kings of Persia and of Egypt, had all treated them ill; and these four empires have or will be destroyed by four chariots, (C. vi. 1.) Nabopolassar, Cyrus, Alexander, and Antiochus. Dan. vii. 1. &c. S. Jerom, and many who usually follow him, understand the empires of the Chaldeans, Persians, Greeks, and Romans, to be designated by the horns, as the workmen mean the angels who have chastised those nations.

VER. 21. Every. Heb. "at pleasure; none shall lift," &c. These kingdoms shall no longer prove formidable. C.—Fray, or "terrify." Sept. "to sharpen them in their hands. The horns are nations," &c. H.

CHAP. II. VER. 3. Another. The angel who measured spoke to Michael. C.

VER. 4. Walls. This must be understood of the spiritual Jerusalem, the Church of Christ. Ch.—According to S. Aug. (in Pa. lxxi.) when the literal sense cannot be verified, we must have recourse to the thing prefigured; and thus what is here written, must be explained of the Church rather than of Jerusalem. W.—A little before the fall of the latter, it was become so populous that the houses which had been built without the walls were enclosed. Jos. Bel. vi. 6.—This multitude was a sort of pledge or figure of the crowds which should embrace the gospel.

VER. 5. Fire, to enlighten and protect it. Arms will be unnecessary. Mic. v. 10. Is. ii. 4. The Church shall enjoy peace.

VER. 6. North. Many Jews had not yet returned. Esther, &c.—Winds. Ezec. v. 2. 12. C.—Gentiles, and ye children of Sion, flee from Babylon and from sin into the true Church. W.

VER. 8. Glory. After restoring you to your own country, and rebuilding your cities, I will punish your enemies. C.—After they have enjoyed prosperity, they shall feel the reverse. Heb. Cabod, (H.) means also "a burden."

VER. 9. Prey. Two years after this (C.) the Assyrians revolted, and seized Babylon. Justin i.—They slew the useless women: but Zopyrus betrayed the place to Darius, who hung 3,000 of the principal inhabitants, and demolished the walls. Herod. iii. 150. Usher, A. 3489.

In a vision satan appeareth, accusing the high priest. He is cleansed from his sins. Christ is promised, and great fruit from his passion.

AND the Lord shewed me Jesus, the high priest, standing before the angel of the Lord: and satan stood on his right hand, to be his adversary.

2 And the Lord said to satan: The Lord rebuke thee, O satan: and the Lord, that chose Jerusalem, rebuke thee: Is not this a brand plucked out of the fire?

3 And Jesus was clothed with filthy garments: and he stood before the face of the angel.

4 Who answered, and said to them that stood before him, saying: Take away the filthy garments from him. And he said to him: Behold, I have taken away thy iniquity, and have clothed thee with a change of garments.

5 And he said: Put a clean mitre upon his head: and they put a clean mitre upon his head, and clothed him with garments: and the angel of the Lord stood.

6 And the angel of the Lord protested to Jesus, saying:

7 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: If thou wilt walk in my ways, and keep my charge, thou also shalt judge my house, and shalt keep my courts, and I will give thee some of them that are now present here to walk with thee.

8 Hear, O Jesus, thou high priest, thou and thy friends that dwell before thee, for they are portending men: for behold, I WILL BRING MY SERVANT, THE ORIENT.

9 For behold the stone that I have laid before Jesus: upon one stone there are seven eyes: behold, I will grave the graving thereof, saith the Lord of hosts: and I will take away the iniquity of that land in one day.

10 In that day, saith the Lord of hosts, every man shall call his friend under the vine, and under the fig-tree.

CHAP. IV.

The vision of the golden candlestick and seven lamps, and of the two olive-trees. Zorobabel shall finish the building of the temple.

AND the angel that spoke in me came again: and he waked me, as a man that is wakened out of his sleep.

2 And he said to me: What seest thou? And I said: I have looked, and behold a candlestick all of gold, and its lamp upon the top of it: and the seven lights thereof upon it: and seven funnels for the lights that were upon the top thereof.

3 And two olive-trees over it: one upon the right side of the lamp, and the other upon the left side thereof.

4 And I answered, and said to the angel that spoke in me, saying: What are these things, my lord?

5 And the angel that spoke in me answered, and said to me: Knowest thou not what these things are? And I said: No, my lord.

6 And he answered, and spoke to me, saying: This is the word of the Lord to Zorobabel, saying: Not with an army, nor by might: but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts.

7 Who art thou, O great mountain, before Zorobabel? thou shalt become a plain: and he shall bring out

• Luke i. 78.

VER. 13. Silent: obey with reverence. II. See Hab. ii. 20. and I Mac. i. 3. C.—Habitation, becoming man. M.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. Jesus, or Josue, the son of Josedeo, the high priest of that time. Ch.—To him this literally refers. W.—As high priest, he represented the nation, whom several calumniated to Darius. 1 Esd. iv. &c. God represses the adversary and adorns his people. It seems something has been done amiss. v. 4. C.—The high priest, (S. Jer.) or rather his sons, have married strangers. Chal. 1 Esd. x. 18. Many Fathers take Jesus for a figure of the Messiah, covered with the sins of mankind. C.—But the Orient (v. 8) would not thus be promised unto him, (S. Jer.) unless we consider him also as high priest.—Satan. Sept. "the devil," the accuser and calumniator. Apoc. xii. 10.

VER. 2. The Lord said. This may refer to the angel, or to the Father and the Son. Pa. cix. Both are styled Jehovah.—Brand, alluding to the nation, or to Jesus. Have not they suffered enough? Amos iv. 11. C.

VER. 3. Garments. Negligences and sins. Ch.—Jesus had neglected to urge the building of the temple, or to repress unlawful marriages. 1 Esd. viii. W.

VER. 4. Change, such as were worn on festivals. This shewed that the people should exchange adversity for joy.

VER. 5. Mitre, (cydarim) the pontiff's tiara, of byssus. Ex. xxviii. 4.

VER. 7. Judge. The high priests were at the head till the Machabees. Jos. Ant. xi. 4. and xx. 8.—Yet the nation was, (C.) till Simon, (H.) always dependent; and the judges were under foreign kings or governors. C.—Give thee, &c. Angels to attend and assist thee. Ch.—They are promised to help the pastors of the Church. W.—They shall give information. v. 9. Ex. xxiii. 20. C.—Of them. Sept. "who shall converse in the midst of these who stand:" (H.) thy children shall succeed in the pontificate. Theod.

VER. 8. Portending men. That is, men who by words and actions are to fore-shew wonders that are to come; (Ch.) or rather they require prodigies before they will take courage to build the temple; or they understand how to explain such things. C.—Orient; Christ, who according to his humanity is the servant of God, is called the Orient, from his rising like the sun in the east to enlighten the world. Ch.—S. Luke explains this of Christ, (W.) recording the words of Zacharias. II.—Christ's birth was most pure. He gave light to the world. Some would explain this of Zorobabel; but as he was already present, it would seem more applicable to Nehemias. Yet both were only figures of Christ, and could not efface the iniquity of Juda, &c. The Messiah is styled the Bud, C. vi. 12. Is. iv. 2. &c. C.—Tzemach signifies either "the bud or the orient." H.

VER. 9. The stone. Another emblem of Christ, the rock, foundation, and corner-stone of his Church.—Eyes. The manifold providence of Christ over his Church, or the seven gifts of the Spirit of God. Ch.—The Jews were lately returned from a country where seven chief officers were styled "the king's eyes," having to inform him of the conduct of governors, &c. Zorobabel shall build the temple, as a figure of Christ establishing his Church. C. iv. 10.—Grave. Sept. "dig a pit." The rest agree with us. Christ adorns and instructs his Church. C.—Day. The day of the passion of Christ, the source of all our good; when this precious stone shall be graven, that is cut and pierced with whips, thorns, nails, and spear. Ch.

VER. 10. Tree. All shall be peace and concord. H.—They shall communicate to each other spiritual goods, abounding in the Church. M.

CHAP. IV. VER. 1. Again. He had been with Jesus. C. iii. C.

VER. 2. A candlestick, &c. The temple of God that was then in building, and in a more sublime sense, the Church of Christ. Ch.—Some, with the Jews, apply this to the synagogue: but most explain it of the Church, the lamp denoting Christ, and the seven lights all his pastors; the two olives, Enoch and Elias. Apoc. xi. W.—The angel explains the latter of Jesus and Zorobabel. v. 14. The lights are the same with the angels, (v. 10) and eyes, (C. iii. 9.) subservient to these great men. Perhaps no candlestick of this description ever existed, though it alludes to that of Moses in some respects. Ex. xxxvii. C.—Lamp. Heb. gullah, (H.) a round vessel for oil. M.—It was filled from the two olive trees, and supplied the seven lights by tubes. H.

VER. 5. Art thou? Thou art a prophet, and art thou ignorant? M.

VER. 6. To Zorobabel. This vision was in favour of Zorobabel, to assure him of success in the building of the temple, which he had begun, signified by the candlestick; the lamp of which, without any other industry, was supplied with oil dropping from the two olive-trees, and distributed by the seven funnels or pipes, to maintain the seven lights. Ch.—Zorobabel might thus be comforted with the assurance that God would protect his Church. W.—Spirit, represented by the eyes. The Messiah would receive the fulness of this spirit. Is. xi. 2. C.

VER. 7. Great mountain. So he calls the opposition made by the enemies of God's people; which, nevertheless, without any army or might on their side, was quashed by divine Providence. Ch.—It may also mean Sion covered with ruins.—Chief; either the first or the last stone. C.—Equal grace. Shall add grace to grace, or beauty to beauty. Ch.—He shall greatly adorn it. Heb. "when they shall lift it (the stone) up, they will exclaim: Let it be agreeable and loved." C.—Prot. "He shall bring forth the head-stone thereof with shoutings, crying: Grace, grace unto it." The people filled the air with their cries, when the temple was founded fourteen years before. II.—This second attempt the chief stone, and shall give equal grace to the grace thereof.

8 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

9 The hands of Zorobabel have laid the foundations of this house, and his hands shall finish it: and you shall know that the Lord of hosts hath sent me to you.

10 For who hath despised little days? and they shall rejoice, and shall see the tin plummet in the hand of Zorobabel. These are the seven eyes of the Lord, that run to and fro through the whole earth.

11 And I answered, and said to him: What are these two olive-trees upon the right side of the candlestick, and upon the left side thereof?

12 And I answered again, and said to him: What are the two olive branches, that are by the two golden beaks, in which are the funnels of gold?

13 And he spoke to me, saying: Knowest thou not what these are? And I said: No, my lord.

14 And he said: These are two sons of oil, who stand before the Lord of the whole earth.

CHAP. V.

The vision of the flying volume, and of the woman in the vessel.

AND I turned, and lifted up my eyes: and I saw, and behold a volume flying:

2 And he said to me: What seest thou? And I said: I see a volume flying: the length thereof is twenty cubits, and the breadth thereof ten cubits.

3 And he said to me: This is the curse, that goeth forth over the face of the earth: for every thief shall be judged, as is there written: and every one that sweareth, in like manner shall be judged by it.

4 I will bring it forth, saith the Lord of hosts: and it shall come to the house of the thief, and to the house shall be more successful. The temple was finished in four years. 1 Esd. v. 16. and vi. 16. C.

VER. 10. Little days. That is, these small and feeble beginnings of the temple of God. Ch.—Ye of little faith shall rejoice when you shall behold Zorobabel surmounting all difficulties. C.—Plummet. Lit. "the stone of tin." He means the builder's plummet, which Zorobabel shall hold in his hand for the finishing the building. Ch.—The Heb. style all weights stones. Deut. xxv. 13. C.—Eyes. The providence of God, that oversees and orders all things; (Ch.) or the assistance of the seven chief angels. Tob. xii. 15. Apoc. i. 4. C.

VER. 12. Branches: the divine and human nature in Christ. W.—They are the same with the two trees, v. 11. C.

VER. 14. Two sons of oil. That is, the two anointed ones of the Lord; viz. Jesus, the high priest, and Zorobabel, the prince. Ch.—The Hebrews have not many adjectives. Thus they say, the son of perdition, for a lost son. Sept. "sons of fatness." Aq. and Th. "of splendour;" two illustrious personages. H.—One was head in religious, the other in civil matters. C.—Both were appointed by God, and co-operated for the welfare of the people, as the church and state ought to act for the common good, and assist each other. H.—Jesus and Zorobabel were to repair the damages done by the Chaldeans. They were assisted by the seven administering spirits. Heb. i. 14. C.

CHAP. V. VER. 1. Eyes of the soul. M.—Volume. That is, a parchment, according to the form of the ancient books, which, from being rolled up, were called volumes. Ch.—Such are still used in the synagogues. They were usually written only on one side. C.—Sept. have read e at the end of megilla, and render "a scythe" (H.) indicating chastisement. Aquila and Th. have Diphthera, and Sym. Kephala. S. Jer.—The latter denotes the roller (H.) to which the parchment was sewed. M.—The former signifies a book written on vellum, particularly that in which the poets say Jupiter marks the sins and punishments of mankind. The prophet saw a volume of this nature. C.—The sins of the people, and the punishment designed for them, were described. It appeared flying, to shew that the decree came from heaven. S. Chrys. Il. xxvii. ad pop. W.

VER. 2. Cubits, alluding to Judea, which was twice as long as it was broad. M.—Many explain this vision and that of the woman, (v. 7) of the Jews, (C.) after S. Jerom. H.—But it seems rather to denote the Chaldeans, whose sentence had been long pronounced, and who were punished by the Persians, and by the Greeks, as by two women. If we understand the Jews, their iniquity was chastised by the Assyrians and Chaldeans. *C.

VER. 3. In like. Prot. "shall be cut off as on that side standing to it." H. VER. 4. Thief. Nabuchodonosor is often so styled. S. Jer. iv. 7. This title comprises all the injuries done to man, as he that sweareth falsely refers to those where God's honour is concerned (C.) more immediately H.

of him that sweareth falsely by my name: and it shall remain in the midst of his house, and shall consume it, with the timber thereof, and the stones thereof.

5 And the angel went forth that spoke in me: and he said to me: Lift up thy eyes, and see what this is, that goeth forth.

6 And I said: What is it? And he said: This is a vessel going forth. And he said: This is their eye in all the earth.

7 And behold, a talent of lead was carried, and behold, a woman sitting in the midst of the vessel.

8 And he said: This is wickedness. And he cast her into the midst of the vessel, and cast the weight of lead upon the mouth thereof.

9 And I lifted up my eyes, and looked: and behold, there came out two women, and wind was in their wings, and they had wings like the wings of a kite: and they lifted up the vessel between the earth and the heaven.

10 And I said to the angel that spoke in me: Whither do these carry the vessel?

11 And he said to me: That a house may be built for it in the land of Sennaar, and that it may be established, and set there upon its own basis.

CHAP. VI.

The vision of the four chariots. Crowns are ordered for Jesus, the high priest, as a type of Christ.

AND I turned, and lifted up my eyes, and saw: and behold four chariots came out from the midst of two mountains: and the mountains were mountains of brass.

2 In the first chariot were red horses, and in the second chariot black horses,

VER. 6. Vessel. Heb. epha. C.—Eye. This is what they fix their eye upon; or this is a resemblance and figure of them, viz. of sinners. Ch.—Prot. "resemblance." H.—This is their picture. C.—Sept. "wickedness;" anom. H.—U is often mistaken for i. S. Jer. Yet here the Sept. seems equally intelligible, v. 8. H.

VER. 7. Talent, or weight, (H.) called a stone, v. 8.—Vessel, like the idol Canopus.

VER. 8. He cast. Heb. (C.) according to Theodot. (S. Jer.) "She cast herself into the epha," &c. H.

VER. 9. Women. They often represent nations; and here the Jews understand the Medes and Greeks, who punished the Chaldeans. S. Jerom. rather thinks that the Assyrians and Chaldeans are meant, carrying away Israel and Juda. Yet the former supposition seems preferable, as the woman in the vessel signified the wickedness of Babylon.—Kite. Moderns have, "stork!" the true sense is uncertain. C.—The Jews became blind and hardened on account of their avarice and perjuries. W.

VER. 11. The land of Sennaar, where Babel or Babylon was built; (Gen. ix.) where note that Babylon, in holy writ, is often taken for the city of the devil, (that is, for the whole congregation of the wicked) as Jerusalem is taken for the city and people of God. Ch.—Antichrist will begin his reign at Babylon. W.—Yet this is not clear. H.—The Chaldeans are driven from the countries which they had seized, and confined to their own territory, by the Persians and Greeks; or, if we explain it of the Jews, many of them remained at Babylon, and did not return to defile their own country. Only those whose hearts were touched by God returned. 1 Esd. i. 5. C.—Sennaar means "excursion." The Jews have been driven by the Chaldeans and Romans into all parts. M.

CHAP. VI. VER. 1. Four chariots. The four great empires of the Chaldeans, Persians, Grecians, and Romans; or, perhaps, by the fourth chariot are represented the kings of Egypt and of Asia, the descendants of Ptolemy and Seleucus. Ch. See Dan. ii. W.—The chariots seem to represent the same thing as the four horns, (C. i. 18.) namely, the punishment of the four empires. The angel says nothing of the first chariot, as the Chaldeans, who overthrew the Assyrians, were now devoid of power.—Brass, or hard; signifying that the chariots were designed to bruise nations. C.—Empires depend on the decrees of God. M.—The two mountains may denote the passes of Cilicia, through which the conquerors must pass from Egypt and Syria to Babylon. Tournemine.

VER. 2. Red. The Chaldeans were bloody towards the Jews and clothed in red. Nah. ii. 3. M.

VER. 3. Strong; (Prot. marg.) the text has "bay." H.—Some Cr. copies read erroneously, red. S. Jer.—Others have, variegated, as v. 7. H.

VER. 5. Winds. These angels go throughout the world to punish. Dan. x. 13. We commonly suppose the tutelar angels to be for the defence of their

3 And in the third chariot white horses, and in the fourth chariot grised horses, and strong ones.

4 And I answered, and said to the angel that spoke in me: What are these, my lord?

5 And the angel answered, and said to me: These are the four winds of the heaven, which go forth to stand before the Lord of all the earth.

6 That, in which were the black horses, went forth into the land of the north, and the white went forth after them: and the grised went forth to the land of the south.

7 And they that were most strong, went out, and sought to go, and to run to and fro through all the earth. And he said: Go, walk throughout the earth: and they walked throughout the earth.

8 And he called me, and spoke to me, saying: Behold, they that go forth into the land of the north, have quieted my spirit in the land of the north.

9 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

10 Take of them of the captivity, of Holdai, and of Tobias, and of Idaias; thou shalt come in that day, and shalt go into the house of Josias, the son of Sophonias, who came out of Babylon.

11 And thou shalt take gold and silver: and shalt make crowns, and thou shalt set them on the head of Jesus, the son of Josedec, the high priest.

12 And thou shalt speak to him, saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts, saying: *BEHOLD A MAN, THE ORIENT IS HIS NAME: and under him shall he spring up, and shall build a temple to the Lord.

13 Yea, he shall build a temple to the Lord: and he shall bear the glory, and shall sit, and rule upon his throne, and he shall be a priest upon his throne, and the counsel of peace shall be between them both.

* Luke i. 78.

kingdoms. C.—But they may often promote our real welfare by chastisements. H.—The four monarchies fight like the winds, and soon disappear. M.

VER. 6. North. So Babylon is called, because it lay to the north in respect of Jerusalem. The black horses, that is, the Medes and Persians, and after them Alexander and his Greeks, signified by the white horses, went thither because they conquered Babylon, executed upon it the judgments of God, which is signified v. 8 by the expression of quieting his spirit. Ch.—The Persians are black, afflicting the Jews under Assuerus, and hindering the temple. M.—Cambyases meditated their utter ruin. C. ii. 20. H.—White.—Alexander was of a beneficent temper when he was not intoxicated. He fought for glory, and was kind to the Jews. C.—South: Egypt, which lay to the south of Jerusalem, and was occupied first by Ptolemaeus, and then by the Romans. Ch.—The Lagides were some good and some very bad princes, represented by the grisly colour. C.

VER. 7. Strong. Sept. "variegated;" ψαροι, (H.) sturnini. S. Jer.—Earth. This well describes the ambition and power of the Seleucides, particularly of Antiochus the great, (C.) or of the Roman generals down to Cæsar. M.

VER. 8. Spirit. Sept. "wrath or fury." H.—Nabopolassar overcame the Assyrians, Cyrus the Chaldeans, as Alexander would shortly treat the Persians.

VER. 10. Holdai, &c. They had brought presents for the temple, which are to be used to make crowns for Jesus and Zerobabel. v. 13. C.—The names are interpreted by the Sept. "of the princes and of its useful things, and of those who have known it, (captivity) and thou," &c. H.—Helem and Hem are afterwards mentioned instead of Holdai. v. 14. S. Jer.

VER. 11. Crowns. Chal. "a great crown." Sept. v. 14. "a crown;" perhaps like the pope's. M.—Jesus. When the prophet set the crown on the high priest's head, in order to shew that it did not belong to him, except as a figure of the Messiah, he added, behold a man, who is also God, called Orient, or "raising up," and establishing the kingdom, which was promised to David. S. Jer. W.

VER. 12. Orient. Prot. "the branch, and he shall grow up out of his place." H.—Heb. "under or from himself." This alludes to the miraculous birth of Christ, (Is. xi. 1.) whom the prophet had principally in view; though his hearers might naturally understand (C.) Zerobabel, who was to preserve the royal family and build the temple. Theod. S. Jer.—Yet he was only a shadow of the Messiah. C. iii. 8. C.

VER. 13. Glory. Sept. "virtue," or "receive strength" and courage, αρετην; (H.) or one of the crowns, as prince of Juda. v. 10. C.—Both. That is, he shall unite in himself the two offices or dignities of king and priest. Ch.—Zerobabel and Jesus shall act in concert. H.

VER. 14. Helem. Sept. "the crown shall be for those who expect him." H.

14 And the crowns shall be to Helem, and Tobias, and Idaias, and to Hem, the son of Sophonias, a memorial in the temple of the Lord.

15 And they that are far off, shall come, and shall build in the temple of the Lord: and you shall know that the Lord of hosts sent me to you. But this shall come to pass, if hearing, you will hear the voice of the Lord, your God.

CHAP. VII.

The people inquire concerning fasting: they are admonished to fast from sin.

AND ^bit came to pass in the fourth year of king Darius, that the word of the Lord came to Zacharias, in the fourth day of the ninth month, which is Casleu.

2 When Sarasar, and Rogommelech, and the men that were with him, sent to the house of God, to entreat the face of the Lord:

3 To speak to the priests of the house of the Lord of hosts, and to the prophets, saying: Must I weep in the fifth month, or must I sanctify myself, as I have now done for many years?

4 And the word of the Lord of hosts came to me, saying:

5 Speak to all the people of the land, and to the priests, saying: *When you fasted, and mourned in the fifth and the seventh month for these seventy years, did you keep a fast unto me?

6 And when you did eat and drink, did you not eat for yourselves, and drink for yourselves?

7 Are not these the words which the Lord spoke by the hand of the former prophets, when Jerusalem as yet was inhabited, and was wealthy, both itself and the cities round about it, and there were inhabitants to wards the south, and in the plain:

^b A. M. 3487.—^c Isai. lviii. 5.

—Hem. Sept. "for grace." Heb. chen. S. Jer.—Thus proper names are frequently interpreted. H.—The crowns were not to be worn, but to be deposited in the temple. 1 Mac. i. 23. C.—The names of those four who had contributed towards their making, were to be inscribed upon them. Helem and Hem are the same with Holdai and Josias. M.—The Jews say Hem or Daniel, and his three companions, brought gifts. S. Jer.

VER. 15. Off. Many Jews now assisted in the building, coming from all parts. The temple was thus finished in four years' time; whereas Solomon, with all his riches and workmen, spent seven in building one. C.

CHAP. VII. VER. 1. Casleu, in our November or December. C.

VER. 2. And. Sept. from; (S. Jer.) or, "to Bethel sent Sarasar and Arbesezar, the king, and his men, to render the face of the Lord propitious." H.—These were Persian governors under Darius, (S. Jer.) or Cutheans, (Theod.) or Jews, at a distance from the temple, though in the country. M.—But they seem rather to be some who had not returned. C.

VER. 3. The fifth month. They fasted on the tenth day of the fifth month; because on that day the temple was burnt. Therefore they inquire whether they are to continue that fast after the temple is rebuilt. See this query answered v. 19 of the following chap. Ch.—The third of the seventh month (v. 5.) was also a fast, on account of the death of Godolias, (C.) during the captivity. 4 K. xxv. 8. 25. W.—Sept. "Has the sanctification entered hither in the fifth month, as they (or I) have done?" &c. H.—Fasting and lamentation are styled sanctification, because they promote it; curatos quoque sanctificat; (S. Jer.) if the proper conditions be observed. H.

VER. 5. Years, from the ruin of the temple till the fourth of Darius.—Unto me! Did you grieve for the injury done to me; or was your sorrow caused by your own losses? The prophet gives not a direct answer; but sufficiently shews that exterior works of themselves are of little value. Whether the Jews entered into his sentiments or not, they still observe these fasts, though he said they should be changed into days of rejoicing. C. viii. 19. C.—The fast was good, but imperfect, wanting works of charity. S. Greg. W.

VER. 6. Yourselves, to gratify the senses more than from necessity, and without doing it for God's glory. H.

VER. 7. Prophets. He alludes to Is. lviii. 3. See also Jer. xiv. 12. Joel ii. 12. The Jews were always too much attached to the letter, without minding the spirit of the law, being zealous for corporal rather than for spiritual works.—South. Several of these cities were occupied by the Idumeans.—Plain, or Sephala, which afterwards became flourishing and populous. C.

VER. 9. Judgment. Avoid sinning, when you fast. W.

8 And the word of the Lord came to Zacharias, saying:

9 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, saying: *Judge ye true judgment, and shew ye mercy, and compassion, every man to his brother.

10 ^bAnd oppress not the widow, and the fatherless, and the stranger, and the poor: and let not a man devise evil in his heart against his brother.

11 But they would not hearken, and they turned away the shoulder to depart: and they stopped their ears, not to hear.

12 And they made their heart as the adamant stone, lest they should hear the law, and the words which the Lord of hosts sent in his spirit by the hand of the former prophets: so a great indignation came from the Lord of hosts.

13 And it came to pass that as he spoke, and they heard not: so shall they cry, and I will not hear, saith the Lord of hosts.

14 And I dispersed them throughout all kingdoms, which they knew not: and the land was left desolate behind them, so that no man passed through or returned: and they changed the delightful land into a wilderness.

CHAP. VIII.

Joyful promises to Jerusalem: fully verified in the Church of Christ.

AND the word of the Lord of hosts came to me, saying:

2 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: I have been jealous for Sion with a great jealousy, and with a great indignation have I been jealous for her.*

3 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: I am returned to Sion, and I will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: and Jerusalem shall be called the City of Truth, and the Mountain of the Lord of hosts, the sanctified mountain.

4 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: There shall yet old men and old women dwell in the streets of Jerusalem: and every man, with his staff in his hand, through multitude of days.

5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls, playing in the streets thereof.

6 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: If it seem hard in the eyes of the remnant of this people in those days, shall it be hard in my eyes? saith the Lord of hosts.

* Mich. vi. 8. Matt. xxiii. 23.—Exod. xxii. 22.

VER. 10. Devise. Sept. "wickedly remember in your hearts each one the evil of his brother." H.

VER. 11. Depart, so to leave the burden on their partner. Heb. C.—Lit. "giving way," recedentes. Sixt. V. recedentes. Sept. "they gave a contemptuous back," (H.) like a slave, whom the whip cannot correct.

VER. 12. As, &c. Heb. "of Samir;" a stone used to polish jewels. Sept. "disobedient."

VER. 13. So shall. It seems the past time would be preferable; as Theodoret, S. Cyr. &c. understand it. C.—Yet the Jews, whom the prophet addressed, were also reprehensible; and they or their posterity felt the effects of God's indignation, when he scattered them throughout the world, as we see at present. Sept. have the future; but Prot. the past tense, "they cried," &c. H.

CHAP. VIII. VER. 2. Jealous for her, treating her as a spouse, (C.) and not neglecting her as one incorrigible. H.

VER. 3. Truth. Idols and infidelity shall reign there no more. The Jews were more faithful after the captivity. But the Church of Christ is alone perfectly chaste. C.

VER. 6. Days. If no prospect of such happiness now appear, is any thing difficult to Omnipotence? H. Lu. i. 37.

VER. 7. Sun, from Chaldaea and the islands. This chiefly regards the Christian Church. C.—Assyria and Chaldaea lay to the north. The promises are too great for the synagogue. W.

VER. 8. Justice. I will fulfil my promises, if they adhere to virtue. C.

VER. 10. Hire, or "reward;" merces. H.—All their toils proved useless: (C.)

7 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold, I will save my people from the land of the east, and from the land of the going down of the sun.

8 And I will bring them, and they shall dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: and they shall be my people, and I will be their God in truth and in justice.

9 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Let your hands be strengthened, you that hear in these days these words by the mouth of the prophets, in the day that the house of the Lord of hosts was founded, that the temple might be built.

10 For before those days there was no hire for men, neither was there hire for beasts, neither was there peace to him that came in, nor to him that went out, because of the tribulation: and I let all men go every one against his neighbour.

11 But now I will not deal with the remnant of this people according to the former days, saith the Lord of hosts.

12 But there shall be the seed of peace: the vine shall yield her fruit, and the earth shall give her increase, and the heavens shall give their dew: and I will cause the remnant of this people to possess all these things.

13 And it shall come to pass, that as you were a curse among the Gentiles, O house of Juda and house of Israel, so will I save you, and you shall be a blessing; fear not, let your hands be strengthened.

14 For thus saith the Lord of hosts: As I purposed to afflict you, when your fathers had provoked me to wrath, saith the Lord,

15 And I had no mercy: so, turning again, I have thought in these days to do good to the house of Juda, and Jerusalem: fear not.

16 These then are the things which you shall do: *Speak ye truth every one to his neighbour; judge ye truth and judgment of peace in your gates.

17 And let none of you imagine evil in your hearts against his friend; and love not a false oath; for all these are the things that I hate, saith the Lord.

18 And the word of the Lord of hosts came to me, saying:

19 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: The fast of the fourth month, and the fast of the fifth, and the fast of the land would not yield her fruit. H. See Agg. ii. 16.—The temple had now been building two years, and then God sent his prophets and many blessings. —Neighbour. Civil broils and the enemy rendered all wretched. 1 Esd. iv.

Isai. i. 28. Jer. v. 28.—Eph. iv. 25.

VER. 13. Blessing. As the nations could wish no greater curse than what you have experienced, so you shall now be regarded as a most happy people.

VER. 16. Of peace, or perfect. Shew no partiality.

VER. 17. Friend means every neighbour, or all mankind. Lu. x. 27. 36. Even thoughts must be guarded. C.

VER. 19. Fast. They fasted on the ninth day of the fourth month, because on that day Nabuchodonosor took Jerusalem. Jer. lii. 6. On the tenth day of the fifth month, because on that day the temple was burnt. Jer. lii. 12. On the third day of the seventh month, for the murder of Godolias. Jer. xli. 2. And on the tenth day of the tenth month, because on that day the Chaldeans began to besiege Jerusalem. 4 K. xxv. 1. All these fasts, if they will be obedient for the future, shall be changed (as is here promised) into joyful solemnities. Ch.—They had only inquired about the fasts of the fifth and seventh months but the two others were also to be omitted in times of joy. W.—The Jews still observe all four. Basnage v. 16.—They fast on the seventeenth of the fourth month, because the breach was then made in the walls, (C.) and Moses broke the tables of the law, according to the Jews, in S. Jer. The ninth of the fifth month is also kept instead of the tenth, on which day the city was taken by the Chaldees; (C.) and the Romans burnt the temple in the same month, as the Israelites had then formerly been sentenced to wander in the desert. S. Jer.—It would be difficult for the Jews to prove all these assertions.

the seventh, and the fast of the tenth, shall be to the house of Juda joy and gladness, and great solemnities; only love ye truth and peace.

20 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Until people come and dwell in many cities,

21 And the inhabitants go one to another, saying: Let us go, and entreat the face of the Lord, and let us seek the Lord of hosts: I also will go.

22 And many peoples and strong nations shall come to seek the Lord of hosts, in Jerusalem, and to entreat the face of the Lord.

23 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: In those days, wherein ten men of all languages of the Gentiles shall take hold, and shall hold fast the skirt of one that is a Jew, saying: We will go with you; for we have heard that God is with you.

CHAP. IX.

God will defend his Church, and bring over even her enemies to the faith. The meek coming of Christ, to bring peace, to deliver the captives by his blood, and to give us all good things.

THE burden of the word of the Lord, in the land of Hadrach, and of Damascus the rest thereof; for the eye of man, and of all the tribes of Israel, is the Lord's.

2 Emath also, in the borders thereof, and Tyre, and Sidon; for they have taken to themselves to be exceedingly wise.

3 And Tyre hath built herself a strong hold, and heaped together silver as earth, and gold as the mire of the streets.

4 Behold the Lord shall possess her, and shall strike her strength in the sea, and she shall be devoured with fire.

VER. 22. Lord. Many were converted in the days of Esther; (viii. 17.) and the Pharisees were eager to make proselytes in all parts, when Christ preached. Mat. xxiii. 15. Acts ii. 11. Yet we must go to the Church to see this fully accomplished. C.

VER. 23. Ten men, &c. Many of the Gentiles became proselytes to the Jewish religion before Christ; but many more were converted to Christ by the apostles and other preachers of the Jewish nation. Ch.—Skirt, or hem, by which the Jews were distinguished. Num. xv. 38. Mat. ix. 20. C.

CHAP. IX. VER. 1. Burden. Preaching of the truth is disagreeable to infidels, and light to the faithful. W.—Hadrach; Syria, (Ch.) or a city near Damascus, on which it rested. The victories of Alexander and of the Machabees are here described. The former defeated the Arabs near Damascus, (which was betrayed to Parmenio) and having gained the victory at Issus, became master of Celosyria, of which he made Parmenio governor. C.—Rest. Sept. "his sacrifice, for the Lord looks on men and on all the tribes of Israel." H.—He wishes for the conversion of all, and those who turn to him are not rejected. S. Jer.

VER. 2. Emath, or Emesa, not far from Damascus. C.—It shall also fall a prey to Alexander. H.—Tyre was become again very rich and strong, (C.) and gloried in its wisdom; yet was taken after a long and obstinate resistance (H.) of seven months, when the inhabitants were slain or sold, the city demolished, and the ships sunk. Curt. iv. Usher, A. 3672.—Sidon made no resistance, as it hated the Persians. Yet Strato was forced to resign the throne to Abdolonymus. (Arian ii. Just. xi.) which indicates some opposition. C.

VER. 5. Ascalon was ruined. The other cities opened their gates, as Jerusalem did. Jos. Ant. xi. ult.—Batis alone resolved to defend Gaza. He was dragged round the city when it was taken, after a siege of two months; the inhabitants were slaughtered or sold, and others brought in their stead. Curt. iv. Diad. Oly. cxi.

VER. 8. Divider. Heb. mamzer; "bastard," or rather "stranger." It is reported that Alexander was the illegitimate son of Nestabanes, whom Olympias took for Jupiter. Plut. Just. xi.—But these might be popular reports. The sequel seems to shew that the Jews, &c. occupied the towns of the Philistines under the Machabees. Chal. Grot. C.—The divider may denote any conqueror. M.

VER. 7. His blood. It is spoken of the Philistines, and particularly of Azotus, (where the temple of Dagon was) and contains a prophecy of the conversion of that people from their bloody sacrifices and abominations to the worship of the true God. Ch.—Many pagans devoured the victims raw, and drank the blood of their enemies. These marks of cruelty and superstition shall cease when they adopt the law of Moses. Gen. ix. 4. Lev. vii. 26. and xvii. 11.—Governor, or city of a thousand; (C.) Heb. alup. Mic. v. 2. H.—Jebusite. They probably embraced the faith with Areuna. 2 K. xxiv. 16. The city was formerly styled Jebus. The 5 Ascalon shall see, and shall fear, and Gaza, and shall be very sorrowful: and Accaron, because her hope is confounded: and the king shall perish from Gaza, and Ascalon shall not be inhabited.

6 And the divider shall sit in Azotus, and I will destroy the pride of the Philistines.

7 And I will take away his blood out of his mouth, and his abominations from between his teeth; and even he shall be left to our God, and he shall be as a governor in Juda, and Accaron as a Jebusite.

8 And I will encompass my house with them that serve me in war, going and returning, and the oppressor shall no more pass through them; for now I have seen with my eyes.

9 "Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Sion, shout for joy, O daughter of Jerusalem: BEHOLD THY KING will come to thee, the just and saviour: he is poor, and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt, the foal of an ass.

10 And I will destroy the chariot out of Ephraim, and the horse out of Jerusalem, and the bow for war shall be broken: and he shall speak peace to the Gentiles, and his power shall be from sea to sea, and from the rivers even to the end of the earth.

11 Thou also, by the blood of thy testament, hast sent forth thy prisoners out of the pit, wherein is no water.

12 Return to the strong hold, ye prisoners of hope, I will render thee double, as I declare to-day.

13 Because I have bent Juda for me as a bow, I have filled Ephraim; and I will raise up thy sons, O Sion, above thy sons, O Greece, and I will make thee as the sword of the mighty.

* Isai. lxii. 11.—Mat. xxi. 5.

towns of the Philistines shall not be distinguished from the rest, under the dominion of Juda. See 1 Mac. v. 66. and x. 78. C.

VER. 8. War; the Machabees. Ch.—They stood up like a wall for the people and the temple. C.—Heb. "my house, on account of those going," &c. I will protect it better than an army. H.—After the Machabees, God preserved the temple from profanation till he abandoned it after the death of Christ. C.—Yet Pompey penetrated into the most holy place, and Crassus plundered the treasury. Both felt the effects of their impiety, and had no farther success.—Oppressor; tax-gatherer, (H.) sent by foreign tyrants. M.—Till the Machabees, particularly Hircan, (C.) or Simon, his father, (H.) threw off the yoke, the Jews were always subject (C.) either to the Persians, to Syria, or to Egypt. H.—Hircan's son, Aristobulus, took the title of king, and governed in peace. C.

VER. 9. King. Christ often came to Jerusalem; but his last entrance, to die for man's redemption, was most excellent. W.—If the Jews had not wilfully blinded themselves, they could not mistake Him, as he is here so minutely described, possessing the most humble and the noblest qualities. Not knowing how to reconcile them, they feign one Messias glorious and another poor and despised; while others admit only of one, and reject either the abject or the exalted things which the prophets have spoken of him. The Church alone can reconcile these apparent contradictions in our Saviour's character. After predicting what would befall the Jews till about one hundred years before the birth of Christ, the prophet turns to Him who was the desire and comfort of the nation. C.—Saviour. Heb. Noshah, (H.) or Jesus. S. Jer.—Poor; or meek, as S. Matthew quotes it, after the Sept. and Chal. M.—They have read v for i, as hani (H.) means poor. C.—Prot. "lowly," which may signify devoid of riches, or of pride.—Ass. Sept. "yoked animal, and upon a young foal." H.—The former denotes the Jews.

VER. 10. Chariot. Arms shall be useless. Mic. v. 10.—Earth. This can be understood only of Christ's kingdom, (C.) though it allude to the greatest limits of the promised land. H.

VER. 11. Water; from limbo, (S. Jer. &c. W. S. Tho. iii. p. q. 52. a. 1 C.) and purgatory. See S. Aug. de Gen. xii. 23. & ep. 99. M.—Christ delivered the ancient patriarchs by virtue of his covenant, just sealed with his blood. Heb. at present reads, "and as for thee, Sion, by the blood of thy covenant I have sent forth thy prisoners," &c. delivering the Hebrews out of Egypt by the paschal lamb. Chal. But this text is suspected, as S. Jerom remarks no variation.

VER. 12. Hold. Return ye, who stay behind, to Jerusalem. God will make good all that you abandon; or come, Judas has procured liberty for the people. 1 Mac. iv. 36. C.—Embrace the gospel, and enter the Church. M.

VER. 13. Juda; the Machabees. S. Jer.—Filled, or stretched the bow of Ephraim. C.—The people shall act with vigour and union. H.—Sons; viz the apostles, who, in the spiritual way, conquered the Greeks, and subdued them to 14 And the Lord God shall be seen over them, and his dart shall go forth as lightning; and the Lord God will sound the trumpet, and go in the whirlwind of the south.

15 The Lord of hosts will protect them: and they shall devour, and subdue with the stones of the sling: and drinking, they shall be inebriated as it were with wine, and they shall be filled as bowls, and as the horns of the altar.

16 And the Lord, their God, will save them in that day, as the flock of his people: for holy stones shall be lifted up over his land.

17 For what is the good thing of him, and what is his beautiful thing, but the corn of the elect, and wine springing forth virgins?

CHAP. X.

God is to be sought to, and not idols. The victories of his Church, which shall arise originally from the Jewish nation.

ASK ye of the Lord rain in the latter season, and the Lord will make snows, and will give them showers of rain, to every one grass in the field.

2 For the idols have spoken what was unprofitable, and the diviners have seen a lie, and the dreamers have spoken vanity; they comforted in vain; therefore they were led away as a flock: they shall be afflicted, because they have no shepherd.

3 My wrath is kindled against the shepherds, and I will visit upon the buck-goats: for the Lord of hosts hath visited his flock, the house of Juda, and hath made them as the horse of his glory in the battle.

4 Out of him shall come forth the corner, out of him the pin, out of him the bow of battle, out of him every exactor together.

5 And they shall be as mighty men, treading under foot the mire of the ways in battle; and they shall fight, because the Lord is with them; and the riders of horses shall be confounded.

6 And I will strengthen the house of Juda, and save the house of Joseph: and I will bring them back again, because I will have mercy on them: and they shall be as they were when I had not cast them off, for I am the Lord their God, and will hear them.

7 And they shall be as the valiant men of Ephraim, and their heart shall rejoice as through wine; and their children shall see, and shall rejoice, and their heart shall be joyful in the Lord.

8 I will whistle for them, and I will gather them together, because I have redeemed them: and I will multiply them as they were multiplied before.

9 And I will sow them among peoples: and from afar they shall remember me: and they shall live with their children, and shall return.

10 And I will bring them back out of the land of Egypt, and I will gather them from among the Assyrians; and will bring them to the land of Galaad, and Libanus, and place shall not be found for them.

11 And he shall pass over the strait of the sea, and shall strike the waves in the sea, and all the depths of the river shall be confounded, and the pride of Assyria shall be humbled, and the sceptre of Egypt shall depart.

12 I will strengthen them in the Lord, and they shall walk in his name: saith the Lord.

CHAP. XI.

The destruction of Jerusalem and the temple. God's dealings with the Jews, and their reprobation.

OPEN thy gates, O Libanus, and let fire devour thy cedars.

2 Howl, thou fir-tree, for the cedar is fallen, for the Christ. Ch.—The Machabees repressed the insolence of the Seleucides, who were of Greek extraction.

VER. 14. Seen. God miraculously interposed in favour of the Machabees, and his angels appeared at their head. 1 Mac. ii. 22. and v. 2. and x. 29. and xi. 8. and xv. 15. A handful of men thus routed vast armies, and asserted their independence, avenging religion and the state, which they restored to greater splendour.—South. whence storms usually arise in that country. Job xxxvii. 9. The angels confounded the enemy. 1 Mac. x. 30.

VER. 15. Sling. At first the Machabees had no other weapon. 1 Mac. iv. 6. The sling was much used. Judg. xx. 16.—Wine. They will shed the blood of the enemy so abundantly, and be all besmeared with it. They would never drink it, like the pagans. Lev. xvii. 10. C.

VER. 16. Holy stones; the apostles, who shall be as pillars and monuments in the Church. Ch.—The Machabees are like a wall. They restore the altar of holocausts, built of fresh stones. 1 Mac. iv. C.

VER. 17. The corn, &c. His most excellent gift is the blessed Eucharist, called here the corn, that is, the bread of the elect, and the wine springing forth virgins, that is, maketh virgins to bud, or spring forth as it were like flowers among thorns, because it has a wonderful efficacy to give and preserve purity. Ch.—It enables the weak to despise all things for the sake of virtue, and makes them fruitful and eloquent, as the original implies. C.—Sept. “a fragrant wine for virgins.” H.—Christ is the grain of wheat, which dying, brings forth much fruit. (Jo. xii.) and “of this wheat that bread is made which came from heaven.” Jo. vi. S. Jer. W.—“How shall not they have joy, who being inebriated with the cup of our Saviour, are made virgins?” This was partly verified in the days of the Machabees, to whom plenty was granted. S. Jer. H.—Those who partake worthily of the blessed Eucharist, become strong and pure. M.—Prot. “corn shall make the young men cheerful, (marg. grow, or speak) and new wine the maids.” H.

CHAP. X. VER. 1. Snows. Prot. “Bright clouds,” or “lightnings.” II.—God will presently grant your requests, after the persecution of Epiphanes. C.—The latter season is when fruit ripens, the acceptable time to sue for grace. W.

VER. 2. Vanity. Jason prevailed on many to imitate the Gentiles. 1 Mac. i. 12.

VER. 3. Goats; the leaders of the people. Jer. i. 8. C.—Vir gregis ipse caper. Virg. Ec. vii.—Jason died in exile, Lysimachus was slain in the temple, Alcimus perished miserably, and Menelaus was hurled among ashes. 2 Mac. v. 5. and iv. 39. and xiii. 4. and 1 Mac. ix. 54.—Battle. The apostates have suffered: God will not abandon his flock, but raises up Mathathias, &c.

VER. 4. Corner, to connect the building. The Machabees were not of the tribe of Juda; but it was the chief, and gave name to the rest. Judas was also a figure of Christ, the chief corner-stone, and he should be born of that tribe.—Pin, to fasten down the tent, or to hang things upon. These comparisons were not deemed mean. 1 Esd. ix. 8. Is. xxii. 23.—Exactor. The term may have a good as well as a bad sense. Taxes must be paid for the support of lawful governments. Judas forced other nations to pay tribute. C.—The same term in Ethiopia, means “a king.” De Dieu.

VER. 5. Riders. The Syrians, with (H.) all their cavalry, were routed by a few ill-armed infantry. C.

VER. 6. Joseph. All the tribes shall embrace the gospel at last. W.—Back, from the caverns to which they had fled.

VER. 7. Valiant. Ephraim was a powerful and valiant tribe. Deut. xxxiii. 17. C.

VER. 8. Whistle. Christians are sweetly drawn by inspirations, without clamorous words. S. Cyr. W.—This expression shews the sovereign dominion of God. C.—Sept. “I will give them a sign.” H.

VER. 9. Me. The Jews were spread throughout the world, and adhered to their own customs. Philo. See Acts ii. 8.—While they enjoyed the greatest prosperity, they kept together in a small territory. It is wonderful how they have since increased.

VER. 10. For them. They returned from the places to which they had been dispersed during former wars, when Judas had liberated his country. C.

VER. 11. Sea. The Jews pretend that the Bosphorus' straits were dried up, to afford them a passage. S. Jer.—But they must produce some stronger text to prove such a miracle. No obstacles shall be able to retard God's people. Is. xi. 16.—Assyria. After Epiphanes, the kingdom subsisted only about seventy years.—Egypt. The Ptolemies excluded the natural princes, who have never regained the throne. They who had so often disturbed the Jews, were deprived of their power over them by the Syrians, and never could prevail there again after the Machabees. C.—When the faithful are confirmed in their religion, the enemy cannot hurt them. W.

CHAP. XI. VER. 1. Gates. Josephus (Bel. vii. 12.) relates, that the heavy eastern gates flew open at midnight: and the priests officiating at Pentecost, heard a multitude crying, “Let us go hence.” See Tacit. Hist. v. Johanan then declared, “O temple, I know thou wilt soon be destroyed,” as Zac. foretold, Open, &c. Kimchi, Lyr. &c. C.—Libanus. So Jerusalem, and more particularly the temple, is called by the prophets, from its height, and from its being built of the cedars of Libanus. Ch. Is. x. 34. Ezech. xvii. S. Jer.—The mighty are laid waste: howl, ye oaks of Basan, because the fenced forest is cut down.

3 The voice of the howling of the shepherds, because their glory is laid waste: the voice of the roaring of the lions, because the pride of the Jordan is spoiled.

4 Thus saith the Lord, my God: Feed the flock of the slaughter.

5 Which they that possessed, slew, and repented not, and they sold them, saying: Blessed be the Lord, we are become rich: and their shepherds spared them not.

6 And I will no more spare the inhabitants of the land, saith the Lord: behold, I will deliver the men, every one into his neighbour's hand, and into the hand of his king: and they shall destroy the land, and I will not deliver it out of their hand.

7 And I will feed the flock of slaughter for this, O ye poor of the flock. And I took unto me two rods, one I called Beauty, and the other I called a Cord: and I fed the flock.

8 And I cut off three shepherds in one month, and my soul was straitened in their regard: for their soul also varied in my regard.

9 And I said: I will not feed you: that which dieth, let it die: and that which is cut off, let it be cut off: and let the rest devour every one the flesh of his neighbour.

10 And I took my rod that was called Beauty, and I cut it asunder to make void my covenant, which I had made with all people.

11 And it was made void in that day: and so the poor of the flock that keep for me, understood that it is the word of the Lord.

12 And I said to them: If it be good in your eyes, bring hither my wages: and if not, be quiet. *And they weighed for my wages thirty pieces of silver.

13 And the Lord said to me: Cast it to the statuary, a handsome price, that I was prized at by them. And I took the thirty pieces of silver; and I cast them into the house of the Lord, to the statuary.

14 And I cut off my second rod that was called a Cord, that I might break the brotherhood between Juda and Israel.

15 And the Lord said to me: Take to thee yet the instruments of a foolish shepherd.

16 For behold I will raise up a shepherd in the land, who shall not visit what is forsaken, nor seek what is scattered, nor heal what is broken, nor nourish that which standeth, and he shall eat the flesh of the fat ones, and break their hoofs.

17 O shepherd, and idol, that forsaketh the flock: the sword upon his arm, and upon his right eye: his arm shall quite wither away, and his right eye shall be utterly darkened.

CHAP. XII.

God shall protect his Church against her persecutors. The mourning of Jerusalem.

THE burden of the word of the Lord upon Israel. Thus saith the Lord, who stretcheth forth the heavens, and layeth the foundations of the earth, and formeth the spirit of man in him:

2 Behold I will make Jerusalem a lintel of surfeiting to all the people round about: and Juda also shall be in the siege against Jerusalem.

3 And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will make Jerusalem a burdensome stone to all people; all that shall lift it up shall be rent and torn; and all destruction of both by Titus is predicted. W.—Cedars. Thy princes and chief men. Ch. W.

* Mat. xxvii. 9.

VER. 2. Fir and oak may signify the cities and towns of the Jews.—Fenced. Sept. "well planted;" (C.) or "forest, planted all at once." H.—"The temple was like a fortress." Tacit.

VER. 3. Pride, or farther banks, covered with shrubs, among which lions dwelt. Jer. l. 44. C.

VER. 4. Feed, thou Zacharias; (M.) or the prophet announces what God will do.—Slaughter, whom Herod and his successors, the Zealots, Eleazar, Simon, and John, so cruelly oppressed and brought to ruin. C.

VER. 6. Hand. This alludes to the last siege of Jerusalem, in which the different factions of the Jews destroyed one another, and they that remained fell into the hands of their king, (that is, of the Roman emperor) of whom they had said, (Jo. xiv. 15.) We have no king but Cæsar. Ch.—The besieged slew each other daily, so that Vespasian did not hurry. Jos. Bel. v. 2. and vi. 1.

VER. 7. For this. Christ came to feed his flock. C.—But the Jews would not receive him. H.—Sept. read (C.) loani, as v. 11, "of slaughter into Chanaan, and I," &c. H.—Two rods, or shepherds' staves, meaning the different ways of God's dealing with his people; the one by sweet means, called the rod of Beauty, the other by bands and punishments, called the Cord. And where both these rods are made of no use or effect by the obstinacy of sinners, the rods are broken, and such sinners are given up to a reprobate sense, as the Jews were. Ch.—The first denotes God's general providence, as it is most seemly that all should be under him; the second means his particular care of the Jews. W.—God uses both the crook and the whip, employing both severity and tenderness. Now all proves in vain.

VER. 8. Month. That is, in a very short time. By these three shepherds probably are meant the latter princes and high priests of the Jews, whose reign was short. Ch.—Ismael, Joseph, and Ananus, all obtained the dignity in one year; and as they and their predecessors were actuated by avarice, they could not fail being displeasing to God. Galba, Otho, and Vitellius were likewise cut off in little more than a year, when Vespasian succeeded, and his son took Jerusalem. C.—The Jews pretend that Moses, Aaron, and Mary are here meant. S. Jer.—But what reference can the prophet have to them?

VER. 9. Not feed. This is the final sentence. God allowed them thirty-seven years to repent, after the death of Christ.

VER. 10. All people. Hereupon all fell upon the Jews.

VER. 11. Poor converts to Christ, (C.) who retired to Pella, (Eus. His. iv. 5.) as they had been warned of the impending storm. Mat. xxiv. l. Lu. xxi. 20.

VER. 12. Pieces. Sicles are usually understood. About fifty-one livres. The Jews bought the life of Christ for this sum; (C.) for thirty pieces. W.

VER. 13. The statuary. The Heb. word signifies also a potter, (Ch.) and this seems to be the true meaning. Mat. xxvii. 3. The prophet is ordered to bring, thus to indicate what should be done by the traitor. C.—Sept. "cast them into the crucible to see if it (the metal) be good, as I have been tried by them." H.

VER. 14. Israel. The latter remained obstinate, (C.) while Juda, the real "confessor," (H.) embraced the gospel. After the destruction of the temple, the Jewish ceremonies were no longer (C.) observed or tolerated in the Church, as they had been, in order that the synagogue might be buried with honour. S. Aug. H.—The Jews are rejected. W.

VER. 15. A foolish shepherd. This was to represent the foolish, that is, the wicked princes and priests that should rule the people, before their utter desolation. Ch.—Caligula, Claudius, or Nero, monsters of stupidity, may also be meant. To such the Jews preferred to submit: but they soon found out their mistake, when it was too late. Caligula and Nero would be adored in the temple!

VER. 16. Hoofs, with excessive travelling. C.—They shew no pity, but are wholly intent on their own pleasures. H.

VER. 17. Shepherd. Sept. "ye who feed foolish things, forsaking," &c. H.—Heb. "shepherd of nothing."—Darkened. Caligula was slain, and had not sense to know what was for his real interest. His wife and only daughter were murdered. See Jos. Ant. xix. 1. Suet.—His maxim was, "Let them hate, provided they fear;" and he wished the Romans had "all but one neck," that he might cut it off. C.—Antichrist, the destroyer, shall perish. W.

CHAP. XII. VER. 2. A lintel of surfeiting. That is, a door into which they shall seek to enter, to glut themselves with blood: but they shall stumble, and fall like men stupified with wine. It seems to allude to the times of Antiochus, and to the victories of the Machabees. Ch.—Yet it indirectly relates to the last siege of Jerusalem, and to Jesus Christ establishing his Church. Heb. "a cup of drowsiness," or trembling. C.—Sept. "as courts (or thresholds; πρυθῆναι) shaken." H.—Jerusalem first drank the cup herself; and then under the Machabees, made others suffer.—Juda. Never before Epihanes had the Jews fought against their brethren. Then the apostates became most terrible. 1 Mac. i. 55. and ii. 7, 19. C.—Thus none persecute the Catholic faith more than those who have perfidiously abandoned it. H.—When the gospel began to be preached, the obstinate Jews opposed it. Acts iv. &c. W.

VER. 3. Stone. It was customary to have such huge stones for people to try their strength. S. Jer.—Ruptures and wounds were frequently the consequence.

the kingdoms of the earth shall be gathered together against her.

4 In that day, saith the Lord, I will strike every horse with astonishment, and his rider with madness: and I will open my eyes upon the house of Juda, and will strike every horse of the nations with blindness.

5 And the governors of Juda shall say in their heart: Let the inhabitants of Jerusalem be strengthened for me in the Lord of hosts, their God.

6 In that day I will make the governors of Juda like a furnace of fire amongst wood, and as a firebrand amongst hay: and they shall devour all the people round about, to the right hand and to the left: and Jerusalem shall be inhabited again in her own place in Jerusalem.

7 And the Lord shall save the tabernacles of Juda, as in the beginning: that the house of David, and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem may not boast and magnify themselves against Juda.

8 In that day shall the Lord protect the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and he that hath offended among them in that day shall be as David: and the house of David as that of God, as an angel of the Lord in their sight.

9 And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will seek to destroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem.

10 And I will pour out upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of prayers; and they shall look upon me, whom they have pierced; and they shall mourn for him as one mourneth for an only son, and they shall grieve over him, as the manner is to grieve for the death of the first-born.

* John xix. 37.—2 Par. xxxv. 22.

Ecc. vi. 22. The nations which attacked God's people, paid dear for their victory. C.—All fight against the Church; (M.) yet she prevails. II.

VER. 4. Blindness. The cavalry of the Syrians proved useless against a few (C.) champions under God's protection. H.

VER. 5. Let. Sept. "We shall find for us the inhabitants of Jerusalem, in the Lord Almighty, their God." H.—Judas always exhorted his men to trust in the Lord. 1 Mac. iii. 18. C.—Mochai, the initials of "who is like thee among the strong, (Alim) O Lord," (Ex. xv. 11. H.) is supposed to have been his motto, (C.) written on his banners; and some assert, that it occasioned the appellation of Machabees. H.—"Strengthen for me." Aquila.

VER. 6. Furnace. Sept. "firebrand among wood, and as a burning lamp amid straw." H.—Left. The Samaritans shall fall as well as the Idumeans.—Place. The temple and city had been deserted, while the troops of Epiphanes occupied the citadel. 1 Mac. iii. 45. and iv. 38.

VER. 7. David. The Machabees were not of this family, but Levites, born at Modin, in Ephraim. C.

VER. 8. Hath. Sept. "is weak."—Offended. Such shall repent and be pardoned, like David. H.—They shall imitate his valour. The posterity of David shall no more cause the people to go astray.—Of God. He seems to allude to Christ's birth. David's offspring shall not ascend the throne; but their virtue shall be conspicuous; they shall give birth to Jesus, Mary, and Joseph. C.

VER. 10. Prayers. Sept. and Chal. "pity." H.—After the Machabees more synagogues were erected, and the people were more faithful; yet this chiefly regards the new law, in which the spirit prays with us ineffably. Rom. viii. 26. C.—Me. So far the prophet speaks in Christ's name. He afterwards relates how the people will grieve for him, beating their breasts. Lu. xxiii. 48. This was clearly verified in Christ. John xix. 31. M.—But in the gospel we read, him whom they have pierced, as the context seems here to require. H.—Some Heb. copies read in like manner, (C.) the Erfurth MS. 2. having alim, "on him," though Michaelis remarks not this important variation. The Jewish transcriber would not alter his text to make it conformable to the New Testament. Kennicott.—Sept. "they shall look upon me for having insulted," or skipped. C.—Yet "S. John did not much regard what the Greek contained, but interpreted word for word as he had read in Hebrew," as the other sacred writers did when there was any material difference. S. Jerom, quoted by Kennicott. Dis. ii. p. 347, &c. H.—Adopting this reading, we may explain this of Judas, whom the people greatly bewailed. 1 Mac. ix. 20. He was a figure of Christ, whom the prophet had chiefly in view. All the Jews who embraced the faith verify this prediction, (C.) as those particularly did who had been instrumental to the death of our Saviour, and afterwards entered into themselves. Acts ii. 37. Both Jews and Gentiles have all contributed by their sins to crucify their Lord; (1164)

11 In that day there shall be a great lamentation in Jerusalem, like the lamentation of Adadremmon, in the plain of Mageddon.

12 And the land shall mourn: families and families apart: the families of the house of David apart, and their women apart:

13 The families of the house of Nathan apart, and their women apart: the families of the house of Levi apart, and their women apart: the families of Semei apart, and their women apart.

14 All the rest of the families, families and families apart, and their women apart.

CHAP. XIII.

The fountain of Christ. Idols and false prophets shall be extirpated Christ shall suffer: his people shall be tried by fire.

IN that day there shall be a fountain open to the house of David, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem: for the washing of the sinner, and of the unclean woman.

2 And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord of hosts, that I will destroy the names of idols out of the earth, and they shall be remembered no more: and I will take away the false prophets, and the unclean spirit out of the earth.

3 And it shall come to pass, that when any man shall prophesy any more, his father and his mother that brought him into the world, shall say to him: Thou shalt not live: because thou hast spoken a lie in the name of the Lord. And his father, and his mother, his parents, shall thrust him through, when he shall prophesy.

4 And it shall come to pass in that day, that the prophets shall be confounded, every one by his own and, at the last day, all shall look on him as their judge or as their deliverer.—Pierced. Heb. dakaru. H.—Sept. have transposed d and r, which are very similar, and read rokdu, "have danced," or derided. S. Jer.—The original implies, have outraged or blasphemed, as well as pierced. They shall henceforward cease to despise God and his law. C.

* Ezech. xxx. 13.

VER. 11. Adadremmon. A place near Mageddon, where the good king Josias was slain, and much lamented by his people. Ch.—It was not far from Jezrahel. 2 Par. xxxv. The lamentation for Josias, represents that of impenitent sinners at the day of judgment. S. Jer. W.—Sept. translate the proper names, "of the pomegranate which is cut down in the field." H.—All from v. 8. may be explained of Judas.

VER. 12. Apart. Bands of men and of women mourning, went with musical instruments separately through the streets, and into the country; as they still do in the East. C.—On such occasions, as well as in times of prayer, continence is observed. S. Jer.

VER. 13. Nathan. Zorobabel was his descendant.—Semei, the son of Gershom. 1 Par. vi. 16. C.—"From this tribe the doctors are chosen." S. Jer.—The pious of all ranks bewail the death of Christ, and the share which they had in it. H.—He had done good to many; and therefore we may presume that many would grieve in every tribe. M.

CHAP. XIII. VER. 1. Fountain. In the New Testament Christ is made an open fountain by his incarnation. John iv. 13. S. Greg. xx. in Ezech. i. 6. ep. 186 W.—His baptism and other sacraments have the most surprising effects, to which the prophet refers more than to those waters which were brought by pipes into the temple to cleanse the victims. Ezech. xlviii. 1. C.—The washing. Sept. "change and sprinkling." Grabe substitutes χωρισμος, "separation," and marks the verse with an asterisk. The legal impurities shall be effaced. H.

VER. 2. No more. After the Machabees, the people were free from idolatry, and magical arts were repressed. Osee ii. 16. Ezech. xxxvii. 22. C.—"Idolatry and heresy are punishable by death, in the law of Christ." W.—To judge in these matters belongs only to the Church. H.

VER. 3. Not live. The law condemned those prophets to death, who attempted to lead the people into idolatry. Deut. xiii. 1. People shall be so zealous for God's honour, that the parents of the seducer shall themselves (C.) bring him to judgment. H.—Through, or make some mark upon him, as fugitive slaves, &c. were stigmatized. C.—Sept. "shall shackle." H.—They before interpreted dakar, danced, or insulted. The others have in both places, "pierced." S. Jer.—The person was not slain. v. 6.

VER. 4. Vision. They shall have no appearance of truth.—Sackcloth. Heb. "hairy skin;" adereth. Such were used by kings. Jon. iii. 6. The people shall not be deceived by such appearances, so that these garments will not be used.

vision, when he shall prophesy, neither shall they be clad with a garment of sackcloth, to deceive :

5 But he shall say : I am no prophet, I am a husbandman : for Adam is my example from my youth.

6 And they shall say to him : What are these wounds in the midst of thy hands ? And he shall say : With these I was wounded in the house of them that loved me.

7 Awake, O sword, against my shepherd, and against the man that cleaveth to me, saith the Lord of hosts : strike the shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered : and I will turn my hand to the little ones.

8 And there shall be in all the earth, saith the Lord, two parts in it shall be scattered, and shall perish : but the third part shall be left therein.

9 And I will bring the third part through the fire, and will refine them as silver is refined : and I will try them as gold is tried. They shall call on my name, and I will hear them. I will say : Thou art my people : and they shall say : The Lord is my God.

•CHAP. XIV.

After the persecutions of the Church, shall follow great prosperity. Persecutors shall be punished : so shall all that will not serve God in his Church.

BEHOLD the days of the Lord shall come, and thy spoils shall be divided in the midst of thee.

2 And I will gather all nations to Jerusalem to battle, and the city shall be taken, and the houses shall

The Jews have always been ready to receive impostors. Mat. vii. 15. Yet they shall not be so frequent, or dangerous. The prophets used coarse hairy garments. 4 K. i. 8.

VER. 5. Husbandman. Worldly occupations were incompatible with the office of prophets. 3 K. xix. 20. Amos vii. 15. Mat. iv. 20. The (C.) false (H.) prophets will become so odious, that people will excuse themselves from taking up the calling.—Example. I am condemned like him to labour. Gen. iii. 17. Sept. "a man begot me." Heb. "taught, or bought me, (C.) or caused me to work." De Dieu.

VER. 6. Loved me. My parents marked me thus. v. 3. C.—Some have understood this of Jesus Christ. Rupert. S. Tho.—But the context excludes this interpretation, which would be injurious to him. C.—The false prophet is reformed by his parents' correction, so that he applies to agriculture, and owns that he had been justly punished. S. Jer. ii.

VER. 7. Sword. This address rouses attention. C.—The sword implies all the torments which Christ endured. W.—He explains this of himself; only instead of strike, he says I will strike, (Mat. xxvi. 31.) as the sword was directed by God. H.—Patris voluntate percussus est. S. Jer.—Cleaveth. Heb. hamithi, "my amiable one;" (H.) "of the same tribe with me;" (Aq.) "of my people." Sym. S. Jerom observes, that Sept. and Th. have read v for the last t, and render "his neighbour," or citizen. Yet some editions of the Sept. retain "my fellow-citizen." H.—Little ones. Sept. Arab. &c. "shepherds," (C.) which "many ill apply to the Jewish princes." S. Jer.—Tsoharim means also "the little." Mic. v. 2. Christ takes care of his little flock, (Lu. xii. 32. H.) and is always one with the Father. Jo. viii. 29. and x. 30. C.—He recalled the flying apostles, and gave them courage. W.

VER. 8. Third. The greatest part of mankind will be lost. H.—The few Jews who embrace the faith will be absorbed in the Gentile converts, and suffered to live, though proved by persecutions, while the rest shall be exterminated. Both shall lose their name, and be styled Christians. C.—Those who adhere to Judaism, or to paganism, cannot be saved. This is the privilege only of Christian Catholics, who live piously, and are selected by God's grace. W.

VER. 9. Fire. The Church was persecuted during the three first centuries; but always became more pure, and the blood of martyrs increased her numbers. C.—She faithfully adhered to God. H.—The Jews say this will not take place at last : "but we assert that it is already accomplished." S. Jer.

CHAP. XIV. VER. 1. Midst. The obstinate Jews shall be destroyed. They became their own enemies. C.—The Zealots committed the greatest excesses during the last siege. Jos. B. v. 1.—Tacitus also refers to these transactions, "having written thirty volumes on the Cæsars, from Aug. to Domitian's death." E. Jer.

VER. 2. I will gather, &c. This seems to be a prophecy of what was done by Antiochus, (Ch.) or of the last siege, (W.) by the Romans. S. Jer. Theod. Eus. Dem. vi. 18. C.—Vespasian collected numerous forces. Jos. B. iii. 1.—Titus had six legions and many auxiliaries, Arabs, &c. Tacit. Hist. v.—Various nations composed their army. W.—Rifled, or demolished. None was left standing. Jos. B. vii. 6. Heges. v. 49.—S. Jerom and others think that the city on Sion was spared, (C.) and 40,000 were permitted to dwell where they had a mind. Jos. B. vii. 15.—But it is not said that they continued at Jerusalem. Half the Jews therefore perished, and those who maintained the siege found a be rifled, and the women shall be defiled : and half of the city shall go forth into captivity, and the rest of the people shall not be taken away out of the city.

3 Then the Lord shall go forth, and shall fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle.

4 And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is over-against Jerusalem towards the east : and the mount of Olives shall be divided in the midst thereof to the east, and to the west with a very great opening, and half of the mountain shall be separated to the north, and half thereof to the south.

5 And you shall flee to the valley of those mountains, for the valley of the mountains shall be joined even to the next, and you shall flee "as you fled from the face of the earthquake in the days of Ozias, king of Juda : and the Lord, my God, shall come, and all the saints with him.

6 And it shall come to pass in that day, that there shall be no light, but cold and frost.

7 And there shall be one day, which is known to the Lord, not day nor night : and in the time of the evening there shall be light :

8 And it shall come to pass in that day, that living waters shall go out from Jerusalem : half of them to the east sea, and half of them to the last sea : they shall be in summer and in winter.

grave in the city. Theod.—Half only denotes a considerable part, as v. 8. Those who followed our Saviour's admonition, retired before, and were safe (C.) at Pella. C. x. 11. Sept. "the rest of my people shall not be destroyed out of the city."

VER. 3. Shall. Sept. "will stand in battle array among," &c. (naputaçerai en) though he will one day punish the victorious Romans. H.—Now he fought with them, as Heb. may signify. C.—Various prodigies made this clear : (Jos. B. vii. 12. 16.) so that Titus would not receive the crown which was presented to him, as he looked upon himself only as the instrument employed by divine justice. Philost. vi. 14.—This sense is given by S. Cyr. &c. C.—In the days of Epiphanes, God defeated his projects. H.

VER. 4. Olives. Here the tenth legion was stationed, (Jos. B. vi. 3.) on the spot where Christ had denounced this judgment, and ascended into heaven. Lu. xix. 41. Acts i. 12.—South. We cannot shew the literal accomplishment. If it regard the latter times, this must be hidden. But it suffices that some great earthquake should take place, according to most interpreters ; or rather, (C.) the Romans removed vast quantities of earth and stone. Jos. B. vi. 12. Grot.—Olivet has three tops; the southern one is the lowest. But whether this was caused by an earthquake we know not. The rocks are said to split, &c. when God displays his power and affords some miraculous assistance. Is. xvii. 8. Is. xxiv. 8. Hab. iii. 10.

VER. 5. Flee. While the siege was forming many escaped, according to Josephus. Heb. Sept. &c. "The vale of my mountains shall be filled up, for," &c. C.—Yet Prot. agree with us. H.—Those should be "my." Ribera. M.—The next. Prot. and Sept. "reach unto Azul." H.—You shall. Sept. &c. "and it shall be filled, as it was filled at the earthquake," &c. C.—The Romans had to raise many works in the vale of Cedron, so that the trees all round were cut down, and the garden walls removed thither. Jos. B. vi. 4. 14.—Ozias, when he attempted to offer incense. Jos. Ant. ix. 11. Amosi. 1. and 4 K. xv. 15.—Yet the earthquake is not specified in the sacred historical books. W.—On that occasion, the people retired into the vale formed by the separation of Olivet ; or, if we follow the Sept. part of that mountain fell into the valley of Cedron, which we find nowhere else specified. C.—With him. Prot. "thee." H.—God is attended by his angels ; though the Romans may be called his saints, or people destined to execute his decrees in this war. Is. xiii. 3. Soph. i. 7. Deut. xxxiii. 3. Joel iii. 1. C.

VER. 6. No light ; viz. in that dismal time of the persecution of Antiochus, when it was neither day nor night, (v. 7.) because they neither had the comfortable light of the day, nor the repose of the night. Ch.—Darkness denotes distress. The citizens shall be in despair. Mat. xxiv. 29. Eze. xxii. 8. Joel ii. 2. Apoc. ix. 2. Heb. seems to be corrupt : "no precious light, but thick," or a cloud. C.

VER. 7. In the time of the evening there shall be light. An unexpected light shall arise by the means of the Machabees, when things shall seem to be at the worst. Ch.—At one period of the last siege, it was dubious what would be the event, particularly (C.) when Titus was separated from almost all his attendants, and when the besieged burned the works of the enemy. Jos. B. vi. 2. and 12.

VER. 8. Living waters ; viz. the gospel of Christ. Ch.—Last ; Mediteranean. H.—The prophet now turns to the figurative Jerusalem. The earthly (1165)

9 And the Lord shall be king over all the earth: in that day there shall be one Lord, and his name shall be one.

10 And all the land shall return even to the desert, from the hill to Remmon, to the south of Jerusalem: and she shall be exalted, and shall dwell in her own place, from the gate of Benjamin even to the place of the former gate, and even to the gate of the corners; and from the tower of Hananeel even to the king's wine-presses.

11 And people shall dwell in it, and there shall be no more an anathema: but Jerusalem shall sit secure.

12 And this shall be the plague, wherewith the Lord shall strike all nations that fought against Jerusalem: the flesh of every one shall consume away while they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall consume away in their holes, and their tongue shall consume away in their mouth.

13 In that day there shall be a great tumult from the Lord among them: and a man shall take the hand of his neighbour, and his hand shall be clasped upon his neighbour's hand.

14 And even Juda shall fight against Jerusalem: and the riches of all nations round about shall be gathered together, gold, and silver, and garments in great abundance.

15 And the destruction of the horse, and of the mule, and of the camel, and of the ass, and of all the beasts, that shall be in those tents, shall be like this destruction.

16 And all they that shall be left of all nations that came against Jerusalem, shall go up from year to year, to adore the King, the Lord of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles.

17 And it shall come to pass, that he that shall not go up of the families of the land to Jerusalem, to adore the King, the Lord of hosts, there shall be no rain upon them.

18 And if the family of Egypt go not up, nor come: neither shall it be upon them, but there shall be destruction, wherewith the Lord will strike all nations that will not go up to keep the feast of tabernacles.

19 This shall be the sin of Egypt, and this the sin of all nations, that will not go up to keep the feast of tabernacles.

20 In that day that which is upon the bridle of the horse shall be holy to the Lord: and the cauldrons in the house of the Lord shall be as the phials before the altar.

21 And every cauldron in Jerusalem and Juda shall be sanctified to the Lord of hosts: and all that sacrifice, shall come, and take of them, and shall seeth in them: and the merchant shall be no more in the house of the Lord of hosts in that day.

city was not well supplied with water. C.—It was in the most dry and barren part of the country. S. Jer. in Is. xlix.—As much as the Mediterranean excels the Dead Sea, so much do the Gentiles surpass the Jewish converts in numbers. See C. xiii. 1. C.—The true faith is Catholic in all places, and at all times. W.

VER. 9. One Lord. The apostles justly gave this title to Christ. Jo. xiii. 14. He is possessed of all power. Mat. xxviii. 18. Phil. ii. 10. Pastors are all subject to him. C.—The Pope styles himself, "servant of the servants of God," since S. Gregory's time. H.

VER. 10. Return. This in some measure was verified by means of the Machabees; but is rather to be taken in a spiritual sense, as relating to the propagation of the Church and kingdom of Christ, the true Jerusalem, which alone shall never fall under the anathema of destruction, or God's curse. Ch.—The limits of Jerusalem were never so extensive.—Hill, or "Gaba to Remmon," or the pomegranate. The situation is not ascertained.

VER. 11. Anathema. It shall not be sentenced to utter ruin. The Church may suffer losses, but cannot perish. C.

VER. 12. Consume. Such judgments as these have often fallen upon the persecutors of God's Church, as appears by many instances in history. Ch.—This has partly been verified in persecuting emperors, (S. Jer.) and in others, and will befall the wicked when the day of judgment shall draw near. W.—Herod, who made war on Christ, and Agrippa, who attacked his Church, (C.) were both devoured by worms. Jos. Ant. xvii. 9. and xix. 7. Acts xii. 13.—Nero slew himself; Maximian was eaten to death by an inward ulcer; and his colleague's (Maximinus) eyes fell from his head. Eus. in Constant. i. 57. and 59.—It would seem as if Zacharias beheld them. He may also speak of the attempts of Gog, and of Epiphanes. C. ii. 8. and xii. 9.

VER. 13. Them. The Church shall be alarmed at these wars, seeing enemies on all sides. But those days shall be shortened. Mat. xxiv. 21.—Hand. Christians shall assist each other, or rather the nearest relations will persecute them. Mat. x. 21. 36. C.

VER. 14. Even Juda, &c. The carnal Jews, and other false brothers, shall join in persecuting the Church. Ch.—The Jews shewed themselves the most virulent. 2 Cor. xi. 24. Acts viii. &c. They insisted on the death of S. Polycarp.—Riches. Converts shewed their generosity so much, (C.) that Julian and Felix, apostates, complained of this profusion in sacred vessels. Theod. Hist. ii. 11. 12.

VER. 15. Shall be like this destruction. That is, the beasts shall be destroyed as well as the men; the common soldiers as well as their leaders. Ch.—History does not specify the death of cattle, (C.) though in plagues this would inevitably follow; and the pagans complained that they were become more common since the propagation of the gospel. H.—The reverses which the troops of Dioclesian, &c. sustained, were to punish their enmity to religion. C.

VER. 16. Left. That is, many of them that persecuted the Church shall be converted to its faith and communion, (Ch.) particularly after Constantine. C.—Tabernacles. This feast was kept by the Jews, in memory of their sojourning forty years in the desert, in their way to the land of promise. And in the spiritual sense, is duly kept by all such Christians as in their earthly pilgrimage are continually advancing towards their true home, the heavenly Jerusalem, by the help of the sacraments and sacrifice of the Church. And they that neglect this, must not look for the kind showers of divine grace to give fruitfulness to their souls. Ch.—Out of the Church there is no salvation. C.—Other things may be obtained. S. Cyp. H.—The converts shall celebrate the Christian festivals, and merit great rewards, while infidels shall remain barren and devoid of eternal happiness. W.—We have no solemnity of tabernacles; but Gentiles keep the Epiphany in thanksgiving for their vocation to God's admirable light. 1 Pet. ii. 9. C.

VER. 17. There. Sept. "these shall also be added to them" who perish. H. VER. 19. Sin, or punishment. Formerly various nations were excluded from the religion or assemblies of Israel. Lev. xxii. 25. Deut. xxiii. 1. Now all are invited and compelled to enter the Church, so that they can have no excuse. Ln. xiv. 24. C.—Those rejected by the Jews might still have true faith. H.

VER. 20. Bridle. The golden ornaments of the bridles, &c. shall be turned into offerings in the house of God. And there shall be an abundance of cauldrons and phials for the sacrifices of the temple: by which is meant, under a figure, the great resort there shall be to the temple, that is, to the Church of Christ, and her sacrifice. Ch.—It is of a different nature, being the body and blood of Christ. But it shall not be confined to one place, nor the priesthood to one family. v. 21. Heb. "they shall inscribe on the stables, Holy," &c. The most filthy places shall be purified and changed into temples; or, "what is upon the little bells for horses shall be sanctified;" or, on these "bells shall be inscribed, sacred to the Lord." C.—Metsilloth may signify a bell or bridle, &c. H.—The bits were often of gold. En. vii. and viii. C.—S. Jerom's master said the word should be metsiluth, "trappings" and armour. H.

VER. 21. Merchant; or, as some render it, the Chanaanite shall be no more, &c. that is, the profane and unbelievers shall have no title to be in the house of the Lord; or, there shall be no occasion for buyers or sellers of oxen, or sheep, or doves, in the house of God, such as Jesus Christ cast out of the temple. Ch. John ii. 16.—All former distinction of Jew and Gentile shall cease in the Church. Past faults shall be forgotten. C.

THE PROPHECY OF MALACHIAS.

MALACHIAS, whose name signifies "the angel of the Lord," was cotemporary with Nehemias, and by some is believed to have been the same person with Esdras. He was the last of the prophets, in the order of time, and flourished about four hundred years before Christ. He foretells the coming of Christ; the reprobation of the Jews and their sacrifices; and the calling of the Gentiles, who shall offer up to God in every place an acceptable sacrifice. Ch.—He also clearly speaks of the twofold coming of Christ, preceded by the Baptist and by Elias. Nothing is known for certain respecting this prophet. He inveighs against the same crimes as Nehemias, to whose covenant he alludes, C. ii. 4. None was afterwards recognized for a prophet till the Baptist appeared. C.—Both priests and people are here reproved, and the Jewish law yields to that of Christ. W.—No date is prefixed no more than to the works of Jonas, Nahum, &c. S. Jerom seems to fix on the seventh year of Artaxerxes, when Esdras came to Jerusalem. Liber ejus pro titulo sit. H.

CHAP. I.

God reproaches the Jews with their ingratitude: and the priests for not offering pure sacrifices. He will accept of the sacrifice that shall be offered in every place among the Gentiles.

THE "burden of the word of the Lord to Israel, by the hand of Malachias.

2 I have loved you, saith the Lord: and you have said: Wherein hast thou loved us? Was not Esau brother to Jacob, saith the Lord, and ^bI have loved Jacob,

3 But have hated Esau? and I have made his mountains a wilderness, and given his inheritance to the dragons of the desert.

4 But if Edom shall say: We are destroyed, but we will return and build up what hath been destroyed: thus saith the Lord of hosts: They shall build up, and I will throw down: and they shall be called the borders of wickedness, and the people with whom the Lord is angry for ever.

5 And your eyes shall see: and you shall say: The Lord be magnified upon the border of Israel.

6 The son honoureth the father, and the servant his master: if then I be a father, where is my honour? and if I be a master, where is my fear: saith the Lord of hosts?

* A. M. circiter 366. A. C. 400.

CHAP. I. VER. 1. Malachias, "the angel of the Lord." S. Jerom always reads Malachi, "my angel." Sept. "his angel;" whence Origen infers, that this was an angel incarnate. C.

VER. 2. Loved us. So they thought, (Theod.) and perhaps spoke. II.—Jacob. I have preferred his posterity, to make them my chosen people, and to load them with my blessings, without any merit on their part, and though they have been always ungrateful; whilst I have rejected Esau, and executed severe judgments upon his posterity. Not that God punished Esau or his posterity beyond their deserts, but that by his free election and grace he loved Jacob, and favoured his posterity above their deserts. See the annotations upon Rom. ix. Ch.—Neither deserved any thing. God's choice was gratuitous, both with respect to the fathers and their offspring. W.

VER. 3. Esau, perceiving the evil which was already in him, and would appear afterwards; (S. Jer. and Theod.) or rather he was a figure of the reprobate, though not of course one himself. S. Aug.—A person is said to hate what he loves less. Esau's privileges were transferred to his brother, who enjoyed a much finer country, and was chosen for God's peculiar inheritance. C.—Temporal blessings are here specified.—Dragons. Sept. "houses;" so that they shall be deserted. II.—Edom was ravaged by Nabuchodonosor. The people retired into the cities, from which the Jews were driven. Yet afterwards they rebuilt their own habitations.

VER. 4. Down, by the Machabees, who forced the people to receive circumcision. 1 Mac. v. 8. C.—At that time the Jews were more pious, and glorified God. H.—Ever. God's gratuitous love appears in his leaving Edom in captivity, and restoring the Jews. W.

VER. 6. Father. God sometimes took this title. Ex. iv. 32. But he was oftener represented as a master; and the old law was a law of fear. C.—Servant et metuit jus. Juv. xiv.

VER. 7. Bread, including all the victims, &c. Lev. iii. 11. Num. xxviii. 2. C.—By vile presents they shew their contempt of God. W.

VER. 8. Lame. The victims must be without defect. Lev. xxii. 21. Those of the Jews were also rendered inadmissible by their evil dispositions. Agg. ii. 14. It is surprising, that after such scourges they should not have been more

7 To you, O priests, that despise my name, and have said: Wherein have we despised thy name? You offer polluted bread upon my altar: and you say: Wherein have we polluted thee: In that you say: The table of the Lord is contemptible.

8 If you offer the blind for sacrifice, is it not evil? and if you offer the lame and the sick, is it not evil: offer it to thy prince, if he will be pleased with it, or if he will regard thy face, saith the Lord of hosts.

9 And now beseech ye the face of God, that he may have mercy on you (for by your hand hath this been done) if by any means he will receive your faces saith the Lord of hosts.

10 Who is there among you, that will shut the doors, and will kindle the fire on my altar, gratis? I have no pleasure in you, saith the Lord of hosts: and I will not receive a gift of your hand.

11 "For from the rising of the sun even to the going down, my name is great among the Gentiles, and in every place there is sacrifice, and there is offered to my name a clean oblation: for my name is great among the Gentiles, saith the Lord of hosts.

12 And you have profaned it in that you say: The table of the Lord is defiled: and that which is laid upon their guard. The negligence of the sacred ministers, is a sure sign of faith being extinct. C.—Pagans often thus treated their idols. Clein. Strom. vi.—Prince: the governor sent by the Persians. If you dare not make such presents to men of eminence, how shall I accept them? C.—How dare you offer them to me? W.

VER. 10. Gratis? Are you not well paid? Why then perform you not your duty exactly? C.—Sept. "Wherefore also among you shall the doors be shut, and my altar is not enkindled for nought," (II.) as if God menaced the Jews with the rejection of the temple, as the sequel does. C.—Pleasure. Many other prophets had foretold the reprobation of the synagogue, but none more plainly. The reason is also assigned, viz the ingratitude and repeated sins of the people, on which account the Gentiles of all countries shall be chosen. W.

VER. 11. Sacrifice. Prot. "incense." II.—Clean oblation. The precious body and blood of Christ in the eucharistic sacrifice. Ch.—This is denoted by the very word mincha, the offering of flour and wine. C. See S. Just. dial. S. Iren. iv. 32. S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. xviii. 35.—"We pollute this bread, that is the body of Christ, when we approach the altar unworthily." S. Jer. v. 7.—"This sacrifice is always pure, though the priest or receiver be otherwise. C.—Hence it is always clean. Trid. xxii. C. i. M.—It is offered daily throughout the world. The Jews see the completion of this prediction, and are vexed; they strive to elude its force. Though enemies, they bear about these proofs of our faith, and of their own condemnation. C.—God not only changed his people, but instituted a better sacrifice. Instead of the former needy elements, (Gal. iv.) which were often defiled by the sins of the offerers, He instituted the sacrifice of his own Body and Blood, under the appearances of bread and wine, as S. Chrys. (in Ps. xcv.) Theod. &c. prove against all opponents. A sacrifice different from any offered by the Jews, who could offer only at Jerusalem, (Deut. xvi) is clearly specified, as many have demonstrated. W.—Christ's bloody sacrifice on the cross was performed on Calvary, and not among the Gentiles. What sacrifice can Protestants now produce? II.

VER. 12. It. The priests complain that all is burnt, (Grot.) or rather they treat sacred things with contempt. C.—They falsely pretend that they give their best, being poor. M.

thereupon, is contemptible, with the fire that devour-eth it.

13 And you have said: Behold of our labour, and you puffed it away, saith the Lord of hosts, and you brought in of rapine the lame, and the sick, and brought in an offering: shall I accept it at your hands, saith the Lord?

14 Cursed is the deceitful man, that hath in his flock a male, and making a vow, offereth in sacrifice that which is feeble to the Lord: for I am a great King, saith the Lord of hosts, and my name is dreadful among the Gentiles.

CHAP. II.

The priests are sharply reprov'd for neglecting their covenants. The evil of marrying with idolaters; and too easily putting away their wives.

AND now, O ye priests, this commandment is to you.

2 ^a If you will not hear, and if you will not lay it to heart, to give glory to my name, saith the Lord of hosts: I will send poverty upon you, and will curse your blessings; yea, I will curse them: because you have not laid it to heart.

3 Behold, I will cast the shoulder to you, and will scatter upon your face the dung of your solemnities, and it shall take you away with it.

4 And you shall know that I sent you this commandment, that my covenant might be with Levi, saith the Lord of hosts.

5 My covenant was with him of life and peace: and I gave him fear: and he feared me, and he was afraid before my name.

6 The law of truth was in his mouth, and iniquity was not found in his lips: he walked with me in peace, and in equity, and turned many away from iniquity.

7 For the lips of the priests shall keep knowledge,

^a Lev. xxvi. 14. Deut. xxviii. 15.

VER. 13. Behold of our labour, &c. You pretended labour and weariness, when you brought your offering; and so made it of no value, by offering it with an evil mind. Moreover, what you offered was both defective in itself, and gotten by rapine and extortion. Ch.—These were two defects. W.—Heb. “what fatigue, or if we change one letter, and read (C.) mothlae, (H.) it stinks, and you.” &c. Some copies of Sept. Arab. &c. “I blew them away,” with disgust.—Rapine. Eccli. xxxiv. 24.—Offering. Mincha, v. 11. C.—Such victims and presents as are lame or strange, are rejected. Pliny viii. 45.

VER. 14. Male. So better things are styled mascula thura. Virg. Pliny xii. 14.—It was unlawful to offer a female by vow, but not out of devotion. Lev. xxii. 18. 23. C.—King. So the Persian monarchs were called.—Dreadful. Gr. “Epiphaneas.” H.

CHAP. II. VER. 1. Priests. Such, hoarding up riches, dishonour God and his sacraments, as if they were temporal things to be purchased, and so they scandalize the weak. It would be well for them if they were reduced to poverty, (v. 2.) and would repent, as they will otherwise be deprived of eternal goods, having received their wages in this world, like hirelings. John x. W.

VER. 2. Blessings, riches. The priests also blessed the people. Num. vi. 23. C.

VER. 3. Shoulder. I will cast away the shoulder, which in the law was appointed to be your portion, and fling it at you in my anger: and will reject both you and your festivals like dung. Ch.—Heb. now reads for shoulder, zerah, “grain,” or seed. C.—“I will menace you with the shoulder, and will spread dirt on your faces, even the dirt of your feasts,” (Aquila) or “the ventricle of your festivals.” Sept. H.

VER. 4. Levi. When this tribe was chosen does not appear. Some think that he alludes to the renewing of the covenant under Nehemias, which seems best. 2 Esd. ix. 1. 38. I then promised you life, &c. C.

VER. 7. The angel, viz. the minister and messenger. Ch.—Priests must administer the sacraments, and likewise instruct the people, being God’s messengers. W.—The Jews were well acquainted with the law. Jer. xviii. 18.—The priests had to decide most intricate cases. Deut. xxi. 9. and xxxiii. 9. C.—The sentence of the high priest was received like that of an angel. Diod. Sic. xi. apud Phot.—If such science was required under the old law, how much more is necessary in Christian priests, whose mysteries and duties are so much more important! C.—Ignoratio scripturarum ignoratio Christi est. S. Jer. in Is. & hic. (1168) and they shall seek the law at his mouth: because he is the angel of the Lord of hosts.

8 But you have departed out of the way, and have caused many to stumble at the law: you have made void the covenant of Levi, saith the Lord of hosts.

9 Therefore have I also made you contemptible and base before all people, as you have not kept my ways, and have accepted persons in the law.

10 ^b Have we not all one father? hath not one God created us? why then doth every one of us despise his brother, violating the covenant of our fathers?

11 Juda hath transgressed, and abomination hath been committed in Israel, and in Jerusalem: for Juda hath profaned the holiness of the Lord, which he loved, and hath married the daughter of a strange god.

12 The Lord will cut off the man that hath done this, both the master and the scholar, out of the tabernacles of Jacob, and him that offereth an offering to the Lord of hosts.

13 And this again have you done, you have covered the altar of the Lord with tears, with weeping, and bellowing, so that I have no more a regard to sacrifice, neither do I accept any atonement at your hands.

14 And you have said: For what cause? Because the Lord hath been witness between thee, and the wife of thy youth, whom thou hast despised: yet she was thy partner, and the wife of thy covenant.

15 Did not one make her, and she is the residue of his spirit? And what doth one seek, but the seed of God? Keep then your spirit, and despise not the wife of thy youth.

16 When thou shalt hate her, put her away, saith the Lord, the God of Israel: but iniquity shall cover his garment, saith the Lord of hosts; keep your spirit, and despise not.

17 You have wearied the Lord with your words:

^b Mat. xxiii. 9. Eph. iv. 6.

VER. 9. People. If priests comply not with these high functions, they are despicable here, and condemned to eternal torments. Jude 11. W.—Accepted. Heb. “raised up faces,” instead of reproving the guilty. Deut. i. 10. Lev. xix. 15.

VER. 10. Brother, in distress. 2 Esd. v. 1. S. Jerom mentions the tradition of the Jews, which supposed that the captives at their return dismissed their wives, and married young ones, though strangers. v. 11. But this is not probable. Such women were ordered to be dismissed. 1 Esd. ix. 1. and 2 Esd. xiii. 23. C.

VER. 11. God, or one addicted to idol-worship, (H.) which was contrary to the law. Deut. vii. 3. C.—Sept. “the holy things of the Lord, by what he has loved and done for strange gods.” H.

VER. 12. Master. Heb. “the watcher, and him who answers,” on guard. C.—Sept. “doth such things, till he be tumbled out,” &c.—Him. Sept. “and out of those who offer a sacrifice to,” &c. Such people shall be excluded from the society of God’s servants. H.

VER. 13. With tears; viz. by occasion of your wives, whom you have put away, and who came to weep and lament before the altar. Ch.—Though divorces were tolerated, (Mat. xix. 6.) the more virtuous did not approve of them, particularly when a wife was put away who had been married in youth. See v. 10. Perhaps this corruption had crept in, like others, (C.) owing to the people’s commerce with strangers. Diod. in Photius.

VER. 14. Covenant. The order established at first. Gen. ii. 24. Prov. ii. 17. The parties promise fidelity to each other.

VER. 15. His spirit. Eve received a soul from God, like Adam. Heb. “One (Abraham), Chal. styled one, Eze. xxxiii. 24.) did it not, and he had the,” &c. Sept. vary. The text is very obscure. C. See Cap. Crit. iv. p. 317. Grabe prol.—A strange god did not make women. The human race is best propagated, where polygamy and divorces are rejected. H.

VER. 16. Garment; viz. of every man that putteth away his wife without just cause; notwithstanding that God permitted it in the law, to prevent the evil of murder. Ch.—The original may receive this sense; or the woman must blame herself if she were hateful, (Deut. xxiv. 1.) and the man acted not treacherously. C.—Sept. “iniquity shall cover your thoughts.” H.—It should be “garments,” arbutura, though S. Jerom and the printed edit. read arbutura, (C.) “thoughts.” The first part contains the objection, and the second God’s reply. S. Jer. H.

VER. 17. Judgment. Being scandalized at the prosperity of the wicked, (H.) they deny Providence. Ps. lxxii. Jer. xii. C.—Yet the wicked are left for wise and you said: Wherein have we wearied him? In that you say: Every one that doth evil, is good in the sight of the Lord, and such please him: or surely where is the God of judgment?

CHAP. III.

Christ shall come to his temple, and purify the priesthood. They that continue in their evil ways shall be punished: but true penitents shall receive a blessing.

BEHOLD, *I send my angel, and he shall prepare the way before my face. And presently the Lord whom you seek, and the angel of the testament, whom you desire, shall come to his temple. Behold, he cometh, saith the Lord of hosts:

2 And who shall be able to think of the day of his coming? and who shall stand to see him? for he is like a refining fire, and like the fuller's herb:

3 And he shall sit refining and cleansing the silver, and he shall purify the sons of Levi, and shall refine them as gold, and as silver, and they shall offer sacrifices to the Lord in justice.

4 And the sacrifice of Juda, and of Jerusalem, shall please the Lord, as in the days of old, and in the ancient years.

5 And I will come to you in judgment, and will be a speedy witness against sorcerers, and adulterers, and false swearers, and them that oppress the hireling in his wages, the widows, and the fatherless: and oppress the stranger, and have not feared me, saith the Lord of hosts.

6 For I am the Lord, and I change not: and you the sons of Jacob are not consumed.

7 For from the days of your fathers you have departed from my ordinances, and have not kept them: ^bReturn to me, and I will return to you, saith the Lord of hosts. And you have said: Wherein shall we return?

8 Shall a man afflict God, for you afflict me? And purposes, either for their amendment, or for the trial of the just. S. Aug. Pa. liv. —Those who are offended at their present success, (H.) think not of judgment nor of eternal goods. S. Jer.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. My angel, viz. John the Baptist, the messenger of God, and forerunner of Christ. Ch.—His purity and office procure him this title. W.—Afterwards Christ himself shall come, for the ruin and for the resurrection of many. Lu. ii. 34. Hence threats and promises are intermixed. The evangelists read his face, making the Father speak, whereas the Son is introduced by the prophet, who however presently changes the person. It is all the same which person of the blessed Trinity speaks, as all act together. C.—Testament. The Messiah, the mediator of the covenant with mankind, (W.) with Abraham and Moses. The latter calls him the prophet; (Deut. xviii. 18.) and Zacharias, alluding to this text, explains angel in the same sense. Lu. i. 76.—Temple. The ancient Jews were convinced that the Messiah would come to the temple of Zerobabel, and be its chief glory. Agg. ii. 8. C.—Their descendants put off the coming for some long time, though the prophet says presently, or on a sudden. S. Jer. Basnage vi. 26.—Some take this temple to be the womb of the blessed Virgin. S. Cyr. S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. xviii. 35. C.—The Baptist was conceived, born, and preached first; and shortly after Christ appeared. W.

VER. 2. Coming. This may be explained of the Baptist, (Lu. iii. 7.) or of the second coming of Christ; though his first coming shewed the hypocrisy of the Jews. They would not acknowledge him, but sought his death, and brought on their own condemnation. C.—Fuller's. Sept. "washers' herb." Borith is found in all the low places of Palestine, (S. Jer.) and probably denotes soda, (Jer. ii. 22. C.) or fullers' earth. H.—Christ purified the religion of the Jews, or did what was requisite for that purpose. The people would not obey. Yet he established his Church in all purity.

VER. 3. Justice. This is spoken of the Christian priesthood, which far excels that of Levi, Heb. v. and vii. &c. C.—Many Jewish priests embraced the gospel. Acts vi. 7. H.

VER. 4. Years. So in the mass we beg that God would receive the sacrifice, "as he received the presents of Abel." M.

VER. 5. Judgment. He has answered (v. 1, 2) the complaint of the Jews. C. ii. 17. H.—This he does here (M.) more pointedly. H.—Christ condemned the world, as his spirit did likewise. Jo. xvi. 8. He made an example of Jerusalem, you have said: Wherein do we afflict thee? In tithes and in first-fruits.

9 And you are cursed with want, and you afflict me, even the whole nation of you.

10 Bring all the tithes into the store-house, that there may be meat in my house, and try me in this, saith the Lord: if I open not to you the flood-gates of heaven, and pour you out a blessing even to abundance.

11 And I will rebuke for your sakes the devourer, and he shall not spoil the fruit of your land: neither shall the vine in the field be barren, saith the Lord of hosts.

12 And all nations shall call you blessed: for you shall be a delightful land, saith the Lord of hosts.

13 *Your words have been unsufferable to me, saith the Lord.

14 And you have said: What have we spoken against thee? You have said: He laboureth in vain that serveth God, and what profit is it that we have kept his ordinances, and that we have walked sorrowful before the Lord of hosts?

15 Wherefore now we call the proud people happy, for they that work wickedness are built up, and they have tempted God, and are preserved.

16 Then they that feared the Lord, spoke every one with his neighbour: and the Lord gave ear, and heard it: and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that fear the Lord, and think on his name.

17 And they shall be my special possession, saith the Lord of hosts, in the day that I do judgment: and I will spare them as a man spareth his son that serveth him.

18 And you shall return, and shall see the difference between the just and the wicked; and between him that serveth God, and him that serveth him not.

^b Zach. i. 8.—John xxi. 14.

which shewed that he would not leave crimes unpunished. We may also understand this of his last coming. C.—God threatens to punish even secret sins, which are known to him alone. W.

VER. 6. Change. Heb. also, (H.) "hate or recommence." I do not strike the fallen. Did I spare Sennacherib? &c. Have I not protected the posterity of Jacob? How then can you say that I am indifferent about human affairs? C.—Consumed. Sept. "you depart not from the sins of your fathers. You have rejected my," &c.

VER. 8. Afflict. Lit. "pierce." Sept. "supplant," (H.) or kick at. 1 K. ii. 29. But the term applied to Heli is different. Here it signifies to nail or irritate. C.—Tithes: the payment is most strictly commanded. W.

VER. 9. Want. Heb. "malediction." S. Jerom specifies the kind. C.—Sept. "and you obstinately turn away your eyes, and supplant me," &c. H.

VER. 10. Heaven; copious showers.—Blessing; fertility.

VER. 11. Devourer; locusts and other vermin. M.—Malachias came later than Aggeus, and probably speaks of a different famine, to which the Jews were exposed for neglecting to pay tithes. C.—How many now work on holydays, as if all depended on their labour and not on God's blessing! H.

VER. 14. Vain. Murmuring against God is blasphemous and unsufferable. When the Jews were punished by famine, for neglecting to pay tithes, they laid the blame on God, as if he took more care of other nations which had abundance. W.—Sorrowful: "humbled." Chal. "in mourning." Jun.—But it seems to denote downcast countenances, which our Saviour orders his disciples not to affect. Mat. vi. 16. C.

VER. 15. Proua. Sept. "strange." H.—Z has been taken for v.—Built up: have a numerous family, (C.) and abundance.—Tempted. Sept. "resisted."

VER. 16. Then. Grave changes ravra, these things, into rots, then. The Sept. make the pious express the former sentiments. H.—David, Jeremias, &c. had experienced such anxiety. Pa. lxxii. 2. C.—According to the Heb. &c. the just hearing such blasphemies, doubt not but God will mark them in the book (H.) of his justice, and punish them.

VER. 17. Possession; (peculium) the property of a slave. C.—Such look upon the smallest things with eagerness. Heb. segula, (H.) means some precious thing. C.—Spare. Sept. "chase," &c. H.

CHAP. IV.

The judgment of the wicked, and reward of the just. An exhortation to observe the law. Elias shall come for the conversion of the Jews.

FOR behold the day shall come, kindled as a furnace: and all the proud, and all that do wickedly shall be stubble: and the day that cometh shall set them on fire, saith the Lord of hosts, it shall not leave them root, nor branch.

2 * But unto you that fear my name, the sun of justice shall arise, and health in his wings: and you shall go forth, and shall leap like calves of the herd.

* Luke i. 78.—b Exod. xx. Deut. v. and vi.

CHAP. IV. VER. 1. Furnace. At the day of judgment, the difference between the just and the wicked will plainly appear. W.—This sense is most generally given, as well as to those words where our Saviour speaks of the signs of the destruction of Jerusalem and of the end of the world together. Mat. xxiv. 3. Lu. xxi. 5. Yet the prophet may also allude to the punishment of the Jews by the Romans, when all were assembled at the Passover, (C.) a scourge which the Christians escaped by retiring to Pella. Eus. Hist. iii. 5.—Proud. Sept. "strangers." C.—Branch. No hope shall remain. M.

VER. 2. Wings. The sun is represented with wings, to imply celerity. The appearance of the Lord will be most acceptable to the virtuous. C.—Look up, for your redemption is at hand. Lu. xxi. 28.—Herb. Prot. "stall." Heb. marbek, (H.) "fattened;" though some explain it of oxen treading out corn: they would not however leap, nor fatten so much. C.

VER. 3. Ashes, burnt in Jerusalem. H.—Christians rejoiced in the execution of divine justice. The Jews were not allowed to approach the new city, Elin. S. Jer.

VER. 4. Law. This must be your guide and comfort. No more prophets shall appear before the Baptist. C.

VER. 5. Elias. Sept. add, "the Thesbite;" and S. Jerom (in Mat. xvii.) says, that Elias had indeed come and restore all things.—Dreadful. Christ's first coming was in all meekness; but he will judge in terror. Hence the prophet's meaning is not that S. John, but that Elias shall come before the great day of the Lord. W.—Yet we may understand it of Christ coming into the world to preach, and again to judge. His first coming proved terrible to the perfidious

3 And you shall tread down the wicked, when they shall be ashes under the sole of your feet in the day, that I do this, saith the Lord of hosts.

4 * Remember the law of Moses, my servant, which I commanded him in Horeb, for all Israel, the precepts, and judgments.

5 * Behold, I will send you Elias, the prophet, before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord.

6 And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers: lest I come, and strike the earth with anathema.

* Mat. xvii. 10. Mark ix. 10. Luke i. 17.

Jews, whose ruin presently ensued. The destruction of Jerusalem was a figure of that which the world shall experience. C.—This shall be preceded by the preaching of Elias. N. Alex. Diss. vi.—This interpretation seems very striking and natural, though the prophet may have had the first coming of Christ and the ruin of the city chiefly in view. Our Saviour testifies that the Elias whom the Jews expected was already come. Mat. xi. 14. and xvii. 11. Lu. ix. 8. C.

VER. 6. Heart, &c. By bringing over the Jews to the faith of Christ, he shall reconcile them to their fathers, viz. the patriarchs and prophets, whose hearts for many ages have been turned away from them, because of their refusing to believe in Christ. Ch.—The antipathy of Jews and Gentiles shall cease. Both shall enter the Church of Christ. Is. xi. 13. The Baptist strove to ameliorate the manners of the people, and to bring all to Christ, who reconciles all seeming contradictions in the Scriptures. He came to put an end to all dissensions. C.—Yet the wicked will still have war. Mat. x. 35. H.—Christ will convert those Jews at last, (Rom. xi. 26. C.) who have not yet opened their eyes. Their fathers, the apostles and first converts, have long ago shewn them the example. H.—Anathema. In the Heb. cherem, that is, with utter destruction. Ch.—Sept. "entirely," (C.) or "suddenly;" apōnē. S. Jer. Deut. vii. 26.—This passage intimates that the ruin of Jerusalem is threatened. If people should be converted, would that stop the general conflagration? C.—Some of our crafty adversaries have inferred from the above explanation of anathema, that the Church means heretics to be destroyed: but her kingdom is not of this world: she speaks only of the soul, and exercises a spiritual power. H.

THE FIRST BOOK OF MACHABEES.

THESE Books are so called, because they contain the history of the people of God under the command of Judas Machabeus and his brethren; and he, as some will have it, was surnamed Machabeus from carrying on his ensigns, or standards, those words of Exodus xv. 11. "Who is like to thee among the strong, O Lord;" in which the initial letters, in the Hebrew, are M. C. B. E. I. It is not known who was the author of these books. But as to their authority, though they are not received by the Jews, saith S. Augustine, (l. xviii. de civ. Dei. c. xxxvi.) they are received by the Church; who, in settling her canon of the Scriptures, chose rather to be directed by the tradition she had received from the apostles of Christ, than by that of the Scribes and Pharisees. And as the Church has declared these two books canonical, even in two general councils, viz. Florence and Trent, there can be no doubt of their authenticity. Ch.—The most ancient Fathers, Clem. (Strom. i.) S. Cyprian, (l. ep. iii. ad Cornel.) S. Ambrose, (Off. i. 41, &c.) quote them as divine; and the third Council of Carthage, Trent, &c. have inserted them in the canon. Though (W.) S. Jerom did not translate (C.) or urge them against the Jews, he had a great regard for them. In Dan. i. and xi. &c. The texts to which Prot. object, will be explained. They are not more difficult than many which occur in the Books of Kings and Paralipomenon. Other books have been formerly contested, which they now admit. The author of the second book seems to have designed at first only to insert two supplements. He then resolved to abridge the work of Jason, and hence added a preface, (C. ii. 20.) which may be first perused. He then gives an account of some who had suffered death for the truth; and in the eighth and following chapters, the victories of the Machabees, which had been partly recorded in the first book, are specified, with some fresh circumstances. Judas was styled the Machabee for his strength and valour, (W.) being "the scourge" of God, (H.) or because he was an exterminator. M.—Yet the etymology is not well ascertained. That given above, (Zac. xii. 5. H.) or M. C. B. I. (Buxt. Prideaux, &c.) seems to be overthrown, by the Syme having always k instead of c, which is the case in two Chaldee MSS. These may not contain a truer history, but they rectify several mistakes in the printed copies. Kennicott.—S. Jerom found the first of these books in Heb. the second in Greek. Ep. 106. We have a third also in Greek, in the Comp. Bible; as well as a fourth, mentioned by Sixtus, (Bib. i. W.) "on the administration of Hircan," (C.) to which reference seems to be made 1 Mac. xv. 24. (W.) though what is extant be a work of no authority. "The empire of reason," falsely attributed to Josephus, and printed among his works, is more probably the fourth book, known to the ancients. Neither of these latter were ever deemed canonical by any authentic decree. W.—Many have indeed ranked them with the other contested works; but now it is generally agreed that they belong not to the sacred Scriptures, as the two former do. On these (C.) indeed, as almost on all the sacred books, (H.) authors have varied: but the most respectable and the most numerous declare in their favour. To arrange the four books in chronological order, we must make the first and third exchange places. This last can obtain its title only inasmuch as the Jews of Alexandria, who were persecuted by Philopator, and miraculously delivered, were animated with the same sentiments of piety and heroism as the rest of the Machabees. C. See Eccli. i. 1. 21. 23. H.—The authors of the first and second books relate many of the same events; yet seem not to have seen each other's works. The latter follows the Greek chronology, dating from Tisir, Sept. and October, (C.) A. 3828 to 3843, (H.) while the former dates from Nisan, (C.) our March or April, A. 3829 to 3869. The third book gives an account of Philopator's persecution in Egypt, A. 3787. The fourth, from A. 3869 to 3898, (H.) is little known among the Latins. Calmet gives two copies, the one regarding Hircan and the other "the government of reason," or the martyrdom of the Machabees, A. 3837; (H.) the author of which last seems to have been a Stoic. C.—We shall pass them over, with Protestants, as they are not received by the Catholic Church. H.

CHAP. I.

The reign of Alexander, and his successors: Antiochus rifles and profanes the temple of God: and persecutes unto death all that will not forsake the law of God, and the religion of their fathers.

NOW *it came to pass after that Alexander, the son of Philip, the Macedonian, who first reigned in Greece, coming out of the land of Cethim, had overthrown Darius, king of the Persians and Medes:

2 He fought many battles, and took the strong holds of all, and slew the kings of the earth:

3 And he went through even to the ends of the earth: and took the spoils of many nations: and the earth was quiet before him.

4 And he gathered a power, and a very strong army: and his heart was exalted and lifted up:

5 And he subdued countries of nations, and princes; and they became tributaries to him.

6 And after these things, he fell down upon his bed, and knew that he should die.

7 And he called his servants, the nobles that were brought up with him from his youth: and he divided his kingdom among them, while he was yet alive.

8 And Alexander reigned twelve years, and he died.^b

9 And his servants made themselves kings, every one in his place:

10 And they all put crowns upon themselves after his death, and their sons after them, many years; and evils were multiplied in the earth.

11 And there came out of them a wicked root, Antiochus the illustrious, the son of king Antiochus, who had been a hostage at Rome: and he reigned in the hundred and thirty-seventh year^c of the kingdom of the Greeks.

12 In those days there went out of Israel wicked men, and they persuaded many, saying: Let us go,

CHAP. I. VER. 1. Now. Lit. "And." II.—Thus many Heb. books commence, as Ex. Jos. Bar. &c. C.—Greece, over the whole. He was chosen generalissimo. H.—He conquered many of the Greeks, and overthrew Darius Codomanus, A. 3674. C.—His dominion in Syria may be meant. Grot.—Alexander was the first who reigned in that great monarchy, which he founded. W.

VER. 2. Holds. He was never defeated. Just. xii.

VER. 3. Earth, even to India, beyond which the ancients knew of nothing.—Quiet, or silent; depopulated, (Is. xiv. 7.) and obedient. Hab. ii. 20.

VER. 4. Up. He was spoiled by prosperity, (C.) and would pass for a god, and be styled "king of the world." Just. xii.

VER. 6. Bed. Some suppose through poison, (Diod. xvii. S. Jer. ad Lctam.) or excess of wine. Athen. x. 11.—This was enough. II.—So perished the man who would claim divine honours! C.

VER. 7. Servants. On the ninth day of sickness which preceded his death, he admitted all his soldiers to kiss his hand. Then he asked his friends, if they thought they should find such another king! As they were silent, he predicted what bloodshed would ensue, and told them to bury him in the temple of Ammon. When they asked to whom he left the throne, he said, "to the most worthy." He gave his ring to Perdicas; whence all inferred, that he should be regent till the proper heirs came of age. Perdicas desired to know when he would have divine honours: to which Alexander replied with these his last words, "when you are happy;" (Just. xii. Diod. xvii.) as much as to say, never. H.—This seems contrary to the sacred historian. But his authority is far superior. C.—Kingdom. This is otherwise by Q. Curtius; though he acknowledges that divers were of that opinion, and that it had been delivered by some authors. l. x. But here we find from the sacred text that he was in error. Ch.—By delivering his ring to Perdicas, Alexander gave him authority to make this division. W.—Many assert, that he gave him directions in his last will. This was observed for some time. v. 10.

VER. 8. Twelve. Jos. &c. Some add, a few months. He was about thirty-three years old.

VER. 10. Death, twelve years being expired, when all the posterity of Alexander were dead. His generals gradually destroyed each other, and four took the diadem at the same time: Ptolemy, in Egypt; Seleucus, in Syria; Cassander, in Macedonia; and Lysimachus, in Thrace. Just. xiii. and xv. and make a covenant with the heathens that are round about us: for since we departed from them, many evils have befallen us.

13 And the word seemed good in their eyes.

14 And some of the people determined to do this, and went to the king: and he gave them licence to do after the ordinances of the heathens.

15 And they built a place of exercise in Jerusalem, according to the laws of the nations:

16 And they made themselves prepuces, and departed from the holy covenant, and joined themselves to the heathens, and were sold to do evil:

17^d And the kingdom was established before Antiochus, and he had a mind to reign over the land of Egypt, that he might reign over two kingdoms.

18 And he entered into Egypt with a great multitude, with chariots, and elephants, and horsemen, and a great number of ships:

19 And he made war against Ptolemee, king of Egypt; but Ptolemee was afraid at his presence, and fled, and many were wounded unto death.

20 And he took the strong cities in the land of Egypt: and he took the spoils of the land of Egypt.

21 And after Antiochus had ravaged Egypt, in the hundred and forty-third year,^e he returned and went up against Israel.

22 And he went up to Jerusalem, with a great multitude.

23 And he proudly entered into the sanctuary, and took away the golden altar, and the candlestick of light, and all the vessels thereof, and the table of proposition, and the pouring vessels, and the vials, and the little mortars of gold, and the veil, and the crowns, and the golden ornament that was before the temple: and he broke them all in pieces.

Ch.—Epiphanes means "renowned." W.—He took this title, particularly after the Samaritans had offered it to him. Jos. xii. Vaillant. A. 145.—His medals have always God prefixed, "the god appearing;" as he came opportunely, like a god, to defend the kingdom against the Egyptians, after he had been fourteen years a hostage at Rome. VER. 12. Men. Jason attempted to supplant Onias III. and introduced pagan customs, when he was dead. Menelaus treated him in like manner. Being cited to pay what he had promised, he left Lysimachus in his place, who was slain in the temple, which he was robbing. 2 Mac. iv.—Us. Thus the Jews complained in the days of Jeremias, (xlv. 18.) and the Christian religion was blamed for all the miseries which fell upon the Roman empire. VER. 17. Egypt. He coveted this kingdom, having Syria already. W.—He was not very fit for war: but Egypt was now under Philometor a child, and Epiphanes made an easy conquest. This was his second visit to that country. While he besieged Alexandria, a report of his death was spread; and as he was informed that the Jews rejoiced at it, he fell upon them. v. 21. C.—After v. 20, read 2 B. iv. 21. W.

VER. 23. Sanctuary. Josephus (xii. 6.) writes, that Antiochus slew such as opposed his entrance into the city, and afterwards those who opened the gates, but would have prevented his plundering the temple. W.—Menelaus conducted the king. 2 Mac. v. 15. Profane authors condemn this conduct of the king towards a city subject to him. Jos. c. App. 2.—Diodorus relates several fables on this occasion. C.

24 And he took the silver and gold, and the precious vessels: and he took the hidden treasures, which he found: and when he had taken all away, he departed into his own country.

25 And he made a great slaughter of men, and spoke very proudly.

26 And there was great mourning in Israel, and in every place where they were:

27 And the princes, and the ancients mourned, and the virgins and the young men were made feeble, and the beauty of the women was changed.

28 Every bridegroom took up lamentation: and the bride that sat in the marriage bed, mourned:

29 And the land was moved for the inhabitants thereof, and all the house of Jacob was covered with confusion.

30 And after two full years, *the king sent the chief collector of his tributes to the cities of Juda, and he came to Jerusalem with a great multitude.

31 And he spoke to them peaceable words in deceit; and they believed him.

32 And he fell upon the city suddenly, and struck it with a great slaughter, and destroyed much people in Israel.

33 And he took the spoils of the city, and burnt it with fire, and threw down the houses thereof, and the walls thereof round about:

34 And they took the women captive, and the children, and the cattle they possessed.

35 And they built the city of David with a great and strong wall, and with strong towers, and made it a fortress for them:

36 And they placed there a sinful nation, wicked men, and they fortified themselves therein: and they stored up armour, and victuals, and gathered together the spoils of Jerusalem;

37 And laid them up there: and they became a great snare.

38 And this was a place to lie in wait against the sanctuary, and an evil devil in Israel.

39 And they shed innocent blood round about the sanctuary, and defiled the holy place.

40 And the inhabitants of Jerusalem fled away by reason of them, and the city was made the habitation of strangers, and she became a stranger to her own seed, and her children forsook her.

41 Her sanctuary was desolate like a wilderness, her festival days were turned into mourning, her sabbaths into reproach, her honours were brought to nothing.

* A. M. 3836. A. C. 168.—^b Tobias ii. 6. Amos viii. 10.

42 Her dishonour was increased according to her glory, and her excellency was turned into mourning.

43 *And king Antiochus wrote to all his kingdom, that all the people should be one: and every one should leave his own law.

44 And all nations consented, according to the word of king Antiochus.

45 And many of Israel consented to his service, and they sacrificed to idols, and profaned the sabbath.

46 And the king sent letters by the hands of messengers to Jerusalem, and to all the cities of Juda: that they should follow the law of the nations of the earth.

47 And should forbid holocausts and sacrifices, and atonements to be made in the temple of God.

48 And should prohibit the sabbath, and the festival days to be celebrated.

49 And he commanded the holy places to be profaned, and the holy people of Israel.

50 And he commanded altars to be built, and temples, and idols, and swine's flesh to be immolated, and unclean beasts,

51 And that they should leave their children uncircumcised, and let their souls be defiled with all uncleannesses, and abominations, to the end that they should forget the law, and should change all the justifications of God.

52 And that whosoever would not do according to the word of king Antiochus, should be put to death.

53 According to all these words he wrote to his whole kingdom: and he appointed rulers over the people that should force them to do these things.

54 And they commanded the cities of Juda to sacrifice.

55 Then many of the people were gathered to them that had forsaken the law of the Lord: and they committed evils in the land:

56 And they drove away the people of Israel into lurking holes, and into the secret places of fugitives.

57 On the fifteenth day of the month, Casleu, in the hundred and forty-fifth year, ^aking Antiochus set up the abominable idol of desolation upon the altar of God, and they built altars throughout all the cities of Juda round about:

58 And they burnt incense, and sacrificed at the doors of the houses and in the streets.

59 And they cut in pieces, and burnt with fire the books of the law of God:

63 * Now the women that circumcised their children, were slain according to the commandment of king Antiochus,

64 And they hanged the children about their necks in all their houses: and those that had circumcised them, they put to death.

66 And they would not break the holy law of God, and they were put to death:

67 And there was very great wrath upon the people.

The zeal and success of Mathathias. His exhortation to his sons at his death.

IN those days arose Mathathias, the son of John, the son of Simeon, a priest of the sons of Joarib, from Jerusalem, and he abode in the mountain of Modin:

2 And he had five sons: John, who was surnamed Gaddis;

3 And Simon, who was surnamed Thasi;

4 And Judas, who was called Machabeus;

5 And Eleazar, who was surnamed Abaron; and Jonathan, who was surnamed Apphus.

6 These saw the evils that were done in the people of Juda, and in Jerusalem.

7 And Mathathias said: Wo is me, wherefore was I born to see the ruin of my people, and the ruin of the holy city, and to dwell there, when it is given into the hands of the enemies?

8 The holy places are come into the hands of strangers: her temple is become as a man without honour.

M.—Mathathias was probably a descendant of Phinees, (v. 54.) and was officiating when the impious orders arrived. Whereupon he retired to Modin, (C.) near Diospolis. S. Jer.—Many say he was chosen high priest; and therefore decided the question about fighting on the sabbath. But any other, in similar emergencies, might have given that decision. C.—Judas was chosen, (Jos.) and Jonathan exercised the functions. Ant. xii. 8.—This family ruled till Herod, 128 years. C.—Here an account is given of their wars, and more fully in the eight last chapters of the 10 What nation hath not inherited her kingdom, and gotten of her spoils?

11 All her ornaments are taken away. She that was free is made a slave.

12 And behold our sanctuary, and our beauty, and our glory is laid waste, and the Gentiles have defiled them.

13 To what end then should we live any longer?

14 And Mathathias and his sons rent their garments, and they covered themselves with haircloth, and made great lamentation.

15 And they that were sent from king Antiochus, came thither, to compel them that were fled into the city of Modin, to sacrifice, and to burn incense, and to depart from the law of God.

16 And many of the people of Israel consented and came to them: but Mathathias and his sons stood firm.

17 And they that were sent from Antiochus, answering, said to Mathathias: Thou art a ruler, and an honourable, and great man in this city, and adorned with sons, and brethren.

18 Therefore, come thou first, and obey the king's commandment, as all nations have done, and the men of Juda, and they that remain in Jerusalem: and thou, and thy sons shall be in the number of the king's friends, and enriched with gold, and silver, and many presents.

19 Then Mathathias answered, and said with a loud voice: Although all nations obey king Antiochus, so as to depart every man from the service of the law of his fathers, and consent to his commandments:

20 I and my sons, and my brethren will obey the law of our fathers.

21 God be merciful unto us: it is not profitable for us to forsake the law, and the justices of God:

22 We will not hearken to the words of king Antiochus, neither will we sacrifice and transgress the commandments of our law, to go another way.

23 Now as he left off speaking these words, there came a certain Jew in the sight of all to sacrifice to the idols upon the altar in the city of Modin, according to the king's commandment.

VER. 5. Abaron, "passing," undaunted, (C.) or "potent."—Apphus, "the wrath or flying of counsel," (Pagn.) "fainting, abundant, or dissipating." C.—This small help, of great importance, was foretold by Daniel, xi. 34. W.

to the judgment of the law, and running upon him he slew him upon the altar :

25 Moreover the man whom king Antiochus had sent, who compelled them to sacrifice, he slew at the same time, and pulled down the altar,

26 And shewed zeal for the law, *as Phinees did by Zamri, the son of Salomi.

27 And Mathathias cried out in the city with a loud voice, saying: Every one that hath zeal for the law, and maintaineth the testament, let him follow me.

28 So he and his sons fled into the mountains, and left all that they had in the city.

29 Then many that sought after judgment, and justice, went down into the desert :

30 And they abode there, they and their children, and their wives, and their cattle: because afflictions increased upon them.

31 And it was told to the king's men, and to the army that was in Jerusalem, in the city of David, that certain men, who had broken the king's commandment, were gone away into the secret places in the wilderness, and that many were gone after them.

32 And forthwith they went out towards them, and made war against them on the sabbath day.

33 And they said to them: Do you still resist? come forth, and do according to the edict of king Antiochus, and you shall live..

34 And they said: We will not come forth, neither will we obey the king's edict, to profane the sabbath day.

35 And they made haste to give them battle.

36 But they answered them not, neither did they cast a stone at them, nor stopped up the secret places,

37 Saying: Let us all die in our innocency: and heaven and earth shall be witnesses for us, that you put us to death wrongfully.

38 So they gave them battle on the sabbath: and they were slain, with their wives, and their children, and their cattle, to the number of a thousand persons.

39 And Mathathias and his friends heard of it, and they mourned for them exceedingly.

40 And every man said to his neighbour: If we shall all do as our brethren have done, and not fight against the heathens for our lives, and our justifications: they will now quickly root us out of the earth.

41 And they determined in that day, saying: Who-soever shall come up against us to fight on the sabbath day, we will fight against him: and we will not all die, as our brethren that were slain in the secret places.

42 Then was assembled to them the congregation of the Assideans, the stoutest of Israel, every one that had a good will for the law.

43 And all they that fled from the evils, joined themselves to them, and were a support to them.

44 And they gathered an army, and slew the sinners in their wrath, and the wicked men in their indignation: and the rest fled to the nations for safety.

45 And Mathathias and his friends went round about, and they threw down the altars:

46 And they circumcised all the children whom they found in the confines of Israel that were uncircumcised: and they did valiantly.

47 And they pursued after the children of pride, and the work prospered in their hands:

48 And they recovered the law out of the hands of the nations, and out of the hands of the kings: and they yielded not the horn to the sinner.

49 Now the days drew near that Mathathias should die, and he said to his sons: Now hath pride and chastisement gotten strength, and the time of destruction, and the wrath of indignation:

50 Now, therefore, O my sons, be ye zealous for the law, and give your lives for the covenant of your fathers.

51 And call to remembrance the works of the fathers, which they have done in their generations: and you shall receive great glory, and an everlasting name.

CHAP. III.

Judas Machabeus succeeds his father, and overthrowes Apollonius and Seron. A great army is sent against him out of Syria. He prepares his people for battle by fasting and prayer.

THEN his son Judas, called Machabeus, rose up in his stead.

2 And all his brethren helped him, and all they that had joined themselves to his father, and they fought with cheerfulness the battle of Israel.

3 And he got his people great honour, and put on a breastplate as a giant, and girt his warlike armour about him in battles, and protected the camp with his sword.

4 In his acts he was like a lion, and like a lion's whelp roaring for his prey.

5 And he pursued the wicked and sought them out, and them that troubled his people he burnt with fire:

6 And his enemies were driven away for fear of him, and all the workers of iniquity were troubled: and salvation prospered in his hand.

7 And he grieved many kings, and made Jacob glad with his works, and his memory is blessed for ever.

8 And he went through the cities of Juda, and destroyed the wicked out of them, and turned away wrath from Israel.

9 And he was renowned even to the utmost part of the earth, and he gathered them that were perishing.

10 *And Apollonius gathered together the Gentiles, and a numerous and great army from Samaria, to make war against Israel.

11 And Judas understood it, and went forth to meet him: and he overthrew him, and killed him: and many fell down slain, and the rest fled away.

12 And he took their spoils, and Judas took the sword of Apollonius, and fought with it all his lifetime.

13 And Seron, captain of the army of Syria, heard that Judas had assembled a company of the faithful, and a congregation with him,

14 And he said: I will get me a name, and will be glorified in the kingdom, and will overthrow Judas, and those that are with him, that have despised the edict of the king.

15 And he made himself ready; and the host of the wicked went up with him, strong succours, to be revenged of the children of Israel.

16 And they approached even as far as Bethoron: and Judas went forth to meet him, with a small company.

17 But when they saw the army coming to meet them, they said to Judas: How shall we, being few, be able to fight against so great a multitude, and so strong, and we are ready to faint with fasting to-day?

18 And Judas said: It is an easy matter for many to be shut up in the hands of a few: and there is no difference in the sight of the God of heaven to deliver with a great multitude, or with a small company:

19 For the success of war is not in the multitude of the army, but strength cometh from heaven.

20 They come against us with an insolent multitude, and with pride, to destroy us, and our wives, and our children, and to take our spoils.

21 But we will fight for our lives, and our laws:

22 And the Lord himself will overthrow them before our face: but as for you, fear them not.

23 And as soon as he had made an end of speaking, he rushed suddenly upon them: and Seron, and his host, were overthrown before him:

24 And he pursued him by the descent of Bethoron, even to the plain, and there fell of them eight hundred men, and the rest fled into the land of the Philistines.

25 And the fear of Judas, and of his brethren, and the dread of them, fell upon all the nations round about them.

27 Now *when king Antiochus heard these words, he was angry in his mind: and he sent, and gathered the forces of all his kingdom, an exceeding strong army.

28 And he opened his treasury, and gave out pay to the army for a year: and he commanded them, that they should be ready for all things.

29 And he perceived that the money of his treasures failed, and that the tributes of the country were small, because of the dissension, and the evil that he had brought upon the land, that he might take away the laws of old times:

30 And he feared that he should not have as formerly, enough for charges and gifts, which he had given before with a liberal hand: for he had abounded more than the kings that had been before him.

31 And he was greatly perplexed in mind, and purposed to go into Persia, and to take tributes of the countries, and to gather much money.

32 And he left Lysias, a nobleman of the blood royal, to oversee the affairs of the kingdom from the river Euphrates even to the river of Egypt:

33 And to bring up his son, Antiochus, till he came again.

34 And he delivered to him half the army, and the elephants: and he gave him charge concerning all that he would have done, and concerning the inhabitants of Judea, and Jerusalem.

35 And that he should send an army against them, to destroy and root out the strength of Israel, and the remnant of Jerusalem, and to take away the memory of them from that place:

36 And that he should settle strangers, to dwell in all their coasts, and divide their land by lot.

37 So the king took the half of the army that remained, and went forth from Antioch, the chief city of his kingdom, in the hundred and forty-seventh year: and he passed over the river Euphrates, and went through the higher countries.

38 Then Lysias chose Ptolemee, the son of Dorymenus, and Nicanor, and Gorgias, mighty men of the king's friends.

39 And he sent with them forty thousand men, and seven thousand horsemen: to go into the land of Juda, and to destroy it, according to the king's orders.

41 And the merchants of the countries heard the fame of them: and they took silver and gold in abundance, and servants: and they came into the camp, to buy the children of Israel for slaves: and there were joined to them the forces of Syria, and of the land of the strangers.

42 And Judas, and his brethren, saw that evils were multiplied, and that the armies approached to their borders: and they knew the orders the king had given to destroy the people, and utterly abolish them.

43 And they said, every man to his neighbour: Let us raise up the low condition of our people, and let us fight for our people, and our sanctuary.

44 And the assembly was gathered, that they might be ready for battle: and that they might pray, and ask mercy and compassion.

45 Now Jerusalem was not inhabited, but was like a desert: there was none of her children that went in or out: and the sanctuary was trodden down: and the children of strangers were in the castle, there was the habitation of the Gentiles: and joy was taken away from Jacob, and the pipe and harp ceased there.

46 And they assembled together, and came to Maspha, over-against Jerusalem: for in Maspha was a place of prayer heretofore in Israel.

47 And they fasted that day, and put on haircloth, and put ashes upon their heads: and they rent their garments:

48 And they laid open the books of the law, in which the Gentiles searched for the likeness of their idols:

49 And they brought the priestly ornaments, and the first-fruits and tithes, and stirred up the Nazarites that had fulfilled their days:

50 And they cried with a loud voice toward heaven, saying: What shall we do with these, and whither shall we carry them?

51 For thy holies are trodden down, and are profaned, and thy priests are in mourning, and are brought low.

52 And behold the nations are come together against us, to destroy us: thou knowest what they intend against us.

57 So they removed the camp, and pitched on the south side of Emmaus.

58 And Judas said: Gird yourselves, and be valiant men, and be ready against the morning, that you may fight with these nations that are assembled against us, to destroy us and our sanctuary.

59 For it is better for us to die in battle, than to see the evils of our nation, and of the holies:

60 Nevertheless, as it shall be the will of God in heaven, so be it done.

CHAP. IV.

Judas routs the king's army. Gorgias flies before him. Lysias comes against him with a great army, but is defeated. Judas cleanses the temple, sets up a new altar, and fortifies the sanctuary.

THEN ^bGorgias took five thousand men, and a thousand of the best horsemen; and they removed out of the camp by night.

2 That they might come upon the camp of the Jews, and strike them suddenly: and the men that were of the castle were their guides.

3 And Judas heard of it, and rose up, he and the valiant men, to attack the king's forces that were in Emmaus.

4 For as yet the army was dispersed from the camp.

5 And Gorgias came by night into the camp of Judas, and found no man; and he sought them in the mountains: for he said: These men flee from us.

6 And when it was day, Judas shewed himself in the plain with three thousand men only, who neither had armour nor swords:

7 And they saw the camp of the Gentiles that it was strong, and the men in breastplates, and the horsemen round about them, and these were trained up to war.

8 And Judas said to the men that were with him: Fear ye not their multitude, neither be ye afraid of their assault.

11 And all nations shall know that there is one that redeemeth and delivereth Israel.

12 And the strangers lifted up their eyes, and saw them coming against them.

13 And they went out of the camp to battle, and they that were with Judas sounded the trumpet.

14 And they joined battle: and the Gentiles were routed, and fled into the plain.

15 But all the hindmost of them fell by the sword: and they pursued them as far as Gezeron, and even to the plains of Idumea, and of Azotus, and of Jamnia: and there fell of them to the number of three thousand men.

16 And Judas returned again with his army that followed him.

17 And he said to the people: Be not greedy of the spoils; for there is war before us:

18 And Gorgias and his army are near us in the mountain: but stand ye now against our enemies, and overthrow them, and you shall take the spoils afterwards with safety.

19 And as Judas was speaking these words, behold part of them appeared, looking forth from the mountain.

20 And Gorgias saw that his men were put to flight, and that they had set fire to the camp: for the smoke that was seen declared what was done.

21 And when they had seen this, they were seized with great fear, seeing at the same time Judas and his army in the plain ready to fight.

22 So they all fled away into the land of the strangers.

23 And Judas returned to take the spoils of the camp, and they got much gold, and silver, and blue silk, and purple of the sea, and great riches.

24 And returning home, they sung a hymn, and blessed God in heaven, because he is good, because his mercy endureth for ever.

25 So Israel had a great deliverance that day.

26 And such of the strangers as escaped, went and told Lysias all that had happened.

27 And when he heard these things, he was amazed and discouraged: because things had not succeeded in Israel according to his mind, and as the king had commanded.

28 So the year ^dfollowing, Lysias gathered together threescore thousand chosen men, and five thousand horsemen, that he might subdue them.

29 And they came into Judea, and pitched their tents in Bethoron, and Judas met them with ten thousand men.

33 Cast them down with the sword of them that love thee: and let all that know thy name praise thee with hymns.

34 And they joined battle: and there fell of the army of Lysias five thousand men.

35 And when Lysias saw that his men were put to flight, and how bold the Jews were, and that they were ready either to live, or to die manfully, he went to Antioch, and chose soldiers, that they might come again into Judea with greater numbers.

36 Then Judas, and his brethren said: Behold our enemies are discomfited: let us go up now to cleanse the holy places, and to repair them.

37 And all the army assembled together, and they went up into Mount Sion.

38 And they saw the sanctuary desolate, and the altar profaned, and the gates burnt, and shrubs growing up in the courts as in a forest, or on the mountains, and the chambers joining to the temple thrown down.^c

39 And they rent their garments, and made great lamentation, and put ashes on their heads:

40 And they fell down to the ground on their faces, and they sounded with the trumpets of alarm, and they cried towards heaven.

41 Then Judas appointed men to fight against them that were in the castle, till they had cleansed the holy places.

42 And he chose priests without blemish, whose will was set upon the law of God.

43 And they cleansed the holy places, and took away the stones that had been defiled into an unclean place.

46 And they laid up the stones in the mountain of the temple, in a convenient place, till there should come a prophet, and give answer concerning them.

47 Then they took whole stones, according to the law, and built a new altar, according to the former:

48 And they built up the holy places, and the things that were within the temple: and they sanctified the temple and the courts.

49 And they made new holy vessels, and brought in the candlestick, and the altar of incense, and the table, into the temple.

Ant. xii. 11.—The Rabbins add eight days, from the five and twentieth day of the month of Casleu, with joy and gladness.

60 They built up also at that time Mount Sion, with high walls, and strong towers round about, lest the Gentiles should at any time come, and tread it down, as they did before.

61 And he placed a garrison there, to keep it, and he fortified it, to secure Bethsura, that the people might have a defence against Idumca.

CHAP. V.

Judas and his brethren attack the enemies of their country, and deliver them that were distressed. Josephus and Azarias attempting, contrary to order, to fight against their enemies, are defeated.

NOW it came to pass, when the nations round about heard that the altar and the sanctuary were built up, as before, that they were exceeding angry.

2 And they thought to destroy the generation of Jacob that were among them, and they began to kill some of the people, and to persecute them.

3 Then Judas fought against the children of Esau, in Idumea, and them that were in Acrabathane: because they beset the Israelites round about, and he made a great slaughter of them.

4 And he remembered the malice of the children of Bean: who were a snare and a stumbling-block to the people, by lying in wait for them in the way.

5 And they were shut up by him in towers, and he set upon them, and devoted them to utter destruction, and burnt their towers with fire, and all that were in them.

6 Then he passed over to the children of Ammon, where he found a mighty power, and much people, and Timotheus was their captain:

7 And he fought many battles with them, and they were discomfited in their sight, and he smote them:

8 And he took the city of Gazer and her towns, and returned into Judea.

9 And the Gentiles that were in Galaad, assembled themselves together against the Israelites that were in their quarters, to destroy them: and they fled into the fortress of Datheman.

10 And they sent letters to Judas, and his brethren, saying: The heathens that are round about are gathered together against us, to destroy us:

11 And they are preparing to come, and to take the fortress into which we are fled: and Timotheus is the captain of their host.

VER. 3. Idumca. MS. Alex. has, "Judea." Both may be right. The country had been wrested from Juda by the Idumeans—Acrabathane is "the ascent of scorpions," (hakrabim) which were probably numerous, to the south of the Dead Sea. Num. xxxiv. 4. Deut. viii. 15.

12 Now therefore come, and deliver us out of their hands, for many of us are slain.

13 And all our brethren that were in the places of Tubin, are killed: and they have carried away their wives, and their children, captives, and taken their spoils, and they have slain there almost a thousand men.

14 And while they were yet reading these letters, behold there came other messengers out of Galilee with their garments rent, who related according to these words:

15 Saying, that they of Ptolemais, and of Tyre, and of Sidon, were assembled against them, and all Galilee is filled with strangers, in order to consume us.

16 Now when Judas and the people heard these words, a great assembly met together to consider what they should do for their brethren that were in trouble, and were assaulted by them.

17 And Judas said to Simon, his brother: Choose thee men, and go, and deliver thy brethren in Galilee: and I, and my brother Jonathan, will go into the country of Galaad:

18 And he left Joseph, the son of Zacharias, and Azarias, captains of the people, with the remnant of the army in Judea, to keep it:

19 And he commanded them, saying: Take ye the charge of this people; but make no war against the heathens, till we return.

20 Now three thousand men were allotted to Simon, to go into Galilee: and eight thousand to Judas, to go into the land of Galaad.

21 And Simon went into Galilee, and fought many battles with the heathens: and the heathens were discomfited before his face, and he pursued them even to the gate of Ptolemais.

22 And there fell of the heathens almost three thousand men, and he took the spoils of them.

23 And he took with him those that were in Galilee and in Arbatis, with their wives, and children, and all that they had, and he brought them into Judea with great joy.

24 And Judas Machabeus, and Jonathan, his brother, passed over the Jordan, and went three days' journey through the desert.

25 And the Nabutheans met them, and received them in a peaceable manner, and told them all that happened to their brethren in the land of Galaad,

VER. 23. Arbath. Arboth means "deserts" uncultivated, here probably denoting the valley of Jezrahel. Simon wisely concentrated the people, as Judas did in Galaad. v. 45.

VER. 24. Desert; probably from Bethsan to Bosor, marching with all secrecy.

26 And that many of them were shut up in Barasa, and in Bosor, and in Alima, and in Casphor, and in Mageth, and in Carnaim; all these strong and great cities.

27 Yea, and that they were kept shut up in the rest of the cities of Galaad, and that they had appointed to bring their army on the morrow near to these cities, and to take them, and to destroy them all in one day.

28 Then Judas and his army suddenly turned their march into the desert, to Bosor, and took the city: and he slew every male by the edge of the sword, and took all their spoils, and burnt it with fire.

29 And they removed from thence by night, and went till they came to the fortress.

30 And it came to pass that early in the morning, when they lifted up their eyes, behold there were people without number, carrying ladders and engines to take the fortress, and assault them.

31 And Judas saw that the fight was begun, and the cry of the battle went up to heaven like a trumpet, and a great cry out of the city:

32 And he said to his host: Fight ye to-day for your brethren.

33 And he came with three companies behind them, and they sounded their trumpets, and cried out in prayer.

34 And the host of Timotheus understood that it was Machabeus, and they fled away before his face: and they made a great slaughter of them: and there fell of them in that day almost eight thousand men.

35 And Judas turned aside to Maspha, and assaulted, and took it, and he slew every male thereof, and took the spoils thereof, and burnt it with fire.

36 From thence he marched, and took Casbon, and Mageth, and Bosor, and the rest of the cities of Galaad.

37 But after this Timotheus gathered another army, and camped over-against Raphon, beyond the torrent.

38 And Judas sent men to view the army: and they brought him word, saying: All the nations, that are round about us, are assembled unto him an army exceeding great:

39 And they have hired the Arabians to help them, and they have pitched their tents beyond the torrent, ready to come to fight against thee. And Judas went to meet them.

40 And Timotheus said to the captains of his army: When Judas and his army come near the torrent of water, if he pass over unto us first, we shall not be able to withstand him: for he will certainly prevail over us.

VER. 41. Afraid. He interpreted the delay in this sense, which was very proper (1180)

41 But if he be afraid to pass over, and camp on the other side of the river, we will pass over to them, and shall prevail against him.

42 Now when Judas came near the torrent of water, he set the scribes of the people by the torrent, and commanded them, saying: Suffer no man to stay behind: but let all come to the battle.

43 And he passed over to them first, and all the people after him, and all the heathens were discomfited before them, and they threw away their weapons, and fled to the temple that was in Carnaim.

44 And he took that city, and the temple he burnt with fire, with all things that were therein: and Carnaim was subdued, and could not stand against the face of Judas.

45 And Judas gathered together all the Israelites that were in the land of Galaad, from the least even to the greatest, and their wives and children, and an army exceeding great, to come into the land of Juda.

46 And they came as far as Ephron: now this was a great city, situate in the way, strongly fortified, and there was no means to turn from it on the right hand or on the left, but the way was through the midst of it.

47 And they that were in the city shut themselves in, and stopped up the gates with stones: and Judas sent to them with peaceable words,

48 Saying: Let us pass through your land, to go into our own country, and no man shall hurt you; we will only pass through on foot. But they would not open to them.

49 Then Judas commanded proclamation to be made in the camp, that they should make an assault, every man in the place where he was.

50 And the men of the army drew near, and he assaulted that city all the day, and all the night; and the city was delivered into his hands:

51 And they slew every male with the edge of the sword; and he razed the city, and took the spoils thereof, and passed through all the city over them that were slain.

52 Then they passed over the Jordan to the great plain that is over-against Bethsan.

53 And Judas gathered together the hindmost, and he exhorted the people, all the way through, till they came into the land of Juda.

54 And they went up to Mount Sion with joy and gladness, and offered holocausts, because not one of them was slain, till they had returned in peace.

in the land of Galaad, *and Simon, his brother, in Galilee, before Ptolemais,

56 Joseph, the son of Zacharias, and Azarias, captain of the soldiers, heard of the good success, and the battles that were fought,

57 And he said: Let us also get us a name, and let us go fight against the Gentiles that are round about us.

58 And he gave charge to them that were in his army, and they went towards Jamnia.

59 And Gorgias and his men went out of the city, to give them battle.

60 And Joseph and Azarias were put to flight, and were pursued unto the borders of Judea: and there fell on that day, of the people of Israel, about two thousand men, and there was a great overthrow of the people:

61 Because they did not hearken to Judas and his brethren, thinking that they should do manfully.

62 But they were not of the seed of those men by whom salvation was brought to Israel.

63 And the men of Juda were magnified exceedingly in the sight of all Israel, and of all the nations where their name was heard.

64 And the people assembled to them with joyful acclamations.

65 Then Judas and his brethren went forth and attacked the children of Esau, ^bin the land towards the south, and he took Chebron and her towns: and he burnt the walls thereof, and the towers all round it.

66 And he removed his camp to go into the land of the aliens, and he went through Samaria.

67 In that day some priests fell in battle, while desiring to do manfully they went out unadvisedly to fight.

68 And Judas turned to Azotus, into the land of the strangers, and he threw down their altars, and he burnt the statues of their gods with fire: and he took the spoils of the cities, and returned into the land of Juda.

CHAP. VI.

The fruitless repentance and death of Antiochus. His son comes against Judas with a formidable army. He besieges Sion: but at last makes peace with the Jews.

NOW ^aking Antiochus was going through the higher countries, and he heard that the city of Elymais, in Persia, was greatly renowned, and abounding in silver and gold,

2 And that there was in it a temple exceeding rich; and coverings of gold, and breastplates, and shields, which king Alexander, son of Philip, the Macedonian, that reigned first in Greece, had left there.

3 So he came, and sought to take the city and to pillage it; but he was not able, because the design was known to them that were in the city.

4 And they rose up against him in battle, and he fled away from thence, and departed with great sadness, and returned towards Babylon.

5 And whilst he was in Persia, there came one that told him how the armies that were in the land of Juda were put to flight:

6 And that Lysias went with a very great power, and was put to flight before the face of the Jews, and that they were grown strong by the armour, and power, and store of spoils, which they had gotten out of the camps which they had destroyed:

7 And that they had thrown down the abomination which he had set up upon the altar in Jerusalem, and that they had compassed about the sanctuary with high walls as before, and Bethsura also, his city.

8 And it came to pass, when the king heard these words, that he was struck with fear, and exceedingly moved: and he laid himself down upon his bed, and fell sick for grief, because it had not fallen out to him as he imagined.

9 And he remained there many days: for great grief came more and more upon him, and he made account that he should die.

10 And he called for all his friends, and said to them: Sleep is gone from my eyes, and I am fallen away, and my heart is cast down for anxiety:

11 And I said in my heart: Into what tribulation am I come, and into what floods of sorrow, wherein now I am: I that was pleasant and beloved in my power!

12 But now I remember the evils that I did in Jerusalem, from whence also I took away all the spoils of gold, and of silver, that were in it, and I sent to destroy the inhabitants of Judea without cause.

13 I know, therefore, that for this cause these evils have found me: and behold I perish with great grief in a strange land.

14 Then he called Philip, one of his friends, and he made him regent over all his kingdom.

his ring, that he should go to Antiochus, his son, and should bring him up for the kingdom.

16 So king Antiochus died there in the year one hundred and forty-nine.*

17 And Lysias understood that the king was dead, and he set up Antiochus, his son, to reign, whom he had brought up young: and he called his name Eupator.

18 Now they that were in the castle, had shut up the Israelites round about the holy places: and they were continually seeking their hurt, and to strengthen the Gentiles.

19 And Judas purposed to destroy them: and he called together all the people, to besiege them.

20 ^b And they came together, and besieged them in the year one hundred and fifty, and they made battering slings and engines.

21 And some of the besieged got out: and some wicked men of Israel joined themselves unto them.

22 And they went to the king, and said: How long dost thou delay to execute judgment, and to revenge our brethren?

23 We determined to serve thy father, and to do according to his orders, and obey his edicts:

24 And for this they of our nation are alienated from us, and have slain as many of us as they could find, and have spoiled our inheritances.

25 Neither have they put forth their hand against us only, but also against all our borders.

26 And behold they have approached this day to the castle of Jerusalem to take it, and they have fortified the strong hold of Bethsura:

27 And unless thou speedily prevent them, they will do greater things than these, and thou shalt not be able to subdue them.

28 Now when the king heard this, he was angry: and he called together all his friends, and the captains of his army, and them that were over the horsemen.

29 There came also to him from other realms, and from the islands of the sea, hired troops.

30 And the number of his army was an hundred thousand footmen, and twenty thousand horsemen, and thirty-two elephants trained to battle.

VER. 20. Fifty. How then was peace made in 148, as we read 2 B. xi. 21. Usher (3841) supposes the era was reckoned according to the Chaldean custom, which defers it six months. Basnage (ii. 1.) rather thinks that the letter is placed out of its proper order, and should occur at the beginning of Eupator's reign. See 2 B. x.—Slings, or to throw stones, &c. ballistas. H.—The Gr. and Josephus rather indicate terraces, or towers where the machines were placed.

VER. 30. Hundred. The 2 B. xi. 2. specifies 80,000. But it speaks of a subsequent action.

31 And they went through Idumea, and approached to Bethsura, and fought many days, and they made engines: but they sallied forth, and burnt them with fire, and fought manfully.

32 And Judas departed from the castle, and removed the camp to Bethzacharam, over-against the king's camp.

33 And the king rose before it was light, and made his troops march on fiercely towards the way of Bethzacharam: and the armies made themselves ready for the battle, and they sounded the trumpets:

34 And they shewed the elephants the blood of grapes, and mulberries, to provoke them to fight.

35 And they distributed the beasts by the legions: and there stood by every elephant a thousand men in coats of mail, and with helmets of brass on their heads: and five hundred horsemen set in order were chosen for every beast.

36 These, before the time wheresoever the beast was, they were there: and whithersoever it went, they went, and they departed not from it.

37 And upon the beast, there were strong wooden towers which covered every one of them: and engines upon them, and upon every one thirty-two valiant men, who fought from above: and an Indian to rule the beast.

38 And the rest of the horsemen he placed on this side and on that side, at the two wings, with trumpets to stir up the army, and to hasten them forward that stood thick together in the legions thereof.

39 Now when the sun shone upon the shields of gold, and of brass, the mountains glittered therewith, and they shone like lamps of fire.

40 And part of the king's army was distinguished by the high mountains, and the other part by the low places: and they marched on warily and orderly.

41 And all the inhabitants of the land were moved at the noise of their multitude, and the marching of the company, and the rattling of the armour, for the army was exceeding great and strong.

42 And Judas and his army drew near for battle: and there fell of the king's army six hundred men.

43 And Eleazar, the son of Saura, saw one of the beasts harnessed with the king's harness: and it was going to battle, as by drinking they lose their strength. Elian, Hist. ii. 40. and xiii. 8. and 3 Mac. v. 30.

VER. 37. Thirty-two. Bochart looks upon this and other such accounts as fabulous. He does not determine how many might fight in these towers; but allows that there must have been above two or three, as some would correct the Gr. text, "two or three strong men fighting with darts upon them." An elephant has been known to carry above 5000 pounds, and thirty-two men would weigh no more than 4800. Pliny (viii. 7.) observes that sixty people have been seen upon an elephant. Eupator probably had his from India, where they are larger than in Africa. A person of that country was deemed fittest to manage them.

VER. 38. Trumpets. It would seem as if the infantry had none. Yet this does not appear probable. The Greek reads in a different manner. Some copies have "to stir up and enclose them in the defiles," which seems useless; or "to keep them together in the phalanxes," (MS. Alex. C.) as the Vulg. has read. M.

VER. 39. Gold. The Argyraspides of Alexander had "shields of silver." His successors might surpass this magnificence; or the officers might have golden and the soldiers brazen bucklers.

VER. 42. Six, &c. before the exploit of Eleazar. Others fell afterwards. 2 B. xi. 11. specifies 11,000 foot, and 600 horse. Josephus says 1000 of the van guard.
